City Treasurer Wallin stated that this council inherited a debt from the last council—unpaid orders—of about $1,200.

The plat of Meehan's addition to Thief River Falls was approved.

The following is Mayor Kretzschmar's message in full:

In entering upon the duties of mayor of the city I wish briefly to outline to you my views of the policy that the ingoing city administration should pursue during the coming term.

To the outgoing mayor and council, I in common with other loyal citizens of our city tender my sincere thanks for the honest and faithful endeavor they have made to give this city a good administration for the two years past and which has proved conductive of so much good to our city.

In the appointment of city employees I wish preference should be given to those who in the past have discharged their trust faithfully and to the satisfaction of all good citizens, thereby complying with the spirit of the law, under which the city is organized, and also promoting the efficiency of the executive branch of the city's administration, which is largely in the hands of the appointive officers.

The present salaries paid city employees are, in my opinion, not too big. If we expect good and honest service we must pay for it, enough, at least, that they make their living when working for the city.

To the police of the city I shall look for the enforcement of our city's ordinances and laws of the state, ever expecting that the police in the discharge of their duties exercise due discretion and judgment.

As to improvement in the coming year I like to see a certain amount of money, but not to exceed $500.00, appropriated from the current expense fund for the purpose of keeping the roads leading into our town in order, and I would suggest that such appropriation, if made, be given to a committee to work in conjunction with a committee of business men of the town and in fairness to taxpayers of the city who are not directly engaged in business the business element should in lieu of such appropriation subscribe an appropriate sum of money to be added thereto and the whole amount deposited to be drawn on for improvements of roads only.

The sanitary condition of the city should not be lost sight of and I recommend that a sewer be built from the iron bridge to the city hall and that it be made sufficiently big to carry the water off. In order to carry this recommendation out I would suggest that the city council establish the different wards as separate sewer districts of the city.

In order that better care can be taken of the city's tools I recommend that a shed be built on the west end of the city hall and that the stairway now inside be removed to the outside, thereby giving better accommodation to the council and public. Also that a sufficiently big fire proof safe be procured for the safe keeping of the city's books and papers.

The newly acquired park of the city I wish to see improved to the extent of clearing off the grounds, trimming the trees and having the streets around graded.

Before concluding, I wish to advise that steps be taken to have the name of the city changed, the present name being too long, and a more appropriate name, such as Quinn Falls, Tween Falls or Lake Falls, could be had. This proposition I consider an important matter for the city and should not be lost sight of.

To citizens in general I wish to say: I earnestly solicit your support and co-operation in the discharge of my duties. On Sundays let all places of business be closed, and more especially so the saloons of the city. Observe the Sabbath day in the spirit in which it is given to mankind and do not allow any drunken person in places of business or on the streets to disturb the peace and dignity of Sunday, as that will not be tolerated.

Welcome all worthy strangers to our town, and at home and abroad have a good name for it; let us all

ORDER FOR HEARING AND NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR.

In the matter of the estate of Ada F. Snyder, deceased:

On receiving and filing the petition of William Snyder, of the county of Yates and state of New York, representing, among other things, that Ada F. Snyder, late of the county of Yates, state of New York, on the 20th day of April, A. D. 1897, at the village of Penn Yan, in the county of Yates and state of New York, died intestate, and being a resident of Yates county at the time of her death, leaving goods, chattels and estate within this county, and that the said petitioner is the father of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to J. W. Wheeler granted:

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before this court, on the 27th day of January, A. D. 1900, at ten o'clock A. M., at the Probate Office, in said county, in Red Lake Falls.

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased, and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Thief River Falls News, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Thief River Falls, in said county.

By the Court:
[SEAL.] J. T. KNIGHT,

Bert Walker has received word from Duluth to the effect that his mother was quite seriously injured on a street car last week at that place. Mrs. Walker visited in this city last summer and her friends here hope that she may speedily recover.

The Crookston Times says that Burkhardt Bros., proprietors of Crookston's new packing house, Tuesday received a car load of corn-fed Iowa pork, which they will proceed to carve and pack. This is a change from the usual method of shipping our hogs to Chicago, and then back again in the forms of hams, bacon, lard, etc. A large first-class packing establishment in the Red River valley should not only pay the packers, but would be a great benefit to our farmers.—Ada Index.

LaBree Ave. — — Thief River Falls, Min

I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Say, John, what are you doing to look so healthy?"

WAS HE ACTING?

They had been married three months and had never had a quarrel, not even a misunderstanding, which is infinitely worse than a quarrel. She was young, much younger than he, and had romantic notions.

"It's ridiculous that we never have any tiffs," she pouted one morning at the breakfast table. "Other people quarrel and have delightful times making up."

"I've no objections to a well conducted family jar provided it is tastefully decorated and contains a quantity of potpourri," replied John. "As for the other kind, excuse me."

That evening as he entered the house he saw Agnes standing between the portieres dividing the hall from the parlor, a new expression on her winsome face.

"You have come," she said tragically.

"Certainly I've come," replied John in a mystified tone. "It's about the time I usually get here, isn't it?"

"You have not seen—her?" she went on in the same intense way.

"Her? Who in the world are you talking about?" he asked, trying to kiss her.

She warned him away, the palm of her hand turned outward.

"I mean the woman with the black, black hair and the little brown mole on her chin, who has crossed the water to find you."

John Updegraf was hanging his hat on the rack, and, chancing to glance in the little mirror, he saw a face turned suddenly so bleached and haggard that he hardly recognized it as his own. He therefore made a feint of smoothing his hair and pulling his mustache before he faced his wife.

"Agnes, what in the name of wonder do you mean by all this nonsense? What woman is this—and has she been here?" he concluded lamely.

"Ah, you admit, then, that you know her?"

"I admit nothing, I know nothing," began John. There was, however, a curious, strained look about his eyes.

"You know nothing about the black haired woman with an Italian look and a brown mole on her chin who has been looking for you for the past five years? Do you dare deny that you know her?"

There was an awful silence. The pair looked into each other's eyes, the woman savagely imperious, the man gradually weakening.

"You will meet her in less than three days," went on Agnes.

"Oh, God!" cried John Updegraf suddenly, sinking into a chair and burying his face in his hands. "My God, what shall I do?"

The woman in the doorway stood looking at him in a sort of horrified astonishment. The mien and expression of imperious tragedy about her were relaxing and fading and in their place struggled a mixture of fear and amazement.

"John," she said in a changed tone, "who is she?"

"Don't ask me," came from John in a stifled growl behind his hands. "She belongs to the past. I thought she was dead to me long ago. And she dared to come here!" he added, springing to his feet and beginning to pace the room. "Here, to you! If she puts herself in my way after this, I'll kill her as I would a mad dog, if she is a woman!"

Agnes regarded her husband with a growing terror. Was this savage man with haggard face and bloodshot eyes John Updegraf? She began to tremble and sank into a chair, big tears running down her cheeks. "I never dreamed of such a thing as this," she sobbed; "that there was a woman on earth that could affect you like this. I don't believe that you would be so moved if—you heard I was—dead. She must have a great hold on you. Oh, you must—love her! I feel nothing to her—nor to—you. Tell me who she is—where she is—how she looks—all about her. I demand it!"

"You must know how she looks; you've seen her."

"Never. I never saw her."

"Stick to the truth. It will be better in the end. You said she called here today."

"I said nothing of the kind. Nobody has been here today but the grocer and the iceman."

"Now, see here. You must tell a straight story. At least make it consistent. How could you describe a woman you never saw?"

"It was only a joke. I thought we'd have a little tiff and then make up. Oh, I never dreamed you knew such a woman! I went to the bazaar this afternoon, and they had a gypsy fortune teller there to amuse customers while they waited. She told me about a black haired woman with a brown mole from across the water"—

"Oh, I see. Ha, ha!" broke in John, though the laugh ran a little hollow. "This is good. We've been playing at cross purposes, haven't we, sweetheart? Well, I saw you were posed for private theatricals the minute I opened the door, so I fell in with the idea at once. I never would have believed, Agnes, that you were such a perfect actress. You cried as naturally—why, as I live, here is a real tear!"

"John, do you mean that there isn't any such woman?"

"Never heard of her till you sprung it on me a minute ago."

Agnes crossed the room tremblingly and placed two nervous hands on his shoulders. "John, don't deceive me. I can't bear it. Look me straight in the eyes and tell me the whole truth. You don't know such a woman as I described? Swear!"

John Updegraf looked at her, hesitated while one could count five and took the oath. The next instant he was half choked with hugs and kisses.

"I don't like quarreling," said Aggie, half laughing, half crying.

"The making up is all right, though," quoth John.

His wife grew very quiet, and there was a faroff look in her eyes. "I don't altogether like the making up either," she sighed. "Somehow it all leaves a bad taste."—Chicago News.

THE JOKER WORSTED

BY BARRY PAIN.

"What was the matter with you the other day?" I asked.

"What day?" he said snappishly.

"Yesterday, I think. You were going down Bond street in a hansom. You were without a hat. Your face was dusty and your nose was bleeding. Your collar was"—

"Stop!" he said. "I'll tell you about it. Are you a fool?"

"No," I replied.

"You're fairly clever?"

"Certainly. In fact, that understates it."

"Then it will be a warning to you. It was cleverness brought me to the condition in which you saw me. I've been getting cleverer and cleverer of late. Mind, I've signed off now. I'm going to be as big a fool as other people in future, but"—

"Do get on with the story."

"I say that it was a dirty trick of Jennings to run away like that. And those silly books about Theodore Hook and other practical jokers ought to be stopped, and"—

"You're too incoherent. Begin at the beginning."

"That's what I was doing, more or less. If I hadn't read that stuff about the man betting that he'd make the utter stranger invite him to dinner and winning it, I could have kept quiet, but after that I kept on having clever ideas. Mind, my idea about the ticket inspector wasn't bad, though that wasn't what"—

"Tell me about the ticket inspector first."

"Oh, that was at Baker street. I saw there was an inspector on the hunt, and, having a first class ticket, I got into a second class carriage. My idea was to tell him that I hadn't got a second class ticket, but was quite willing to change into the third. Then he'd say that I could not do that and should have to pay the excess, the difference between second and third. Then I should have replied that I wouldn't pay and that I would change. Then when he tried to stop me from getting out I should have shown him my first class ticket. See?"

"Yes."

"Can't you imagine what a silly goat that inspector would have looked? Well, he came to my carriage, and he said, 'Tickets, please.' I began, 'I haven't got a second class ticket, but'— Then he interrupted me. He said 'Show your ticket, please,' speaking quite civilly, as if he were being patient with a child that couldn't understand. Then I had to show it, and he didn't seem surprised or amused or pained. He said, 'Thank you,' and went on. Other people in the carriage smiled a good deal, and I rather fancy they were smiling at me. These things don't work out the way you have planned them beforehand. That was what was wrong with the signaling in the park."

"What was that?"

"That was what brought me to the condition in which you saw me yesterday. I had seen the soldiers signaling in the park. They fool about with flags and notebooks, and crowds come round and get frightfully interested. Well, my idea was to do some bogus signaling that didn't mean anything and take in the crowd. I meant to write to the papers about it afterward, so that the crowd would know they'd been fooled and get mad with themselves. That's the last thing, by the way, I ever do with Jennings. I told him about it, and he was a good deal amused and said he'd join in it. We put on blue serge suits and yachting caps, so that we looked official, with a dash of the navy about it. We had no flags, because we thought it would be more fun to signal with our arms and legs, but we both carried thundering big notebooks. We took up our position in the park about 50 yards apart and took care to be near a path where plenty of people would be passing. Jennings signaled first. He stood on his left leg and worked an imaginary bicycle with his right. Then he rapped his knees together sharply twice and finished by striking his chest with both hands alternately very quickly. I thought I should have died of laughing, but I controlled myself and pretended to take down the meaning of all the signals in my notebook.

"Then it was my turn to signal. I did a windmill action with my right arm and bell pulling with my left. Then I covered my left eye with one hand and stamped with my right foot. I threw in a few more eccentric movements, and of course Jennings pretended to record them. By this time each of us had a little crowd around him. At his end it was almost all children and nursemaids, but at mine there were a good many ablebodied park loafers. Jennings always has all the luck, as you'll see.

"Well, it was a regular bean feast and went beautifully. When the crowd asked me questions, I told them not to talk, as it interrupted the signaling, but after a few minutes a big, interfering kind of man came up. He was very quarrelsome and partially intoxicated, but I fancy that he knew something about signaling. He had not watched us for half a minute before he said we were not signaling at all and that the whole thing was a plant. I began to feel a little nervous. Then he snatched my notebook and of course saw that there were no genuine entries in it. I moved away, and that crowd, which seemed much annoyed, moved after me. Jennings, seeing there was trouble on, bolted at once in the most cowardly way instead of coming to help me, and as he had only nursemaids at his end he was all right."

"But you were not?"

"The police got me out of the park in the end and put me into the hansom in which you saw me. I can't understand why the crowd lost its temper over a harmless little joke like that, but it did. Anyhow, I've done with these smart tricks now. In future you'll kindly remember that I'm just as big a fool as anybody else."

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS.

VOL. XVII. NO. 1. THIEF RIVER FALLS, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, JANUARY 11, 1900. TERMS: $1.50 IN ADVANCE.

WELL, WELL

ELECTION FEB. 24.

To Vote Bonds for the Improvement.

A resolution was passed by the board of county commissioners last Saturday to the effect that the county be bonded for $10,000 and a court house be erected at Red Lake Falls. Commissioners, Demann, Sutor and Hebert voted for the proposition and Commissioners Hansen and Johnson against it. The action of the board will have to be ratified by the people living in the county, and a special election will be held on Feb. 24, 1900.

The matter has been discussed a great deal by the people living in the northern part of the county and all are unanimous in the belief that the proposition should be voted down. A mass meeting will be held in the city hall Saturday evening, at which time it is expected that all residents of Thief River Falls and vicinity will be present. A similar meeting will be held in St. Hilaire at the same time and each meeting will elect delegates to attend a convention, at which time a plan of campaign will be made.

While the Red Lake Falls people only ask for $10,000 for the building of the court house, it must be understood that no provision for a jail is made, and it would be sure to cost, when completed and furnished, at least $20,000. The county is now in debt some $30,000, and, while it can ill afford to go in debt more, the citizens of Thief River Falls should not look at it in that way. The county seat is at present only temporarily located at Red Lake Falls, but the building of a court house would mean that it would be permanently located there. Thief River Falls has hopes that some day it may become a county seat of either this county or of a new county to be formed of surrounding territory, and if the proposition to build a court house at Red Lake Falls carries, our hopes could never be realized.

It should be remembered that this is not a fight between St. Hilaire and Red Lake Falls for the county seat—it is merely a question of whether it is to be temporarily or permanently located at Red Lake Falls—and so long as we can keep it temporarily located we will be in a position to make Red Lake Falls agree to any proposition we may make in the future, but if the county seat is permanently located there, they would never let us out of the county. At present we hold the "age" and should keep it.

New Manager.

E. O. Shevlin, who has been for some time manager for the Crookston Lumber company, leaves in a few days with his family for Europe where he will spend the year. R. L. Chapin, of Chicago, who succeeds Mr. Shevlin at this place, is already on hand and with his family will occupy the house in which Mr. Shevlin has lived.—Crookston Journal.

TROUBLE AHEAD

For the Proposed Canal to Lake Superior.

Crookston, Minn., Jan. 4.—Attorney Ledru Guthrie, of Grand Forks, was in Crookston today on legal matters. In an interview on the progress of the project to build a canal that shall connect the great lakes with the Red river, a movement in which he is greatly interested, owing to the fact that he is the attorney for the projectors of the scheme, he said that the plan is perfectly feasible, and that the company in New York has made a map of the proposed route, showing all the elevations, and giving the data of the work necessary to complete the water connection. Members of the company have prepared a bill, he says, and are now in Washington for the purpose of getting introduced as a senate measure. It is said, however, that the Minnesota senators are opposed to the project, and without their aid it will fail. The plans as drawn up make it necessary for the projectors to cross the reservation lands, and the Minnesota lumber merchants claim that such a project would have an undesirable effect upon the reservoirs of the upper Mississippi. For these reasons Mr. Guthrie is inclined to the belief that the scheme will be blocked for many months, perhaps years.

ANOTHER LODGE.

Masons of This City Will Organize a Lodge.

A meeting was held in the Thief River Falls Lumber company's office last Saturday evening and preliminary steps for the organization of a Masonic lodge in this city were taken. Officers were elected and a petition was sent to the grand lodge for a charter. It is expected that the lodge will be organized in about a month.

Big Quarter at U. S. Land Office.

The figures showing the business done by the U. S. land office during the quarter ending Dec. 31st are very flattering and show an increase over the preceding quarter of one-third more business. The total number of homestead entries was 518, covering 71,771.60 acres. There were 121 final homestead proofs made, and five final timber cultures proved up on, 98 cash entries were made and the total cash receipts amounted to $26,597.46.—Crookston Times.

Mrs. Geo. Bye Dead.

Mrs. Geo Bye died at her home in Black Duck Monday morning of convulsions. The news reached this city Tuesday morning and cast a shadow of sorrow over her many friends here.

Mrs. Bye was the daughter of H. H. McDougal and has lived in this country for seven years. Her many friends express their heartfelt sympathy to her griefstricken parents and husband. The remains were brought to this city for interment.—Bemidji Pioneer.

SOME FIGURES

On the Rate of Taxes and Valuation.

Auditor Zeh and Deputy J. E. Ford have been very busy men for the past three weeks working on the abstract of Red Lake county taxes, and on Dec. 30 the auditor mailed to the state auditor the document which shows the exact condition of the county. A few figures taken from the abstract show the county to be in a flourishing condition, as the valuation and assets have increased several thousand dollars over last year. There were 345,600 acres of land assessed exclusive of town lots, and a valuation of $776,807 was placed thereon, and the valuation of town lots brought this amount up to $1,072,855. The valuation of personal property is $318,755, making the total valuation in the county $1,390,606. Upon this amount there was made a levy of $63,341, making an average rate of 45½ mills.

The following table gives the rate of taxes for all purposes in mills on property located in the different townships, cities and villages, as well as the assessed valuation of both real and personal property:

WHY THIEF RIVER FALLS IS A SUCCESS

Its wheat market is unsurpassed in the Northwest—with three elevators and a large flouring mill, it has every facility for handling and shipping the grain.

The vast meadows to the north and east offer inexhaustible wild hay and grazing ground for stock of all kinds.

It is the terminus of the railroad and the only outlet for the trade of this rich region.

It is also at the foot of the navigable portion of the Red Lake river and the base of supplies for the great lumber regions tributary to Red lake.

Two saw mills, one of which employs 300 men, working night and day, convert the logs into good, hard money.

There is standing timber in sight to insure thirty years' sawing, and the rapidly growing farming and grazing community will by that time have made the city independent of lumber interests.

While all the immediate vicinity is under cultivation and the back towns are being speedily settled, there still exists, within a day's drive, a sportsman's paradise and that the sportsmen are not insensible of this fact is attested by the number of hunting parties constantly passing through the city during the open season.

The wealth of furs and hides secured by the reservation Indians as well as by the hunters and trappers of the more remote regions to the east and north are all marketed here.

Its geographical situation in the midst of the rich open country but holding at the same time the key to the wealth of the forests, insures success.

And Thief River Falls is a success.

WILL COST MORE.

Farm Machinery Will Advance 10 to 40 Per Cent.

The machinery item in the expense of conducting farming operations is an important one and foots up to a big total. The amount spent annually is something enormous and would probably exceed the amount expended for any other one class of goods. In view of this fact the announcement of an advance in nearly every line of machinery carried by the local dealers, varying from 10 per cent to 40 per cent will be of general interest. The only line of machinery that may not be included is threshing machines and engines. Their price for the coming season has not yet been determined upon.

The advance in the retail price farm machinery, the local dealers say, is caused by the advance in price made by the wholesalers and jobbers, which in turn is explained by the advance in iron and steel and the big advance in wages paid by the manufacturers. It is a fact well known that many machinery manufacturers were unable to supply the trade last year. Especially was this true regarding threshing machines.

Eddy's Face.

Decidedly the homeliest man in congress is Eddy, of Minnesota. He rather glories in the distinction of ugliness, especially as all his other characteristics are enviable. During the last campaign the enemies of Mr. Eddy charged him with being double-faced. He met the charge in a manner that disarmed all criticism. "Great Heavens," said Mr. Eddy to his audience, "do you think if I had two faces I would wear the one I am showing you now?"—Washington Post.

A CUSTOM MILL.

One Is Being Built on the Meehan Fraction.

Fletcher Cary, James Jonkes and John Anderson have formed a partnership and are building a small saw mill on the Meehan fraction. The mill will have a capacity of from 8,000 to 10,000 feet per day, and doing custom work for the farmers will be the main business of the mill. The proprietors also intend to saw some hardwood and cedar.

Put Out Chimney Fires.

As the fire department of Thief River Falls has been called out several times of late to extinguish the flames in a burning chimney, the following suggestions of Day F. Stacy, of Red Lake Falls, which were published in the Red Lake County Courier, ought to be read and heeded by many residents of this city:

Either of the following methods will extinguish a chimney fire, but the first is the best:

1st. Have a piece of sheet zinc about six or eight inches square always ready, lay it on the fire in the stove and it will vaporize and put out the fire almost immediately.

2nd. Have ready a small package of sulphur; burn it in the stove, keeping draft closed, the resulting sulphurous acid gas will kill the fire in the chimney nearly as quickly as the oxide of zinc fumes in the former case.

3rd. Throw a double handful of table salt on the fire in the stove and close the draft.

In all cases the drafts of stoves and pipe holes in the chimney should be kept closed.

Thief River Falls Jan. 11, 1900.

John Lind announces that he will not be a candidate for reelection. Who says we haven't a wise governor?

Mayor Stephens, of Crookston, is being mentioned as a delegate to the Republican national convention from this district.

The Seventh district Republicans should be entitled to two places upon the state ticket—secretary of state and attorney general.

If Red Lake Falls would guarantee to put the court house on wheels, a few citizens of Thief River Falls and St. Hilaire might be induced to vote for the erection of a court house in Red Lake county.

Don't fail to see Camp, Edwards and Brown in their celebrated coon show, supported by a company of coon performers, headed by two of the smallest pickaninnies now before the public.

A MASS MEETING!

A mass meeting will be held in the city hall on Saturday evening, Jan. 13, 1900, for the purpose of considering the proposed bonding of Red Lake county for the building of a court house at Red Lake Falls. All voters and taxpayers residing in Thief River Falls and vicinity are requested to be present.

IN NORWAY?

It Is Rumored that Sever Simle Is Arrested.

A rumor comes from Grand Forks to the effect that Sever Simle, the harness maker, who recently left this city with considerable cash belonging to his partner and others, has been arrested in Christiania, Norway. C. L. Dobner, who is the owner of a large number of claims against him, has heard nothing definite regarding the matter, however. The Grand Forks story says that he was arrested while endeavoring to get a draft of $1,200 cashed, payment upon which had been ordered stopped.

CARE OF THE LARDER.

How to Practice Economy and Order in the Kitchen.

Nothing, of course, should on any account be left in a saucepan, as the consequences from this might be very disastrous. Soup flavored with vegetables must be boiled up nearly every other day in winter and every day in summer. If there is any doubt of its keeping properly, boil it down for glaze, which will keep for months, and use it for ornamenting dishes, etc. It should be kept in a jar, which should be placed in boiling water when required to be melted for use.

There should be two large pans of fat always kept in the larder, one reserved exclusively for frying fish and labeled to that effect and the other for frying potatoes, rissoles, etc. The mistress on her matutinal visit to the larder should see that these are strained after use, occasionally clarified when necessary and replenished from time to time. It is advisable that the housekeeper should herself superintend the rendering and clarifying of the dripping from the joints. The process is quite simple. Remove any deposit of gravy which will be found at the bottom of the basin of dripping the day after the joint has been roasted. Break the dripping up and let it melt in a saucepan over the fire. Then pour the hot fat into a basin and add to it gradually an equal quantity of boiling water. Let it stand until the fat is set, when the water and dirty sediment will settle at the bottom of the basin. Remove the dripping in one piece, scrape the underside and dry it well in a cloth, and it will be ready for use.

Any bits of fat trimmed from joints, the trimmings of cutlets, the end of chops, etc., should all be collected by the careful housekeeper, placed in an old tin and melted down in a slow oven. The superfluous fat from a joint which has been reduced to a mince or hash should be treated in the same way. The fat from the top of soup, boiled meat, etc., will be found most excellent for frying small things and should always be carefully saved. Such fat gains an agreeable flavor from the meat and vegetables of the broth.

Bacon or ham fat should always be kept in a separate jar. It is so useful for cooking purposes, and when rendered down and clarified it will be found excellent for the crust of a steak pie. The cook should be carefully taught to keep the different kinds of fat in separate basins or jars and to remember what each has been used for, as sometimes one kind of fat will answer better for a certain purpose than another.

How to Bronze Wood.

The wood is first covered with a uniform coating of glue or of drying oil, and when nearly dry the bronze powder, contained in a small bag, is dusted over it. The surface of the object is afterward rubbed with a piece of moist rag. Or the bronze powder may be previously mixed with the drying oil and applied with a brush.

How to Fricassee Beef Heart.

Wash the heart well, cut in squares half an inch long, stew in enough boiling water to cover, adding one teaspoonful of salt. As the scum rises skim and throw away. Cook for ten minutes. Take out the heart, chop, strain the liquor and return the heart to it, adding, with one small sliced onion, one tablespoonful of tomato catchup, one tablespoonful of chopped parsley, one tablespoonful of butter and one-eighth of a saltspoon of cayenne pepper. Stew until meat is tender and then add a tablespoonful of brown flour to thicken. Boil up once and serve.

How to Make Virgin Rice Water.

For a rough, red skin, hulled rice, 2 ounces; river water, 1 pound. Boil until reduced one-third, strain, then add juice of water cress, two-thirds of an ounce; virginal tincture, 10 drops. This water has the reputation of cleansing the skin well and freeing it from redness and pimples. It is an old formula of high repute.

NINE YEARS OLD.

THIS CELEBRATED WINE is the pure juice of the Oporto Grape, raised in Speer's vineyards, and left hanging until the grapes are partly raisin before gathering. It is invaluable Tonic and Strengthening Properties are unsurpassed by any other wines in the world, being produced under Mr. Speer's personal supervision, at his own vineyards, the past forty years. Its purity and genuineness are guaranteed by the principal Hospitals and Boards of Health who have examined it. It is particularly beneficial to the aged, debilitated and the weaker sex. In every respect it is A WINE TO BE RELIED ON.

(See that the signature of Alfred Speer, Passaic, N. J., is over the cork of each bottle.)

Speer's (Socialite) Claret

Is held in high estimation for its richness as a Dry Table Wine, specially suited for dinner use.

Speer's P. J. Sherry

Is a wine of Superior Character and partakes of the rich qualities of the grape from which it is made.

Speer's ★★★ Climax Brandy

IS A PURE distillation of the grape, and stands unrivaled in this country for medicinal purposes, and equal in every respect to the high priced Cognac Brandies of France, from which it can not be distinguished.

SOLD BY DRUGGISTS AND GROCERS WHO KEEP FIRST CLASS WINES.

ORDER FOR HEARING AND NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR.

On receiving and filing the petition of William Snyder, of the county of Yates and state of New York, representing, among other things, that Ada F. Snyder, late of the county of Yates, state of New York, on the 20th day of April, A. D. 1897, at the village of Penn Yan, in the county of Yates and state of New York, died intestate, and being a resident of Yates county at the time of her death, leaving goods, chattels and estate within this county, and that the said petitioner is the father of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to J. W. Wheeler granted;

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before this court, on the 27th day of January, A. D. 1900, at ten o'clock A. M., at the Probate Office, in said county, in Red Lake Falls.

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased, and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Thief River Falls News, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Thief River Falls, in said county.

By the Court:
J. T. KNIGHT,
Judge of Probate.

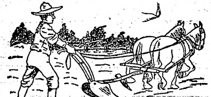
LaBree Ave. — — Thief River Falls, Min



I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Say, John, what are you doing to look so healthy?"

ANGORA GOATS.

What an Expert Says About Their Culture.

One of the most profitable branches of animal industry in the United States is the raising of Angora goats, as they are thriving especially on land which has hitherto been considered as utterly worthless.

There are very few states in the Union which have not millions of acres of brushy mountain land of next to no value located from an altitude of 400 or 500 feet above the sea level to 6,000 or 8,000 feet, depending much upon the latitude of the land, which would offer a perfect paradise to the Angora goat and would if stocked with these animals be a source of ever increasing profits to their owners, and the amount of money which would be required would be so low compared to the profits which could be realized by an intelligent caretaker that the cost usually should not be in the way of anybody who wishes to engage in the enterprise.

The farmer whose farm partly consists of scrub mountain land would have the advantage, and to him Angora goats would be entirely supernumerary, offering the greatest chances for large profits. All he has to do is to fence a piece of land into two pastures, turn his goats on them alternately, sometimes in one, sometimes in the other; drive them out at daybreak and bring them back at sundown. If possible, he should connect the pastures with his barn, where he should construct an open shed or hovel. Anything that will turn rain would be sufficient. Upon arrival at their roosting place feed them some little grain, and they soon will not have to be driven in any more, but be there in time for the sweet morsel.

The owner of Angora goats should procure at kidding time two or three suckling pups of some strong breed of dog, but if possible with a strain of collie in them, and raise these pups on a kidless doe (a common one would be preferable) until they are large enough to follow the goats. Such dogs will become so attached to the breed of their foster mother that they will fight for them until death anything in the shape of four or two legged curs that would venture near their charge and be the most reliable of shepherds. Two or three dogs thus brought up with goats could be trusted with the management of a flock of sheep of as much as two or three thousand and with very little extra instruction would herd them as well and with as much sense of duty as any hired shepherd and be by far cheaper. I am often asked questions in regard to the cost of goats and whether common goats or Angoras would pay best for a start.

Common goats are not high in price, but the item of freight is considerable. This cost may be ascertained from the nearest railroad agent. Grade Angoras, according to their quality, would cost from $1.50 up to $5 or more. It is only natural that for goats yielding very heavy fleeces very large prices should have to be paid, and of course also to the above prices the freight would have to be added.

When asking advice as to the class of goats with which a party new in the business should begin with, much, if not everything, would depend on the following points:

First.—How near he is to a local market for the surplus of his goats.

Second.—How many acres of land he has at his disposal and how many goats he could keep thereon, varying all the way from five or six acres for each goat up to five or six goats on each acre, and cannot be determined unless by personal inspection.

Third.—Whether he has to depend at the very beginning upon a cash income from them, when the highest grade of goats is doubtless the best, or whether he can wait for a few years before he realizes. The latter of course is in the advantage and if he has plenty of means to start with probably could make the most money by grading up the ordinary common goats or at least the very lowest grade of Angoras, for these latter breed faster, and if he has enough money to put up a canning establishment he could reap large profits from the enterprise. Still, the lower the grade of the Angoras the lower the quality of their meat and the harder is it to dispose of it, both at retail and wholesale.

Fourth.—How much capital he has to invest and whether such can be invested, no matter in which state of the Union, or whether he is compelled to do so in an already fixed locality. This is usually a principal and very vital question. If a party has only a few hundred dollars and absolutely depends upon the goat industry for a living from the very beginning and has no land of his own, I will not say exactly that he better stay entirely out of the goat business, but I can promise him pretty tough scratching for the first two or three years, and he must have a remarkably good constitution and firm energy to stand the racket.

Fifth.—Last, but not least, must depend upon the health, age, character and former habits of the party, for a man who has been living on a salary of say $1,200 to $2,500 a year and perhaps has quite a family to support and is himself on the downward grade of life must not expect to be able to live in the same way as before with a capital investment of $500 or $1,000 or even $3,000, for he certainly will not be able to do it.

But the Angora goat industry must today be considered a very safe and at the same time very profitable investment, provided the personality of the new beginner is suited to it and if his means are adequate to his own personal demands or those of his family. The land is steadily increasing in value, and his stock is constantly improving. Thus his income as well as his property will steadily increase.

Let us suppose, however, a party has $3,000 and can get a five years' lease on 6,000 acres at 3 cents per acre, with privilege to buy at $1.50, one-third cash, the rest in four or five equal yearly payments. He would have to buy two good double tents and some household furniture at a cost of about $150; three mares, one wagon and harness, $350; two cows, chickens and pigs, $50; plowshares, etc., $20; rent of land, $180; provisions, $100; 450 goats, $4 each, $1,800; four bucks, $200. There would be left for him still $100 cash on hand for emergency expenses. At the ordinary rate of increase and allowing a fair price for mohair and culling out gradually the worst animals his income would be for the first year about $170 after deducting the rent, for the second about $900, for the third $900 after deducting both the rent and about $250 for new bucks. The fourth year would leave about $1,500 after deducting rent and $250 for new bucks; the fifth year, $2,800; the sixth year, $4,500. From the seventh year the income would be over $5,000 and gradually increase up to $6,000 or $7,000, according to the care given to the management of the goats. Of course the deductions made of the total income include only the rent and the most necessary additions to the number of bucks, and whatever a party will have to deduct for renewals, expenses and help he can best judge for himself. Yet he should after the second year have enough for a comfortable living, and out of the revenue of the fourth year enough should be laid by for the fifth to make a first payment on the land without being compelled to be stinted in the fifth year's expenses, and from the sixth and seventh year the income should enable the breeder to venture $1,000 or $2,000 each year for the establishment of a thoroughbred flock of his own, in which actually the largest profits would be.

These figures are rather conservative, yet they show that there is money in Angora goats—plenty of money—if only they are handled in the right way.

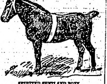
Stamina In Horses.

The ideal horse that would be full of stamina, as we call it, would have deep lungs. The depth counts a good deal more than width for easy and long breathing. In fact, I am a nonbeliever in the greater part of these fashionable broad chested horses, but low, being able to go their 12 miles in one hour and live after it, especially weighing 1,200 to 1,400 pounds; second, the horse must have spirit; third, he must have lots of ambition; fourth, his bones must be smaller, but more solid than a draft horse, so as to give great strength with light weight; fifth, he should be inclined to be tall for the weight; sixth, he should be muscled in hard bands and appear knotted when the horse is in motion; seventh, the barrel should be round and clean, so as not to show gutty at all, and the two ends of the horse should look a little large and deep for the body; eighth, the horse that will have these qualities pre-eminent will always have a high rump, the root of the tail showing very prominent from the quarter down. Some things I say will be questioned, but come along and discuss horse breeding.—Farmers' Tribune.

Wrong Kind of Shetland Pony.

Here is a portrait of a prize winning Shetland, which, while a very smart pony, is an excellent example of what a Shetland should not be. This pony is a high acting, spirited fellow, with docked tail and pulled mane, made to resemble a miniature cob, says The National Stockman. It is all right for a man to make his pony into such an animal if he can and wants to, but it is not and should not be classed as a true type of Shetland pony. The Shetland is bred in this country for the use of children. He is not bred to act high or to gallop or to trot at a good rate of speed. He must be gentle, perfectly so, permitting all sorts of liberties from the youngsters who are to use him. They must have in him a perfectly safe, trusty companion and playmate. We mention this because we have seen these "fancy" ponies win from a lot of shaggy maned, honest, sober, low gaited fellows who were typical representatives of the breed. Competent judges will consider such things in making the awards.



SPIRITED SHETLAND PONY.

Wintering Stock.

The most important point in wintering farm stock is to see to it that at the beginning the stock is thrifty and not so old that it will be more apt to depreciate than to increase in price by keeping through. Stock young enough not to have made its full growth pays best to keep of all. It is far better to kill or sell in fall the stock that has passed its best than to try to winter it. If it is kept over, the food it eats will be wasted. If the cost of food fed to stock that gain nothing from it was spent in better feeding of young and thrifty stock, it would make stock breeding in winter always profitable instead of being, as now, the cause of greater loss than gain.—American Cultivator.

IT IS FAVORABLE.

The Report on the Free Homestead Bill.

Senator Pettigrow reported favorably from the committee on Indian affairs the free homestead bill. The report contains an elaborate argument in favor of the passage of the measure, and embodies the reports made in previous congresses on this subject. The bill, as reported, applies to Indian trust lands. This is the feature of the measure that caused such strong opposition in the last congress, and efforts will be made by opponents of the bill to exclude Indian trust lands from the operations of the measure.

SUES FOR $20,000.

F. H. Kratka Defendant and G. A. Potter Plaintiff.

Geo. A. Potter has commenced a suit against F. H Kratka and his attorneys for $20,000. Potter will be remembered as the man who, in company with Geo. W. Mason, was to erect a mill on some property owned by Mr. Kratka just south of the city. The deal did not go through and Mr. Kratka sued Potter for the amount of the proposed purchase price of the property and secured a judgment. Strenuous efforts have since been made to collect the judgment and Mr. Potter claims that he has been maliciously bothered and damaged to the extent of $20,000.

NO CONVERTS

To the Proposition to Bond the County.

Frank E. Hunt, County Auditor Adam Zeh, W. A. Schreiter and Judge John T. Knight, a quartette of genial Red Lake Falls citizens, were in Thief River Falls last Saturday consulting with citizens of this place and endeavoring to induce them to vote favorably upon the proposed bonding of the county for $10,000 and building a court house at Red Lake Falls. While all of these gentlemen are personally popular with the citizens of this place, they did not succeed in making any converts, although they had a very enticing proposition to make—that of dividing the county. Outside of Red Lake Falls there are very few people who are in favor of the bond proposition.

A Novelty.

The judge of probate in Redwood county was called upon to probate a will last week that possessed an interesting history. The document was filed by George Crooks, son of the noted John Crooks, who saved many of the whites during the Indian massacre in '63. Crooks passed away at his home eight miles east of Redwood Falls during the early portion of the week before last. It was the first Indian will ever offered for probate in Redwood county, and in all probability, the first in the state. Another peculiarity attached to the incident was the fact that it was a joint will, having been executed by the deceased Indian and his wife just before the latter died last spring.

MISDEMEANOR.

U. S. Flag Must Not Be Subjected to Indignities.

The law passed by the legislature at its last session, in regard to the United States flag, and which went into effect on the first of January, has probably been forgotten by many people and it may not be amiss to be reminded of it.

It provides that anyone who in any manner, for exhibition or display, places any inscription, design, device, symbol, advertisement, name, words, characters, marks or notice whatever upon any flag of the United States or state of Minnesota, or who exhibits such a mutilated flag, or who publicly mutilates, tramples upon or otherwise defaces or defiles any such flag, whether the flags are public or private property, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. It is provided that flags in the service of the United States or the state may have such inscriptions as are placed there pursuand to law or athorized regulations.

This means that no printing or other marking may be done upon any flag, and that no one may offer any indignity whatever to a flag without being guilty of a misdemeanor. This is read to include societies that have inscriptions on flags, and all such societies will have to adopt a new standard unless they want to become subject to the punishment for a misdemeanor.

Some have imagined that it would prevent the use of the design of a flag upon advertisements, but this is not the case. While no advertisements may be printed upon a flag, flags may be printed on advertisements. — Brainerd Arena.

NEW SETTLERS

Will Be Coming From the Old Country Next Spring.

From reports received by incoming travelers and various emigration bureaus it seems very evident that there will be a very large foreign emigration to this section of the state early in the spring. This is alway taken by the emigration agents as a sign of a good year, and one agent in the twin cities says:

"Inquiries for prepaid tickets are coming in right and left from all over the northwest, the cause being the desire to take advantage of the general low rates. This means that the foreign population of this section, especially the Germans and Scandinavians, feel that it is time to send tickets to their relatives in the old country for the purpose of bringing them over here this winter or early next spring.

"The onward business, that is, the movement of Scandinavians and Germans to the old country was very light, the fall harvesting and railroad work of the country and the vast amount of profitable work that has been offered here making it unnecessary for them to return to the old country. In past seasons after the fall harvesting and railroad work were done thousands of workingmen went to their homes in Europe for the winter, as the majority of them could live there for a few months and take it easy for less than it would cost them in this country.

"This year these people appear to be staying home for the winter, for the reason that there is plenty of work for them to do, and for which they can receive good pay. Instead of going to Europe they are sending prepaid tickets to their friends and relatives, and most of these tickets are accompanied with glowing accounts of prosperity in America and especially in the northwest."

"Nig" Is Missing.

The Cass Lake Times tells the following story of the disappearance of Charles Tedford's dog, "Nig"—both of whom are well known here:

His color was black, his hair curly, his disposition and temperment sunny; though of few words, he was esteemed and beloved by all who knew him. He came among us eight months ago, and while he resided here his character was spotless and his business transactions always on the square. He owed no man anything, and ever greeted his friends with a smile and gladness. No "scarlet letter" marked his breast, but instead there was a white spot to indicate the color of his soul. But when his master, Charley Tedford, left Sec. 16 and moved over to 15 and opened business there, poor "Nig" (for that was his name) wept and refused to be comforted; he didn't stop to say goodbye, but quietly and sadly wandered away, forsaking all that was near and dear to him. Whether he committed suicide is not known. It is reported that he was last seen in Superior.

Notice.

Teachers' examination for Red Lake county under the new law will be held in the high school building in the city of Red Lake Falls Friday and Saturday, February 2 and 3. It will be necessary for all persons expecting to teach in this county, whose certificates expire prior to March 1st, 1900, to attend this examination. All applicants will please be present promptly at 8 o'clock on the morning of the first day, as no questions can be furnished after the examination in any subject begins.

THE NEWS,

By John W. Eastman.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

$1.50 PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

Thief River Falls Jan. 18, 1900.

It will cost the county $2,000 to inform Red Lake Falls that a court house is not needed.

"Ten thousand dollars would not complete the court house the Red Lake Falls people propose to build. It would cost at least $20,000.

The speech delivered by Senator Beveridge, of Indiana, on the Philippine question could be profitably read by all anti-expansionists.

Red Lake county pays $360 a year rent for a court house. The interest on $10,000 at the rate of 5 per cent would amount to $500 a year. Take your choice.

The McKinley club, of Crookston, will celebrate Lincoln's birthday by giving a banquet. Hon. Moses E. Clapp, of St. Paul, will be the principal speaker.

The Minneapolis Journal predicts that the re-election of Senator Nelson will be as enthusiastic as was that of Senator Davis last winter. We hope the prediction will prove true.

Building material is about 50 per cent higher now than it was a year ago at the same time. Wouldn't it be foolish then to commence building a court house this spring?

The Duluth News-Tribune says that Lind's "withdrawal is a double-geared back-action device wrought and finished in the brain-factory of John Lind, expert political mechanic."

Either St. Hilaire or Thief River Falls is willing to build a $15,000 court house and give it to the county gratis, providing it is used. Now let the people of Red Lake Falls do likewise or keep still.

Another attempt is being made to divide Polk county. The people living at McIntosh have caused a petition to be circulated which is for the purpose of setting off that portion of Polk county lying south of Red Lake county.

The special election for the purpose of voting on the bond issue will cost the county about $2,000. This matter could just as well have been voted upon at the election next fall and thus a good sum would have been saved the taxpayers.

While the people of Red Lake Falls say that for the sake of "economy" a court house should be built, no mention of the fact that a special election, which will cost the county at least $2,000, has been unnecessarily called. This matter could just as well be voted upon next fall at the general election and the county would not have been put to any extra expense. When you talk of economy practice it.

Col. Cooper's bill, which provides for the setting aside of the Cass Lake, Leech Lake and Winnibigoshish Chippewa Indian lands for park purposes, has been introduced in congress. It provides that three men shall be appointed by the president to negotiate a new treaty with the Indians, and to fix a price which the government shall pay for said lands in lieu of the present method of disposing of them.

Pay Your Taxes.

Chapter 322 of the laws of 1899 provides for a cleaning up sale of all real estate in Minnesota, upon which the taxes are delinquent for the year 1897, or any prior year or years. The sale will take place immediately after the regular delinquent tax sale in May. There will be no redemption from this sale. In the language of the statute it "shall be absolute and final."

Section 7 of the chapter above referred to provides that "when any piece or parcel of land shall be sold, the purchaser shall be entitled to immediate possession of the piece or parcel purchased by him, and if on demand and on presentation of the certification of sale, the person in possession of the piece or parcel refuses or neglects to deliver such possessions, such person may be proceeded against as a person holding over the termination of his estate."

Chapter 322 is modeled after the '81 law and the forfeited tax law of '81 has been declared valid by the supreme court. State Auditor Dunn has received reliable information that several syndicates have been organized in St. Paul and in the southern part of the state who will have representatives at every county seat in Northern Minnesota to bid on every lot or tract of land that is considered worth the taxes.

These bidders cannot possibly lose anything. If the sale is sustained by the courts a tax certificate will be as good as a warranty deed, and if the sale is held to be invalid the holder of the certificate will be refunded his money with interest. We would advise every reader of the News that the only safe policy to pursue is to pay up all back taxes at once. It is safe to assume that if you own a forty acre tract reasonably worth $600, and there are delinquent taxes against it to the amount of $100 or $150, the speculators in tax titles will not permit you to bid it in for less than the full amount of the taxes. It would be unwise to wait until the day of sale with the expectation of being able to bid in your home for 50 per cent of the taxes.

CITY COUNCIL

Held a Regular Meeting Monday Night.

The city council held a meeting Monday evening, Aldermen Knox, Aos, Barzen and Langseth being present and Alderman Stranahan absent. Mr. Stranahan has removed to Crookston and another alderman will have to be elected in his place, although the council did not take any action in the matter.

A petition was received from H. Fant asking for a franchise to put in a local telephone exchange. A charge of $3 per month for business houses and $2 per month for residences would be made. A similar petition was received from a gentleman residing at Fertile, but it did not state what prices would be charged. No action was taken.

The bond of J. W. Wallin, city treasurer, was approved.

A resolution was passed to the effect that the city fire department could elect its own chief, and could also nominate an engineer, which nomination would have to be approved by the council.

The street commissioner reported that a large number of the city's tools had been stolen in the past, and the council instructed him to place the tools in the city clerk's office in the future.

Ex-City Attorney F. Hibner appeared before the council and told that august body that he was still their legal advisor and that his term of office would not expire until next November. He said that he had a letter from the attorney general to that effect, but did not exhibit it. Hibner office was declared vacant at the last meeting of the council, but it appears that he is endeavoring to hold on.

The following communication was received from M. K. Wall, but no action was taken:

To the Hon. mayor and common council of the city of Thief River Falls, Red Lake county, Minnesota:

Gentlemen:—I hereby make application for the appointment to the office of city clerk of the city of Thief River Falls, Red Lake county, Minnesota, for the ensuing term, viz: From January 1st, 1900, to January 1st, 1902.

Having had on former occasions held office—city clerk of Chippewa Falls, Chippewa county, Wisconsin—for a period of six years, whose duties were in the main similar to those of city clerk of this place, and having read law for a period of two years, I think I am so conversant with the rules, practice and duties pertaining to said office that I can with facility discharge the duties thereof to your satisfaction and according to law.

Also hearing that at your last regular meeting held on the 2nd day of January, 1900, the city clerk was, by resolution or otherwise, in addition to the duties devolving upon him as such clerk, required and ordered to act in the capacity of street commissioner from the first day of November to the first day of April, in each year, during his said term of office; and as his salary was fixed by you at three hundred dollars in full compensation for his services rendered, and realizing economy to be an amiable trait in any government, whether city, state or national, therefore I hereby agree, if you see fit to appoint me to such office, to donate one hundred fifty dollars off my first year's salary and one hundred fifty dollars off my second year's salary to the city, the same to be at the disposal or pleasure of the common council to be, by them, used in the construction and repairs of streets and roads.

M. K. Wall.

IS HEREBY GIVEN, That at the opening of the February, 1900, General Term of the District Court in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, at the Court House in the City of Red Lake Falls, in said County, on the twelfth day of February, A. D. 1900, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, Thief River Falls Lumber Company, a corporation duly organized, created and existing under the laws of the State of Wisconsin, and doing business at the City of Thief River Falls, in said Red Lake County, and the owner of all lands and premises hereinafter described, will apply to the said District Court for an alteration of the plats embracing all these lots, pieces, tracts or parcels of land lying and being in the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: All of lots N, M, L, K, I, H, G, F, and ten, eleven, twelve, thirteen, fourteen, fifteen, sixteen and seventeen, of block No. twenty three; and lots L, M, N, O, P and twenty-two, twenty-three, twenty-four and twenty-five, of block No. twenty-four, of Knox's, re-arrangement of blocks numbered twenty-three and twenty-four, of Red Lake Rapids, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Red Lake County; also lots eleven, twelve, thirteen, fourteen, fifteen, sixteen, seventeen, eighteen, nineteen and twenty of block No. one (1), and all of block No. two (2), and block No. three (3), in Conely's addition to Red Lake Rapids, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Red Lake County; also all of blocks thirty-six, thirty-seven, thirty-eight and thirty-nine, in the townsite of Red Lake Rapids, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Red Lake; also all other parcels of land which together with all the lots and blocks hereinbefore described are in said Red Lake County and included within the boundary line described as follows, to-wit: Beginning at the intersection of the western boundary of Conely avenue with the northern boundary of Nora street of Conely's addition to Red Lake Rapids; thence N. 88 degrees and 30 minutes W., a distance of 1020 ft.; thence N. 1 degree and 30 minutes E., a distance of 125 ft.; thence N. 60 degrees, and 30 minutes E., a distance of 231 ft.; thence N. 52 degrees and 30 minutes E., a distance of 684.5 ft.; thence N. 1 degree and 30 minutes E., a distance of 40 ft.; thence S. 88 degrees and 30 minutes E., a distance of 128 ft.; thence N. 1 degree and 30 minutes E., a distance of 140.2 ft.; thence N. 74 degrees and 50 minutes W., a distance of 112.4 ft.; thence N. 15 degrees and 10 minutes E., a distance of 75.8 ft.; thence N. 74 degrees and 50 minutes W. to the left bank of the Red Lake river; thence northerly along said river bank to its intersection with a line which co-incides with south boundary of Bridge street of Knox's re-arrangement of blocks 23 and 24 of the townsite of Red Lake Rapids; thence easterly along said line to its intersection with the western boundary line of Alley in said block 24; thence S. 1 degree and 30 minutes W. along western boundary line of said Alley and on a line coinciding therewith to the northern boundary line of block one (1) of Conely's addition to Red Lake Rapids; thence easterly along said boundary line to western boundary line of Alley in said block one; thence S. 1 degree and 30 minutes W. along said western boundary line of Alley to south boundary line of Hughes street in said addition; thence easterly along said south boundary line of said Hughes street to western boundary line of Conely avenue of said addition; thence S. 1 degree and 30 minutes W. along western boundary of Conely avenue to place of beginning, so as to include all said lots, blocks, tracts, pieces and parcels of land in one tract to be known and designated as "Thief River Falls Lumber Company's Alteration of the Plats of Red Lake Rapids, Conely's addition to Red Lake Rapids and Knox's Re-arrangement of blocks 23 and 24 of Red Lake Rapids."

And said application will also be for the purpose of having all Streets and Alleys and all parts of all Streets and Alleys within the aforesaid boundary line vacated and the title to all said land embraced within said boundary line declared and adjudged to be in said Thief River Falls Lumber Company; and for such other and further relief as to the court may seem just and proper.

Dated at Thief River Falls, Minn., this 10th day of January, A. D. 1900.

VOTE IT DOWN.

The Bond Proposition Is Not a Favorite.

The mass meeting held in the city hall Saturday evening for the purpose of considering the proposition to bond Red Lake county for $10,000 and building a court house at Red Lake Falls was quite well attended by the business men and tax payers of this city. Mayor Kretzschmar called the meeting to order and Lars Backo was elected secretary.

After the purpose of the meeting had been stated, Attorney Ira C. Richardson, in a few well chosen words, addressed the meeting, giving his views upon the matter. He gave a fair and impartial view of the situation and voiced the sentiments of all present by saying that we should all work and vote against the proposition. A committee of three, consisting of Mayor Kretzschmar, James Meehan, Jr., and C. L. Dobner was elected and were given the power to appoint a committee of ten—five to be from the city and five from the country—to confer with the committee from St. Hilaire. They will also have the power to appoint a finance committee of three.

FEARS HIM.

Mrs. Hanson Says Her Husband Makes Bad Threats.

Mrs. Molla Hanson was in the city from Sanders Tuesday and caused a warrant to be sworn out before Judge Tarrant for the the arrest of her husband, Fredrick Hanson. She is an elderly woman about 40 years of age and her husband is a few years her senior. She alleges that on several different times her husband has struck her and her children and has made many threats to kill the whole family. She is afraid that he may attempt to carry out some of the threats and asks the state of Minnesota to protect her. According to her story Hanson is either a brute or is crazy.

MARRIED.

Robert McGinn and Miss Minnie Conely.

At St. Bernard's Catholic church yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, the Rev. Fr. Ansgor, of Red Lake Falls, officiating, occured the marriage of Robert McGinn and Miss Minnie Conely. M. K. Wall acted as best man and Miss Annie Conely, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. The ceremony was witnessed by a large number of the friends of the contracting parties, after which the gathering adjourned to the residence of the bride's parents, where an elegant wedding breakfast was served.

The bride is one of the best known and most highly respected young ladies of Thief River Falls, where she has grown to womanhood, and is well known by all. And the groom—well, every one knows "Bob" McGinn.

Mr. and Mrs. McGinn left yesterday on a wedding tour of about three weeks' duration and will visit Mr. McGinn's parents in Depere, Wis., before returning.

A Kansas Stockwoman.

The leading woman stock raiser of Kansas is Miss Mary Best of Barber county. She came from England and settled in Medicine Lodge ten years ago and soon after engaged in farming and stock raising. With the possible exception of ex-Congressman Jerry Simpson, Miss Best owns the finest farm in Barber county. She owns and controls 3,000 acres of land, 700 acres of which are in cultivation. She is dealing extensively in cattle and now has on her ranch near Medicine Lodge about 2,000 head, of which 700 head are her own, and the rest she is holding for other parties. Miss Best handles from 2,000 to 3,000 head annually and has always made money. She has also a contract with the United States government to grow 450 bushels of sorghum seed. The seed is furnished by the agricultural department and is without doubt the finest grade in the world. Miss Best is a young woman of more than average intelligence and is known all over Barber county for her good business sense and her ability to manage a large farm.

How to Make Turnip Sauce.

Have boiling a pint of salted water, in which drop two medium sized white onions and two white turnips the size of a teacup. Boil until tender and mash fine. Do not use the liquid, but add to the pulp one cupful of milk and one-half cupful of cream, adding a teaspoonful each of flour and butter rubbed smooth together, half a teaspoonful of salt and half a saltspoonful of pepper. Stir until smooth and hot and serve in a boat. It is delicious with roast duck.

How to Make Sarsaparilla Mead!

Three pounds of sugar, three ounces of tartaric acid, one ounce of flour and one of cream of tartar, essence of sarsaparilla and two and a half quarts of water. Strain, bottle and allow to stand two weeks before using.

How to Cure Corns.

If you are troubled with soft corns do not fail to try the following treatment: Soak the feet well at night in hot water in which have been dissolved a few crystals of permanganate of potash. Then dry carefully, especially between the toes, and dust the skin in these parts freely with a mixture of tannic acid and boracic acid. Next morning wash carefully with pure soft soap and cold water, thoroughly dry and powder with boracic acid.

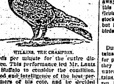
How to Make Razor Paste.

Levigated oxide of tin, prepared putty powder, one ounce; powdered oxalic acid, a quarter ounce; powdered gum, 20 grains. Make into a stiff paste with water and evenly and thinly spread it over the strop.

A GREAT HOMING PIGEON.

Wilkins, Who Made a Successful Flight of Seven Hundred Miles.

Twenty years ago, on June 21, 1879, the first race was held in this country from a 500 mile station. The birds were released at 7:05 o'clock in the morning, and the first two reached the home loft at 4:15 p. m. the following day, having been 33 hours and 10 minutes on the way. This record was an average speed of 442.21 yards per minute, and it stood until 1885, when a bird named New Damon, belonging to a Brooklyn fancier, flew the distance within the day and established a new American record besides covering its owner with the glory of an achievement for which all the racing fanciers in the country had long been covetous. The record has been reduced several times since then and was held until last year by the late James McGaughy of Philadelphia, whose Lady Granville flew 614 miles in less than 14 hours, flying at a speed of 1,308 yards per minute for the entire distance. This performance led Mr. Lantz of Buffalo to consider the condition, speed and intelligence of the best performers of his cote, and he decided that he could beat Lady Granville's record, both in speed and distance. His star performer up to that time was a homer called Wilkins, bred by himself from an imported Belgian homer and Nina Albright, a bird of national racing reputation, from the Turkinton loft in Philadelphia. The course was officially surveyed for the trial, and Wilkins was one of the eight birds liberated at Lawrenceburg, Tenn., in a race to Buffalo.



WILKINS, THE CHAMPION.

The conditions for a fast flight were extremely good: There was a strong breeze from the southwest, the velocity of which was computed by Sergeant Cuthbertson to vary during the day from 25 to 35 miles an hour. This was followed by a thunderstorm and tornado, which was first reported from the southwestern country, and probably frightened the birds into increased efforts to reach home ahead of the tempest. At any rate, Wilkins entered his loft in 13 hours, 12 minutes and 41 seconds after his liberation 700 miles from home, over a new course and one which was 200 miles farther away from home than the plucky little pigeon had ever been in all his life. This flight was at the rate of 1,540.07 yards per minute for the whole distance, and the performance is conceded to be a marvelous exhibition of the true homing instinct, physical endurance, speed and courage. On its arrival home the bird showed signs of weariness, but it appeared to be fully recovered the following day.

Peacocks generally scream vociferously when a change of weather is impending. In the countries where these birds are native the sign is regarded as unfailing.

Kublai Khan, the first mogul emperor of China, was called the Murderer, from the tragedies in his own family.

Ducks Versus Hens.

In salt meadows and creeks and by the seashore, bays and inlets, lakes and ponds, wherever they can pick up part of their food—and in some places they will find most of it—ducks are more profitable than hens under ordinary circumstances. In the absence of these natural facilities ducks are not profitable to the average poultry breeder, although there are well known cases where they have been profitably raised on a large scale without such water facilities, but to do so requires much experience, energy and good markets. When engagements are made to supply good customers with first rate early ducklings, almost double as much is realized as when they are sent to casual dealers in our large cities. There is a great difference between the profit of the ducks and hens in autumn and winter. The ducks eat enormously and lay but few eggs at that season, while the hens lay enough to pay for their food in the least profitable times and commence to lay heavily long before the ducks start. The latter do lay some eggs in autumn when well fed, but not enough for profit. There is a notable diversity in the habits of ducks. Some become quite attached to home and are easily managed, while others ramble away and are very troublesome; nor is this especially the case with any particular breed. When a breeder finds his stock is reliable, he should not change, but he should raise his own breeding birds.—Fanciers' Review.

Troughs In Winter.

During the summer the water fountains are the best utensils to employ for providing water to the fowls, but they should now be stored away and water given in wooden troughs. Fountains will break when the water is frozen, but the troughs cannot easily be so injured, and can also be cleaned. The water trough or fountain is the most important utensil used by the poultrymen and demands daily attention, as it is the source from which all contagious diseases are spread among the members of the flock. The best method of providing water without incurring such risk is yet an unsolved problem, but cleanliness will prevent many diseases.—Poultry Keeper.

Look Out For Drafts.

If the roosting shed or house is open back and front or on both sides with the fowls in the middle, they are in a direct draft. If a little pinhole is near their head and the cold air blows on them all night, they will have a cold in the morning, says Country Gentleman. Better have the whole front of the shed wide open than a little drafty pinhole.

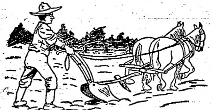
LaBree Ave, — — Thief River Falls, Min



I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Say, John, what are you doing to look so healthy?"

WANTED.—A case of bad health that R·I·P·A·N·S will not benefit. They banish pain and [illegible] One gives relief. Note the word R·I·P·A·N·S on the package and accept no substitute. The Affairs of Europe are faithfully portrayed in the original and exclusive cable dispatches which THE CHICAGO RECORD prints daily from the leading capitals of the old world. This magnificent special service is in process of being greatly extended so as to include every important city in Europe; and it is supplemented by the full regular cable service of The Associated Press.

COSTLY SCRUBS.

No Advantage Whatever Except in Original Cost.

Over in England where every branch of husbandry has been carried to a high state of perfection and where flocks and herds have been kept upon the same farms for hundreds of years one may travel for days without coming across a scrub animal. Here in America, the country of grandest possibilities, the scrub is the rule and the pure bred animal the exception, says Howard H. Keim in The National Stockman. Over an area of thousands of acres of this rich garden land one may find here and there a lone man and occasionally only a community of breeders of pure bred or pedigreed stock. Why this should be is a hard matter to conjecture.

Only a few days ago a bright young man came to the writer to sell him his corn crop, saying: "I am tired of farming, and I want to sell my corn and my mule team and go away. I am tired and sick of this way of farming." Then we asked him if he liked stock, and his answer was that he liked any kind of nice stock, especially sheep, but his father, who owned the farm and for whom he was working it "on shares," would not invest anything in stock and would lend no encouragement to his son to do so. After a long time pleading with him to keep his corn and team and try to get a small start of fine stock he went away and the same day left for "parts unknown," driven from home by his father, who had a notion that the boy would just as well raise corn to sell and not be fooling with stock all the time.

We have long maintained that it is as cheap to keep pure bred stock, especially sheep, and even cheaper than to keep scrubs after the initial cost of starting. The younger members of the firm will take great pleasure in the increase of the flocks and will cultivate such a love for the old farm that, though sundered far by circumstances, the lingering lights of happy childhood days among the pretty lambs of the pure bred flocks on the old homestead will be memory's brightest pictures.

Cost of Hogs.

On a farm with reasonably good buildings and a clover pasture the cost of a gain of a pound of live weight on a hog up to 150 pounds is not very much in excess of 2 cents. To this must be added the interest on the value of the brood sow, the cost of her keep, the risk of accident, the cost of the grass, of the care and the prices or below.

Under these circumstances, says Wallace's Farmer, the price of hogs will depend largely on the price of corn and the freedom of hogs from the ravages of disease. When a partial failure of the corn crop occurs and the price runs up to from 30 to 40 cents on the farm, the immediate effect is to crowd the hog stock of the country on the market and depress the price. When a large portion of the hog stock is wiped off by cholera, the immediate effect at the beginning of the disease is to crowd the hogs on the market and depress the price, the after effect of which is to enhance the price by creating a scarcity in the supply.

Strong Points of the Mule.

The extensive purchases of mules which the British government has been making recently for shipment to South Africa invite reference to the animal's capabilities and disposition, says the London Live Stock Journal. Here it is from the hand of a man who appears to have had large opportunities of cultivating its acquaintance: "No animal is less obstinate than a mule. They are most tractable and obedient and capable of an almost incredible amount of work. A mule begins work at 4 years old and goes on till 40 or 45 years old. Whether it is for plowing, reaping or mowing machine, for carting of all descriptions, there is the shapely, powerful, active and intelligent animal, prepared to do his best." In point of fact, the mule is like any other animal, much what the gentleness or reverse of his rearer and breaker makes him.

Swedish Ponies.

The Swedish ponies are among the best in the world for work in cold climates where good forage is not to be had, says the London Live Stock Journal. They stand from 13 to 15 hands in height and are very heavily built for their size. They have splendid feet and limbs, and it is said that greasy heels and filled legs are unknown among them. These small horses are chiefly used for the saddle, animals of a larger breed being preferred for the wheeled traffic in summer and the sleighs in winter. A good horse has been known to trot at the rate of 18 miles an hour in a sleigh. Before we accept that record, however, further information concerning the course and condition of the snow would be desirable. Trotting sleigh races are a regular winter institution in both Norway and Sweden.

Plentiful Feed.

Every cattle man who can possibly do so should feed his stock enough this winter to carry them through until spring in at least as good condition as they are in now. Too many make the mistake of putting off feeding too long and permit their cattle to become weak and thin before the feeding is commenced. To accomplish satisfactory results it must be begun early in the season. After the animals have lost flesh and become weakened by exposure they cannot resist the damaging influence of the later storms without further injury no matter how liberal the feeding then may be. To keep them vigorous and in good flesh from the start should be the rule. Such a method economizes feed while producing the best results.—Live Stock.

BAKED CHICKEN PASTY.

How to Prepare This Toothsome and Nutritious Dish.

Joint two chickens and cook very slowly in boiling salted water till tender, being careful that the meat does not separate from the bones. Use only enough water to cover the chickens, that the gravy may be rich and well flavored. Strain the broth and add to it a cup of sweet cream. Melt a tablespoon of butter and cook with it a generous tablespoon of flour. Pour the hot broth slowly upon this mixture and stir till smooth. It should be of the consistency of thick cream. If there is a good deal of broth, a little more flour will be required. With one quart of sifted flour mix an even teaspoon of salt, one even teaspoon of soda and two well rounded teaspoons of cream of tartar. Sift these ingredients together, then rub into them a half cup of sweet butter. When all the lumps have disappeared, stir in sufficient sweet milk to make a soft dough. It should be of a spongy consistency.

Take out part of it on to a well floured board, sift a little flour over the top and roll into shape. Line the sides of an earthen baking dish with this crust and heap the chicken in the center, removing all large bones and rejecting the necks and backs, which may be utilized later in other ways. Pour over the chicken sufficient gravy to cover. With a silver knife mince fine enough celery to make two generous tablespoons. Scatter this over the top, then add a layer of oysters. Season these with salt and pepper, dredge with flour and dot with small bits of butter.

Now roll out more of the crust for the top, making several incisions near the center to allow the steam to escape. Moisten the upper edges of the side crust before laying on the top. This will prevent the gravy from running over. Take pains also to have the upper crust rather large, pushing the fullness toward the center. There should be considerable gravy left over from the pasty. Just before serving add a few oysters to it and just bring to a boil. Pass in a gravy dish with the pasty. About an hour will be required to bake the pasty.

How to Make Apple Tartlets.

Line some patty pans with good puff paste; bake. When cold, fill with stewed apple, nicely sweetened, and flavor with lemon. Beat up a little cream; sweeten to taste, ornament each tartlet with a ring of it and place a small lump in the center. Dust over the cream a little powdered sugar, colored with cochineal.

How to Make Biscuits For Dyspeptics.

Put one pint of coarse graham flour and half a pint of sifted cornmeal in a bowl; add a teaspoonful of salt; mix the meals well together. Pour in hot sweet milk, enough to make a light batter, and beat with a patent egg beater till it is all a foam. Thoroughly grease muffin tins or a baking pan and heat the pans very hot; then pour in the batter and bake in a quick oven. The more crusty these biscuits the better, so only pour in enough batter to make a thin biscuit or a large, flat cake. Water may be used instead of milk for mixing.

How to Make Sauerkraut.

For one-half barrel, 125 pounds of cabbage cut very fine, one pint of fine salt (put in hard wood barrel). First layer of cabbage and then salt, with ten quarts of lukewarm water. Weight it with a two gallon jug filled with water; let it ferment for 20 days, then use.

How to Make Celery Croquettes.

Cut well cleaned stalks of celery into small pieces, cook in salted water until tender, then drain. Melt one-fourth cup of butter, cook it in half a cup of flour, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper, then add gradually one cup of the water in which the celery was cooked or one cup of chicken stock, one well beaten egg and one pint of the cooked celery. Stir continually. When cold, shape, dip in beaten egg and bread crumbs and fry to a golden brown in deep fat.

How to Make Parsley Sauce.

Melt an ounce of butter in a saucepan, stir in three-quarters of an ounce of flour and half a pint of milk, and boil for three minutes. Add salt, a few drops of lemon juice and a dessertspoonful of very finely chopped parsley.

How to Scallop Haddock.

Make one-half a pint of thick melted butter sauce, season it with salt and pepper and add a pinch of curry powder to it and then stir in a hard boiled egg which has been coarsely chopped. Remove the skin and bones from a cooked dried haddock (of medium size) and with two forks divide it into flakes. Butter a pie dish and put in alternate layers of the sauce and fish; scatter some browned crumbs over the top and bake in the oven for 15 minutes.

How to Whip Cranberry Jelly.

Make a quart of plain jelly, and an hour or two before it is needed whip with a wire eggspoon until foamy and light all through. Then fold in the stiffly beaten whites of four eggs and heap roughly in a glass serving dish.

How to Make Fig Pudding.

Break fine slices of bread into one pint of milk, add one-half of a teaspoonful of salt, one-half of a cupful of sugar, one cupful of suet, three tablespoonfuls of flour, three eggs, one-half of a grated nutmeg and 10 figs chopped fine. Pour into a mold and steam 3½ hours. Serve with a fruit sauce or with whipped cream.

How to Make Banana Foam.

Take one banana for each person, mash fine with two tablespoonfuls of sugar and add to a cup of whipped sweet cream. Serve immediately.

OF CONSUMPTION.

John Sande Died Last Saturday Morning.

After an illness of about six months' duration, John Sande died last Saturday morning of consumption. The funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon and were under the auspices of the Modern Woodmen, of which lodge the deceased was a member. The remains were interred in the cemetery at Tweet. The deceased was well known in this city, where he had resided for a number of years, being in the stock business a large portion of the time. He was married less than a year ago and leaves a young wife to mourn his loss. Deceased was a member of the Modern Woodmen and carried insurance to the amount of $500.

More Immigrants Wanted.

Immigrants are reported now pouring into Northern Minnesota in large numbers, and, in a comparatively few years, that section of the state will be as well settled as the central and southern portions. It is a fact that the best portion of our state—the portion blessed by nature with the greatest variety of surface and abundance of timber and water combined with fertile soil—is as yet practically unsettled. There are homes there for millions of enterprising families who have the energy to use the ax and the plow, the hoe and the spade. When the tillable area of Minnesota is all brought under cultivation it will be veritably the Empire State of the West, and perhaps not inferior to New York in population and wealth.—Minneapolis Tribune.

The Twe[illegible] Census.

Within a very short time matter pertaining to the collection of statistics for the next census will be distributed throughout the the country for the information of citizens, and it is urged that careful consideration be paid to all such matter sent out from the census bureau. The taking of a census means much more than the enumeration of the population. It means the collection of information concerning the age, sex, nationality, religion, habits, occupation and financial condition of every individual in the commonwealth; about the climate, soil and resources of every locality; about the productiveness of labor, the profitable investment of capital, and a thousand other things pertaining to the life of the people and the character of the country in which they dwell.

Directors and supervisors, clerks and assistants have been appointed and enumerators will be chosen to perform the work, but the real responsibility back of all rests upon the people themselves.

Just in proportion to the intelligent understanding by the people of the purposes of the census and their hearty co-operation in the work will be the value of the census when the work is done, and the people of this section are urged to avail themselves of every avenue of information concerning the scope and intent of the work to the end that the information which they give when called upon shall be full and accurate.

Assessors N. G.

A large number of assessors are applying for the position of census enumerator in their respective towns. According to instructions from the census department, none of them can be appointed because of the fact that people are loth to give up information to an individual known to be connected with the levying of taxes.—Elk River Start News.

AFTER WALKER.

He Has Not Yet Paid Taxes on Pine Lands.

Under the laws of 1899 it is a crime to remove timber from lands upon which taxes are due and unpaid. T. B. Walker has not yet paid his taxes on his pine lands in Beltrami county since 1897, and, as the taxes for 1899 are now due, and Mr. Walker is rapidly cutting off his timber, numerous complaints were made to the state auditor, who last week addressed a letter to County Attorney Street, directing him to bring suit to enjoin such cutting. Some other pine land owners are also cutting timber without having prepaid the taxes of 1899, but none but Mr. Walker are delinquent for 1897-98. It is not so much a question of the value of the lands for final payment of taxes, but of serious inconvenience to the towns, school districts and county through lack of means to operate their several governments. County Attorney Street went the whole length of the law on Tuesday, and sent Sheriff Nygaard out to notify the loggers to stop cutting on such lands, serving on S. A. Gray, Bailey & White and Clark Clay.—Bemidji Pioneer.

Want to Commute.

Congressman Eddy has introduced an important bill relating to the townsite of Warroad, the first commercial metropolis of Northern Minnesota. The Eddy bill provides that Albert Berg and Charles A. Moody be permitted to commute their homestead entries upon the lands which they entered October 5, 1898, at the Crookston office. There has been some controversy over these lands, but the recent decisions of the general land office have settled the fact that the territory covered was opened to homestead entry and not subject to Indian allotment. Warroad is located on the Lake of the Woods, and an excellent harbor can easily be maintained there. The government is already doing some work and there are dockage facilities. It is not expected that any serious opposition will develop to Eddy's bill, although there are some who claim that the land in question is not reservation land.—Washington correspondence in the St. Paul Dispatch.

Now Girls Do Likewise.

The young men of Bray and Polk Centre are evidently an unapprehensive lot of fellows and evidently do not propose to stand by the home market. The following, from the Crookston Times, explains itself:

The young men and bachelors of Bray and Polk Centre are trying to organize a club, and we wish its success. It rules as follows: Any bachelor in the club who marries a Black River girl shall treat the club to a champagne supper, and anyone in the club who marries an outside girl, shall receive from the club a bed room suit. Anybody wishing any information, apply by calling at Bachelor's Corner, Bray and Polk Centre.

Notice.

Teachers' examination for Red Lake county under the new law will be held in the high school building in the city of Red Lake Falls Friday and Saturday, February 2 and 3. It will be necessary for all persons expecting to teach in this county, whose certificates expire prior to March 1st, 1900, to attend this examination. All applicants will please be present promptly at 8 o'clock on the morning of the first day, as no questions can be furnished after the examination in any subject begins.

FOR 5,000.

Jury Finds that Geo. Lally Suffered Damages.

The action brought by George Lally to recover damages from the Crookston Lumber company for the loss of three fingers of his right hand while in the employ of the defendant company as a shingle sawyer, resulted in a verdict for plaintiff in the sum of $5,000.

The plaintiff alleged that the arrangement of the machinery was such that a man employed in his position was compelled to work with his head near a beam, and in dodging a flying shingle thrown from the saw he struck his head upon the beam and fell forward upon the saw. The defense claimed that the accident was due to a lack of proper care upon the part of the operator. Steenerson & Rowe prosecuted the case and the defense was looked after by Messrs. Koon, Whelan and Bennett, of Minneapolis. A stay of judgment was secured and it is probable that the case will be appealed.—Crookston Times.

Post Office Rules.

(1) Stand just out of sight and ask if there is any mail for "us." The postmaster is supposed to know every son-of-a-gun in the country and all his wife's relations.

(2) If the postmaster is busy and cannot wait on you the minute you stick your face up to the window, take your jackknife and drum on the window. It makes him nervous and hot in the collar, and everyone knows a man moves faster when he is in that condition.

(3) If he has seven sacks of papers and a couple thousand letters to distribute, stand near the case and in loud tones "wonder if the postmaster is dead," and make a few witty remarks about his stopping to read postal cards. It will establish your reputation as a humorist and keep the crowd good natured. The only difficulty with this rule is that your remarks are liable to cause the p. m. to break a blood vessel laughing and hinder him in his work.

(4) If you don't get a letter or paper on the day you expect it, have the postmaster look through all the boxes in the office and also down cellar. It ought to be there somewhere and he is paid for looking.

(5) If your friends don't write, cuss the postmaster. He is to blame and besides it relieves your feelings and don't hurt him any.

(6) If he tells you that you haven't any mail, put on a grieved expression and remark in loud tones that "there ought to be some" and convey the idea that you think he is hiding your mail for the exquisite pleasure of having you ask for it three or four times a day.

(7) If you are a young lady, always get four others to come with you, and, while you are being waited upon, have the rest stationed at different points in the lobby and all giggle in different keys at the same time. If there is anything on earth the postmaster dotes on it's giggling.

The above are a very few excellent rules to observe, and if you live up to them faithfully you make life pleasant to all concerned, and when you come to die you can feel that your life has not been in vain.

Senator Nelson has donated $600 to a fund to be used to purchase a library for Alexandria, his home city.

One of the brightest daily papers in Northern Minnesota, the East Grand Forks Courier, has suspended publication.

There is one reason why the refusal of Gov. Lind to accept a renomination will be acceptable to a good many members of the fusion party. The governor's appointments have given great dissatisfaction to his political followers, and there are many who would prefer to see a new man nominated. They figure that in the event of the election of a new man the distribution of patronage could be made upon a basis more satisfactory to them. The election of any other than Lind would probably be followed by about as clean a sweep as Lind made when he went in, and upon the rule of rotation in office, this would provide places for those who were turned down by the present governor. Of course this would involve the turning out of a lot of the insiders, but the outsiders outnumber the insiders. However the probabilities of the nomination of any other man are remote, and the possibilities of his election, if nominated, still more remote, so the matter is hardly worth discussion.—Princeton Union.

Excursion Party to Norway.

Rev. B. B. Haugen, of Fergus Falls, and Professor J. Reimestad, late of Augsburg seminary, are organizing an excursion party to visit Norway during the coming summer, and over 200 have made arrangements to go. The party will leave the twin cities on May 7, on a special train, which will carry them to New York, stopping en route at Niagara Falls and other points. They expect to sail from New York on the White Star Line steamer Majestic, on May 9, and will visit the Paris Exposition before returning.

Flax Harvest on Ice.

Probably the most novel harvesting operations ever witnessed in the northwest have been going on in northern Big Stone county during the winter, says the Minneapolis Journal. During the seeding time of last spring an immense acreage of flax was sown in the low place on many farms throughout the county. The heavy rains of last September flooded the fields, in many places with over a foot of water, making it impossible to get on to the ground with a reaper.

Later, when ice formed on the flax fields, it found the grain standing erect and in prime condition for cutting. The reapers were brought out and the harvest began on the ice. In many instances the grain saved in this manner threshed over twenty bushels to the acre and graded No. 1. The discovery that the grain could be saved has been a source of profit to the farmers.

How to Make Philadelphia Gumbo.

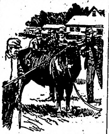
One onion chopped and fried, one-half pound of ham chopped fine and fried, one pound of beef chopped fine and fried in butter, one quart of gumbo cut small, one quart of water, one quart of tomatoes after being sliced and peeled. Cook, closely covered, on back of stove from 10 to 12 hours. Stir once in awhile. Just before taking off fire add one-quarter of a pound of butter and one teacupful of cream.

TEXAS FEVER.

What Science Has Done to Overcome the Disease.

For a number of years Dr. J. W. Connaway of the experimental station of the University of Missouri and Dr. M. Francis of the Texas experimental station, in co-operation with the Missouri state board of agriculture, have been working on the Texas farm problem, says Director H. J. Waters of the Missouri university. Already 400 blooded cattle have been inoculated and exposed to Texas fever on the ranges of Texas for an entire year with a loss of less than 8 per cent. From 50 to 75 per cent of similar cattle that were sent without inoculation to adjoining ranches at the same time died.

The cause of the fever is a microparasite which is found in the blood of southern raised cattle. The natural method of communication of this germ is by means of the Texas fever tick, shaped much like a black spider, which abounds in the south. The disease can also be induced artificially in susceptible cattle by hypodermic injection of infected blood taken from southern cattle. When a susceptible animal is inoculated with infected blood, the germs thus introduced attack the red blood corpuscles and destroy them in large numbers. This weakens the vital force of the animal and produces a large amount of broken down waste tissue, which must be eliminated from the system.



INOCULATING A STEER.

Such a condition demands increased action on the part of the tissues producing the red blood corpuscles and larger capacity for carrying off the waste materials through the liver, kidneys, spleen and bowels. If the system of the animal is able to successfully cope with these exigencies, it will thereafter be immune to the disease and able to resist the action of the fever germ.

It appears that, so far as experiments have yet shown, the only way of producing immunity is through an actual attack of the disease in as mild a form as possible from either infestation with ticks or by inoculation with infected blood. It is thought that southern raised cattle become immune while calves by repeated slight attacks of the fever, caused by tick infestation.

The Missouri station first made tests with 21 head of young calves by the tick infestation method, extending over three seasons. Several of the animals that had been well infested with ticks at the north were sent south and proved to be immune. But on account of the necessity of maintaining quarantined pastures for using these ticks at the north and the trouble of hand feeding calves from nonimmune cows this method will probably not come into general use. Blood inoculation tests were begun at the same time and have thus far proved to be more practical.

The supply animal may be either southern raised or one immunized artificially. The blood is taken from the jugular vein of the supply animal and collected in a clean vessel, stirring until the scent is removed. The blood is then transferred to a hypodermic syringe and injected in proper quantities under the skin at the neck or shoulder of the animals desired to be inoculated. All instruments used in this work are thoroughly sterilized, and the blood is used while fresh. The best plan is to give a comparatively small dose at first and repeat if necessary.

Range Problems.

That the carrying capacity of the common ranges is rapidly becoming restricted to an alarming degree has long been evident to practical observers of the situation, says The Breeder's Gazette. The causes for this condition are as evident as the results, but unforunately thus far no solution is available. The common grazing areas have been restricted by encroachments of frontier settlers. In some instances waters recently available for live stock have been made to do service in irrigation, while reservations for parks and forest preserves have not been without influence to intensify the difficulties of the situation. But more seriously important than all these is the fact that persistent close grazing has resulted in diminishing—and in some localities completely eradicating—large proportions of the annual grasses dependent upon seeding for their reproduction that formerly covered these ranges, and more acres are now required for the maintenance of grazing animals than formerly, while fewer acres are available.

Vegetable Scraps.

The scraps of cabbage, turnip tops, etc., that are allowed to rot on the garden or truck patch can be converted into money by gathering them up and feeding to the stock.

IS HEREBY GIVEN, That at the opening of the February, 1900, General Term of the District Court in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, at the Court House in the City of Red Lake Falls, in said County, on the twelfth day of February, A. D. 1900, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, Thief River Falls Lumber Company, a corporation duly organized, created and existing under the laws of the State of Wisconsin, and doing business at the City of Thief River Falls, in said Red Lake County, and the owner of all lands and premises hereinafter described, will apply to the said District Court for an alteration of the plats embracing all those lots, pieces, tracts or parcels of land lying and being in the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: All of lots N, M, L, K, I, H, G, F, and ten, eleven, twelve, thirteen, fourteen, fifteen, sixteen and seventeen, of block No. twenty-three; and lots L, M, N, O, P and twenty-two, twenty-three, twenty-four and twenty-five, of block No. twenty-four, of Knox's re-arrangement of blocks numbered twenty-three and twenty-four, of Red Lake Rapids, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Red Lake County; also lots eleven, twelve, thirteen, fourteen, fifteen, sixteen, seventeen, eighteen, nineteen and twenty of block No. one (1), and all of block No. two (2), and block No. three (3), in Conely's addition to Red Lake Rapids, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Red Lake County; also all of blocks thirty-six, thirty-seven, thirty-eight and thirty-nine, in the townsite of Red Lake Rapids, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Red Lake; also all other parcels of land which together with all the lots and blocks hereinbefore described are in said Red Lake County and included within the boundary line described as follows, to-wit: Beginning at the intersection of the western boundary of Conely avenue with the northern boundary of Nora street of Conely's addition to Red Lake Rapids; thence N. 88 degrees and 30 minutes W., a distance of 1020 ft.; thence N. 1 degree and 30 minutes E., a distance of 125 ft.; thence N. 89 degrees, and 30 minutes E., a distance of 291 ft.; thence N. 62 degrees and 30 minutes E., a distance of 684.5 ft.; thence N. 1 degree and 30 minutes E., a distance of 40 ft.; thence S. 88 degrees and 30 minutes E., a distance of 128 ft.; thence N. 1 degree and 30 minutes E., a distance of 140.2 ft.; thence N. 74 degrees and 50 minutes W., a distance of 112.4 ft.; thence N. 15 degrees and 10 minutes E., a distance of 78.8 ft.; thence N. 74 degrees and 50 minutes W. to the left bank of the Red Lake river; thence northerly along said river bank to its intersection with a line which co-incides with south boundary of Bridge street of Knox's re-arrangement of blocks 23 and 24 of the townsite of Red Lake Rapids; thence easterly along said line to its intersection with the western boundary line of Alley in said block 24; thence S. 1 degree and 30 minutes W. along western boundary line of said Alley and on a line coinciding therewith to the northern boundary line of block one (1) of Conely's addition to Red Lake Rapids; thence easterly along said boundary line to western boundary line of Alley in said block one; thence S. 1 degree and 30 minutes W. along said western boundary line of Alley to south boundary line of Hughes street in said addition; thence easterly along said south boundary line of said Hughes street to western boundary line of Conely avenue of said addition; thence S. 1 degree and 30 minutes W. along western boundary of Conely avenue to place of beginning, so as to include all said lots, blocks, tracts, pieces and parcels of land in one tract to be known and designated as "Thief River Falls Lumber Company's Alteration of the Plats of Red Lake Rapids, Conely's addition to Red Lake Rapids and Knox's Re-arrangement of blocks 23 and 24 of Red Lake Rapids."

And said application will also be for the purpose of having all Streets and Alleys and all parts of all Streets and Alleys within the aforesaid boundary line vacated and the title to all said land embraced within said boundary line declared and adjudged to be in said Thief River Falls Lumber Company; and for such other and further relief as to the court may seem just and proper.

Dated at Thief River Falls, Minn., this 10th day of January, A. D. 1900.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE ON FILING PETITION TO SELL LAND.

On reading and filing the petition of Augusta Johnson, administratrix of the estate of John E. Johnson, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into her hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; the legacies unpaid, and a description of all the real estate, (excepting the homestead), of which said deceased died seized, and the condition and value of the respective portions or lots thereof; the persons interested in said estate, with their residences, and praying that license be to her granted to sell S½ of the SW¼, of Sec. 29, and N½ of the NW¼, of Sec. 32, Tp. 154 North, of Range 43 West, according to government survey thereof.

And it appearing by said petition, that there is not sufficient personal estate in the hands of said administratrix to pay said debts, the legacies or expenses of administration, and that it is necessary, for the payment of said debts, legacies or expenses, to sell all of said real estate.

It is therefore ordered, that all persons interested in said estate appear before this court, on Monday, the 19th day of February, A. D. 1900, at ten o'clock A. M., at the court house in Red Lake Falls, in said county, then and there to show cause, (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said Augusta Johnson to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay such debts, legacies and expenses.

And it is further ordered, that this order shall be published once each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing in the Thief River Falls News, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Thief River Falls, in said county.

By the Court,
J. T. KNIGHT,
Judge of Probate.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of one hundred seventeen and 03-100 dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Ole Hansen and Barbro Hansen, his wife, mortgagors, to Charles J. Knox, mortgagee, bearing date the 1st day of November, 1894, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, on the 24th day of December, 1894, at 10 o'clock A. M., in Book 70 of Mortgages, on page 63.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Charles J. Knox, mortgagee, to Jerome W. Wheeler, by written assignment dated the 28th day of May, 1896, and recorded in the office of said Register of Deeds of Red Lake county, formerly a part of Polk county, Minnesota, on the 27th day of November, 1899, at 11:15 o'clock A. M., in Book F of Mortgages, on page 463; and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:

Lots one (1), two (2), three (3) and four (4) of block twenty-seven (27), Knox's Addition to Red Lake Rapids, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Red Lake county, formerly a part of Polk county, and state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Red Lake county, formerly a part of Polk county, Minnesota, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Red Lake Falls, in said Red Lake county, formerly a part of Polk county, and state, on the 9th day of March, 1900, at three o'clock P. M., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars, attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 18, A. D. 1900.

Twenty-five thousand pounds of binding twine is the average output of the prison factory at present and it is hoped that a sufficient quantity will be on hand this season to supply all those who place orders. In some sections of the state the farmers are already making up their clubs and preparing to order early.

Trond P. Hamre was in the city today filing on the land which he recently acquired by means of a compromise which he affected with the defendants in an action that has occupied the attention of the local land office since the year 1897. He filed on reservation entry No. 2, made famous by Jennie Cunningham in 1896, when the lands were first declared open for settlement.—Crookston Tribune, Jan. 19.

The Cass Lake townsite muddle is still far from a settlement, and is hung up in the department at Washington, pending at least three important decisions. One is by the supreme court as to the right of the state of Minnesota to sections 16 and 36 on the Chippewa reservation to be set aside for school purposes, and one by the same tribunal as to the right of A. A. White to lay scrip upon portions of section 15 at Cass Lake, and one by the interior department on the legality of the Indian allotment entry of George Lydeck on section 16.—Crookston Times.

Services will be held in the Catholic church Sunday.

The Scotchmen of the Red River valley will this evening in Crookston celebrate the birthday of Robert Burns. The affair promises to be a success.

The price of hides and furs is on the decline and people having goods of this nature should dispose of them at once, as the probabilities are that the prices will be even lower in a few weeks.

What effect the extreme warm weather will have upon logging interests is as yet somewhat problematical, but now that the weather has turned colder there will not be a very great shortage of logs.

The Modern Woodmen last evening decided to give a dance on the evening of Washington's birthday, Feb. 22. The Woodmen have an excellent reputation as entertainers and their dance will be a success.

Word has been received from Crookston that Joe Deutch, one of the well-to-do farmers of the town of Excel, died in the hospital at that place Tuesday. The deceased had been in poor health during the past several years.

S. C. Bagley, the logging contractor of the Clearwater, signed checks to be filled in later by subcontractors. The checks were stolen and filled in by the thieves, and many of them have been cashed by Brainerd merchants.

Frederick Hanson, who was arrested last week upon the complaint of his wife, appeared before Judge Tarrant last Thursday and paid a fine of $5 and costs, the total amount being $36. He was also placed under bonds for $200 for six months to keep the peace. He continues to live with his wife and children.

The merchants of this city have all signed a joint agreement, and after next Monday, Jan. 29, the stores will be closed at 7 o'clock in the evening. The agreement is to remain in force until May 1, and after that date, if the plan proves satisfactory, will probably be continued. This is a very commendable move upon the part of the business men and will be greatly appreciated by the clerks.

Red Lake Falls was recently visited by Gen. Supt. Gruber and the chief engineer of the Great Northern, and the Courier states that their appearance there means more than a formal inspection, and that plans will soon be presented for a new depot, the old one to be taken to Dugdale. A slight stretch of the Red Lake Falls imagingtion enables them to see a line of road between those points to be completed before another Christmas.

Arrangements have been made with the new railroad, the M. & M., known as the Southwestern, now in operation from Winnipeg to a point fourteen miles north of Roseau; to ship and receive freight in bond for Roseau and other points near the boundary line. Merchants are now buying wheat at prices nearly as high as paid at Stephen, the nearest station from Roseau, and which is seventy-five miles distant. Farmers are jubilant over the prospects of a new road to be built by the M. & M. westward through the Roseau country into Dakota.

THOSE TAXES.

A Clearing Up Sale Will Be a Good Thing.

The work of preparing for the clearance sale of delinquent taxes that will be held in May, has been completed by Auditor Gleason, and the descriptions have been turned over to the clerk of court for certification. The total number of descriptions is 10,710, a much larger amount than was at first believed there would be. This, as has been heretofore stated, includes all the Red Lake county property upon which taxes were delinquent prior to 1895, and in fact the greater number of sales will be on lands in that county. Of the total of 10,710, 4,770 are within the corporate limits of Red Lake Falls, 2,880 in Thief River Falls, and another thousand or fifteen hundred in St. Hilaire and upon farm tracts in the territory that seceded from Polk county, leaving about 2,000 in the latter bailiwick. On account of the conditions, the sale has been a most perplexing one to prepare for.

The fact that Red Lake county has been set off since the date on which the law applies, makes the conditions such that frequent reference of them has been necessary to the state auditor and the attorney general. In this way the matter has been carried along upon a proper basis and all legal entanglements avoided. The notices in Red Lake county will be served by the sheriff there, and arrangements have been made to have the lists published there, although the work had all to be done in the office of Auditor Gleason.

The clearing up of the records will be a good thing, although Polk county is not so directly benefited as Red Lake will be. It will, however, aid in the settlement of affairs between the two counties, which Red Lake has not been willing to effect since the division, and will eliminate all question of delinquent taxes which has been the main item of dispute in the settlement, and which was the real basis of the movement to secure legislation affecting the case a year ago.—Crookston Times.

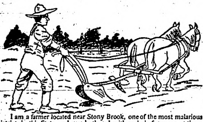
As They View It.

There is considerable interest taken in this city in the reported purchase of the Brainerd & Northern by the Northern Pacific. It is a matter of some importance to this city for various reasons. The railroad facilities of Grand Forks in some respects are excellent, but could be improved upon in various directions.

If the Northern Pacific has purchased the Brainerd & Northern, it is undoubtedly with the intention of building a connecting link between Bemidji and Red Lake Falls, which would give them another line from the Twin cities to Winnipeg via Grand Forks. The distance from Bemidji to Red Lake Falls is 40 miles, which would mean but a small expense considering the benefits to be derived. The distance to the Twin cities via this new line from Grand Forks will be considerably less than over the present route of the N. P., and would be about the same length as the Great Northern route.

This would mean an improved train service east to Red Lake which would result in an immense amount of business that now goes to Crookston and the Twin cities being directed to this city and both the wholesalers and retailers would be vastly benefited.

It is rumored that, in addition to the above prospective improvement in railroad facilities, that Nos. 3 and 4 will shortly come up by way of Crookston, for though the distance to St. Paul is slightly greater it can be made up from the fact that there would be fewer stops by that route. From the fact, also, that Fargo is an N. P. town, anyway, it is figured that the above change will be made as soon as No. 1 and 2 are put on between here and Fargo to do local work.—Grand Forks Herald.



I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Say, John, what are you doing to look so healthy?"

JUST TALK TO R. B. VINING AT THIEF RIVER FALLS.

TO BEGINNERS.

A Practical Talk to Those About to Embark in the Poultry Business.

I wish to write something that may be to the advantage of some beginner. A young man of my acquaintance concluded he would embark in the poultry business and grow rich from the first season's experience, and he did—rich in experience. He purchased a 200 egg incubator, built a brooder house 10 by 80 feet, purchased a four section hot water brooder and was prepared to raise chickens by the hundred, but instead of the success he had anticipated he now has a "plant" for sale at any old price. We advised him against going to so much expense until he had had some experience, but our advice went for naught. He bought standard bred White Wyandotte eggs, started his incubator, and at the end of 21 days he didn't hatch a single chicken. Every member of the family took turns at the machine, and the result was that the thermometer ranged from 80 to 110 degrees, and the eggs were cooked. The next batch that he set turned out less than a dozen little runts that soon pegged out. The third lot of eggs he purchased he set under hens and had very good luck with them, only they were rather late.

This is one of the many cases that discourage beginners. If the young man had listened to the advice of one who had been through the mill and had purchased two or three sittings of eggs and hatched them under hens, he undoubtedly would have secured enough good birds to have given him a start, and from these could have experimented without so great expense. We do not believe it is right for poultry people to encourage the amateur to start on a big scale, as nine times out of ten the person buying will get disgusted and bitter against all poultrymen for talking up standard bred poultry and condemn them as not being honest in what they say.

When some people write an article saying they had a 95 per cent hatch or a 65 per cent hatch, the amateur takes it for granted that it is 65 per cent or 95 per cent of all the eggs put in the incubator, and he sits down to figure out how much he could make out of the business the first season, and in his mind will soon be as wealthy as one would care to be. The truth of the matter is they will do well if they raise to maturity 40 chicks out of 100 eggs set. It were better in the long run for all persons concerned if the darker side of poultry raising were put to the front occasionally and the ups and downs that one has to contend with were expatiated on. Then if the amateur goes above the 40 mark he will be well satisfied, whereas if he falls below the 65 mark he will be dissatisfied and say it is the fault of the eggs and that he has been robbed or given eggs that the sender knew were not good.

The amateur must learn to walk before he can run, and my advice to him is: Try a sitting or two, or purchase a trio, and then if you have bad luck you will not be out so much money. If the amateur were not too ambitious and would start with a few chickens and give them every attention, he would be better satisfied in the long run, and his chickens would make better birds than if he had an immense flock and only gave them half attention. Take one dozen chicks just hatched, give them good attention and feed them all they will eat from the shell until show time, and they will be worth more than 100 poorly raised birds.—Charles L. Blanton in Reliable Poultry Journal.

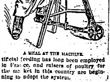
Feeding In Winter.

The matter of feeding in winter in order to make the hens lay when prices are high is one requiring the best judgment. There is much to do in observing the hens. Any rule laid down for all to follow cannot be observed in general, as so much depends on locality and circumstances. Fowls differ, and it is only the one who attends to a flock who can rightly judge what should be done.

While it is an accepted fact that food is converted into eggs, yet success depends upon the kind of food. Poultrymen are admonished against corn, but there are days during the cold season when corn proves to be the best food that can be allowed, and the proportions given must be regulated by the conditions of the hens. The great problem in the management of poultry is to learn how to feed. No one can instruct on the subject, except to call attention to certain undeniable truths connected with feeding, for the one who knows how to feed must learn by daily observations, and while successful with one flock there will be much to learn in managing another.

Artificial Feeding.

The illustration shows a method of fattening broilers that is used on a large poultry farm near Chicago. Artificial feeding has long been employed in France, and raisers of poultry for the market in this country are beginning to adopt the system.



A MEAL AT THE MACHINE.

PIG PORK.

Why It Is the Best and Also More Profitable.

Almost everybody likes roast pig. It is a much sweeter and tenderer meat than beef or mutton, and the pig retains this superiority of flavor until it is 5 or 6 months old and has attained a dressed weight of 120 to 180 pounds, says The American Cultivator. If it is an early spring pig, it will keep the fine flavor of pig pork until corn becomes plentiful, and it is fed heavily in order to fatten it, even though it tip the scales at more than 250 pounds. The reason appears to be that during the early months of its growth the pig gets much milk, fruit and other feed that is easily digestible and thus keeps its digestive organs in good working condition. It is often supposed because hogs are such ravenous feeders that they have naturally strong digestion. On the contrary, the young pig's digestion is poor. It is by eating plentifully of succulent and easily digested food while young that the pig's digestive organs are strengthened, so that when the time for corn feeding comes, unless the pig is 6 or 7 months old, it has not had time to fit itself for exclusive corn feeding. This is one reason why the early spring pigs are usually 40 to 50 pounds heavier in the fall than those born the latter part of April or May.

Fall pigs cannot usually be profitably wintered. They certainly cannot if no succulent and easily digested food has been provided for them during the winter. On a corn diet they will be stunted, and a breeding sow fed wholly on corn will produce a litter of pigs that were runts when born. Even with the best of care such pigs cannot be made to pay. But if any have late fall pigs they may keep them growing during the winter if they will provide a diet of wheat middlings with as many beets as the pigs will eat up clean and very little corn. If other roots than beets are given, it is better to boil them and while still hot stir in the wheat middlings so as to partially cook it. On such feed the pigs will grow thriftily even in winter. But this makes more labor than leaving the pigs to be kept over winter for breeders farrowed the previous spring.

Hoghouse For Twenty.

"I send you a cut of my hoghouse which I built three years ago at a total cost of $150, including two coats of paint," writes A. J. Kingery in The Wisconsin Farmer. "Five of my neighbors have since built on the same plan. This building is 48 by 20, with two rows of pens. Mine will hold 20 sows, ten sows to each floor. I use swinging partitions which swing up out of the way in the drop of the roof. I have ten windows in 48 feet, which give plenty of light and sun to the south floor. I have a trough for each sow, part of which projects into the feeding alley. I can feed and slop 20 sows in 15 minutes. I have two doors that slide up or down in each stall, one that lets the sow out of doors, and the other one leads to the feeding alley. These sliding doors are 24 inches wide and 30 inches high. By having doors to feeding alley you can use the alley for slopping little pigs and also give them exercise long before they can be turned out to grass. I have holes bored in the sliding doors and use a wooden pin. I can raise the door any height desired and let in the big or the little pig. The floors should be sloped three inches. The feeding alley is six feet wide. One of my neighbors has a cistern dug in his feeding alley for watering purposes. I have a cornerib eight feet from the feeding alley. I use seven inch cedar posts to put the sills on and set them three feet deep and four feet apart. I planked up on the inside of the posts all around to keep out the hogs, etc. This building is two feet above the ground."

SIMPLE HOGHOUSE.

New Zealand Lambs.

Reports from New Zealand indicate an exceptionally prolific season. In Canterbury especially the crop of lambs is said to be extraordinary, not only twins, but triplets also being unusually numerous, while there are not a few reports of four lambs to the ewe, and one ewe is mentioned as having dropped five lambs. According to the Lyttelton Times, F. Todhunter of Westerfield, Canterbury, has in one paddock 20 ewes with triplets and one with five lambs, three of which are being reared by hand. Another breeder has about 150 lambs to the 100 ewes, nine being triplets and two having produced four each. In both these flocks Shropshire rams were used, the ewes being three-quarter bred Leicesters in the former case and half breeds in the latter. Reference is also made to a wonderful Southdown ewe kept by a butcher as a decoy in his slaughter yards. She was bought as a lamb 13 years ago and has had twins every year since she was a yearling, having produced 24 lambs.

Choice Pigs.

We never see two persons that look exactly alike. There is always difference in appearance or actions or markings that can be easily seen. The same is true with all animals, says a correspondent of The National Stockman. How often do we see an advertisement of 50 or 100 choice pigs by a breeder. As soon as I see an advertisement of this kind my mind is made up that the breeder does not know what a choice pig is, for my experience of over 30 years teaches me that strictly first class, choice pigs are very scarce and hard to find.

MINERAL WEALTH.

A Bemidji Man Tells of the Minerals Near Here.

Frank Rosini at Bemidji tells wonderful stories about mineral wealth up north.

"I can take you south of Bemidji less than sixty miles and show you iron ore; I can show you acres of the best potters' clay in the world up north, not so very far. And there is copper in great quantities," says he.

Mr. Rosini has some samples of copper ore which he unearthed somewhere between Lake of the Woods and Rainy Lake. They are exceedingly rich, one sample having been assayed at 82 per cent—it is almost solid. Mr. Rosini has taken out mining claims for eleven members of his family, and if he can find many such chunks of copper like his samples he will be a millionaire.

DIED LAST WEEK.

Ole Berg, a Veteran of the Late War.

Ole Berg, a former member of company C, first North Dakota infantry, who served with his company in the Philippine islands, died last Thursday evening at the Northwestern hotel. Little is known of the deceased here except that he came from Grafton, N. D., and had filed upon a piece of government land north of the city. So far as can be ascertained he has no relatives or friends. A note for $175, given by a man living in Grafton, which the bank there says is good, seems to be his only possession. He was burried Tuesday by the members of the G. A. R. and Spanish war veterans.

Wheat Prospects.

H. V. Jones, commercial and market editor of the Minneapolis Journal, in a signed article says:

"On the present basis of supply and demand there is little reason to expect big advance for wheat this year.

"This means that without accident to spring wheat crops in the spring months there will be no leading incentive for bull leaders to enter the market and volunteer to carry heavy supplies with new crops promising good yields.

"At present the crops round the world are in favorable condition, barring the possibility of some injury to the winter plant in the United States from Hessian fly.

"The world is producing wheat heavily again. For three years the price tendency has been upward, hence no wheat grower need feel surprised if the tendency changes to a lower price level until heavy production is checked.

"The estimate is that Argentine will have 70,000,000 bushels of wheat to export from the present crop. This crop is for all practical purposes a yield to be added to that of the United States. We begin to harvest wheat in Argentine in December and January, reach Texas in May and work north to Minnesota and North Dakota by August. It is not always agreeable to face facts, but there is often less surprise at results if we face them early.

"Barring the accident of war complication or injury to growing crops in the spring, there is nothing in prospect at this writing to warrant material advance in the price of wheat for the spring months. Indeed, after moderate rallies are realized, it need be no surprise if the price works lower."

FIFTEEN.

Number of Census Districts in This County.

Fifteen enumerators will be required to take the census of Red Lake county next summer. The pay will be from $30 to $100, according to the time it takes and the character of the district. The county is divided as follows:

317. Black River township and Polk Centre township.

318. Bray township and Sanders township.

319. Emardville township and Gervais township.

321. Lake Pleasant township.

322. Terrebonne township.

323. Lambert township.

324. Poplar River township.

325. Louisville township.

326. Red Lake Falls township, exclusive of Red Lake Falls city.

327. Norden township and North township, exclusive of Thief River Falls city, and Numedal township.

328. Red Lake Falls city.

329. River Falls township, St. Hilaire village and Wyandotte township.

330. Rocksbury township and part of township 153, range 42.

331. Thief River Falls city.

There still remain over 900,000,000 acres of public lands unreserved and unappropriated in the United States. The actual figures, as given in the annual report of Commissioner Hermann, of the general land office, were 929,308,069 acres at the close of the last fiscal year. The disposals of public land during the fiscal year showed an increase of 728,516 acres as compared with those for the year preceding. There was a decrease of 28,970 acres in the original homestead entries for the year, though the final entries showed an increase of 39,132 acres in area. Among the recommendations of the commissioner is one especially urging protection against forest fires. The average yearly loss from this cause is estimated at not less than $20,000,000. This is a serious loss from the pecuniary point of view, but it is, perhaps, more important as representing the destruction of a most important factor in regulating the water supply.

Suit Continued.

The suit of P. & J. Meehan vs. the Red Lake Falls Lumber company was up before Judge N. W. Tarrant last Saturday. The suit is brought to recover for lumber furnished the down-river concern by the plaintiffs and is for $88. F. A. Grady appeared for the Red Lake Falls company and took an adjournment after the Meehans had put in their testimony until next Saturday.

Bound Over.

Even Sheldrup and J. C. Hemly were last week arrested upon the complaint of the St. Hilaire Lumber company, charged with stealing logs belonging to that company, and were bound over to the grand jury of Red Lake county by a St. Hilaire justice. The men arrested are well-to-do farmers, and it is said the logs were being sawed up into lumber which was used in the building of a church.

If you want to file on a piece of government land it will not be necessary to go to Crookston. Make your filing in Thief River Falls before L. G. Browning, U. S. commissioner for the district of Minnesota.

A GOOD FARMER

Gives Some Pointers That Should Be Heeded.

Crookston Times: There is probably no more practical farmer in the upper country than Fred C. Stevens of Angus. Mr. Stevens has been a long time resident of the valley, and has made money raising wheat, but like all progressive men, he is not contented to follow the beaten path of agriculture, and believes in progress and development. After the season closed he made a trip that he has been planning for a year, through the farming region of southern Wisconsin and central and northern Iowa. He spent several weeks in noting the conditions of the farmers in that section of the middle west, and has returned with some practical ideas that will be put into execution upon his own broad acres.

Speaking of the matter he said: "I consider the money spent on my trip the best investment I ever made. I got more lasting benefit from it than any I ever spent, and I believe that if the farmers would take advantage of the opportunities to secure cheap transportation rates and make such trips they would be impressed as I was, in a practical manner. The lessons taught in the farmers' institutes are all right, but the average farmer regards the lessons as paper ideas to a certain extent, which acquire a realistic force when he sees them worked out in a practical manner.

"As a result of my trip I have decided to reorganize my farming methods and hereafter I will winter less unproductive horse stock, raise less wheat and give more attention to cattle, sheep and hogs. With the productiveness of the soil in the valley there is no reason why fodder, root crops, tame grasses and coarse grains should not enable the farmers in this section to diversify and have money coming in every month in the year, the same as they do in Wisconsin and Iowa.

"I saw while absent herds of cows, each of which were bringing in an income of $5 to $6 per month to their owners. I saw hogs raised and sold at 3½ cents a pound, and the owner was satisfied that there was a profit in it at that figure. They were corn fed to be sure, but he was satisfied—and so am I—that barley would fatten them just as well, and we up here can raise barley all around those farmers further south. I saw a flock of 10,000 sheep—and wool is worth 20 cents a pound—being fed on screenings that the owner paid $6 to $8 per ton for, that we had not only given to the Minneapolis buyers, but, in so doing, had reduced the grade of wheat with which we sold them.

"We can raise root crops here that they never dreamed of being able to do in that country, and, though the winter may be longer here, it is more than made up for by our ability to raise cheap feed. I am satisfied that I can farm half the acreage I have been tilling and raise a half more per acre than my crop has averaged, by retaining on the land the fertilizers that will follow judicious stock raising.

"Land in the creamery country and upon farms where our two and three year old horned stock is bought up to be 'finished' for the eastern markets has increased in value $5 per acre during the past five years that it has been put to these uses. This, in itself, is a very good rate of interest and the land is being bettered each season by the rotation of crops and the system of diversifying.

"I can't 'go' into this all in one season, but my aim will be to 'grow' into it and the progress, I am satisfied, will be more rapid than the average farmer imagines."

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

THE NEWS,

By John W. Eastman.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

$1.50 PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

Thief River Falls Feb. 1, 1900.

The opposition to Congressman Eddy, of this district, is confined entirely within the city of Fergus Falls—and there it will die.

"Red Lake Falls offers a free site for the new court house.—Gazette.

The free site that is offered is located out by the N. P. depot—a very undesirable portion of the town, and about one mile from the center of the city.

Hon C. F. Staples, of Hastings, has authorized the announcement of his candidacy for the Republican nomination for railroad commissioner. Mr. Staples is a man in whom the people of the state have entire confidence, and the News hopes he will be successful.

Capt. Van Sant is the choice of a large number of Republicans of the state for governor and will undoubtedly be nominated. If the nomination is given to him unanimously by an enthusiastic and harmonious convention it will mean success for the Republicans.

"Red Lake Falls is fighting the tax payers' battle," shouts a down river contemporary that wants to bond the county for $10,000 and build a court house. The tax rate in the city of Red Lake Falls is only 61.90 mills, and the people of that place could probably find more profitable employment.

If the court house bonds are voted down at the coming election, it will necessitate the calling of another special election at a cost of 2,000 dollars. It is clearly in the interest of economy to carry this election, no matter from what standpoint viewed.—Gazette.

Such threats as this are in perfect harmony with the "rule or ruin" policy of Red Lake Falls. But we would remind the citizens of that place that if another election is called and the tax payers again put to the expense of $2,000, it will be for the purpose of removing the county seat to another portion of the county.

The plan to endorse Senator Nelson at the state convention as the choice of the Republican party for United States senator meets with the approval of the press of the state. The endorsement of such a representative body as the next state convention will be is the next thing to the choice of a senator by popular vote. Senator Nelson is reckoned among the able men of the senate and stands high in the councils of the nation as well as his party. He is a tower of strength to the party in this part of the state, which is proud of him and his endorsement will help the party here.—Todd County Argus.

Representative Roberts, who was last week expelled from the House of Representatives, will endeavor to have his case brought before the United States Supreme court. Section 5 of article 1 of the constitution declares that "each house shall be the judge of the qualifications of its own members" and, "with the concurrence of two-thirds, can expell a member." Mr. Roberts argues that he cannot be expelled until he is admitted and that the house cannot judge of his qualifications until he has been sworn in. At the same time the constitution says that "each state shall have at least one representative," and Utah has none. Therefore, he proposes to appeal to the Surpeme court to define his rights under article 3 of the constitution, which declares that "the judicial power shall extend to all cases in law and equity arising under this constitution" and "in all cases in which a state shall be a party the Supreme court shall have original jurisdiction." Mr. Roberts claims that it is clear that the state of Utah, having been denied representation in congress, has a right to appeal under this clause.

A BAD FIRE.

Hotel Wilmes at Red Lake Falls Partially Destroyed.

At 5 o'clock Monday morning fire broke out in the kitchen of the Hotel Wilmes, at Red Lake Falls, caused by an over-heated range and quickly spread to the second and third stories of the building. Owing to the high wind, which prevailed, the interior of the place was soon a mass of flames, and the sleeping guests were compelled to flee for their lives, several of them going across the street to a livery barn, with their clothing in their hands, to dress.

The fire department did excellent work and confined the flames to the interior of the building, the contents of which, if not burned, were badly damaged by smoke and water.

The hotel was managed by Mike Wilmes, who carried an insurance of $10,000 upon the property.

Is Now a Rancher.

Charley Hitchcock has become a rancher. Last fall he purchased a 400-acre tract of land near St. Hilaire, and began picking up cattle with which to stock the place. He went out this morning to look the place over. Mr. Hitchcock has recently returned from Chicago, where he engaged with the Plano Man'f'g Co., to look after its agents in this territory. — Crookston Times.

A GREAT NEWSPAPER.

It has always been claimed for The Chicago Tribune that it would, in all probability, pass with the highest average in any competitive examination among the newspapers of the United States for excellence in all departments of journalism.

"Under date of May 2, 1899, the Omaha World-Herald, editorially answering a letter from 'Inquirer' asking the names of the five best newspapers in this country, points out that a newspaper may excel in one way and be inferior in another. The World-Herald gives lists under five general headings of leading American newspapers distinguished especially for excellence, mentioning in all some twenty.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE HEADINGS:

"(1) Most and best news, foreign and domestic, presented attractively.
"(2) Best possible presentation of news briefly.
"(3) Typographical appearance.
"(4) Classification of news by departments.
"(5) Editorials.

"The Chicago Tribune is the only newspaper in the United States which the World-Herald considers worthy of mention under four different heads."—From the October Plain Talk.

Practically all high-class intelligent newspaper readers, comprising the best and middle classes in Chicago and vicinity, read The Chicago Tribune. A great majority of them read no other morning newspaper.

The Chicago Tribune prints more advertising year in and year out than any newspaper in the West.

RUSSIAN CATTLE.

Systematic Efforts to Introduce Them Into England.

Consul Thomas E. Heenan of Odessa says that the Russian government has for some time past been endeavoring to induce Great Britain to permit the entrance of Russian cattle, hogs and animal produce of various kinds. Under the auspices of the South Russian Society For the Exportation of Cattle and Animal Products and at the instigation of the minister of finance a committee of English experts will visit Russia on or about the 10th of September next for the purpose of examining various veterinary establishments and also the numerous stock farms throughout southern Russia. The committee will consist of Mr. Kearley, M. P.; Mr. Lambert, M. P., and Professor Cope, chief of the veterinary service of England. This committee will arrive at Moscow and, after visiting the veterinary establishments in northern Russia, will be taken south to Kharkof, thence to Nicolaiev, thence to Rostoff-on-Don and the northern Caucasus. A special car has been placed at the disposal of the committee, and the sum of 5,000 rubles has been granted by the Russian government to cover the expenses of the trip. It is desired, in the first place, that the visitors should see for themselves the condition of the veterinary establishments and also that Russian cattle, hogs, etc., are free from contagious disease. After having looked the ground over the committee will be in a position to advise the Russian government what measures, if any, might be taken which would allow Russian cattle to enter British ports under the most favorable circumstances. Russia has been engaged for some time in trying to promote this trade by subsidizing steamers having cold storage room and by aiding at various shipping points in the establishment of slaughtering houses, packing houses and houses for smoking hams, sides and shoulders of pork. The plan also includes the shipment of dairy products.

On reading and filing the petition of Augusta Johnson, administratrix of the estate of John E. Johnson, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into her hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; the legacies unpaid, and a description of all the real estate, (excepting the homestead), of which said deceased died seized, and the condition and value of the respective portions or lots thereof; the persons interested in said estate, with their residences, and praying that license be to her granted to sell S½ of the SW¼, of Sec. 27, and N½ of the NW¼, of Sec. 33, Tp. 154 North, of Range 43 West, according to government survey thereof.

And it appearing by said petition, that there is not sufficient personal estate in the hands of said administratrix to pay said debts, the legacies or expenses of administration, and that it is necessary, for the payment of said debts, legacies or expenses, to sell all of said real estate.

It is therefore ordered, that all persons interested in said estate appear before this court, on Monday, the 19th day of February, A. D. 1900, at ten o'clock A. M., at the court house in Red Lake Falls, in said county, then and there to show cause, (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said Augusta Johnson to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay such debts, legacies and expenses.

And it is further ordered, that this order shall be published once each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing in the Thief River Falls News, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Thief River Falls, in said county.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of one hundred seventeen and 03-100 dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Ole Hansen and Barbro Hansen, his wife, mortgagors, to Charles J. Knox, mortgagee, bearing date the 1st day of November, 1891, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, on the 24th day of December, 1894, at 10 o'clock A. M. in Book 70 of Mortgages, on page 52.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Charles J. Knox, mortgagee, to Jerome W. Wheeler, by written assignment dated the 25th day of May, 1896, and recorded in the office of said Register of Deeds of Red Lake county, formerly a part of Polk county, Minnesota, on the 27th day of November, 1899, at 11:15 o'clock A. M., in Book F of Mortgages, on page 463; and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof,

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:

Lots one (1), two (2), three (3) and four (4) of block twenty-seven (27), Knox's Addition to Red Lake Rapids, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Red Lake county, formerly a part of Polk county, and state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Red Lake county, formerly a part of Polk county, Minnesota, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Red Lake Falls, in said Red Lake county, formerly a part of Polk county, and state, on the 9th day of March, 1900, at three o'clock P. M., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars, attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 18, A. D. 1900.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Thief River Falls, Minn., Jan. 29, 1900.

We wish to announce to the farmers of this vicinity that we have just completed the work of enlarging and re-modeling Roller Mill O. K., and are prepared to grind a fine quality of well milled flour. It has been our effort in the single year in which we controlled this property to establish a reputation for square dealing and honest work, which would make lasting friends of all our patrons. The phenomenal increase in our business in the year, making it necessary to increase the capacity of the mill, proves that our efforts have been crowned with success.

We have at this time taken the opportunity to put in improved machinery, making it possible to give to the residents of this vicinity flour we can guarantee to equal any made in this country.

We are also prepared to grind feed and to make rye and buckwheat flour and corn meal. We will continue to pay at all times the very highest market prices for wheat, oats, barley, rye and all cereals.

Thanking you for past favors and hoping for a continuance of your patronage, we remain,

Yours very sincerely,
HANSON & BARZEN.

He has written home that he finds the climate most excellent and is in better health than he has been for years.—Ada Index.

James Meehan, Jr., went down to Crookston yesterday.

One of the large dogs belonging to H. M. Hicks was shot last night by some resident of the First ward.

Services will be held in the M. E. church next Sunday at 11 o'clock in the morning and 7:00 in the evening. Rev. Dr. Forbes, presiding elder of the Duluth district, will preach in the evening at 7:30 o'clock.

H. E. Ives, E. J. Holmes, J. L. Johnson, C. G. Rapp, Eric Hoff and J. K. Hannay were in the city last Friday consulting with the local committee regarding the proposed bonding of Red Lake county for $10,000.

Governor Lind, State Auditor Dunn and Secretary Berg have passed upon the petition of the people in the southeastern corner of Polk county to have their section set apart and organized into a new county to be known as Columbia. The petition was found correct and was approved. The governer has issued his proclamation providing that the question of division be submitted to the people at the next general election in Polk county.

A NEW BOAT

Being Built by the Local Lumber Company.

P. Eberhardt is now engaged in building a new steamboat for the Thief River Falls Lumber company. It will be three feet wider and six feet longer than the Alice. The newest and latest improved machinery will be placed in the boat and, when it is completed, it will be the best boat on the river. The cabin of the Alice will be used in the construction of the new boat, and the hull of the Alice will used in the future as a barge.

The Ethel is also being overhauled and repaired by Mr. Eberhardt.

ON THE SIDE.

A saw mill employee, who lives on the East side, likes to keep himself employed during the season when the mill is closed, so he decided to build a chicken house. He had the material delivered and was about to begin work in the back yard when the cold snap came. He did not feel disposed to remain in the back yard when the mercury was 20 below zero, and it occurred to him that he might as well work in the kitchen, which was very roomy and comfortably warm. His wife protested against the invasion of her domain, but he overruled her and took possession. He is a good carpenter and in two days he had constructed a very neat chicken house about eight by ten feet and eight feet high. When it was finished, he called his wife to come and inspect the job. "The coop is all right," she said, "but how are you going to get it out into the back yard?" "By the great horn spoon!" he exclaimed. "I hadn't thought of that!"

Hill's Fleet.

Within the next five years, according to James J. Hill, the steamships to be operated between points on the North Pacific coast and the Orient in connection with the Great Northern railway will number twenty-five. The vessels will be among the largest in ocean service, and each will have a speed of 13 to 14 knots an hour. At present eight of them are either in course of construction or contracted for, and as soon as they leave the shipwrights' hands they will be pressed into the new service.

In the mind of the Great Northern president the proposed service to the Orient will be an important benefit to the industries of the North and Northwest.

I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Say, John, what are you doing to look so healthy?"

Speer's Port Grape Wine

Nine Years Old,
Burgundy Eight Years Old, and
Claret 16 Years Old.
Extensive Wine Cellars.

Storing, Ageing and Racking Wine.

A wine made one year and sold the next is not a proper wine for invalids; to get rid of its coarse and injurious elements requires years for it to lay in wood casks, and by frequent drawing off from its gross sediment, or the coarse parts it becomes rich and mellow and valuable for invalids. It is sudorific, diuretic and blood making from the iron in the soil of the Speer vineyards in Northern N. J.

The principal varieties are the Port, Burgundy, Sherry and Claret and the Climax brandy. All these wines when stored for years and drawn off from time to time in fresh fumigated casks become vastly superior products and necessarily are more expensive. This is why Speer's wines and Brandy are more costly and so far superior to the California wines. They are absolutely pure; unexcelled by any in the world. Speer's wines are ordered by wealthy and refined families in Europe where they are prescribed by physicians and are esteemed for their superiority, velvety roundness, full body and refined flavor. The efficacy of these wines is wonderful. It has been a study and a pride during Mr. Speer's life to produce a wine of the highest grade of perfection—not so much to make money as to excell in getting a wine of the richest character. He has spared no labor nor expense in bringing his vineyards and wines up to the above high standard of excellence. The Climax ★★★ Brandy twenty years old is equal to the finest French brands.

To be had of Druggists and Grocers who sell high class wines.

FACTS ABOUT MILK.

How to Drink It So as to Receive the Greatest Benefit.

Many people complain that they cannot drink milk without suffering from indigestion. Probably this is because they take it too quickly or at the wrong time. It should be remembered that milk is a food and not a beverage and therefore should not be taken with a meat meal. Only a very robust digestion could cope with milk and meat simultaneously, although nearly everybody can take a glass of milk with benefit at the right time.

Another reason why many people experience difficulty in digesting milk is that they swallow it too quickly. Very shortly after entering the stomach milk is converted into curd, and if a glass of milk be swallowed at one gulp the result is that the mass becomes an almost solid lump of curd, very difficult indeed to digest. If, however, the milk be taken in little sips, the curd is formed in small pieces and trouble is avoided.

There is perhaps no better drink than a cup of hot milk, and it is one which may safely be indulged in. It is especially useful to some people on going to bed, for it enables them to sleep, when without it they would probably lie awake for hours. Those people who cannot take milk comfortably after noting the above hints will find they can do so if they add to it a little limewater—a teaspoonful to a tumbler will be all right.

How to Make Codfish Rolls.

Mix one box of shredded codfish or one pint of pickled fish with one pint of stale bread crumbs; add one saltspoon of white pepper, the juice of one lemon and two whole unbeaten eggs. Work well together (it should be moist enough to hold together). When well mixed, form into rolls, dip in egg and then into bread crumbs, and fry in smoking hot fat. Serve with tomato sauce.

How to Salt Pork.

Fill a large boiler or kettle with sweet fern, steep boiling hot, turn all into the pork barrel, cover with a cloth, let it steam 10 or 12 hours, then rinse the barrel out with cold water. Then put in a layer of coarse salt at bottom of barrel, then a layer of pork, then a layer of salt. Fill in cracks with salt, then a layer of pork, and so on till the barrel is full. Let it lie in salt four or five days, to let the salt strike in, before adding the water, as the water prevents the salt from striking in; then fill up with water enough to cover the pork, then put on a board or small cover and stone on that to press down. Don't put fat and lean together, or blood from lean will make brine smell bad. Wash blood from lean before salting. This recipe is from an old farmer of the state of Maine and is worth trying, as pork will keep hard and of nice flavor.

How to Cure Face Ache.

Apply hot bran poultices to the cheek or rub the face with camphorated oil and cover the part with a piece of flannel. A little warm laudanum dropped into the ear on the affected side often gives relief. If the pain proceeds from the jaw, put a few drops of tincture of cayenne on cotton wool and place it between the cheek and teeth.

How to Make Oyster Chowder.

Fry together two ounces of salt pork and one onion, sliced. Parboil one pint of sliced potatoes five minutes and drain. Look over carefully one pint of oysters, pour over one-half cup of water, and heat to the boiling point. Skim out the oysters and pour the liquor over the potatoes, add the pork and onions and cook the potatoes until tender, adding a little more water if necessary; add the oysters, one pint of milk and one-half cup of fine bread crumbs. Season with one teaspoon of salt and half teaspoon of pepper and pour into the serving dish.

How to Make Cabbage Pudding.

Chop fine one large head of cabbage, tie in a cloth and steam until done. To each quart of cabbage add two well beaten eggs, one-half cup of cream, two crackers powdered, a teaspoonful of salt and a saltspoonful of cayenne. Turn into a buttered dish and bake ten minutes.

How to Preserve the Teeth.

To prevent the teeth decaying unduly, brush well every morning, using a good tooth powder and having a little carbonate of soda in the water. After each meal rinse the mouth with tepid water in which a little carbonate of soda is dissolved, and before retiring at night brush the teeth again. If strong medicines have to be taken, have them made up in the form of pills if possible, as tinctures of iron, acids and so on have a bad effect on the enamel of the teeth.

How to Clean Brass.

There are numerous patent pastes and liquids for cleaning brass, but not one of them gives better results than rotten stone and oil made into a paste. Apply with a cloth, allow it to remain on for a time—an hour, say—then rub vigorously.

How to Make Swiss Cakes.

Beat a quarter of a pound of butter to a cream, add four ounces of powdered sugar, the grated rind of a lemon and a well beaten egg; then add by degrees half a pound of flour and roll the paste out thinly on a floured board. Cut it out with a leaf shaped fluted cutter, scatter some desiccated cocoanut over the top of the cakes and bake them until they are a golden brown in a moderately hot oven.

How to Clean White Silk.

Dissolve some soft soap in water as hot as it can be borne. Rub the silk between the hands in this soapy lather and rinse in tepid water. Then pin it out on a cloth and dry. White brocade may be cleaned with dry bread crumbs.

TALKING TURKEY.

Information as to Feeding and Care, by a Woman of Experience.

The turkey is by nature a wild animal and is found in cold as well as in warm climates. It is an American bird, and I can remember when droves of wild turkeys were no uncommon sight in my native state, Virginia. These turkeys never had a hot mash nor a drink of hot water. They roosted in the highest pine trees they could find and drank from the flowing streams and springs in that mountainous region. They gathered the grain of the fields, and the insects which they caught served for meat. So if I were to select an ideal place for raising turkeys I should select a rocky, hilly place, with plenty of running water and plenty of grass, bounded by unlimited range, a place free from coyotes, foxes, minks, weasels and everything else which would destroy my flock. I should let them do just as they pleased, except I should feed and pet them just enough to keep them gentle.

I do not believe I should ever be troubled with cholera, roup or any of the diseases incident to tenderly raised fowls. But since this ideal place is not attainable I do the very best I can. I have demonstrated that 30 turkeys can be kept on less than an acre of ground during laying season by turning them out each day after they have laid in an orchard where they got water and ate apples and insects and plenty of grass. Out of this 30 not one was sick. Eleven were shipped the 1st of June, and the remaining 19 are still healthy. However, they have had plenty of freedom since July, so that while I believe free range preferable, I have demonstrated that turkeys can be successfully handled in limited space. To do this they must be supplied with those articles of food which they get on free range. I have kept grit, oyster shells and lime before them constantly.

For me to say that I do not know what causes roup and then tell you that I believe filth produces it may seem contradictory, yet I have noticed that when turkeys roost low in the same place and the droppings are either not removed or are kept covered with lime those turkeys frequently are attacked with roup symptoms. I also observe that if turkeys are not taught to roost in the same place they frequently change their roosting places; hence I conclude it is better for them to do so, and we all know that the higher a turkey can get at night the better pleased he is, so I think pure air is very necessary for them. I think, too, that extreme changes in climate produce roup, yet I did not have a case of roup in my yards last winter, as cold as it was, and the care of my fowls for two months was left to my husband and little boy, who are not very much in love with poultry, and they thought when they gave plenty of corn they had done their duty. Nothing but severe illness could have induced me to fail to give them my personal attention. The greatest loss I suffered was from toms fighting, and this caused swelled head, which finally killed them. By the way, I should like to ask if any one can give me a preventive for fighting?—Mrs. B. G. Mackey in Reliable Poultry Journal.

Color of White Rock Chicks.

The color of White Plymouth Rock chicks when hatched has caused many amateur breeders much dismay. Eagerly I watched for the appearance of my first White Plymouth Rock chicks. Words are too feeble to express my chagrin when they emerged from the shell a dirty, bluish, mousy white. I supposed they would be "white as snow." The first two that hatched I hid from sight, hoping the others would hatch white. I could not bear the ridicule of neighbors who had laughed at me for my extravagance. I imagined their saying, "I told you so." When not one was white, I could no longer conceal my dismay. I wrote the breeder from whom I purchased the eggs, telling her she had surely sent me the wrong eggs. Before the answer came I was prepared for it, for, as she wrote, the little chicks were already putting out white feathers. She said that she had laughed at my letter and assured me that the bluer the chicks the bluer the blood. Often since, when shipping eggs to beginners, has my experience recurred to mind. Only a short time ago a customer wrote to me that every chick hatched was slate colored and that he had often hatched whiter chicks from mongrel eggs.—Ida Clark in Reliable Poultry Journal.

Only One Acre.

M. A. Dearing of Great Barrington, Mass., is one of those large farmers on a small territory. He has but an acre of ground, on which he keeps three horses, one cow, rabbits, guinea pigs, ferrets, foxes, coons and pet stock and finds enough land to spare to do an extensive poultry business, keep a flock of pheasants and have quite a good garden.

He started his incubators Jan. 1, 1899, and up to May 21 he hatched 4,502 chickens. After that date he filled his incubators with duck eggs. He raises each year between 500 and 600 ducks on the same acre of land.

Mr. Dearing writes A Few Hens as follows: "We also have a large house, barn and wagon house. I lost some chickens; don't think it was over 15 or 20 per cent. I had more trouble with brooder lamps than anything else. I have one house 75 feet long, heated with hot water pipes. I have six other brooder houses. I also winter 200 hens. When my chicks can live without artificial heat, I sell off the hens and use their quarters for chicks. My chicks are always plump and healthy. But let me say right here I don't pretend I have enough room, but it is all I have."

~~The~~ Thief River Falls News.

VOL. XVII. NO. 5. THIEF RIVER FALLS, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1900. TERMS: $1.50 IN ADVANCE.

AN ADDRESS

To the Tax Payers of Red Lake County.

The St. Hilaire Spectator last week published the following address to the voters and tax payers of Red Lake county:

The schemers and county ring at Red Lake Falls want you to vote $10,000.00 more bonds. They are trying to fool you with a misleading array of figures into voting more bonds, by pretending that it will save you money. If you follow their advice, you will land the county in debt as badly as Red Lake Falls already is.

WHAT THEY HAVE DONE WITH RED LAKE FALLS.

The tax rate is almost seven per cent per annum; they are above the legal limit of debt, and Red Lake Falls is today the most bankrupt town in the state. Over four thousand three hundred lots in that town will be sold in a few weeks to pay accumulated back taxes.

RED LAKE COUNTY IS ALREADY BONDED FOR $30,000.00

And the money is all spent, without very much to show for it. Polk county is claiming $15,000.00 more, which, if allowed, will make the total debt $50,000.00. The ten thousand more which they ask you to vote is merely a bait to draw you on. When that is spent more money will be needed, and the probable result will be that you will be drawn into an expenditure of thirty or forty thousand dollars before you get through with the court house scheme.

If this scheme was an honest one, why was it kept concealed till the last minute, and passed over the protest of two of the county commissioners, and the election called at a time when it was known that many of the voters were away from home at work in the woods?

YOU CAN HAVE A COURT HOUSE FREE!

If you think that a new court house is absolutely necessary, you can have one free by locating the county seat either at St. Hilaire or Thief River Falls.

We published a copy of the guarantee of these towns, and the original documents are now in the vaults of the First State Bank of Thief River Falls, and can be seen by any voters of the county.

If Red Lake Falls has the interest of the county at heart, and wishes to economize, let it donate a suitable site for a court house and give the $10,000.00 to boot.

RED LAKE COUNTY NEEDS MONEY TO SPEND ON DRAINS AND DITCHES AND IMPROVED ROADS.

Farmers, help yourself first, and don't load yourself down with taxes to accommodate the citizens of Red Lake Falls!

Filled With Bird Shot.

A special from Solway tells of the shooting of Oscar Moore near that place last week. Moore is a squaw-man living on the Red Lake reservation, and for twenty years has been a prominent character in the lumber camps and on the driving streams. He is employed at present in toting into the lumber woods, and while stopping at the claim of Joe Burns, twelve miles north of Solway, it is claimed assaulted Burns' squaw. Upon learning the state of affairs upon his return to the house, Burns attempted to put Moore out of doors. Moore proved the better man of the two and was handling Burns roughly, when the latter's squaw seized a shotgun loaded with small shot and let go the charge in Moore's back, making a bad wound. The injured man was taken to Solway, where he received surgical treatment.

What Thief River Falls Will Do.

To the County Commissioners and Tax Payers of Red Lake County:

We, the undersigned, citizens and residents of Thief River Falls, do hereby pledge ourselves to the county of Red Lake that in case the county seat of Red Lake county shall at any time during the next three years be located at Thief River Falls, we will furnish to Red Lake county, free of charge, a suitable site for a court house and other county buildings, and will build thereon and donate to the county a court house and jail, to cost not less than $10,000.00.

GOOD NEWS.

Favorable Report on "Free Homes" Bill.

The house committee on public lands last week directed Congressman Eddy to make a favorable report on his free homes bill, with an amendment providing that the act shall not apply to any lands upon which the United States has made valuable improvements or which have heretofore been sold at public auction. This will not affect the best Minnesota lands, as only pine lands are sold at auction.

As agreed upon, the bill provides that, in addition to this, "all settlers under the homestead laws upon public lands acquired prior to the passage of the act by treaty or agreement from various Indian tribes, and who have resided upon such lands in good faith for the period required by law, shall be entitled to patent therefor upon payment to the local land offices of the usual and customary fees, and no other or further charge shall be required from such settler to entitle him to patent for land covered by his entry." There is a proviso that settlers may commute their entries in accordance with the homestead law, and also that all sums released, which, if not released, would belong to any Indian tribe, shall be paid to the Indians by the United States, and also that if the proceeds of the annual sales of public lands shall not be sufficient to meet the payments already provided for agricultural colleges and experimental stations, the deficiency is to be paid by the United States.

THAT CANAL.

A Bill Introduced in Congress Last Week.

"A bill was today offered in the house providing for the construction of a canal from Lake Superior to East Grand Forks, Minn., and granting a right of way over the lands proposed to be traversed by the canal. The bill was presented by Representative Spalding by request of certain persons in North Dakota. It is provided that the canal shall commence at a point on Lake Superior where the St. Louis river empties into the lake, and shall run thence over the most practical route by way of Sandy lake, Lake Winnebigoshish, Cass lake and Red lake, to a point where the Red Lake river empties into the Red River of the North.

Perish in a Saloon.

Last Wednesday morning the saloon of W. E. Kelly, of East Grand Forks, was burned, and when the ruins were being turned over, the bodies of the proprietor and T. J. McAdams were found burned almost beyond recognition. McAdams was a prominent citizen, the first mayor of the place, serving three successful terms in all. It was supposed he was out of the city, and the news of his shocking death caused a profound sensation.

The fire started from the explosion of a lamp in the basement of the saloon. The loss was about $5,000, partially covered by insurance. The bodies were found in the basement under tons of debris.

BARNES IN LUCK.

He Will Be a Free Man on June 12th.

Through the efforts of C. E. Boughton and others, L. J. Barnes, who in 1893 was sent from here to Stillwater for five years, has had his sentence commuted to three years, and this, with the good time he has earned in prison, will make him a free man June 12th of this year. Barnes has been a model prisoner since his advent in Stillwater. Out of sixty-five petitions for pardon and commutation which came before the pardoning board at its recent session only five were granted and Barnes was one of the lucky ones.

Brainerd & Northern Plans.

Bemidji, Minn., Feb. 1.—The sale of the Brainerd & Northern railway to the Northern Pacific is said to forerun an extension of the road to the northeast from Bemidji in the spring to a connection with the Red Lake transportation line, a logging road thirty miles north from here, and running to Red lake, and also a seventy mile extension towards Rainy river. Further railway talk involves a Northern Pacific line from here northwest to Thief River Falls, to connect there with the branch that now stops at Red Lake Falls. This would tap a rich agricultural territory in Beltrami county, while the Rainy river extension would bring from two to three billion feet of timber within reach of Bemidji sawmills. The buying of timber claims in the territory northeast of Bemidji is in active pursuit now by the men interested in pine, and homesteaders who have been in the country for two or five years waiting for sunrise to come, have at last got into harvest, as good timber brings all the way from $2 to $4 per thousand feet.

30 Years Ago.

It seems incredible that less than 30 years ago no wheat at all was raised in the Red River valley, which now contributed 50,000,000 bushels annually to the total supply. The first was planted in 1871, and it yielded 500 bushels off a ten acre piece. Since then the acreage has increased to 3,000,000. In 1878 the population of twelve valley counties was about 50,000. Today it is estimated at 350,000 persons, owning property worth probably $200,000,000.—Crookston Tribune.

If you want to file on a piece of government land it will not be necessary to go to Crookston. Make your filing in Thief River Falls before L. G. Browning, U. S. commissioner for the district of Minnesota.

THIEF RIVER FALLS FEB. 8, 1900.

RED LAKE county needs roads and ditches more than it does a special election and a court house.

THE county commissioners of Polk county have decided to build a $60,000 court house at Crookston.

PAY your personal property and real estate taxes before you vote on the proposition to bond the county for $10,000.

AN effort is to be made by the people living in the eastern part of Norman county to remove the county seat from Ada to Twin Valley.

THE McKinley club of Crookston will celebrate Lincoln's birthday next Monday evening, Feb. 12. Hon. Moses E. Clapp, who knows every man, woman child in Northern Minnesota, will be the principal speaker.

IT is is said that Secretary of State Albert Berg, who is now a resident of Roseau county, will be elected as a member of the legislature next fall, and take a prominent part in the re-apportionment with a view of carving out a congressional district in the northern part of the state which he would like to represent in congress.

THE benefits the wool growers have received under a protective tariff is illustrated by Wm. E. Curtis in an article in the Chicago Record. The KcKinley tariff bill became law in October, 1890. The price of wool in July that year was from 29 to 37 cents a pound, according to grade, from course to fine. The Wilson tariff bill became law in July, 1894. In the meantime wool had advanced to 27 cents for the medium grade and 31 cents for the course. In anticipation of the passage of the Wilson bill there was a marked decline in the price, and about the time it became law wool was bringing only from 13 to 21 cents. Under that tariff prices kept falling, until sales were made at 17 and 18 cents for the different grades. After the election of President McKinley in 1896 prices began to strengthen, and by the time congress met after the holiday recess had reached 19 and 21 cents in January, 1897. When the Dingley bill was under consideration the improvement continued, and by the time the measure became law the prices had reached 21 and 23½ cents, and during November, 1897, reached the high point, varying from 23 to 55 cents a pound. During January last the price ran from 21½ to 46½ cents for the different grades, thus showing an increase under the Dingley law of more than 100 per cent, or 25½ cents a pound.

City Council.

At a meeting of the city council held Tuesday evening little business of importance was transacted. The fire department submitted the names of Emil E. Zeh for chief and James Farr for engineer. The appointment of Mr. Zeh was approved by the council. For engineer, however, the council refused to approve the appointment of Mr. Farr, and the matter was referred back to the fire department with the suggestion that another name be presented.

SHOT TO KILL.

"Rus" Whipple Murders a Lumberjack in Bemidji.

A cold-blooded murder to all appearances took place at the Olympia theatre, in Bemidji Monday night at 11 o'clock during the opening performance of the new show house. The house was crowded from gallery to pit and the barroom was full of patrons, when Russel J. Whipple, a former resident of Thief River Falls, commonly known as Rus Whipple, a saloonkeeper of Solway, shot and killed Bonnie Moore, a lumber jack.

The two had some slight altercations in the barroom about half an hour before the shooting took place and Whipple went out and returned, evidently looking for trouble. Both men were under the influence of liquor and Whipple was quarrelsome to a degree, and in about two minutes had angered the little fellow, until he struck Whipple in the face, knocking out one of his teeth. Whipple at once pulled a revolver out of his overcoat pocket and shot Moore in the side, underneath his right arm. Moore staggered out of the bar into the theatre room and was carried from there to the Markham hotel, where he shortly expired. His body was then carried to the undertaker's, where an inquest was held Tuesday by Deputy Coroner Newman, the jury finding that the deceased came to his death at the hands of Russel J. Whipple.

Dr. Newman subsequently performed a post mortem, extracting the bullet from the body. From all that can be learned at this time the killing was premeditated. Whipple is a big fellow, standing six feet four inches in his stocking feet and weighing 260 pounds, while Moore is a boyish-looking fellow, weighing about 140 or 150 pounds. After the shooting Whipple walked out of the building with two friends and went to the saloon of J. R. Oringer, where he was arrested and taken to the county jail. Whipple is well known here, being a resident of this city during the opening of the reservation in '96.

BAD COMBINATION.

Fire Water, an Indian and a Cold Night.

An Indian known as "Big Charley," who lives up the river about 5 miles, imbibed too freely in the stuff that makes bad Indians last Saturday. When he started for home he forgot the direction in which he lived, and Sunday morning was found near the farm of D. Conely in a stupified condition and his feet badly frozen. He was discovered by Mr. Conely, who, after thawing out his frozen limbs, took him to his home on the reservation and left him in care of his squaw. Had Mr. Conely discovered the Indian an hour later he would probably have been frozen to death.

IS HEREBY GIVEN, That at the opening of the February, 1900, General Term of the District Court in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, at the Court House in the City of Red Lake Falls, in said County, on the twelfth day of February, A. D. 1900, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, Thief River Falls Lumber Company, a corporation duly organized, created and existing under the laws of the State of Wisconsin, and doing business at the City of Thief River Falls, in said Red Lake County, and the owner of all lands and premises hereinafter described, will apply to the said District Court for an alteration of the plats embracing all those lots, pieces, tracts or parcels of land lying and being in the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: All of lots N, M, L, K, I, H, G, F, and ten, eleven, twelve, thirteen, fourteen, fifteen, sixteen and seventeen, of block No. twenty-three; and lots L, M, N, O, P and twenty-two, twenty-three, twenty-four and twenty-five, of block No. twenty-four, of Knox's re-arrangement of blocks numbered twenty-three and twenty-four, of Red Lake Rapids, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Red Lake County; also lots eleven, twelve, thirteen, fourteen, fifteen, sixteen, seventeen, eighteen, nineteen and twenty of block No. one (1), and all of block No. two (2), and block No. three (3), in Conely's addition to Red Lake Rapids, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Red Lake County; also all of blocks thirty-six, thirty-seven, thirty-eight and thirty-nine, in the townsite of Red Lake Rapids, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Red Lake; also all other parcels of land which together with all the lots and blocks hereinbefore described are in said Red Lake County and included within the boundary line described as follows, to-wit: Beginning at the intersection of the western boundary of Conely avenue with the northern boundary of Nora street of Conely's addition to Red Lake Rapids; thence N. 88 degrees and 30 minutes W., a distance of 1620 ft.; thence N. 1 degree and 30 minutes E., a distance of 125 ft.; thence N. 69 degrees, and 30 minutes E., a distance of 291 ft.; thence N. 62 degrees and 30 minutes E., a distance of 684.5 ft.; thence N. 1 degree and 30 minutes E., a distance of 40 ft.; thence S. 88 degrees and 30 minutes E., a distance of 128 ft.; thence N. 1 degree and 30 minutes E., a distance of 140.2 ft.; thence N. 74 degrees and 50 minutes W., a distance of 114.4 ft.; thence N. 15 degrees and 10 minutes E., a distance of 73.8 ft.; thence N. 74 degrees and 50 minutes W. to the left bank of the Red Lake river; thence northerly along said river bank to its intersection with a line which co-incides with south boundary of Bridge street of Knox's re-arrangement of blocks 23 and 24 of the townsite of Red Lake Rapids; thence easterly along said line to its intersection with the western boundary line of Alley in said block 24; thence S. 1 degree and 30 minutes W. along western boundary line of said Alley and on a line co-inciding therewith to the northern boundary line of block one (1) of Conely's addition to Red Lake Rapids; thence easterly along said boundary line to western boundary line of Alley in said block one; thence S. 1 degree and 30 minutes W. along said western boundary line of Alley to south boundary line of Hughes street in said addition; thence easterly along said south boundary line of said Hughes street to western boundary line of Conely avenue of said addition; thence S. 1 degree and 30 minutes W. along western boundary of Conely avenue to place of beginning, so as to include all said lots, blocks, tracts, pieces and parcels of land in one tract to be known and designated as "Thief River Falls Lumber Company's Alteration of the Plats of Red Lake Rapids, Conely's addition to Red Lake Rapids and Knox's Re-arrangement of blocks 23 and 24 of Red Lake Rapids."

And said application will also be for the purpose of having all Streets and Alleys and all parts of all Streets and Alleys within the aforesaid boundary line vacated and the title to all said land embraced within said boundary line declared and adjudged to be in said Thief River Falls Lumber Company; and for such other and further relief as to the court may seem just and proper.

On reading and filing the petition of Augusta Johnson, administratrix of the estate of John E. Johnson, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into her hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; the legacies unpaid, and a description of all the real estate, (excepting the homestead), of which said deceased died seized, and the condition and value of the respective portions or lots thereof; the persons interested in said estate, with their residences, and praying that license be to her granted to sell S½ of the SW¼, of Sec. 29, and N½ of the NW¼, of Sec. 32, Tp. 154 North, of Range 43 West, according to government survey thereof.

And it appearing by said petition, that there is not sufficient personal estate in the hands of said administratrix to pay said debts, the legacies or expenses of administration, and that it is necessary, for the payment of said debts, legacies or expenses, to sell all of said real estate.

It is therefore ordered, that all persons interested in said estate appear before this court, on Monday, the 19th day of February, A. D. 1900, at ten o'clock A. M., at the court house in Red Lake Falls, in said county, then and there to show cause, (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said Augusta Johnson to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay such debts, legacies and expenses.

And it is further ordered, that this order shall be published once each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing in the Thief River Falls News, a weekly newspaper, printed and published at Thief River Falls, in said county.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of one hundred seventeen and 08-100 dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Ole Hanson and Barbro Hanson, his wife, mortgagors, to Charles J. Knox, mortgagee, bearing date the 1st day of November, 1894, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, on the 24th day of December, 1894, at 10 o'clock A. M., in Book 70 of Mortgages, on page 58.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Charles J. Knox, mortgagee, to Jerome W. Wheeler, by written assignment dated the 26th day of May, 1896, and recorded in the office of said Register of Deeds of Red Lake county, formerly a part of Polk county, Minnesota, on the 27th day of November, 1899, at 11:15 o'clock A. M., in Book F of Mortgages, on page 463; and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lots one (1), two (2), three (3) and four (4) of block twenty-seven (27), Knox's Addition to Red Lake Rapids, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Red Lake county, formerly a part of Polk county, and state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Red Lake county, formerly a part of Polk county, Minnesota, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Red Lake Falls, in said Red Lake county, formerly a part of Polk county, and state, on the 9th day of March, 1900, at three o'clock P. M., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars, attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 18, A. D. 1900.

A GREAT NEWSPAPER.

It has always been claimed for The Chicago Tribune that it would, in all probability, pass with the highest average in any competitive examination among the newspapers of the United States for excellence in all departments of journalism.

"Under date of May 2, 1899, the Omaha World-Herald, editorially answering a letter from 'Inquirer' asking the names of the five best newspapers in this country, points out that a newspaper may excel in one way and be inferior in another. The World-Herald gives lists under five general headings of leading American newspapers distinguished especially for excellence, mentioning in all some twenty.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE HEADINGS:

"(1) Most and best news, foreign and domestic, presented attractively.
"(2) Best possible presentation of news briefly.
"(3) Typographical appearance.
"(4) Classification of news by departments.
"(5) Editorials.

"The Chicago Tribune is the only newspaper in the United States which the World-Herald considers worthy of mention under four different heads."—From the October Plain Talk.

Practically all high-class intelligent newspaper readers, comprising the best and middle classes in Chicago and vicinity, read The Chicago Tribune. A great majority of them read no other morning newspaper.

The Chicago Tribune prints more advertising year in and year out than any newspaper in the West.

The report comes from the Red lake that Dan Shaw will have all his logs banked in about two weeks and will break camp. All of the lumbermen on Shotley brook have been doing a rushing business this winter

A rumor has been going about town that a contract for the removing of the Hotel Markham, of St. Hilaire, to this city had been let to Minneapolis parties for $1,000. It is probably a "pipe story," as no one in this city knows anything about the matter.

Blooded bulls for sale at the Stock Exchange stable. One registered Short Horn bull, 1½ years old, and one ¾-blood Red Pole bull, 2½ year old, are kept for service or for sale. Also have 10 ewe sheep and one ¾-blood Shropshire buck for sale. John Patterson, manager, Thief River Falls.

The Josephine Bomparte Rico company will give an entertainment in this city on Saturday evening, Feb. 17th, under the auspices of Odd Fellows' lodge. The entertainment to be given will be of a high order and will consist of reading and singing interspersed with musical selections.

John Christeanson, a former resident of this city, who is now living in Redwood county, arrived in the city yesterday and is renewing his acquaintance here. He is accompanied by W. H. Hawkins and George Peacock, two well-to-do farmers who are looking for a location. The gentlemen all state that there will be a big influx of settlers to this section in the spring.

County Supt. Jeffers last week received notice from the state department that Red Lake county would be among the few counties which would be granted a teachers' training school the coming summer. The school will be held in Red Lake Falls during the month of July and work will be along a few special lines which will be of the greatest benefit to the teacher pupils.

At Grand Forks on Saturday afternoon, H. N. Pillsbury, the world renowned chess, whist and checker player, simultaneously played eleven games each of chess and checkers against the best players in the country, and defeated all his opponents except one in chess and one at checkers, and those resulted in draw games. During the evening he played six games of checkers and an equal number of chess, while engaged in playing a game of duplicate whist. Pillsbury never once saw any of the boards, and while winning the whist with his partner by a score of ten points managed to win three of the checker games and five of the chess bouts, the others being drawn.

Roman Anderson, a farmer living near Crookston, was bound over to the grand jury Monday by Judge Traverse. The complaining witness was Hilda Froger.

The Red Lake Falls papers announce that Reid's Bargain Bazaar will be removed to Cass Lake, where Mr. Reid has accepted a position as sawyer in one of the mills there.

Having decided to go to the coast March 1st, I will sell all of my real estate in Thief River Falls at prices far below the value of the property. Make me an offer on any lot I own in the city. F. H. Kratka.

One of the pioneer residents of this city, F. H. Kratka, announces that he will leave the city next month for the Pacific coast, where he will permanently locate. He will dispose of all of his interests here before going.

Residents along the river are complaining of the fact that some one has hauled a dead horse and left it upon the bank of the river, near the chief's section. When the ice goes out in the spring it will float down the river and flavor the drinking water for the residents of Grand Forks.

Dr. Forbes, of Duluth, presiding elder of the Methodist church in this district, was in the city over Sunday and occupied the pulpit in the Methodist church on the East side. Mr. Forbes is a favorate in Thief River Falls and delivered an interesting sermon to a large audience.

Henry Norland, ex-sheriff of Red Lake county, was down last night and secured a contract for driving boom piles for the Crookston Lumber company. The work will begin at the mill and extend a distance of four and a half miles up river, the piles being placed at regular intervals through the middle of the stream.—Crookston Times.

A MAN KILLED

In the Thief River Falls Lumber Co.'s Camp.

A man was killed in the Thief River Falls Lumber company's Hay Creek camp last week. He was engaged in unloading a load of logs, when one of them fell upon him, killing him instantly. Little is known of the man here, as he came from Fosston, where he was taken and buried.

I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Say, John, what are you doing to look so healthy?"

CURE OF INSOMNIA.

How the Victim of Sleeplessness May Find Relief.

The immediate cause of insomnia is abnormal activity of the brain, which draws an undue amount of blood to that organ.

Cold feet usually accompany a heated brain. To re-establish normal conditions, the tension must be removed and the blood drawn from the brain to the extremities, thus equalizing circulation.

A scientist who studies brain fag recommends gymnastic exercise to precede repose. The following exercises, each repeated several times, are recommended:

Standing normally, inhale slowly. Vigorously stretch the arms out horizontally from the shoulders, energizing them to the finger tips. At the same time rise on the balls of the feet.

After remaining motionless for a few moments slowly relax the arms, return to the normal poise and exhale. Stretch the arms in front of the body and repeat the exercise; also stretch them directly upward and repeat.

Unite the three movements of the arms, raising them horizontally, forward and upward, rising on the balls of the feet, inhaling and exhaling as before.

Next stand with the weight on one foot. Extend the other a long step diagonally forward, touching the toe to the ground. Partially transfer the weight to the forward foot, at the same time bend that knee as much as possible and raise the heel high from the ground, keeping the whole of the back foot on the ground until this position of the bent knee and the raised heel of the forward leg is firmly taken.

Then gradually pull all but the toe of the back foot from the ground, while pressing down forcibly, as if overcoming a strong resistance, with the forward leg. The forward knee straightens, the whole foot comes to the ground, and the weight is transferred to the forward leg during the movement. Slowly transfer the weight to the back leg, forcibly pushing that foot to the ground as the heel of the forward foot rises.

If sufficient force is exerted in pressing the feet to the ground, after five minutes' practice they will glow and tingle. That the extremities be warm is a necessary condition for slumber.

Lying in an easy position, first realize that you are now safe in bed, free from care and ready for refreshing sleep. Then slowly raise the arms as high as possible, the hands relaxed. More slowly still lower the arms, letting the fingers touch the covering first, then the hand, the forearm and last the nerve force is released from the shoulder and the whole arm is at rest. Accompany the exercise with deep, slow respiration.

Repeat this several times, more slowly each time. The exercises sound lengthy and tedious. They prove to be neither when tried.

Many people are troubled with wakefulness in the night after a short sleep. It requires determination to rise and take exercises, although that is the only way in which some persons can obtain relief.—London Mail.

How to Make Pork Cake.

One pound salt fat-pork chopped fine; pour over this one pint boiling coffee, dissolve one tablespoonful soda and mix with one coffee cup dark molasses, two cups brown sugar, one teaspoonful each of cinnamon, cloves, allspice, black pepper, ginger and mace, three eggs and flour to make as stiff as you can stir. Then add one pound raisins chopped a little and one pound currants. Bake two hours.

How to Cook Corned Beef.

Select a piece of beef from the round with a layer of fat. It should be kept in brine for one week. Put it into cold water and bring it slowly to a boil. Then remove it to where it will only simmer. Allow 30 minutes to the pound. The last hour add one carrot, one onion and one turnip. It improves the beef to add the vegetables. The meat must be kept covered with water, and if only allowed to simmer it will be juicy and tender. If the beef is to be served a second time, bring it slowly to the boil in the same water in which it was boiled.

How to Make Rolladen.

Take two thin slices of beef from the round; add salt and pepper and pound. Then lay in the center of each slice a piece of fat bacon. Roll each slice up and tie in shape. Lay in a dripping pan with bits of butter and roast for an hour, basting frequently. Remove the string just before serving.

How to Make Puree of Cabbage.

Wash well one head of Savoy cabbage and soak in cold water one hour, then drain and shake. Put into a large kettle of boiling salted water and boil very slowly for 20 minutes, then drain the cabbage and chop it fine. Put this cabbage into a saucepan and a tablespoonful of butter, a gill of cream, half a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper. Stir until thoroughly hot, then turn into a vegetable dish, cover with squares of toasted bread, and it is ready to serve. This, if well prepared, is one of the daintiest of all the winter vegetable dishes.

How to Fry Smelts.

Wash and clean the small fish, dry them thoroughly and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Roll them in cornmeal and saute them in pork fat; reimmerse in deep fat; drain them. Garnish them with parsley and potato balls.

How to Use Stale Bread.

Soak the bread, with crusts, in water for a few minutes; beat up one egg with a little milk; mix with bread which has been strained from the water, and boil for about two hours. Turn out and serve with a little sweet sauce.

NOTES ON GEESE.

Seasonable Hints as to Feeding, Housing and General Management.

It is quite difficult to properly care for goslings unless they can have access to tender grass; therefore February or March is considered sufficiently early for geese to lay.

The amount of green food or roots, the variety and quantity of the grain food given, with attention to a proper supply of shells and grit, will largely influence egg production.

Boxes or large barrels make good nests and should be supplied by Feb. 1, as geese are quite apt to continue laying in the place which they select for depositing the first eggs.

Where more than one colony is kept they may be located a little distance apart, and each colony should be fed on its own grounds and taught to recognize that spot as its home.

After Feb. 1 some beef scraps two or three times a week may be mixed with the morning feed, and a little gluten meal or ground oats will also improve the quality of the mash.

A piece of rotten wood or an old stump gives geese a great deal of pleasure and amusement. They will bite off and eat every portion that is sufficiently decayed to be separated from the rest.

When geese are laying in cold weather, the eggs should be gathered frequently to guard against their becoming chilled. As they frequently lay during the night, it is almost impossible to prevent some from getting too cold.

Feeding has considerable influence upon the production of eggs, and from Nov. 1 to Feb. 1 geese should be fed a sufficient quantity and variety of food to keep them in good health and a thrifty condition without stimulating egg production.

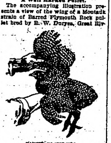
When the ground is covered with snow so that no grass can be obtained, a few cabbage leaves, apples or a sugar beet cut in two are relished by geese. They should always be provided with drinking water, which may be given to them in a butter tub or pail.

If heavy snows or extreme cold weather are liable to prevail, a small, partially open shed, 6 by 8 feet or larger, is desirable for shelter. This can be provided with dry litter, which will furnish them with a comfortable place in case of severe or inclement weather.

In any ordinary weather geese will prefer to stay out of doors, and even on a snow bank, to remaining in the building, but if accustomed to the shed they will utilize it when the weather becomes severe, and it may save them from having their feet frost bitten, which usually results in lameness.—A Few Hens.

A Well Marked Pullet.

The accompanying illustration presents a view of the wing of a Montauk strain of Barred Plymouth Rock pullet bred by E. W. Duryea, Great River, N. Y. At the time of taking the photograph the bird was 11 weeks old. The desire was to show the wing as much as possible. Since then the bird has developed into a very fine specimen in all sections—large, grand shape, and wings all that could be wished for. The weight is already about seven pounds.—Reliable Poultry Journal.



MARKED TO THE TIPS.

How to Scald Poultry.

The New York Produce Review gives this method of scalding poultry: The water should be just to a boiling point, but not actually boiling before birds are immersed. In performing this trick it should be borne in mind that the operator must hold the bird by the legs and head and then lift up and down in the water three or four times, when all feathers and pinfeathers should be removed very cleanly without breaking the skin. One dealer says it is essential that the scalding water be of uniform temperature to insure fine appearing stock. Where there is a wide variation in the temperature of the water there is not apt to be a uniform appearance of the birds. All scalded poultry should be "plumped" after picking by dipping for about two seconds in very hot water—just under boiling point—and then thrown into cool water of the natural temperature, where it should be allowed to remain for 15 to 20 minutes.

Americans Versus Mediterraneans.

"My experience is that selected strains of the American class will equal the Mediterraneans in profitable egg production," says Robert H. Essex in American Fancier, "especially when we consider the latter handicapped by a nervous disposition, the slightest change or fright affecting them; that they have a predisposition to feather eating; that they are discounted when confined to a house or run, and that egg eating is another unfortunate trouble which frequently crops up. I acknowledge there are counter accounts, such as a loss of time while the birds of the American class are broody, but even this can be bred out. I know of a flock of Barred Rocks that have not developed this characteristic for years, except in individual cases. I believe also that colored eggs find a more ready sale than white eggs."

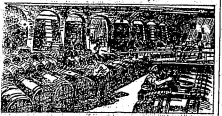
Speer's Port Grape Wine

Nine Years Old,

Burgundy Eight Years Old, and

Claret 16 Years Old.

Extensive Wine Cellars.



Storing, Ageing and Racking Wine.

A wine made one year and sold the next is not a proper wine for invalids; to get rid of its coarse and injurious elements requires years for it to lay in wood casks, and by frequent drawing off from its gross sediment, or the coarse parts it becomes rich and mellow and valuable for invalids. It is sudorific, diuretic and blood making from the iron in the soil of the Speer vineyards in Northern N. J.

The principal varieties are the Port, Burgundy, Sherry and Claret and the Climax brandy. All these wines when stored for years and drawn off from time to time in fresh fumigated casks become vastly superior products and necessarily are more expensive. This is why Speer's wines and Brandy are more costly and so far superior to the California wines. They are absolutely pure; unexcelled by any in the world. Speer's wines are ordered by wealthy and refined families in Europe where they are prescribed by physicians and are esteemed for their superiority, velvety roundness, full body and refined flavor. The efficacy of these wines is wonderful. It has been a study and a pride during Mr Speer's life to produce a wine of the highest grade of perfection—not so much to make money as to excell in getting a wine of the richest character. He has spared no labor nor expense in bringing his vineyards and wines up to the above high standard of excellence. The Climax ★★★ Brandy twenty years old is equal to the finest French brands.

To be had of Druggists and Grocers who sell high class wines.

That Will Be the Output of Gold in the Klondike.

Special to the News.

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 14.—A great many people ridicule the stories that are told of the fabulous riches of the Alaska gold fields.

Reports of output of gold are characterized as deliberate lies. The rush to the gold fields is said to be fostered by railway and steamship managers. These "doubting Thomases" are respectfully referred to the following letter from Mr. F. A. Wing, assayer in charge of the United States assay office at Seattle. It is sufficient evidence of the amount of gold actually deposited at the Seattle assay office.

The Alaska gold fields have hardly been scratched. What the future may bring forth no man can foresee. Certain it is that young men of good health, with pluck and energy and a determination to succeed, will dig immense fortunes out of the golden sand of Cape Nome, Cape York, Cape Prince of Wales, Norton Sound and Golofin Bay during the summer of 1900.

Here is what Mr. Wing writes:

The U. S. Assay Office at Seattle, Wash.

Office of the Assayer in Charge.
Nov. 28th, 1899.

Mr. R. C. Stevens,
Gen. Western Pass. Agt.,
Great Northern Ry., City.

Sir: It reply to yours of the 27th inst., I have the honor to submit the following data which I trust will be satisfactory:

This office was opened on July 15th, 1898. Since that time there have been 5,203 separate individual deposits of bullion, aggregating eighteen million five hundred and five thousand dollars; one third of which was received during the first fiscal year ended June 30th, 1899; the balance since that time.

The comparative average values per ounce of Klondike and Cape Nome gold are as follows: $16.50 per ounce Klondike; $18.50 per ounce Cape Nome.

In my judgment the output for 1900 will easily double that of 1899. In my preparations for next season I am anticipating at least twenty millions for this office alone, on a basis of thirty millions as the entire output of Alaska and the Northwest Territory.

All indications lead me to believe that Cape Nome and its immediate vicinity will equal the Klondike in amount of production.

Trusting this will meet with your requirements, I am,

Respectfully yours,
(signed) F. A WING,
Assayer in Charge.

FLAX SHORTAGE.

Seed Will Be Scarce and Command a Good Price.

The opinion is freely expressed that so much flax has already been sold by farmers, who have been tempted by the high price, that there is going to be a shortage of seed in the spring. Many were figuring on buying their seed flax when they sold their wheat, believing that the price would then be lower. Investigation among local dealers, however, confirms the idea that flax is on the upward move and that it is very unlikely that there will be a fall in the price.

If you want to file on a piece of government land it will not be necessary to go to Crookston. Make your filing in Thief River Falls before L. G. Browning, U. S. commissioner for the district of Minnesota.

What Thief River Falls Will Do.

To the County Commissioners and Tax Payers of Red Lake County:

We, the undersigned, citizens and residents of Thief River Falls, do hereby pledge ourselves to the county of Red Lake that in case the county seat of Red Lake county shall at any time during the next three years be located at Thief River Falls, we will furnish to Red Lake county, free of charge, a suitable site for a court house and other county buildings, and will build thereon and donate to the county a court house and jail, to cost not less than $10,000.00.

AGAINST CHECKS.

Senator Nelson Introduces a Bill Into Congress.

Advises from Washington this week are in effect that Senator Knute Nelson has introduced a bill into congress to prevent the use of trading checks. The Minneapolis Tribune published the following special telegram from its Washington correspondent last week:

"To prohibit any person, firm or corporation to use in business any trade checks, tokens, devices or other evidence of indebtedness, Senator Nelson has introduced a bill.

"Among the provisions of this bill is one that prevents merchants from using any trade checks payable in merchandise or money. The manufacture and sale of all kinds of trade checks are also prohibited and a fine of not less than $100 is to be collected in each conviction under this law.

"The bill is sweeping in its provisions and will affect the majority of merchants in small places. It will be beneficial, however, in preventing irresponsible parties from issuing these checks and leaving them outstanding with neither money or anything else in which to redeem them. Several cases in court have been brought on the validity of metal time checks and one St. Paul firm made a fight and won out.

EXCEL.

Cold weather and no snow is causing a water famine in the town. Many wells are drying up.

At a special school meeting held in District 17, it was voted to bond the district for $700 to build a new school house. It will be located just one half mile south of the present building.

School closed in Dist. 17 February 13. Clara Lee, age 13, did not miss a day during the four months' school, and she had to walk 2½ miles to school. This ought to make the "big boys" ashamed, who found it too cold to come a half mile or a mile to school.

H. L. Bergeron has declined to teach a fifth term of school in Dist. 17, and Mrs. Saugen will weild the rod and direct the young idea in the way they should or shouldn't go.

Rudolph Johnson returned from the woods last week.

Herman Simonson was over to Warrod last week on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Copp, Herman Bernt and Mrs. Rupprecht and son were in Thief River Falls last Saturday.

ARE BRIGHT.

Prospects of the Free Homes Bill Passing.

The friends of the free homes bill in Washigton are actively engaged in working up sentiment for the measure, and, while there is yet some opposition to the bill, it is evidently not so formidable as was anticipated. Representative Eddy, in charge of the bill, will make an effort to have it called up for consideration this week. The work done by the advocates of the free homes has been so vigorous that they express the belief that it will pass. It is stated that Chairman Lacey, of the public lands committee, will not oppose the bill, and this is an element of strength which encourages the advocates of free homes.

Saves State Direct Tax.

State taxes from the gross earnings of railroads will probably reach $1,500,000 this year. When Auditor Dunn made his estimates for the last legislature he put down $1,150,000 for last year and this, to be conservative, and $1,175,000 for next year.

Last year the receipts came to $1,261,000, which was $111,000 more than the estimate. This year every road will show an increase from the last year.

The gross earnings tax thus bears not only an increasing amount but an increasing share of the state's expense. Both Gov. Lind and Auditor Dunn in their recommendations to the last legislature predicted that in a few years the state's funds might be found without resorting to one cent of direct taxation. The marked rise in the gross earnings tax brings that much nearer than they dared predict.

Price of Twine.

Col. C. McC. Reeve, warden of the Minnesota state penitentiary and manager of the twine plant in that institution, has issued a circular to the farmers of the state as to the prices which will be charged for twine the coming season. Briefly the circular says:

"At a meeting of the board of managers held this day, (Feb. 7) the prices of twine f. o. b. Stillwater, to farmers or actual consumers only, were fixed as follows:

"Manila & Sisal mixed, 12½ cents per pound; (only 300,000 pounds made.)

"Pure Sisal, 10 cents per pound.

"No Pure Manila has been made, and none will be made this season.

"During the season from August 1st, 1897, to August 1st, 1898, the price of Manila hemp ranged from 4½ to 5 cents, and Sisal from 3⅝ to 5⅝ cents per pound. For the year '98 to '99 about 1,700,000 pounds of Manila were carried over, which cost an average of 4.35 cents per pound. The price of Manila the same year ranged from 6⅝ to 7⅝ and the price of Sisal from 6 and 1.16 to 7½ cents per pound.

CURE OF INSOMNIA.

The immediate cause of insomnia is abnormal activity of the brain, which draws an undue amount of blood to that organ.

Cold feet usually accompany a heated brain. To re-establish normal conditions the tension must be removed and the blood drawn from the brain to the extremities, thus equalizing circulation.

A scientist who studies brain-fag recommends gymnastic exercise to precede repose. The following exercises, each repeated several times, are recommended:

Standing normally, inhale slowly. Vigorously stretch the arms out horizontally from the shoulders, energizing them to the finger tips. At the same time rise on the balls of the feet.

After remaining motionless for a few moments slowly relax the arms, return to the normal poise and exhale. Stretch the arms in front of the body and repeat the exercise; also stretch them directly upward and repeat.

Unite the three movements of the arms, raising them horizontally, forward and upward, rising on the balls of the feet, inhaling and exhaling as before.

Next stand with the weight on one foot. Extend the other a long step diagonally forward, touching the toe to the ground. Partially transfer the weight to the forward foot, at the same time bend that knee as much as possible and raise the heel high from the ground, keeping the whole of the back foot on the ground until this position of the bent knee and the raised heel of the forward leg is firmly taken.

Then gradually pull all but the toe of the back foot from the ground, while pressing down forcibly, as if overcoming a strong resistance, with the forward leg. The forward knee straightens, the whole foot comes to the ground, and the weight is transferred to the forward leg during the movement. Slowly transfer the weight to the back leg, forcibly pushing that foot to the ground as the heel of the forward foot rises.

If sufficient force is exerted in pressing the feet to the ground, after five minutes' practice they will glow and tingle. That the extremities be warm is a necessary condition for slumber.

Lying in an easy position, first realize that you are now safe in bed, free from care and ready for refreshing sleep. Then slowly raise the arms as high as possible, the hands relaxed. More slowly still lower the arms, letting the fingers touch the covering first, then the hand, the forearm and last the nerve force is released from the shoulder and the whole arm is at rest. Accompany the exercise with deep, slow respiration.

Repeat this several times, more slowly each time. The exercises sound lengthy and tedious. They prove to be neither when tried.

Many people are troubled with wakefulness in the night after a short sleep. It requires determination to rise and take exercises, although that is the only way in which some persons can obtain relief.—London Mail.

How to Make Pork Cake.

One pound salt fat pork chopped fine; pour over this one pint boiling coffee, dissolve one tablespoonful soda and mix with one coffee cup dark molasses, two cups brown sugar, one teaspoonful each of cinnamon, cloves, allspice, black pepper, ginger and mace, three eggs and flour to make as stiff as you can stir. Then add one pound raisins chopped a little and one pound currants. Bake two hours.

How to Cook Corned Beef.

Select a piece of beef from the round with a layer of fat. It should be kept in brine for one week. Put it into cold water and bring it slowly to a boil. Then remove it to where it will only simmer. Allow 30 minutes to the pound. The last hour add one carrot, one onion and one turnip. It improves the beef to add the vegetables. The meat must be kept covered with water, and if only allowed to simmer it will be juicy and tender. If the beef is to be served a second time, bring it slowly to the boil in the same water in which it was boiled.

How to Make Rolladen.

Take two thin slices of beef from the round; add salt and pepper and pound. Then lay in the center of each slice a piece of fat bacon. Roll each slice up and tie in shape. Lay in a dripping pan with bits of butter and roast for an hour, basting frequently. Remove the string just before serving.

How to Make Puree of Cabbage.

Wash well one head of Savoy cabbage and soak in cold water one hour, then drain and shake. Put into a large kettle of boiling salted water and boil very slowly for 20 minutes, then drain the cabbage and chop it fine. Put this cabbage into a saucepan and a tablespoonful of butter, a gill of cream, half a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper. Stir until thoroughly hot, then turn into a vegetable dish, cover with squares of toasted bread, and it is ready to serve. This, if well prepared, is one of the daintiest of all the winter vegetable dishes.

How to Fry Smelts.

Wash and clean the small fish, dry them thoroughly and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Roll them in cornmeal and saute them in pork fat; reimmerse in deep fat; drain them. Garnish them with parsley and potato balls.

How to Use Stale Bread.

Soak the bread, with crusts, in water for a few minutes; beat up one egg with a little milk; mix with bread which has been strained from the water, and boil for about two hours. Turn out and serve with a little sweet sauce.

NOTES ON GEESE.

Seasonable Hints as to Feeding, Housing and General Management.

It is quite difficult to properly care for goslings unless they can have access to tender grass; therefore February or March is considered sufficiently early for geese to lay.

The amount of green food or roots, the variety and quantity of the grain food given, with attention to a proper supply of shells and grit, will largely influence egg production.

Boxes or large barrels make good nests and should be supplied by Feb. 1, as geese are quite apt to continue laying in the place which they select for depositing the first eggs.

Where more than one colony is kept they may be located a little distance apart, and each colony should be fed on its own grounds and taught to recognize that spot as its home.

After Feb. 1 some beef scraps two or three times a week may be mixed with the morning feed, and a little gluten meal or ground oats will also improve the quality of the mash.

A piece of rotten wood or an old stump gives geese a great deal of pleasure and amusement. They will bite off and eat every portion that is sufficiently decayed to be separated from the rest.

When geese are laying in cold weather, the eggs should be gathered frequently to guard against their becoming chilled. As they frequently lay during the night, it is almost impossible to prevent some from getting too cold.

Feeding has considerable influence upon the production of eggs, and from Nov. 1 to Feb. 1 geese should be fed a sufficient quantity and variety of food to keep them in good health and a thrifty condition without stimulating egg production.

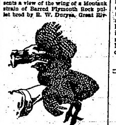
When the ground is covered with snow so that no grass can be obtained, a few cabbage leaves, apples or a sugar beet cut in two are relished by geese. They should always be provided with drinking water, which may be given to them in a butter tub or pail.

If heavy snows or extreme cold weather are liable to prevail, a small, partially open shed, 6 by 8 feet or larger, is desirable for shelter. This can be provided with dry litter, which will furnish them with a comfortable place in case of severe or inclement weather.

In any ordinary weather geese will prefer to stay out of doors, and even on a snow bank, to remaining in the building, but if accustomed to the shed they will utilize it when the weather becomes severe, and it may save them from having their feet frost bitten, which usually results in lameness.—A Few Hens.

A Well Marked Pullet.

The accompanying illustration presents a view of the wing of a Montauk strain of Barred Plymouth Rock pullet bred by R. W. Duryea, Great River, N. Y. At the time of taking the photograph the bird was 11 weeks old. The desire was to show the wing as much as possible. Since then the bird has developed into a very fine specimen in all sections—large, grand shape, and wings all that could be wished for. The weight is already about seven pounds.—Reliable Poultry Journal.



BARRED TO THE TIPS.

How to Scald Poultry.

The New York Produce Review gives this method of scalding poultry: The water should be just to a boiling point, but not actually boiling before birds are immersed. In performing this trick it should be borne in mind that the operator must hold the bird by the legs and head and then lift up and down in the water three or four times, when all feathers and pinfeathers should be removed very cleanly without breaking the skin. One dealer says it is essential that the scalding water be of uniform temperature to insure fine appearing stock. Where there is a wide variation in the temperature of the water there is not apt to be a uniform appearance of the birds. All scalded poultry should be "plumped" after picking by dipping for about two seconds in very hot water—just under boiling point—and then thrown into cool water of the natural temperature, where it should be allowed to remain for 15 to 20 minutes.

Americans Versus Mediterraneans.

"My experience is that selected strains of the American class will equal the Mediterraneans in profitable egg production," says Robert H. Essex in American Fancier, "especially when we consider the latter handicapped by a nervous disposition, the slightest change or fright affecting them; that they have a predisposition to feather eating; that they are discounted when confined to a house or run, and that egg eating is another unfortunate trouble which frequently crops up. I acknowledge there are counter accounts, such as a loss of time while the birds of the American class are broody, but even this can be bred out. I know of a flock of Barred Rocks that have not developed this characteristic for years, except in individual cases. I believe also that colored eggs find a more ready sale than white eggs."

Speer's Port Grape Wine

Nine Years Old,

Burgundy Eight Years Old, and

Claret 16 Years Old.

Extensive Wine Cellars.

Storing, Ageing and Racking Wine.

A wine made one year and sold the next is not a proper wine for invalids; to get rid of its coarse and injurious elements requires years for it to lay in wood casks, and by frequent drawing off from its gross sediment, or the coarse parts it becomes rich and mellow and valuable for invalids. It is sudorific, diuretic and blood making from the iron in the soil of the Speer vineyards in Northern N. J.

The principal varieties are the Port, Burgundy, Sherry and Claret and the Climax brandy. All these wines when stored for years and drawn off from time to time in fresh fumigated casks become vastly superior products and necessarily are more expensive. This is why Speer's wines and Brandy are more costly and so far superior to the California wines. They are absolutely pure; unexcelled by any in the world. Speer's wines are ordered by wealthy and refined families in Europe where they are prescribed by physicians and are esteemed for their superiority, velvety roundness, full body and refined flavor. The efficacy of these wines is wonderful. It has been a study and a pride during Mr Speer's life to produce a wine of the highest grade of perfection—not so much to make money as to excell in getting a wine of the richest character. He has spared no labor nor expense in bringing his vineyards and wines up to the above high standard of excellence. The Climax ★★★ Brandy twenty years old is equal to the finest French brands.

That Will Be the Output of Gold in the Klondike.

Special to the NEWS.

Reports of output of gold are characterized as deliberate lies. The rush to the gold fields is said to be fostered by railway and steamship managers. These "doubting Thomases" are respectfully referred to the following letter from Mr. F. A. Wing, assayer in charge of the United States assay office at Seattle. It is sufficient evidence of the amount of gold actually deposited at the Seattle assay office.

The Alaska gold fields have hardly been scratched. What the future may bring forth no man can foresee. Certain it is that young men of good health, with pluck and energy and a determination to succeed, will dig immense fortunes out of the golden sand of Cape Nome, Cape York, Cape Prince of Wales, Norton Sound and Golofin Bay during the summer of 1900.

Here is what Mr. Wing writes:

Mr. R. C. Stevens,
Gen. Western Pass. Agt.,
Great Northern Ry., City.

Sir: It reply to yours of the 27th inst., I have the honor to submit the following data which I trust will be satisfactory:

This office was opened on July 15th, 1898. Since that time there have been 8,203 separate individual deposits of bullion, aggregating eighteen million five hundred and five thousand dollars; one third of which was received during the first fiscal year ended June 30th, 1899; the balance since that time.

The comparative average values per ounce of Klondike and Cape Nome gold are as follows: $16.50 per ounce Klondike; $18.50 per ounce Cape Nome.

In my judgment the output for 1900 will easily double that of 1899. In my preparations for next season I am anticipating at least twenty mil

Prospects of the Free Homes Bill Passing.

The friends of the free homes bill in Washigton are actively engaged in working up sentiment for the measure, and, while there is yet some opposition to the bill, it is evidently not so formidable as was anticipated. Representative Eddy, in charge of the bill, will make an effort to have it called up for consideration this week. The work done by the advocates of the free homes has been so vigorous that they express the belief that it will pass. It is stated that Chairman Lacey, of the public lands committee, will not oppose the bill, and this is an element of strength which encourages the advocates of free homes.

Saves State Direct Tax.

State taxes from the gross earnings of railroads will probably reach $1,500,000 this year. When Auditor Dunn made his estimates for the last legislature he put down $1,150,000 for last year and this, to be conservative, and $1,175,000 for next year.

Last year the receipts came to $1,261,000, which was $111,000 more than the estimate. This year every road will show an increase from the last year.

The gross earnings tax thus bears not only an increasing amount but an increasing share of the state's expense. Both Gov. Lind and Auditor Dunn in their recommendations to the last legislature predicted that in a few years the state's funds might be found without resorting to one cent of direct taxation. The marked rise in the gross earnings tax brings that much nearer than they dared predict.

By John W. Eastman.
PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.
$1.50 PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.
Thief River Falls Feb. 15, 1900.

The Courier thinks it is to the interest of every farmer in the county to help beautify Red Lake Falls by building a court house there.

Boodle politics do not thrive in Minnesota, whatever may be the case in other states. All of Minnesota's congressmen, senators and state officers are poor men.—Sherburne County Star-News.

It should be the duty of every citizen in the county to see that his neighbor votes on the proposition to bond the county for $10,000 and build a court house at Red Lake Falls. If a full vote is cast, the northern part of the county has nothing to fear.

Gil. Hartley, owner of the townsite of Cass Lake, is still in trouble, and is endeavoring to have the government help him out. Mr. Hartley writes to Congressman Morris that the settlers, instead of purchasing the land recently acquired by him and others, as was anticipated, are moving on to section 16 in violation of the department.

It must be pretty hard work for a Populist to work at his trade these times. No man can be a consistent Populist and admit at the same time that there is such a thing as material and substantial prosperity under the present administration. And no man can fail to see the evidences of such prosperity unless he deliberately closes his eyes and refuses to look at that which surrounds him. The Populist who has to be one this year actually deserves the sympathy of more fortunate people.—Princeton Union.

A. N. Dare, of Elk River, has been mentioned for railroad commissioner. The members of this important board are to be elected hereafter instead of appointed by the governor and we do not know of a man in the Sixth district whom we would rather support for this position than Bro. Dare. He is eminently qualified and in the various public positions to which the people have called him he has shown himself to be a faithful and conscientious official. He could be relied upon to faithfully guard the interests of the people and at the same time deal justly with the railroads, as in his make-up there are none of the elements of the demagogue.—Todd County Argus.

BAD BLAZE.

Hundred Thousand Feet of Surfaced Lumber

GOES UP IN SMOKE.

Lumber Co.'s Planing Mill Was Threatened.

Tuesday afternoon at about 1:30 o'clock the big bell of the city hall sounded an alarm of fire and the department, quickly responding to the summons, discovered a fierce blaze well in progress among the piles of surfaced lumber on the loading platform of the Thief River Falls Lumber company's planing mill. The fire apparatus was promptly on hand, but the fire spread so rapidly that it seemed an impossibility to save anything of the planing mill or to rescue the string of loaded cars already blazing on the siding. However, the boys tackled the job with a will and after about three hours of almost superhuman work in tearing down piles of smoking lumber and destroying the platform about the fire, succeeded in confining the blaze to the loading platform itself, and saving not only the mill but the piles of lumber across the track. Two cars of costly machinery for the new planing mill and a car of sash and door stock, together with some cars of less valuable merchandise, which were directly in the path of flames, were pushed out of harm's way by a hundred willing hands and the fire extinguished before it could damage the contents. At about five o'clock it was apparent that the planing mill would be saved and that the fire was practically under control, and it was none too soon, for, shortly thereafter, the fire engine was disabled by the blowing out of a cylinder head, and a single stream from the lumber company's pump was all that was left available to fight the blaze. The strong west wind, which prevailed at the time, proved of the greatest assistance to the firemen in their efforts to save the planing mill but coupled with sub-zero weather it greatly increased the hardships of the situation. At six o'clock the officials of the lumber company assumed charge of the work of cooling off the ruins and relieved the nearly exhausted fire laddies. A stream was kept playing upon the smoking heap until an early hour Wednesday morning.

The company is about to move the planing mill across the river and had allowed the insurance to lapse only last week, so that it may be congratulated on its extreme good fortune in saving that part of the property. The total stock of lumber on hand was 150,000 feet, insured with companies represented by C. L. Dobner to the amount of $4,500. Of this stock between 80,000 and 100,000 feet was either totally destroyed or so badly scorched as to be valueless. The damage to the mill is trifling, but the company will be seriously annoyed by the delay in filling its orders.

SPARKS.

The small granary which stood in the direct path of the flames, and escaped with only a scorching, is a monument to the pluck and skill of our firemen.

In attempting to hook onto one of the blazing box cars, the team of Wesley Evans fell from the loading platform and was badly bruised.

Fire Engineer Louis French crushed a portion of his right hand in the pump machinery and amputation of a thumb may be necessary.

The usual number of amateur fire fighters who knew just how to do it were in attendance.

H. Lewin nearly fell into the hotness, but is still doing business at the old stand.

Trouble Ahead.

East Grand Forks, Minn., Feb. 12.—This place has a fight on hand that may result in the disruption of the Northern Minnesota Firemen's Association. The last tournament was held here. The Fosston department sent a team down and objection was entered against its competing in some of the contests. Fosston was admitted under protest and won a prize. The prize, $50, was paid under the distinct understanding that if the ruling of the governing committee was adverse the money should be returned. The committee ruled adversely, but Fosston refused to refund the money. The next tournament is to be held there, but East Grand Forks holds the books, and refuses to turn them over to the new officers until the $50 is refunded. A writ of replevin was secured by Fosston recently and G. I. Poughtailing came to serve the papers. No officer would serve them, and Poughtailing returned home empty handed.

On reading and filing the petition of Augusta Johnson, administratrix of the estate of John E. Johnson, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into her hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; the legacies unpaid, and a description of all the real estate, (excepting the homestead), of which said deceased died seized, and the condition and value of the respective portions or lots thereof; the persons interested in said estate, with their residences, and praying that license be to her granted to sell S½ of the SW¼, of Sec. 29, and N½ of the NW¼, of Sec. 32, Tp. 154 North, of Range 43 West, according to government survey thereof.

And it appearing by said petition, that there is not sufficient personal estate in the hands of said administratrix to pay said debts, the legacies or expenses of administration, and that it is necessary, for the payment of said debts, legacies or expenses, to sell all of said real estate.

It is therefore ordered, that all persons interested in said estate appear before this court, on Monday, the 19th day of February, A. D. 1900, at ten o'clock A. M., at the court house in Red Lake Falls, in said county, then and there to show cause, (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said Augusta Johnson to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay such debts, legacies and expenses.

And it is further ordered, that this order shall be published once each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing in the Thief River Falls News, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Thief River Falls, in said county.

By the Court;
[SEAL.] J. T. KNIGHT, Judge of Probate.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of one hundred seventeen and 03-100 dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Ole Hansen and Barbro Hansen, his wife, mortgagors, to Charles J. Knox, mortgagee, bearing date the 1st day of November, 1894, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, on the 7th day of December, 1894, at 10 o'clock A. M. in Book 70 of Mortgages, on page 52.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Charles J. Knox, mortgagee, to Jerome W. Wheeler by written assignment dated the 26th day of May, 1896, and recorded in the office of said Register of Deeds of Red Lake county, formerly a part of Polk county, Minnesota, on the 27th day of November, 1899, at 11:15 o'clock A. M., in Book F of Mortgages, on page 461; and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:

Lots one (1), two (2), three (3) and four (4) of block twenty-seven (27), Knox's Addition to Red Lake Rapids, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Red Lake county, formerly a part of Polk county, and state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Red Lake county, formerly a part of Polk county, Minnesota, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Red Lake Falls, in said Red Lake county, (formerly a part of Polk county) and state, on the 9th day of March, 1900, at three o'clock P. M., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars, attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure; and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 18, A. D. 1900.

JEROME W. WHEELER, Assignee of Mortgagee.
A. A. Miller, Attorney for Assignee of Mortgagee. Crookston, Minn.

I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Say, John, what are you doing to look so healthy?"

WANTED.—A case of bad health that R·I·P·A·N·S will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word R·I·P·A·N·S on the package and accept no substitute. R·I·P·A·N·S, 10 for 5 cents or twelve packets for 48 cents, may be had at any drug store. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials will be mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

WINTERING SHEEP

Influence of Feeding Upon Lambs and Wool.

There are many ways to winter sheep, varying with the age of the animals and what is expected from them. To merely keep them through the winter in what is called store condition is the way that many old farmers adopt, even with breeding ewes, says The American Cultivator. But such management does not pay, for the lambs will show the effect of the poor keeping, and many of them will die. The fleece will also be deteriorated, for whenever the animal is badly nourished it makes a weak place in the wool and lessens its value. All wool dealers and manufacturers know that the wool from a flock of wethers is always presumably better than from a ram or a flock of ewes. In the ewes especially there is sure to be some fever during gestation, and this has a bad effect upon the wool that is being formed during this period. So long as the sheep is free from fever there is a natural secretion of oil that keeps the skin and the fleece moist. Fever dries this up, making the skin dry and the fleece harsh to the touch. Such wool cannot be easily combed and carded.

More often the injury to wool is done by overfeeding animals that are being fattened. The sheep can digest even poor feed, keeping itself vigorous, and its fleece healthy so long as it gets sufficient in amount and of the proper nutritive value. It needs plentiful supplies of proteids to make the fleece grow properly. Unless these are given in some form there is sure to be trouble with the fleece when it comes to the manufacturer. Yet this is a matter that average wool buyers very seldom look into. Quite frequently in looking over a fleece there will be found a streak running through it at about the same distance from the surface that will show hard and dry, while beneath the wool will be moist or rather oily, as good wool ought to be. Sometimes this will stop further growth. But if the check was only temporary and quickly recovered from there will be fine threads of wool growing through the harsh portion and branching out into good wool at the surface. But this no less than where the wool growth is entirely arrested makes a weak place when the cloth is to be woven.

There is not enough discrimination made in judging the quality of wool as brought to the market by farmers. Most of the buyers are not so good judges as the farmers themselves, who can tell when shearing a sheep many of the conditions under which different parts of the fleece were grown. The manufacturer knows the effect which is produced in the fleece, but he can only guess the cause. By putting together what the farmer knows and what the manufacturer finds in working up the fleece a great deal of valuable information may be secured how to keep sheep at all times and how to feed and manage them so as to secure the best fleeces. We knew many years ago a wealthy woolen manufacturer who was also a keeper of fine wooled sheep. He told us that it was his experience in working up wool from animals that he had himself kept that convinced him that to make the best woolen clothing the beginning must be made in feeding and caring for the flock, so as to produce suitable wool for the purpose.

Mistaken Hog Breeding.

W. A. Hart of Portland, Ind., writes in the Indiana Farmer a strong protest against the practice of breeding sows too young, including both boars and sows. He does not like to breed a sow at 6 to 8 months old, at which time it should weigh 200 to 250 pounds. If it weighs as much as this at these ages, it is too fat for breeding, and it is not often that a sow only 6 months old can be brought in heat. He advises waiting until the sow is 14 months old, and he says by this time it will weigh 500 pounds and be well developed for breeding. But either boar or sow that is fed to make such a weight as this cannot be kept in condition for breeding. He says himself that 200 pounds of the sow will be surplus fat, which will be worked off the sow on the young pigs in her first litter. We should much rather expect that it would kill the sow and her litter when the time for farrowing comes. The chief trouble with breeding sows is to keep them from becoming too fat while bearing their young. After the litter is dropped and danger from fever has passed the sow should be fed liberally of milk forming rather than fat making food. All that she eats will then go to the benefit of her young.

True Farming Spirit.

The true spirit of farming, says Professor Shaw, lies rather in growing products on the farm and in turning them to the best possible account than in trafficking in produce. Unfortunately this spirit is all too prevalent in the west. It is rooted in the desire to jump into wealth rather than to grow into it. The man who grows nearly all corn, who buys cattle, sheep or swine, who literally shovels his corn into them, leaving the greater portion of his cornstalks in the field, may get rich by so doing if a shrewd dealer, but he is not the man who does the most to enrich his country. The farmer who goes out into a neighborhood and buys a lot of lambs from different neighbors to feed may make good money, but he does so at the expense of the dozen men who sold to him. If every farmer made his own stock and finished it in good form, the country would be vastly richer than it is today, and so also would the average farmer be.

TABLE ETIQUETTE.

How to Decorate, Place Dishes and Serve a Ceremonious Dinner.

The correct thing at a dinner party is to have the waiter enter the drawing room and announce in a low tone that "dinner is served," to light the dining room with white candles or lamps. Have the light come from above the table or from side brackets or branches on the wall and have colored shades for the candles on table. Have the tablecloth of plain white of very fine quality and ironed with perfect smoothness. Arrange the decorations of the table high enough for the guests to be able to see over and use flowers of delicate and agreeable perfume or have a handsome dish of fruit alone for a centerpiece.

Place carafes of cut or engraved glass at each corner of the table and for a large dinner in the center also.

Remember that plain dishes well prepared are better liked by every one than elaborate dishes made without the requisite skill and to give things that are good of their kind and that go together harmoniously.

To have the service and attendance good remember to have thoroughly trained waiters, to have a waiter to every two guests, to place a card with the name of the guest upon it beside each plate at a ceremonious dinner, to use menu cards for public dinners, to place one to every two persons, to have a cover for each person accompanied by two large knives, a small silver knife and fork for fish, three large forks, a tablespoon for soup, a small oyster fork for eating raw oysters, a goblet for water and where wine is used to have glasses for claret, hock, champagne, sherry, etc., placed around the water goblet; to place the knives and oyster fork on the right and the other forks on the left of the plate.

Place a napkin, folded in some simple form, on the left side of each plate, place the glasses on the right of each plate, place extra and very delicate wineglasses, one for sherry or madeira and the others for claret or burgundy, on table with the dessert. Put the more ordinary wines on table first and the choicest brands with the dessert; put an individual saltcellar beside each plate. Begin the dinner with raw oysters or in summer small raw clams on the half shell, served on the regulation oyster plates, with a piece of lemon in the center. Serve one or two soups simultaneously after the oysters, a white and a clear soup. Serve fish after soup and then entrees, which are served in the first course after the fish. Then serve the roast after the entrees, then the roman punch (which is an entremet, or dish coming after the roast in the second course), then the game and salad.

Serve salad either with the game or as a separate course, accompanied by cheese and bread and butter. Have the bread cut very thin. Serve some vegetables, as asparagus, sweet corn or macaroni, as courses by themselves. Serve the ices and sweet dishes after the salad and cheese, then the fruit, then the bonbons. Serve after dinner coffee, which should be strong and black, but not muddy, in diminutive cups, with tiny gold or silver coffee spoons.—Boston Globe.

How to Make Apple Meringue.

Pare, core and slice the apples; line a pudding dish, bottom and sides with lady fingers; fill in the space with sliced apples; separate three eggs; add to the yolks half a cupful of sugar; then add one pint of milk; pour this over the apples and bake in a moderate oven from 30 to 35 minutes. Make a meringue from the whites of the eggs; heap it on top of the pudding; dust thickly with sugar; return to the oven a moment to brown and serve cold.

How to Make Cream of Salmon Soup.

Remove the bones and skin from a half pound can of salmon; chop it quite fine; put three cupfuls of milk in a double boiler; add to it a sprig of parsley, one-half of a small onion; cook these together for ten minutes. Heat one tablespoonful of butter; add to it one tablespoonful of flour; stir these until they are smooth; add gradually the milk that is in the double boiler; stirring constantly, pour back into the double boiler; add one teaspoonful of salt, a little pepper and the chopped salmon. Cook this for five minutes. When ready to serve, strain it through a very fine strainer.

How to Make Wilton Cream.

To one pint of thick cream add one-third of a cupful of sugar and the grated rind of one lemon. Put it in the double boiler; let cook until scalding hot; mix two level teaspoonfuls of rice flour in a little cold milk; add it to the scalding cream, stirring for two minutes. Cut sponge cake or arrange lady fingers on a glass dish. When the cream is cool, strain it over the cake.

How to Make Hot Pot.

Cut two pounds of cooked mutton into small pieces, pare and cut four medium sized potatoes into dice, mince two medium sized onions, put a layer of mutton in a baking dish, then a layer of potatoes, a sprinkling of salt, pepper, the minced onion and chopped parsley. Continue these alternate layers until the dish is full, peel and cut in thin slices two potatoes, add to the dish one quart of stock or water and lay the potato slices over the top. Bake in a moderate oven for two hours, or until the potatoes are tender. Serve in the same dish.

How to Scallop Apples.

Pare and slice five sour, spicy apples, butter a pudding dish, put in a layer of apples, sprinkle with a tablespoonful of sugar and a teaspoonful of flour and bits of butter. Fill the dish in this manner, making three layers. Cover and bake one hour. To be eaten hot as a vegetable.

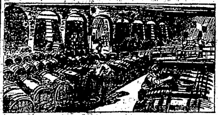
Speer's Port Grape Wine
Nine Years Old,
Burgundy Eight Years Old, and
Claret 16 Years Old.
Extensive Wine Cellars.



Storing, Ageing and Racking Wine.

A wine made one year and sold the next is not a proper wine for invalids; to get rid of its coarse and injurious elements requires years for it to lay in wood casks, and by frequent drawing off from its gross sediment, or the coarse parts it becomes rich and mellow and valuable for invalids. It is sudorific, diuretic and blood making from the iron in the soil of the Speer vineyards in Northern N. J.

The principal varieties are the Port, Burgundy, Sherry and Claret and the Climax brandy. All these wines when stored for years and drawn off from time to time in fresh fumigated casks become vastly superior products and necessarily are more expensive. This is why Speer's wines and Brandy are more costly and so far superior to the California wines. They are absolutely pure; unexcelled by any in the world. Speer's wines are ordered by wealthy and refined families in Europe where they are prescribed by physicians and are esteemed for their superiority, velvety roundness, full body and refined flavor. The efficacy of these wines is wonderful. It has been a study and a pride during Mr. Speer's life to produce a wine of the highest grade of perfection—not so much to make money as to excell in getting a wine of the richest character. He has spared no labor nor expense in bringing his vineyards and wines up to the above high standard of excellence. The Climax ★★★ Brandy twenty years old is equal to the finest French brands.

To be had of Druggists and Grocers who sell high class wines.

The Affairs of Europe

are faithfully portrayed in the original and exclusive cable dispatches which THE CHICAGO RECORD prints daily from the leading capitals of the old world. This magnificent special service is in process of being greatly extended so as to include every important city in Europe; and it is supplemented by the full regular cable service of The Associated Press.

The Chicago Record, alone of all American newspapers outside New York city, now prints original and exclusive cable dispatches daily from the leading capitals of Europe.

VALUABLE BUILDINGS

Have Been Erected by Y. M. C. A.'s During the Past Year.

In these days of sharp competition when everything has to prove its right to existence and values are fixed on a cold business basis, it may be of interest to some to know what has been taking place in the building line during the last 12 months, and the outlook for the coming 12 in the Young Men's Christian association of this country. The amount and value of property by no means tell the success of the organization; they merely show the strength and permanency.

Most all of our readers are familiar with the successful canvass for $50,000 at Grand Rapids, Mich., shortly after the international convention in that city in May last, largely the work of Secretary Van Vranken, and which left their $110,000 building free from debt. Other cities raising equal or larger amounts were Cincinnati, O., and Cambridge, Mass., whose building in 1897 cost $156,000. Those which cleared their property of debt under $50,000 were Rockford, Ill., Wilmington, Del., Butler, Pa., Montreal, Que., Keene, N. H., Seattle, Wash., Sharpsburg, Pa., Janesville, Wis., Tonawanda, N. Y., Yonkers, N. Y., Baraboo, Wis.

Among the cities which secured new buildings in 1899 may be mentioned Washington, D. C., where the property of the Columbia Athletic club, valued at $125,000, was purchased for $75,000. Subsequent improvements foot up a total cost of $107,000.

Memphis, Tenn., also purchased a club house for $22,500. Other cities coming into possession of club houses were Manchester, N. H., Dallas, Tex., West Side Department, Chicago, Hyde Park Department, Chicago.

Buildings were erected at Keokuk, Ia., Leavenworth, Kan., Newark, O., Salem, Mass., Bristol, R. I., Montclair, N. J., Passaic, N. J., Sacremento, Cal., Mobile, Ala., Kingston, N. Y., Waterloo, Ia., Evanston, Ill., Taunton, Mass., Warwick, N. Y., Oregon City, Ore.

Surprising as this record is, the present year bids fair to equal if not exceed it. Scranton, Pa., will build at a cost of $250,000, including lot; Brockton, Mass., $110,000; Springfield, O., $60,000; Jamestown, N. Y., $45,000; New Haven, Conn., $200,000; Macon, Ga., $12,000; Dayton, O., $250,000; Pittston, Pa., Springfield, Mo., Lancaster, Pa., Shamokin, Pa., Westfield, Mass., Kenosha, Wis., Chelsea, Mass., Colorado Springs, Col., Ansonia, Conn.

Such buildings as these as homes for the young men of the nation is an indication of the need and that the need is being met by the business community.

A SUNDAY SCHOOL CENSUS

"The Philadelphia Sabbath School association proposes an interesting undertaking, namely, a complete census of Philadelphia's million and a quarter inhabitants, the entire census to be accomplished in a single day. The object of this census is to list all those in that city who attend church or Sunday school services. An advisory committee consists of one clergyman or some other official from each religious denomination. The Sabbath School association has divided Philadelphia into 18 districts and 137 sub districts. For each of these sub districts there will be a chairman, to each of whom a section will be given. These section workers will write the names and residences on cards, with such description as may be needed, and deliver the cards to the sub district chairman, who will make totals of the results, and in turn deliver the information to the district chairman. It is proposed to take the census on the 22nd of February. The pioneer of the endeavor is Mr. Hugh Cork, who has had charge of a similar census in Pittsburg. Mr. Cork says that out of the entire population of Pittsburg only 600 people refused to give the information asked. As results of that census many churches have been able, first, to bring back those who had lapsed from attendance, and, secondly, to gain others who had no particular church allegiance. The Pittsburg census revealed the fact that 25,000 persons had relinquished church attendance."

Thomas Edison used to have Nikola Tesla working for him in his studio near Paris. Tesla came to him one day asking for work, and Edison, who needed help, referred him to the foreman, named Fulton. The latter took the young foreigner on condition that he would work. This Tesla did. For three days and nights he never closed his eyes. At the end of the first fortnight he had not had 48 hours' sleep altogether, and Fulton, the foreman, made him take a rest. He also said to the young man that on account of the strain both had been under they would better have a good meal. Accordingly, the foreman and the student went to a well-known cafe in one of the boulevards and got one of the biggest and thickest steaks possible. It was enormous, and seemed to be overwhelming for two. Besides, the garnishings were liberal and there was enough good wine. Between them, however, they managed to make everything disappear, and then Fulton, turning to Tesla, asked him if there was anything else he would like. "You're out with me, you know, and whatever you want, just order it." Tesla looked vaguely around a minute, as if making up his mind, and then, hesitating, said: "Mr. Fulton, if you don't mind, I would like another steak."

MOODY.

The late evangelist Moody was a firm believer in newspaper advertising. He used to say: I don't believe any man need preach to empty pews if he will only use a little common sense. Advertise. Put a notice in the papers. Stick out a sign. Put out a bill of fare. No church can succeed with only undertakers' signs on it. Don't be afraid. Shock somebody. No matter; we've got to be shocked. Somebody says it isn't dignified. My friends, let dignity go to the winds. That isn't one of the fruits of the Spirit. I notice these reporters don't stop for dignity. When they want anything out of me, they don't hesitate to follow me right into my bedroom. Use the same enterprise in running your meetings that the papers do in their business.—Buffalo (N. Y.) Commercial.

DID NOT KNOW HIS BRAND.

And the Result Was That the Maverick Got in the Wrong Corral.

It all happened in a church not over a mile from the city post office, says the Washington Star. There was a young people's reception afoot, and there was a programme upon which appeared the name of a tenor soloist who is given to scrambled hair, sombreros and neckties that are vociferous. It was getting well along in the evening and the soloist had failed to appear. It so happened that nobody there knew him, and the lady who had engaged him had also failed to appear. Presently one of the men active in greeting the guests noticed a large, picturesque-appearing man enter the church parlor, and after looking carefully around him slide into a seat, beside which he deposited a big sombrero. It then appeared that his hair quite answered the description, also his tie, which was a screaming scarlet. The young manager approached the stranger, sure of his prey, and, bending over him, said, in his most dulcet manner: "The audience has been expressing regret at your nonappearance. Will you now favor us with one of your songs?"

The stranger looked up at the young man with rather a startled air and then blurted out: "Song! Mister, you've rounded up the wrong critter. I don't know G flat from gewbiz. I'm off the reservation, you see, and was wondering what kind of a game was on in here, and came in sociable-like. I—I reckon, mister, these folks ain't got my brand," and he fled into the outer darkness.

RED TAPE IN WASHINGTON.

So Strictly Observed the Carpenter Could Not Clean the Glass Door.

A correspondent passing hurriedly into the room of the committee on rivers and harbors to see Representative Burton pulled the knob off the door, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"How can I get that fixed, do you think?" asked Burton. "Shall I get the carpenter or the locksmith?"

"The locksmith, I suppose."

"No, sir. Were I to send for the locksmith he would tell me to consult the architect of the capitol. He has no authority to fix doorknobs. Doorknobs are permanent fixtures and are solely within the jurisdiction of the architect of the capitol."

"Do you see that bookcase there?" said Secretary Ellis. "I caused the carpenter to paste some cloth on the inside of the glass doors in order that the books might not show. He did the work, but when he had finished I noted that he had not cleaned the glass before he put the cloth on. The thing looked so disreputable that I asked him why he had not cleaned the glass.

"He told me that the glass was a permanent fixture and that he had no authority to touch it, but that the placing of the cloth upon it was a temporary matter and was entirely within the province of his labors. The whole thing's got to be done all over again."

OFFICIAL BATHTUBS.

From This Account We Learn How the Legislators Indulge in Their Ablutions.

Away down in the basement of the capitol, in the midst of the winding and mysterious passages of this subterranean section, are located the congressional bathrooms, where the statesmen cleanse their cuticles at the expense of Uncle Sam. There are about 15 tubs on the house side, and when congress is in session they are patronized at all hours of the day. The representatives who take their periodic tubbings in the capitol bathrooms are not bound by any particular hour or rule of bathing. They start in at any hour of the day (or night, if the house sits late), and are scrubbed and rubbed down by strong-armed attendants at government expense. The fact that the tubs are almost constantly occupied indicates the extent to which the privilege of a free bath is appreciated. In many of the hotels of the city patronized by congressmen a charge is made for the use of the bath, and the thrifty representative can get around this expense by making his ablutions at the capitol, says the Washington Star.

In both the senate and house wings of the capitol there are barber shops, where statesmen are shaved, and hair tonics, perfumes and soaps furnished by the government, so that if one has a mind to, the usual expenses of the barber shop can be avoided.

Color in Commerce.

The United States consul general in Frankfort says "that it is important to study the taste of people in the matter of color, as well as in regard to shape, in designing goods for a foreign market. Saxon makers of needles drove England out of Brazil by wrapping their goods in pink paper instead of black. Other Germans are catering to the fondness of Russians for red in their dress. France recently learned how distasteful green is to a Chinaman, but it cost a good deal of money to make the discovery."

Tobacco a Necessity.

One of the few things of which the Boers have an inadequate supply is tobacco. While spending millions for guns and ammunition, they neglected to provide themselves with an abundance of the soothing weed. Soldiers positively cannot get along without it. They can easier in many instances dispense with food. An editor in Pretoria, the capital of the Transvaal, appreciates the situation. He has made an appeal to the citizens who remain at home to deny themselves tobacco in order that the supply of the men at the front may not be restricted.

GETTING AN ANTIQUE CHEAP.

How a Collector Secured an Old Mahogany Table at Very Small Cost.

When a man becomes a crank on the subject of antiques he will go to any extreme to gain possession of a coveted treasure, says the Philadelphia Record. There is a physician up the northeast way who has the craze, and has it bad. He made a professional call on an old Irish woman the other day, and, as her ailment was not of sufficient severity to keep her from her household duties, he found her in the kitchen washing dishes. His eyes glistened as he saw the table upon which this homely operation was being performed. It was an old decrepit affair on three legs, but it was solid mahogany, with quaint carvings.

"That's a queer sort of a table to be washing dishes on," ventured the doctor.

"Sure, it is that," replied its owner, "an' I wouldn't be bothered wid it at all, at all, if I could afford a new one."

The doctor was all solicitude in a moment. "Why, that's too bad," he said. And then, as though seized with a sudden philanthropic inspiration, he added: "If you will allow me I'll buy you a new table, and I'll take the old one off your hands." Of course, the old woman was only too delighted. The doctor invested two dollars in a common kitchen table, in exchange for which he received the old mahogany one, which had been in the old woman's family for nearly a century.

AT THE PARIS EXPOSITION.

This Account Says the American Pavilion Is a Beautiful and Attractive Structure.

Our cocher has been ordered to turn into the Avenue de la Tour Marbourg, and suddenly I find that we have come out upon the Quai d'Orsay, and are at the entrance of the Pont des Invalides, says the New Lippincott. Here cabby is ordered to halt, and looks on in surprise as we descend into the ankle-deep dust and proceed by means of our open sesame, to the place where four American flags at the corners of a large square indicate the inclosure chosen by our commissioner general for the American pavilion.

Here, on the rive gauche, in company with others of the Pavilions des Etrangeres, will stand the American pavilion, a beautiful and attractive structure, whose broad steps lead down to the water. Here Americans may land, and at once receive that welcome and attention which the visitor soon discovers is second nature to the commissioner general and his staff, and here, more than anywhere else in Paris, will he find himself thoroughly at home.

It is to our commissioner general and his untiring industry that we are indebted for the great amount of space which is to contain the great American exhibit, and even my gloomy guide is tempted to break into a triumphant smile at this new proof of American skill and energy.

WAS DOING SO AND SO.

Quick Retort of a Level-Headed Youngster to a Rather Pertinent Question.

Frank is a boy of less than five years, sturdy, round-headed and thick in the calves. He is always restless and ever hungry. For one so young he commands an amount of language, correctly pronounced, that is remarkable. He is a busy boy, with many queer schemes running through his head. But he shines when playing a knife and fork, for here is he truly great, says the Chicago Chronicle.

It was at a family reunion that he was asked and replied to a question of a personal nature. His retort silenced his inquisitive and would-be jocular uncle, while the remainder of the family—Frank excepted—roared with laughter. The party was too big to have all seated at the extension table, so the children—four in number—were placed at a smaller table, where they were able to do as much damage as could have happened had they been with their elders.

Frank was served badly, for he has a fine appetite, and is not bothered with bashfulness. He bore down on a drumstick with vigor and filled his fat face with the meat. He was earnest in endeavor and suspended all conversation. One of his uncles glanced at the boy as he munched, and said:

"What are you doing, Frank?"

The boy was employed on a large mouthful at the time, and, like a skillful general, he attended to the matter in mouth first. He carefully masticated the cud, swallowed with an air of satisfaction and then turning his head over his left shoulder replied as follows:

"Oh, I'm doing so and so."

He immediately resumed operations on the drumstick.

Papa Liked Rag Time.

The Boston Transcript tells a story of a man who had a class of boys in natural history. One of the subjects which he took up was butterflies and moths, and he told the children a good deal about the chrysalides and cocoons. After he had got the boys well instructed he showed one of the smallest of them one of the cocoons, and asked: "What butterfly is this the cocoon of?" Then the little boy looked up and said, slowly and respectfully: "My papa says that all cocoons look alike to him!"

The Holy City.

Jerusalem is now holding but a shadow of the magnificent city of ancient times. It is about three miles in circumference and is situated on a rocky mountain.

Asparagus is so plentiful on the Russian steppes that the cattle eat it like grass. The seeds are sometimes dried and used as a substitute for coffee.

PART OF WRECKED SHIP.

How a Firm of English Shipbuilders Are Utilizing Half of a Stranded Vessel.

Probably the most remarkable achievement in the line of wrecking and rebuilding to be found in maritime history is represented by the reconstructed steamer Milwaukee, which was turned out in the summer of 1890 at the yard of C. S. Swan & Hunter at Wallsend-on-Tyne, England, says the Engineering Magazine.

The Milwaukee, a vessel of 483 foot length and 56-foot beam, went ashore near Aberdeen in September, 1898, a huge rock penetrating the hold for a length of 80 feet and to a height of eight feet above the tank top. When the salvage operators saw that it would be impossible to save the entire vessel it was decided to blow her in two with dynamite. This was done successfully and 180 feet of the fore end was left on the rocks, while the after end was towed to a dry dock.

The saved portion of the vessel depended for flotation until placed in dry dock upon a transverse watertight bulkhead at the forward end of the boiler space. It was towed to the Tyne and moored in the river until a new bow was built, launched and made ready for connection with it. So well was this done that a person ignorant of the facts would never know that he was looking at the original bow, while even those persons who know the circumstances of the case were unable to point out the point where the junction of the new and old portions was made.

FROST SPOILED THE SPORT.

Sad Misfortune That Befell a Party of Georgia Chicken Fighters on a Stranded Steamboat.

Forty dejected and homesick gamblers returned to Knoxville the other day, says the Savannah News. On Christmas day, with 100 gamecocks, they left on a steamboat for an isolated resort down the river, where they expected to have a great cocking main and return to the city the next morning. The steamer carried no lifeboats. Before the destination was reached the steamer went on a sandbar and stuck fast "ten miles from nowhere." The weather was very cold and ice formed about the craft. The sports, determined to make the best they could of the situation, improvised a pit on the deck and held a few fights. As the hours went by and the night grew older and the ice in the river thicker, there came no hope of getting the boat off or of being rescued. Then someone became hungry, and it was ascertained that the sandwiches had given out. There was nothing to eat on board! For some hours longer the sports put on a brave front, but finally hunger got the best of them and they put their gamecocks—valued at five to one hundred dollars each—to slaughter. For two days and two nights they hung up on the sandbar, eating chicken that fairly tasted of money.

ARMY RULES ENDANGER LIFE.

Standing Up Under Fire Not the Only Absurd Regulation in the British Army.

The "unwritten law" in the British army which forbids officers from seeking shelter when under fire is not the most absurd regulation of the service. There are other "unwritten laws" which are just as Quixotic, and which lead to just as great mortality among the men who are most valuable to the service. One of them is illustrated by a little known circumstance with regard to the famous "charge of the light brigade" at Balaklava.

It is a rule, no less stringent because inofficial, in the British cavalry that when riding to attack only a certain rate of progress is permissible. The regular formation must be kept up, even though greater speed would minimize the chances of loss of life. When the Seventeenth and Thirteenth hussars were nearing the Russian artillery at Balaklava in face of a fire which caused men to fall every moment Capt. White, who was in the second line, spurred his horse with the idea of reaching the enemy as quickly as possible. This brought him to a level with Lord Cardigan, who was in the first line. Lord Cardigan, although he believed that certain destruction awaited the whole brigade, laid his sword across Capt. White's breast, peremptorily forbidding him to ride any faster than the others. White apologized and obeyed, checking his horse at once. Had the hussars been allowed to ride at full speed it is probable that the casualties among them in the course of the charge would have been decreased by 50 per cent.

Birds and Beasts at War.

You would hardly believe that moles, clumsy and almost blind, become perfect demons when they quarrel. No one knows what they quarrel about, but if they [illegible] one has to die. They will keep [illegible] presence of any number of spectators, hanging on to one another like bulldogs and burying their enormously strong jaws and teeth in one another's flesh. Hedgehogs, another type of the quiet, inoffensive-looking animal, not only fight, but always to the death, and when one is killed the other generally devours him. Hares, on the other hand, are proverbially the most timid of creatures, yet they can fight. A fight between two hares is a ludicrous sight, as they skip and jump over one another. But a blow from the hind legs of a hare is no joke to his opponent. Among birds robins are the most pugnacious. More than one case could be quoted of two robins so frantically set on killing one another as to have allowed themselves to be picked up in the hands of a looker-on and there have laid with beak and claws deeply buried in one another's plumage.

A QUEER CORK SAFE.

Dupes Were Unable to Find the Place Where They Were Bunkoed.

"Did you ever hear of a cork safe?" asked a drummer who represents the latest thing in chilled-steel and burglar-baffling time locks, according to the New Orleans Times-Democrat. "As far as I am aware," he continued, when everybody chorused a negative, "only one of them was ever built. It was made by an ingenious Dutch mechanic for a one-time famous confidence man named Dr. Baggs, who operated in Denver, Salt Lake and 'Frisco. The safe was a folding affair, made of paper on a backing of sheet cork and when it was opened up was six feet high, and looked exactly like the real thing. As it was always placed in a corner, it had only two sides, but every visible detail was complete—combination knob, hinges, lettering, bolt-heads and all. When folded it could be carried in an ordinary dress suit case. Baggs used the thing in a fake lottery office which was of itself a marvel of trick furnishing.

"When the victim entered the place it looked like an ordinary business establishment, with desks, railing, maps on the walls, safe in the corner, and several clerks at work on books. The instant he left a roll-top desk was opened up into a bed. The railing was folded together and slipped into a closet, a table was turned into a wash stand, a cabinet turned into a bureau, the safe was put away in its case, the curtains were pulled down and the room was to all appearances a simple sleeping apartment. By that means the poor dupe was never able to find the place where he had been bunkoed. I saw Baggs' old cork safe when I was last in San Francisco. It is now owned by a cigar dealer, who bought it as a curio, and while it is pretty badly battered, one can still see plainly that it was a wonderful piece of mechanical work."

THE JOLLY HARBOR SEALS.

One of Them Up on the Platform of Their Pool, Watching the The Red Fir.

"What's he watching the clock for?" a visitor at the aquarium asked of an attendant, referring to the smallest of the three harbor seals there, the one with the blackest coat. It was up on the platform at the end of the pool, with its eyes apparently fixed on the clock that is secured to the front of the railing round the gallery. The hour was about two minutes of four o'clock, says the New York Sun.

"He's waiting for the whistle to blow," was the reply, and it certainly did seem as though the little black seal was watching for something.

The seals all know well the sound of the four-o'clock whistle, for that means their feeding time has come. The whistle is the signal of the closing hour of the aquarium, and the seals are fed immediately.

As the people set their faces toward the door the seals dash and slash and prance about in their pool, and jump up half or three-quarters of their length out of the water and look over the railing, watching and waiting for the man with the food. As he walks along the pool toward the platform at the end the seals rush on the platform to meet him.

It may be that the little black fellow just happened to be up there at that hour, and that it was looking at the clock just by chance, and that it couldn't tell the time by it at all; but the seals all know sure enough the four-o'clock whistle.

A KNOTTY CASE.

In Which It Is Shown That Cows Are Valued More Than a Mere Human Body in Africa.

A Uganda woman had married three husbands at different times, and had had a son by one of them—the second, says a writer in Blackwood. The father unfortunately died, and the other two quarreled about the possession of the son, who meanwhile lived with his mother. As soon as he was old enough to take law into his own hands the boy elected to live with the first husband, and left his mother to do so; thereupon the third husband raided the first, carrying off ten head of cattle, and, as if to still further complicate the case, one of the cows calved on the road. It now fell to my lot to decide with whom the boy was to live, and what was to become of the cattle.

So much evidence was produced that I became utterly confused, especially when the mother crawled in on hands and knees to give evidence as to parentage, in which, by the way, she was flatly contradicted by her offspring. I finally decided that the boy was to live with the first husband, and that half of the cows were to be returned to him, the remaining half, with the calf, being kept by No. 3. At this decision No. 1 was delighted, but I could never make out why, as five cows, even without a calf, are usually valued far above a mere human body in Africa.

Bursts Into More Pieces.

The ordinary shell which was manufactured 30 years ago only broke into from 20 to 25 pieces when it burst. At the present time it bursts into 240, while a shrapnel shell, which only used to scatter 37 missiles, now scatters 340. A present-day bomb, when charged with peroxylene, breaks up into 1,200 pieces, and it is estimated that it would effectively kill anyone standing within 220 yards of the explosion.

Jackies Fond of Ball.

Whenever enough men from an American man-of-war can get shore leave, no matter in what foreign port they may be lying, they are almost certain to start a ball game. In the English navy cricket is even played on board ship.

KING POTT OF AFRICA.

A Boer Leader Who Occupies an Exalted Position in the Transvaal.

The town of Lourenco Marques for some time past has been chosen as the head center of the Transvaal secret service. The spies and informers of that notorious gang, says the Cape Times, come and go with all the liberty, swagger and self-assurance, as if they were in the suburbs of Pretoria. Delagoa bay is a so-called neutral port, with a daily train and postal service direct to Pretoria and Johannesburg. There is also a telegraph service, which apparently is at the command of Mr. Pott, the Transvaal consul general and consul for the Netherlands and Free State. It has been said that the Transvaal consul general has a secret service wire directly connecting Lourenco Marques with Komati Poort, and it is well known in Delagoa Bay that Mr. Pott is possessed of the most reliable information of Boer "successes" many hours earlier than any man in Africa. This is extremely detrimental to British interests in South Africa. Mr. Pott is the direct intermediary between Dr. Leyds at The Hague and the Boer-cum-Hollander regime in Pretoria. This worthy Hollander has a perfect knowledge of English, Portuguese, French and German. He is comptroller of Transvaal customs and railway, director of the Transvaal national bank and head of the Dutch East African company. By virtue of his long residence in Delagoa Bay, Mr. Pott is a persona grata in all Portuguese official circles. Some two years back the Portuguese newspaper, O Futuro, published in Lourenco Marques, dedicated a special article to Mr. Pott, in which he was eulogized as "King Pott of Africa."

SAVED TWO TRAINS.

The Heroic Deed of a Modest Watchman on the Canadian Pacific Railway.

It does not take heroics to make a hero; it only takes a man bent on doing his duty in the face of odds. Such a man is among the employes of the Canadian Pacific railway in British Columbia. He is a watchman, and he puts duty first and life second. The Michigan Christian Advocate tells the story of his devotion:

Not long ago a bridge on his section of road caught fire and tumbled into the raging mountain river. It was midnight, and the watchman was alone in the mountains. Coming toward that yawning gap was the limited express from the east, while from the west an excursion train containing 400 American journalists also drew near.

The excursion train was due first, and it was coming from the side opposite that on which the watchman stood.

The man did not hesitate. He plunged into the swollen stream, reached the other shore, ran to the flag station and signaled the excursion train. Then he disappeared in the darkness.

Back to the river he ran without a moment's pause, cast himself in and crossed again. Another rapid run to the flag station on that side, and the exhausted watchman, ready to sink with fatigue, stood by the Pacific flyer that had been brought to a stop at the flag station east of the bridge. He had saved two trains, and perhaps a thousand lives.

His own comment on the occurrence was that he had done his duty.

MOUTH IN QUEER PLACE.

The Voracious Shark Is Well Fitted by Nature for His Rapacious Mission.

No doubt the shark's mouth is placed so much beneath the projecting muzzle, under which also the nostrils lie, that it may serve its proper purpose in the best way. In all records of the habits of the fish, says the Cincinnati Enquirer, we are told that it can and does bite out large chunks of flesh from the dead bodies of whales and even from living victims of its attack; and it is easily seen that if its mouth was like that of other fishes the necessary average would be lacking. A further reason seems to be that the shark by this peculiar position of its mouth is compelled to turn upon its back to strike and is thus able to deliver its onset from below with more deadly effect. This formidable strength of jaw is backed up by a most terrible array of teeth, of which in some species there are as many as six rows all round. Each tooth is saw-edged and pointed, and some of the largest are as much as two inches in breadth at their base. These lie flat against the jaws and can be raised by separate muscles at will, so that, as the shark darts upon its prey, they spring on end, as a cat's claws are stuck out from its paws. This arrangement will not allow anything once bolted to return, so that a shark's mouth is a veritable death trap.

Crime Upon Crime.

In sentencing a prisoner to be hanged for the murder of a soldier Lord Eskgrove dilated upon the crime as follows: "And not only did you murder him, whereby he was bereaved of his life, but you did thrust, or push, or pierce, or project, or propel the lethal weapon through the bellyband of his regimental breeches, which were his majesty's!"

Tomb of the Czars.

It is not generally known that the remains of all the czars of Russia since Peter the Great lie in a memorial chapel built on one of the islands of the Neva. All the cenotaphs are exactly alike, each being a block of white marble, without any decoration whatever.

SHOT TWO.

"Rus" Whipple Once Killed a Man

Down

IN WISCONSIN.

He Was Not Convicted, However.

Bennie Moon, the lumberjack, shot in cold blood in the [illegible] theatre in Bemidji, by Russel J. Whipple, a few weeks ago, is not Whipple's first man. He has two notches on his ever ready revolver. Back in the summer of 1894, Whipple, whose home is in Eau Claire, shot and killed Abijah Moon, aged 25 years. The story of the shooting is briefly told by the Eau Claire Daily Leader of Feb. 10 as follows:

During the month of August, many petty burglaries were committed in Eau Claire which put the authorities on their mettle. A man named Taylor was arrested, and the evidence against him was strong. His arrest implicated Abijah Moon, a man who had served two terms in state prison at Waupun, and whose father before him had "done time." Moon, notwithstanding that the local police were hot after him, also the sheriff's office, evaded arrest and got out of town. A day or so later, Russel, or as he is better known, "Russ" Whipple, who was in Elva, Dunn county, sent word to A. M. Riley, then sheriff of Eau Claire county, that he knew the whereabouts of Moon. Deputy Sheriff La Page was sent to Elva, where he met Whipple. Together they drove to a farm owned by one Michael Laferty, where Whipple informed the officer Moon was in hiding; inquiry at the farm elicted the information that Moon had left. The men were shown the direction the fugitive had taken, and started in pursuit. Moon was was detected near an old bridge and the pursuers gave chase. The fellow carried a bag, which afterward proved to contain silverware. The officer and Whipple came up with Moon on the bridge, and the latter struck at La Page with the bag. Whipple whereupon whipped out his revolver and fired, the ball taking effect in Moon's back. Later a wound was found in his leg, and it is supposed that Whipple fired twice at the man. The wounded man died on the way back to Eau Claire.

The point where the shooting occurred was on the county line and the Dunn county authorities wanted Whipple tried for murder. The feeling in Elva was strong against him at the time. Both he and La Page claimed that this happened on the Eau Claire side of the line. The matter, beyond a coroner's inquest, was never pushed against Whipple, although it was generally believed that his action was unjustifiable.

Whipple is a man of very large physique; he has the reputation of being dangerous, and has had many encounters. Mrs. Mary Whipple (nee Miss Ross), the wife of "Russ," lives in Eau Claire, at 210 Dodge street. She is regarded as a worthy and estimable woman. She is a machine operator in the linen mill and her daughter follows the same occupation. Mrs. Whipple has two other children, boys.

IS STILL AT IT.

Dr. Moeller Is Again In Trouble in N. D.

The following, taken from the Traill County Times, a paper published at Hillsboro, N. D., indicates that our former frivolous townsman, Dr. Thor. Moeller, is still in trouble:

"Dr. Thor. Moeller gave the members of Co. L a hot roast in the Banner last week. The following morning an expressionless [illegible] was found hanging to a telegraph pole, labeled Dr. Thor. Moeller. The young sons of Mars should learn to control their passion for ways that are dark and tricks that are vain."

Resolutions.

At a meeting of the M. W. A. the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, God, in His infinite wisdom and unerring judgment, has seen fit to remove from our midst, upon this earth our beloved neighbor and esteemed fellow townsman, John M. [illegible], We, the members of [illegible] Camp No. 8401, Modern Woodmen of America, do, by these resolutions, extend to the sorrowing widow and relatives our heartfelt sympathy in this, the hour of their grief.

Sherburne's Plan.

Sherburne county has adopted a new way of caring for the poor this year, and the outcome will be watched with interest by the people of this county. The township system has been adopted, or, in other words, each town will care for its own paupers in 1900. Each township can expend up to $800, but after that has been spent, additional aid to the amount of $200 may be had by applying to the county commissioners.

When a man is obliged to apply to his neighbors direct for aid, he is not apt to do so unless he really is in need, and, when he does, those to whom he applies know considerably more about his case than those who live at a distance. The result of the new arrangements in our sister county will probably be that there will be less money expended for relief of the poor, and those who get aid will be fully entitled to it.—Princeton Union.

ROCKSBURY.

[illegible] trapped a wolf some time ago.

Knut F[illegible] lost his best horse last week. It has been a hard winter for horses, several farmers having lost one or two.

Last Friday Mikkel L. Kjos trapped his third wolf this winter. The last one had only three legs, showing that it has evidently been in a trap before.

Every one in this community is dead against the Red Lake Falls schemers' bond proposition, and think that Saturday's election will be one of the best ones attended in the history of the township.

Diphtheria is infesting the home of Chris Ellingson. Their little 2½ years old boy, Bennie, died of that dreaded disease last Saturday and was buried Sunday. The house is quarantined. The deceased's family have the sympathy of the entire community.

What Thief River Falls Will Do.

To the County Commissioners and Tax Payers of Red Lake County:

We, the undersigned, citizens and residents of Thief River Falls, do hereby pledge ourselves to the county of Red Lake that in case the county seat of Red Lake county shall at any time during the next three years be located at Thief River Falls, we will furnish to Red Lake county, free of charge, a suitable site for a court house and other county buildings, and will build thereon and donate to the county a court house and jail, to cost not less than $10,000.00.

THE COURT

Is Now In Session at Red Lake Falls.

NO GRAND JURY.

Number of Cases of Local Interest Decided.

The February term of the district court for Red Lake county is still in session at Red Lake Falls. A list of the cases disposed of will be found below.

The first case called was the case of Christe Dupont vs. N. P. Railway company. Dupont, the plaintiff, owns a farm near the company's track in the town of Lake Pleasant and claimed damage for the diversion of surface water by the company in constructing and maintaining certain culvert under their track. Mr. Dupont failed to establish his claim and the court dismissed the case before the defense was heard.

The personal injury suit of P. O. Hagglund against the St. Hilaire Mill company closely followed the N. P. case. The defense was conducted by Martin Barrows representing the Fidelity insurance company, who insured the company against accidents of this kind. The evidence brought out showed that young Hagglund was employed on the gang way at the St. Hilaire mill, that, as he claimed, owing to the shortage of men, he was unable to handle all the lumber brought down the conveyor bearing the particular marks that had been assigned to him, consequently he was ordered by the foreman to dump it off into the gang way until such time when he would have time to place it upon the loads. Considerable lumber accumulated in the passage in this way and in working around the pile the boards fell over, catching and crushing young Hagglund's foot, crippling him for life. Both sides of the case were ably conducted and, after being out three hours, the jury returned a verdict of $1,800 for the plaintiff. An appeal will probably be taken by the defendant.

The court then took up the case of Emil Just against the town of River Falls. This was an action brought by Mr. Just, who owns the southwest quarter of section 33 in that town. From the evidence it appears that last summer certain proceeding was had by the town board, which, in their opinion, laid out a road along the west line of the plaintiff's land, he claiming the road to be illegal. Acting upon the town's version of the case, some of the officers with other persons entered upon and graded a road along plaintiff's farm. For this trespass he claimed damage. The court ruled that the road was not legally laid out and instructed the jury to find that a trespass was committed and that the plaintiff was entitled to damages therefore. The jury returned a verdict of $60 for the plaintiff, Emil Just.

The case of P. & J. Meehan vs. Mary and Phillip Zeh was continued over.

The cases entitled McCormick Harvester company against Philip Lacoursiere (action to recover on a note), J. W. Wheeler et. al. vs. F. H. Kratka et. al.; A. G. Gallasch vs. F. H. Kratka et. al.; L. Ellington vs. F. H. Kratka et. al.; A. G. Gallasch vs. Ada McDonald et. al., all involving the title to certain Thief River Falls real estate, were continued to be tried at chambers at Crookston in April.

The case of Martha Bourdon vs. Chas. Bourdon and Louis Sieff was struck off, as was the case of Frank Seymour vs. O. M. Evenson et. al.

The tax case against the St. P. M. & M. Ry. was continued by stipulation. There are several cases of this same kind in other counties in the northern part of the state which will be decided by a test case that is now pending in higher courts. Upon this decision will rest the outcome of the case in this county.

The $3,000 malicious prosecution suit of H. E. Mussey vs. John Schlossar, which grew out of the famous pumpkin case tried in this city last fall, resulted in a victory for Schlossar. The jury brought in a verdict to the effect that Mr. Mussey's reputation or character was not damaged on account of being arrested for stealing pumpkins and ordered him to pay the costs of the suit.

The case of John Goss against the Meehan Lumber company was taken up, and, as the plaintiff rested, the defendant moved for a dismissal, which was granted. This was an action for trespass and preversion of logs from and on a cer-

Polk County's Bill Against Red Lake County.

Next Saturday will be a rather chilly day for the taxpayers of Red Lake county. Besides voting on the proposition to bond the county for $10,000, an answer will have to be made in the case of Polk county vs. Red Lake county, the former county claiming that Red Lake still owes Polk some $13,000. The Crookston Times last Thursday had the following account of the matter:

"Red Lake county must come to the scratch and answer to a legal process in the matter of the settlement of the old scores she owes to Polk since the day she dissolved partnership and set up in business for herself. Opportunity has been open to do this in a business like way, during the past three years, but the authorities never have seen fit to come to the front and settle. Yesterday Sheriff Lawrence served upon the Red Lake authorities an order in mandamus proceedings requiring them to answer on Feb. 24th, and the case, having been taken into the courts, will be pushed to a conclusion."

Over 4,000 lots situated in Red Lake Falls will be sold for taxes this spring. And this is the place that a down river contemporary describes "a prosperous, progressive, up-building commercial center."

In this issue will be found the delinquent tax list of Polk and Red Lake counties for 1897 and prior years. These taxes are all due Polk county, as Red Lake county was set off from Polk since that date.

The meeting of the Minnesota Editorial association held last week in Minneapolis was largely attended and was a success in every way. C. S. Mitchell, of the Alexandria Post-News, was elected president of the association, and a better choice could not have been made.

The indications at present are that neither the Republicans or Populists will put a county ticket in the field this year. There will be two tickets in the field, however, one backed by the Norwegians living in the northern part of the county and the other by the Frenchmen living in the southern part of the county.

The Republican State Central committee has fixed the time for holding the state convention to elect delegates to the national convention for May 16, the county conventions for which will be held May 9. The convention to nominate state officers will be held June 28 and the county convention June 21. Red Lake county will be entitled to seven delegates to each convention.

If you vote "yes" on the bond proposition the tax rate in Red Lake county will go higher.

tain piece of pine land which plaintiff claimed they owned when defendant removed the logs therefrom, amounting in all to some 800,000 feet. The question at issue was as to the ownership to the land at the time of cutting the logs. The court held that trespass was the only action that could be maintained, as the land belonged to the government at the time of cutting the timber.

The case of Anna Kretzschmar against P. & J. Meehan resulted in a verdict of $200 for the plaintiff. This was an action for damage occasioned by the defendant's logs destroying the bridge over the plaintiff's dam at Thief River Fall.

The case of M. J. Hughes, as administrator of the estate of James O'Brien, vs. P & J. Meehan, resulted in a verdict of $1,600 for the plaintiff. Another case—same plaintiff and defendant—a suit for labor, will be tried in chambers at Crookston.

Arguments in the case of John Schlosser vs. H. E. Mussey for extortion were made and the judge took the matter under advisement.

Court adjourned yesterday.

APPROVED.

A Petition for a Ditch North and West of Here.

Karl M. Hansen returned yesterday from a meeting of the board of county commissioners held at Red Lake Falls. He reports that the petition for the ditch which is to drain lands west and north of Thief River Falls was approved and Ole J. Johnson, John B. Hebert and Gust Naplin were appointed as viewers. They will meet on the 7th of March to go over the country to be drained and estimate the benefits.

The board instructed the county auditor to advertise for bids for $9,000 worth of bonds for the St. Hilaire-Sanders ditch. The bonds will run for ten years, will be issued in denominations of $500 and will draw 5 per cent interest.

The financial statement was approved and ordered published.

Dr. Francis, of this city, was appointed county physician for the city of Thief River Falls and for the towns of North, Norden, Numedal, Bray, Sanders and Rocksbury. Dr. Tissier, of Terrebonne, was appointed physician for some of the townships in southern Red Lake county. No appointment was made for Red Lake Falls and vicinity.

The next meeting of the county commissioners will be on the 19th of March.

A GREAT NEWSPAPER.

It has always been claimed for The Chicago Tribune that it would, in all probability, pass with the highest average in any competitive examination among the newspapers of the United States for excellence in all departments of journalism.

"Under date of May 2, 1899, the Omaha World-Herald, editorially answering a letter from 'Inquirer' asking the names of the five best newspapers in this country, points out that a newspaper may excel in one way and be inferior in another. The World-Herald gives lists under five general headings of leading American newspapers distinguished especially for excellence, mentioning in all some twenty.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE HEADINGS:

"(1). Most and best news, foreign and domestic, presented attractively.
"(2). Best possible presentation of news briefly.
"(3). Typographical appearance.
"(4). Classification of news by departments.
"(5). Editorials.

"The Chicago Tribune is the only newspaper in the United States which the World-Herald considers worthy of mention under four different heads."—From the October Plain Talk.

Practically all high-class intelligent newspaper readers, comprising the best and middle classes in Chicago and vicinity, read The Chicago Tribune. A great majority of them read no other morning newspaper.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of one hundred seventeen and 02-100 dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Ole Hansen and Barbro Hansen, his wife, mortgagors, to Charles J. Knox, mortgagee, bearing date the 1st day of November, 1894, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, on the 24th day of December, 1894, at 10 o'clock A. M. in Book 70 of Mortgages, on page 52.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Charles J. Knox, mortgagee, to Jerome W. Wheeler, by written assignment dated the 26th day of May, 1896, and recorded in the office of said Register of Deeds of Red Lake county, formerly a part of Polk county, Minnesota, on the 27th day of November, 1899, at 11:15 o'clock A. M., in Book F of Mortgages, on page 463; and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:

Lots one (1), two (2), three (3) and four (4) of block twenty-seven (27), Knox's Addition to Red Lake Rapids, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Red Lake county, formerly a part of Polk county, and state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Red Lake county, formerly a part of Polk county, Minnesota, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Red Lake Falls, in said Red Lake county, formerly a part of Polk county, and state, on the 9th day of March, 1900, at three o'clock P. M., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars, attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 18, A. D. 1900.

DIGESTIBLE PASTRY.

How to Make Pies That Will Be Entirely Wholesome.

Good pastry is rarely indigestible, and pies when properly made are entirely wholesome. Pie is perhaps the most ridiculed of all dishes, but it remains popular among the masses, and if the under crust is carefully prepared it is above criticism. Pastry for pies consists of one quart of flour, one cupful of butter, one cupful of cold water and one teaspoonful of salt. This quantity gives enough for three or four pies. Sift the salt and flour together, reserving a little flour for the board. With a knife cut the butter into the flour. Add the water a little at a time and mix it in lightly with the knife; turn it on to the board and roll it twice—that is, after it is rolled out once fold it together and roll it again. If the paste is wanted richer for the top crust, put bits of butter over the paste when rolled; fold and roll it again several times. Fold the paste and put it in the icebox for one hour before using. Keep it covered.

In making pastry everything should be cold, the handling light and the hands used as little as possible. Paste will keep several days in a cold place. To put the pie together roll the paste one-eighth inch thick and a little larger than the tin. Dust the pan with flour; place the paste on it, letting it shrink all it will. Lift it from the sides to fit it into place and press it as little as possible. Cut a narrow strip of paste and lay around the edge; moisten it so it will stick. Brush the top of the bottom crust with white of egg, so the filling will not soak in and make it heavy. Put in the filling and cover with another sheet of pastry. Moisten the top of the strip of pastry so the top crust will adhere to it; trim and press them lightly together. Cut several slits in the top crust to let the steam escape.

How to Make Corn Muffins.

Two cupfuls of cornmeal, two cupfuls of flour, two cupfuls of boiling water in which one tablespoonful of butter is dissolved, three cupfuls of milk, two beaten eggs and one scant teaspoonful of salt. Scald the cornmeal with the boiling water, add the milk, salt, cornmeal and flour, and when well mixed add the eggs, well beaten, adding lastly two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Bake 20 minutes in greased muffin rings, first heating them a moment in the oven.

I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Say, John, what are you doing to look so healthy?"

CARE OF GLASSWARE.

How to Keep It Clean and Shining Like Crystal.

There is nothing that proclaims good management more than a dainty, neatly laid table, and perhaps there is nothing that adds so much to its attractiveness according to the expense involved as pretty glassware. Fashion not only allows but favors odd pieces, so a table may be made very attractive with a number of these ornamental dishes if they be shiningly clean. Even the cheap ware will compare favorably with the finest cut glass if it is polished often.

Glass must be washed in tepid water before it is put into hot water to avoid a too sudden change from cold to heat. Cold contracts and heat expands, and a sudden change will be apt to cause a fracture. Fancy glassware becomes dim if it is not cleaned often, and a brush must be used for cleaning the fancy portions, as a cloth cannot reach the dust which accumulates in the crevices. It very often happens that cruets, toilet bottles and similar articles become coated on the inside with a brown sediment which is impossible to wash out. In such cases eggshells and a strong suds will prove very helpful. Shot is very often used for this purpose, but it is apt to scratch the glass and thus mar its beauty.

Wash the glasses which have held milk and the dishes which have been used for salads in cold water, then wash through a suds of pearline and tepid water and rinse in clear hot water. They should be wiped with a soft towel as soon as they are taken out of the water. If they are allowed to drain, the water will dry on them in cloudy streaks, and no soap or rough cloth should ever be used about glassware. If possible, one should have the regular glass linen towels for wiping and polishing dishes.

How to Escalop Haddock.

Make one-half pint of thick melted butter sauce; season it with salt and pepper and add a pinch of curry powder to it and then stir in a hard boiled egg which has been coarsely chopped. Remove the skin and bones from a cooked dried haddock (of medium size) and with two forks divide it into flakes. Butter a pie dish and put in alternate layers of the sauce and fish, scatter some browned crumbs over the top and bake in the oven for 15 minutes.

How to Iron a Linen Collar.

When the linen has been washed and starched in the usual way (elastic or cold water starch does away with the need of boiling water), place the collar on the ironing board, well stretched, and just before applying the hot iron rub first with a damp cloth rubbed over with soap, then with another upon which chalk has been sprinkled. This application and the ironing are to be done on the right side. Do not attempt to dry thoroughly while ironing, as this turns linen yellow, but finish by drying in the sun if there is no heat convenient. The use at the last of white castile soap and French chalk gives a coating to linen that helps much in the washing, as after a few minutes' soaking in tepid water the dirt slips off without having penetrated the whole. This hint will be found a very practical one, as it insures against the ingrained dust and grease which are so difficult to deal with in quick laundry work.

How to Renovate Woolens.

To renovate a colored woolen dress make a preparation of four ounces of honey, four ounces of soft soap, a wineglassful of gin and the white of an egg. Mix well and apply to the outside of the dress, scouring it in with a hard brush. Then rinse quickly in cold water, drain and iron when still damp. Firm, thick silks can also be cleaned in the same manner.

How to Bake Herrings.

Fillet some fresh herrings, sprinkle them with a few drops of lemon juice and brush them over with some melted dripping; then cover them thickly with fine browned bread crumbs which have been mixed with some chopped parsley and seasoned with salt, black pepper and a little nutmeg. Coat a white china baking dish lightly with dripping, place the fillets in it and let them cook in a well heated oven for from 20 to 30 minutes. The herrings should be served in the dish in which they are cooked.

How to Make Horse Radish Paste.

Mix thoroughly together one-half cupful each of grated horse radish and fresh butter, half teaspoonful each of salt and sugar and two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice. Spread upon circles of brown bread, placing them together in pairs.

How to Cook Rice Pie.

Put two ounces of well boiled rice into a basin, with one ounce of butter, two hard boiled eggs chopped into small pieces, a tablespoonful of potted ham, a dessertspoonful of minced parsley, salt, pepper and cayenne and mix all together with a quarter of a pint of melted butter sauce. Butter a pie dish, sprinkle with bread crumbs, fill with the mixture and cover the top thickly with bread crumbs, on which put a few flakes of butter, and bake until nicely browned in a hot oven.

How to Smother Beef.

Have lean beef chopped fine; place it into a shallow baking pan, putting here and there upon it bits of butter; sprinkle over it a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper, cover it with another pan and run it into a very quick oven. Serve at once on a heated dish.

How to Prepare Crackers.

Cut five or six slices of white bread into small squares. Fry these in brown butter until a nice brown. They should be stirred often, or they will burn. Throw them into the soup just before sending it to the table.

LARGE INVESTMENTS.

It Is Possible to Put Too Much Money Into a Poultry Plant.

> Mr. Editor—I would like to ask your opinion on a large question. If you had $25,000, would you invest it in poultry? Don't you think a man who has a good knack for business could manage a large poultry plant of about 10,000 laying pullets and market about 500 broilers a day, and don't you think the west—that is, Ohio and Indiana—the best place for a large poultry plant, as the ground would be level, and that would make the work of building the sheds much easier, and the cost would be a great deal less, and you could buy the feed for a great deal less? Couldn't the eggs be sold at home and the broilers shipped to the best eastern market cheaper than they could be raised in the east? And then I think there could be apple, peach and plum trees set out, and in a few years the income from the fruit would be nearly as much as from the poultry.
> I have kept a few hens myself and made about $1.50 profit on each hen over and above the cost of feed, but I was busy and did not give them as good care as I would like to have done.
> I know I could have done far better. I have spoken to a good many about going into the poultry business on a large scale, but they all say I am crazy and that there is no money in poultry. I think there is money in the poultry business for the right person, and I would like to ask your opinion about it.

The editor in reply says:

Those are plain questions, which merit plain answers.

Knowing what I do know of the poultry business, I would not invest $25,000 in it, not as an initial investment, unless I had a great deal more salted away where I could get it after "the deluge." Twenty-five thousand dollars economically invested would buy land, build and stock a plant of greater capacity than any poultry man who has yet "arisen" is able to manage successfully and profitably. There have been men who have succeeded in investing much larger amounts than that in plants which could not be duplicated for less, and there are, and probably always will be, men industriously engaged in showing (on paper) how profitable poultry keeping on a large scale will be when their theories are put into practice, but I question whether there is today in this country a single poultry plant representing an actual investment of $25,000 which can show—and prove—that it has made $1,000 over all expenses for each of three consecutive years. I will say further that the owners of most of the plants representing the biggest investment would find it extremely difficult to prove that they had not lost money on them right along. The reasons generally assigned for this are well known to every experienced, practical poultryman. It is not necessary to go into them here. Nothing would please me more than to have it proved that this view is wrong, but proof, not assertion, is demanded.

If "Constant Reader" has $5,000 or $10,000 to put into poultry and knows enough about the business to invest his money judiciously and economically, he can with it establish a plant which will give him all the work and all the "managing" he wants and with some prospect of his being able to handle it properly and make a living out of it. He might as well buy an elephant for a buggy horse as invest $25,000 in a poultry plant.

The fact that "Constant Reader" has realized a fair profit on a few hens not particularly well cared for goes for nothing in estimating his ability to manage, not 10,000, but 1,000 or even 200 hens. Success with a small flock is absolutely no criterion of success with a large number. Often the very things which make for good results with the small flock make against profit with the large one. Methods which work satisfactorily with a few hens are frequently found to be altogether too cumbersome and costly when hens are kept on a large scale for profit, and that is one reason why so many people who seem to be very successful while they merely dabble in poultry keeping make dismal failures when they go at it in earnest.

Another reason is found in the great difficulty in obtaining competent, reliable men to do the work on a large plant. A man who is credited with having made more money as a breeder or producer in poultry than any other man in America, one whose name is always mentioned first in the list of those who have been conspicuously successful, gives it as his opinion that this difficulty alone will always prevent the profitable operation of mammoth poultry plants.

On one point "Constant Reader" is right. "There is money in the poultry business for the right person." The "right person" will learn the business first, begin on a moderate scale and never allow his business to expand itself beyond his control.

Green Foods For Winter.

To use dried clover chop it finely, steam by covering with boiling water, and wrapping it tightly to retain the heat for several hours. Then after draining off the surplus wet we have a dainty winter appetizer that all poultry delight to honor, says M. S. Perkins. All the so called roots—turnips, potatoes, etc.—come into use in the regular morning mash, as they are boiled and mixed with grain. Every cultivator of these crops has "seconds" of little value that he can save to feed to his fowls, and parties who raise nothing of the kind themselves can purchase their supplies at a low figure every fall.

When They Molt.

L. S. Richards in American Agriculturist says: "I have been repeatedly asked, 'Won't pullets hatched so early that they lay before September lay one litter and then shed like an old hen?' That notion has been coddled by most farmers and some quite extensive poultry raisers for years. It's a false notion. In my experience of quite a number of years in raising early pullets I have not had over three or four out of a hundred that would molt less than a year and a half from the time of hatching, and I have had some early pullets lay in June."

Speer's Port Grape Wine

Nine Years Old.

Burgundy Eight Years Old, and Claret 16 Years Old.

Extensive Wine Cellars.

Storing, Ageing and Racking Wine.

A wine made one year and sold the next is not a proper wine for invalids; to get rid of its coarse and injurious elements requires years for it to lay in wood casks, and by frequent drawing off from its gross sediment, or the coarse parts, it becomes rich and mellow and valuable for invalids. It is sudorific, diuretic and blood making from the iron in the soil of the Speer vineyards in Northern N. J.

The principal varieties are the Port, Burgundy, Sherry and Claret and the Climax Brandy. All these wines when stored for years and drawn off from time to time in fresh fumigated casks become vastly superior products and necessarily are more expensive. This is why Speer's wines and Brandy are more costly and so far superior to the California wines. They are absolutely pure; unexcelled by any in the world. Speer's wines are ordered by wealthy and refined families in Europe where they are prescribed by physicians and are esteemed for their superiority, velvety roundness, full body and refined flavor. The efficacy of these wines is wonderful. It has been a study and a pride during Mr Speer's life to produce a wine of the highest grade of perfection—not so much to make money as to excell in getting a wine of the richest character. He has spared no labor nor expense in bringing his vineyards and wines up to the above high standard of excellence. The Climax ★★★ Brandy twenty years old is equal to the finest French brands.

To be had of Druggists and Grocers who sell high class wines.

DELINQUENT TAX LIST FOR POLK COUNTY

Showing Delinquents in 1897 and in Prior Years.

CLERK OF COURT'S NOTICE OF DELINQUENT ABSOLUTE TAX SALE.
(Chapter 322, General Laws of 1899.)
State of Minnesota, County of Polk—ss.
District Court 14th Judicial District.
THE STATE OF MINNESOTA

To all Persons, Companies or Corporations who have or claim an estate, right, title or interest in, claim to or lien upon any of the several pieces or parcels of land described in the list hereto attached.

There has been filed in the office of the Clerk of the District Court of the County of Polk, the list of taxes on real estate in the County of Polk and also the taxes upon real estate in Red Lake County, formerly a part of Polk County, State of Minnesota, which taxes appear to have become delinquent in the year 1897, or any prior year or years, as set forth in the following list, and which taxes have not been satisfied by payment, redemption or sale of the real estate to actual purchasers, and which said lands have been struck off to or forfeited to the State of Minnesota in proceedings to enforce payment of taxes and penalties upon the lands in said list described, remaining delinquent and unpaid on the first Monday in January of each of the following years, viz: 1881, 1882, 1883, 1884, 1885, 1886, 1887, 1888, 1889, 1890, 1891, 1892, 1893, 1894, and 1895, of which said list that hereto attached is a copy pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 322, General Laws of 1899.

THEREFORE, you, and each of you, are hereby required to file in the office of said clerk on or before the 20th day of March, 1900, your answer in writing, setting forth any objections or defense which you may have to the taxes, judgment, striking off or forfeiture, or any part thereof, upon or with reference to any piece or parcel of land described in said list, in to or on which you may have or claim any estate, right, title, interest, claim or lien; and in default thereof, judgment will be entered against such piece or parcel of land for the entire amount of taxes, and interest at the rate of ten per centper annum since said taxes became delinquent, as aforesaid, together with all the costs of these proceedings.

E. E. LOMMEN,
Clerk of the District Court.
(SEAL)

In the following list "a" represents acres; "e" east; "n" north; "s" south; "w" west; "ne" northeast; "nw" northwest; "se" southeast; "sw" southwest; "bl" or "blk" block; "r" or "R" range; "&" and; "tp" or "twp" township; "ft" feet; "st" street; "cor" corner; "frl" fractional; "pt" part; "$" dollars; "do" or " means a repetition of the word or words in the line above on which it occurs. The spaces between figures in columns of figures represents the decimal point between dollars and cents, and all figures that follow any dollar mark as above represented, are to be read in the same manner as though the dollar mark was there.

A LIST OF PIECES OR PARCELS OF LAND in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, which appear to have become delinquent in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-seven (1897) or any prior year or years and have not been satisfied by payment, redemption, or sale of the the real estate to actual purchasers. Said list includes all taxes not barred by statute of limitations upon any real estate which may have been at any tax sale struck off to, or declared to be forfeited to the State, whether such sale or forfeiture was valid or invalid, and said list also contains a description of each piece or parcel of land upon which such taxes shall not have been paid or satisfied as aforesaid, and opposite such description the name of the owner to whom assessed if known, if unknown the fact is so stated, and the amount of taxes, principal and interest due thereon, according to the provisions of an act entitled "An Act to enforce the payment of taxes which became delinquent in and prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-seven (1897)." approved April 20th 1899. Any person having an interest in any tract or parcel or real estate included in such forfeited list may redeem the same at any time before the sale thereof, as provided for in said act, by paying into the county treasury the original amount of taxes due thereon, with ten (10) per cent per annum interest on the amount during the time said taxes have been delinquent, together with all costs of proceedings herein described, which list of lands, owners' names and to whom assessed, with year or years delinquent, amounts of taxes, principal and interest due thereon, is as follows, to-wit:

State of Minnesota, County of Polk—ss. John Gleason, being first duly sworn, upon his oath says, that he is Auditor of said county and state aforesaid, and that the foregoing, consisting of 368 sheets number 1 to 858, and five sheets numbered 80½, 81½, 82½, 83½ and 849 1-2, both inclusive is a true and correct list of all pieces and parcels of land within said county of Polk, in the state aforesaid, that appeared to have become delinquent in the year 1897, or in prior year or years and has not been satisfied by payment, redemption or sale of the real estate to actual purchasers. Said list includes all taxes delinquent, principal and interest, upon any such piece and parcel of land or real estate, that has been at any tax sale struck off to, or declared to be forfeited to, the state, whether said sale or forfeiture was valid or invalid, and that opposite each description appears the name of the owner or to whom assessed, if known, if unknown it is so stated, and the total amount of taxes delinquent and interest due thereon, to the 7th day of May 1900, according to the provisions of chapter 322, General Laws of Minnesota, being an act entitled, "An Act to enforce the payment of taxes which become delinquent in and prior to the year 1897," approved April 20th, 1899, so far as the same appears to me of record in my said office.

JOHN GLEASON
County Auditor.

Nels A. Hoffard, Notary Public.
(Notarial Seal.)

An Invitation to Women

All the world knows of the wonderful cures which have been made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, yet some women do not realize that all that is claimed for it is absolutely true.

If all suffering women could be made to believe that Mrs. Pinkham can do all she says she can, their suffering would be at an end, for they would at once profit by her advice and be cured.

There is no more puzzling thing than that women will suffer great pain month after month when every woman knows of some woman whom Mrs. Pinkham has helped, as the letters from grateful women are constantly being published at their own request.

The same derangements which make painful or irregular periods with dull backaches and headaches, and dragging-down sensations, presently develop into those serious inflammations of the feminine organs which completely wreck health.

Mrs. Pinkham invites women to write freely and confidentially to her about their health and get the benefit of her great experience with the sufferings of women. No living person can advise you so well. No remedy in the world has the magnificent record of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for absolute cures of female ills. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass.

Three Letters from One Woman, Showing how She Sought Mrs. Pinkham's Aid, and was cured of Suppression of the Menses and Inflammation of the Ovaries.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I have been in bed a year. Doctors say I have female weakness. I have a bad discharge and much soreness across my ovaries, bearing-down pains and have not menstruated for a year. Doctors say the menses will never appear again. Hope to hear from you."—MRS. J. F. BROWN, Holton, Kans., April 1, 1898.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I received your letter. I have taken one bottle and a half of your Vegetable Compound, and used two packages of your Wash, and feel stronger and better. I can walk a few steps, but could not before taking your Compound. I still have the discharge and am sore across the ovaries, but not so bad. Every one thinks I look better since taking your Vegetable Compound."—MRS. J. F. BROWN, Holton, Kans., Aug. 13, 1898.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I think it is my duty to let you know the good that Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound has done me. After I took three bottles, menses appeared, and I began to feel stronger and all my pain was gone. Yours is the only medicine that ever helped me. I am able now to work around the house, something I did not expect to do again."—MRS. J. F. BROWN, Holton, Kans., Jan. 25, 1899.

Three More Letters from One Woman, Relating how She was Cured of Irregular Menstruation, Leucorrhœa and Backache.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I am suffering and need your aid. I have pains in both sides of the womb and a dragging sensation in the groin. Menstruation irregular and painful; have leucorrhœa, bearing-down pains, soreness and swelling of the abdomen, headache, backache; nervousness, and can neither eat nor sleep."—MRS. CARRIE PHILLIPS, Anna, Ill., July 19, 1897.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I want to thank you for what you have done for me. When I wrote to you I was a total wreck. Since taking your Vegetable Compound, Liver Pills and Sanative Wash, my nerves are stronger and more steady than ever before, and my backache and those terrible pains are gone. Before I took your medicine I weighed less than one hundred and thirty pounds. I now weigh one hundred and fifty-five pounds. Your medicine is a godsend to poor weak women. I would like to ask you why I cannot have a child. I have been married nearly three years."—MRS. CARRIE PHILLIPS, Anna, Ill., Dec. 1, 1897.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I did just as you advised me, and now I am the happy mother of a fine baby girl. I believe I never would have had her without your Vegetable Compound."—MRS. CARRIE PHILLIPS, Anna, Ill., Jan. 27, 1899.

Proof that Falling of the Womb is Overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—When I wrote to you some time ago, I had been suffering from falling of the womb for many years without obtaining relief. Was obliged to wear a bandage all the time; also had bad headache and backache, felt tired and worn out. After taking six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and four boxes of Liver Pills, I discarded my bandage and have not had to wear it since. I am entirely cured."—MRS. J. P. TROUTMAN, Box 44, Hamilton, Ohio.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—For nearly two years I was unable to work. I was very weak and could not stand on my feet but a few minutes at a time. The doctors said I had falling and inflammation of the womb. I began to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and after using five bottles I feel like a new woman."—MRS. P. N. BLAKE, Confluence, W. Va.

NURSE TOMKINS

Nurse Tomkins didn't profess to be "none of your 'ighly trained nurses"—she didn't 'old with "them newfangled notions"—she didn't see "where the thermometer and the 'ygienic measures came in. People didn't live no longer than before all this washing and rinsing was started."

Thus soliloquized Nurse Tomkins in my presence after I had engaged her services to attend my wife for a passing and slight indisposition. Mildred did not improve rapidly, not so quickly as her anxious husband would have liked, and at last—that was on the Sunday—with a deeply rooted sense of distrust toward her nurse, I decided on taking up my station in the invalid's room. I entered. The fire burned low, the window was open, and the cold, bleak wind of an early spring day blew in. "Your fire is low, Mildred," I said. "The room feels cold." Nurse Tomkins adjusted her cap, settled her apron and commenced a series of attacks on the fire. Bang, bang, bang, went the poker. I looked at the woman with a look which has caused a brave man to flinch. "These beastly lodging 'ouse grates—small and poky," said the nurse under her breath. The fire sent up a fitful blaze, more coals were shoveled on, a rattle of fire irons, and the nurse's work was done. Tomkins walked to the bed, collecting bottles in her progress. One was eau de cologne, another a salts bottle. "Smell these!" she exclaimed, presenting the apex of each bottle to the patient's nose. Mildred was taken by surprise, and the strong salts made her gasp. I commanded my language and sat still, considering the situation with a caminess which afterward astonished me. So long as I was by it was all right, I said to comfort myself, and I would always be by so long as Mildred was being "nursed."

I ensconced myself in an easy chair which was drawn up to the fireside. On the dressing table near by a little cloud of blue smoke ascended to the ceiling, a sickly eastern smell emanating from the burning paper. I leaned over and blew it out. I did not approve of my wife's room smelling of these scents. Nurse saw the action. She stopped shaking the pillows into a hard mass and looked at me questioningly. "Them papers purify the atmosphere of a sickroom," she said in explanation. "At my last case I burned them day and night. Captain Eames' wife—she was a real lady, and she liked fine smells." Mildred told me afterward Mrs. Eames' name had been a familiar one to her and that she appeared to have been a most remarkable woman. She evidently was a good patient in so far as endurance went. "Mrs. Eames and me," continued Nurse, resuming her "explanation" of the burning papers, "we 'ad the same views on your modern nursing and them 'igh and mighty young modern nurses who are 'aving their 'eads turned by all them newfangled notions and them funds and associations—and Mrs. Eames and me we often said as 'ow it was all fudge! Now, in 'er case," Nurse Tomkins went on, "them doctors ordered 'er to eat nothing all day long. Well, that wasn't the first case of typhoid I 'ad nursed—and I knew well the pretty young creature's strength couldn't 'old out against starvation for weeks—she, as was accustomed to ride in her carriage and 'ave the best victuals in the land—so I just judges for myself, and I takes 'er up a cut of meat on the sly—she that sad and beseeching-like for a bit of something to eat—and didn't she just perk up at it! And looked so pretty with all her laces and frills round her bonny face—'twasn't the first case of typhoid I 'ad by no means."

"And Mrs. Eames recovered?" I asked.

"The pretty creature, she died in my arms as gentle and mild as a lamb, and I never saw a prettier deathbed," responded Tomkins. "She was a real lady —the flowers in her room were something lovely—and 'er husband, he sobbed 'is eyes out, and no wonder—she that was worth a dozen of 'im—and when I left that 'ouse, after all my devoted duty, 'e never so much as give me a sixpence more than my pay."

Mildred's head tossed restlessly on the pillow. "Nurse," I said, and I held the door open as I spoke, "will you come and speak to me a minute down stairs?" I left the room. Tomkins followed me into the dining room.

"Tell me," I asked her, "what training have you had in nursing?"

"Twelve years," she answered, her head held high.

"Twelve years—at a hospital?"

"Lor' bless you, no sir; I never required no teaching. I was a born nurse, and I pick it up as I go."

"As you go?" I asked. "Your institution accepts untrained nurses, then?"

"That it doesn't, sir," she returned, with spirit. "I had five years' experience when I joined. I was a nurse ever since I was 8 years old. My poor father, he suffered"—

"But," I put in, interrupting what I guessed might develop into a lengthy anecdote, "you have had no training then —no training as a nurse?"

"Nature taught me," said Tomkins. "Nature and observation. If I saw anything made a patient worse, I altered my treatment next time. I've 'ad great experience with the sick, as I am seldom called in unless it's an incurable case."

I had been pacing the narrow limits of the room while Tomkins spoke, and when she ceased I was conscious of a tremor in my speech. I didn't say much, as little as I could, but I paid Tomkins for her "services," and I satisfactorily conveyed to her mind that I could dispense with them in the future. For the sake of peace I gave the woman a few shillings beyond what she expected, but her absence, I considered, would be cheaply bought at thrice that sum, and I never felt more relieved than when I heard the rumble of the cab down the quiet seaside road. Tomkins took the landlady into her confidence before her departure, and I heard her say in the loud voice she assumed in the sickroom, "'E'll kill that dear little wife of 'is just as likely as not. 'E's had no experience with the sick, and them young husbands ain't fit to 'ave the care of a young wife. Now, if I staid"—

But I wanted to hear no more, and when I stood next by Mildred's side I took her hand in mine as if I could never let it go, and a feeling of heroism seized me that Mildred was saved from the jaws of death and that I was her savior. —Westminster Budget.

Nearly one-third of the surface of Newfoundland is covered with fresh water, mostly in the form of lakes.

He Could Shoot Straight.

Said the man who had traveled: "Years ago in a western frontier town a traveler, footsore and weary, arrived one afternoon and made his way down the one street of the burg. He was suddenly startled by the sounds of shots, and, looking up, discovered four men shooting at one another. The men were standing at the four corners of an imaginary square, and each was shooting at the man catacorner to him. Being in what he supposed a safe position, he paused to watch the outcome of the fray, when a bullet, going wide of its intended mark, cut by his ear. That roused his wrath, and, drawing his pistol, he dropped the man in his tracks who had all but dropped him. Another bullet flying wide from its mark, but near to the stranger, caused him to lay out one of the other pair, and the two remaining men sought safety in flight. In that particular town duels had been previously comparatively harmless amusements, owing to the poor marksmanship of the contestants, but the man who could shoot had arrived, and the inhabitants, although they turned out to greet him in a body and grant him the freedom of the city, did so in manifest awe and trepidation.

"Whenever he told the story afterward, he used to wind it up impressively by saying, 'And, boys, in that town after that they went around me as if I had been a swamp.'"—New York Tribune.

Conquered the Professor.

The mighty Jowett of Oxford invited a student to walk with him. After they had been on the road for about 30 minutes the pupil finally spunked up courage and remarked, "Nice day, professor."

"Do you really think so?" was the faraway answer of Jowett.

Another half hour passed, and the boy stammered out:

"Nice road, professor."

The teacher responded, "Do you really think so?"

The matriculate began to boil in his bones and to get even more frightened, but he managed to again blurt out, "Clouds seem to be filling up with rain, professor," to which the answer was:

"Do you really think so?"

The two returned to the college ground, and the professor said, "Well, young man, we have been walking for several hours, and everything you said has been as stupid as it possibly could be."

His companion replied, "Do you really think so?"

The professor looked at the young man a moment. Then he smiled and grasped his hands warmly. From that time on conversation never flagged during their walks.—Saturday Evening Post.

Puzzled the Porter.

The pet fad of a certain actress is shoes, and she never travels without a pair of shoe trees in her satchel. One season she was touring the west. When she went to bed in the Pullman the first night eastward from Butte, she took off her trim walking boots and, as her custom is, slipped the trees into them and set them under the edge of the berth. It was broad daylight when she was awakened by the respectful and somewhat awestricken voice of the porter. She drew the curtains aside and looked out into the aisle. The porter was standing there, holding the shoes in his hand.

"Here they is, lady," he said.

"Well, just put them down under the berth, please," said she. The man hesitated a moment.

"Can you—can you put them on by youse'f?" he asked.

"What, the shoes?" asked the lady.

"No, miss," answered the porter. "I means your feet. Ain't these yere things feet?"

Since then she has carried the ghastly looking boot trees in her trunk.—Washington Post.

The Wrong Bird.

A certain conjurer once had an experience which was highly comical, though quite disastrous from a professional point of view.

Having produced an egg from a previously empty bag, he announced that he would follow up this trick by bringing from the bag the hen by which the egg had been laid. This little arrangement he had left to his confederate to carry out.

He proceeded to draw the bird from the bag in which it had previously been placed, but what was his consternation on finding that the alleged hen was an old rooster, which strutted about the stage with ruffled feathers and offended dignity and set up as vigorous a crowing as if he had just awakened from his nocturnal slumbers.

The whole audience shrieked with laughter, and the unfortunate conjurer made a "bolt" for his dressing room.

Variable.

"What is this title 'professor' that I hear so often?" asked the distinguished foreigner.

"Well," answered Miss Cayenne, "it's getting rather hard to tell. Usually it means a man who knows more than any one else, and sometimes it means a man who simply won't work."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Three Cornered War.

When Colonel Cartwell was military governor of Norfolk under the Confederacy in 1862, he ordered the British consul to report for duty on the home guard. To this the Englishman objected on the ground of being consul at Norfolk.

"To what government?" asked Colonel Cartwell.

"To the United States government," was the reply.

"But you are in the Confederate states, and you must show papers accrediting you to the Confederate States of America," said the colonel.

"But my government doesn't recognize you as a government," said the consul.

"Very well, then; my government doesn't recognize you as consul," briskly retorted Colonel Cartwell. "Shoulder your musket and join your company."

At this the peacefully disposed consul threatened to have a gunboat come and bombard the place before he would serve.

"That's just what I'd like to see," returned the colonel cheerily, "for then the United States will fight you, as she claims that Norfolk is still part of the Union, and between England and the United States fighting we shall go free."

At last the consul appealed to Mr. Benjamin, the Confederate secretary of war, who ordered his exemption from military duty, and the "three cornered war" so desired by Colonel Cartwell never came to pass.—Youth's Companion.

Unique Wedding Present.

Most people know of the peculiar circumstances under which Robert Louis Stevenson won his wife. But even more romantic and astounding was the unique wedding gift he got with her.

When Stevenson met his future fate at Barbizon, a famous artists' resort near Paris, she was the wife of Mr. Osborne, an Oakland gentleman. The friendship thus formed led Stevenson to pay a visit to California. He arrived at Monterey in a dying condition, but the loving care of Mrs. Osborne and her sister, Nellie Van der Grift, gradually won him back to life. The nursing completed his infatuation for the lady—an infatuation which he did not pretend to conceal. Fortunately Osborne raised no objections. He not only agreed to the divorce, but with a magnanimity rarely excelled actually attended the wedding breakfast. There he found his opportunity.

Mrs. Stevenson's one source of regret was the positive loss of her son, Lloyd Osborne, whom, of course, the father had the right to claim. Osborne made a happy speech, felicitating the newly married couple, and wound up by offering the most original of wedding presents. "To the bride," he said, "I give that which of all things is nearest and dearest to her heart, her own son."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

One He Didn't Get.

The following story of Ben Butler was told by a man who said he was present on the occasion:

"Shortly after the war General Butler delivered a lecture at Pike's Opera House in Cincinnati. The general was well on to the climax of his speech when slowly from the flies overhead descended a large wooden spoon on the end of a string. Down and down it came until it reached a point two or three inches above the speaker's head, and then it stopped.

"The audience, of course, was convulsed with mirth, but owing to his well known visual infirmity the general was the last to discover the spoon, and indeed would probably not have noticed it at all except that in making an emphatic gesture to italicize a point his hand struck the suspended spoon.

"Looking up, he recognized the enemy and took in the situation at a glance. Without any sign of embarrassment or confusion he detached it from the string and with the remark, 'Hello, there's one I didn't get,' laid it down on the stage and triumphantly finished his address."

Army Flogging.

Soon after General Gatacre was appointed an ensign in the Seventy-seventh foot he turned out with the company to which he was attached to witness the flogging of a soldier. The man, who had been convicted of a serious offense and was later to be drummed out of the corps, took his punishment badly, screaming a great deal. Ensign Gatacre shut his eyes and turned white in the face, as though he would faint. When the punishment was over, he remarked to his color sergeant, "If I see much more of this, I'll sell out."

The "noncom" responded, "You'll get used to it in time, sir."

"Used to it? I'm sure I never shall!" responded the ensign. Flogging in the army was soon abolished, however, and the future general remained in the service.

What Offended Her.

Milk Dealer—What did you say to Mrs. Sharpe yesterday when you called for her money?

Driver—Nothing particular. Why?

Milk Dealer—She's sent word that she don't want us to serve her any more. You must have said something to offend her.

Driver—No, I didn't. I simply asked her for the money for the week's milk. She says, "You'd better chalk it up," and I says, "We do that already."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Mentioned as Usual.

Clara—Did the newspapers notice your papa at the banquet?

Freddie—Yes.

Clara—Well, mamma said she could not see his name in the list.

Freddie—No, but the list ends up with "and others." That means papa. They always mention him that way.—Tit-Bits.

A Cork Safe.

"The most curious safe I ever saw," said a traveling man, "was a cork one, and it was made by an ingenious Dutch mechanic for a one time famous confidence man named Dr. Baggs, who operated in Denver, Salt Lake City and Frisco. The safe was a folding affair, made of paper on a backing of sheet cork, and, when it was opened up, was six feet high and looked exactly like the real thing. As it was always placed in a corner, it had only two sides, but every visible detail was complete—combination knob, hinges, lettering, bolt heads and all. When folded, it could be carried in an ordinary dress suit case. Baggs used the thing in a fake lottery office which was of itself a marvel of trick furnishing.

"When the victim entered the place, it looked like an ordinary business establishment, with desks, railings, maps on the walls, safe in the corner and several clerks at work on books. The instant he left a roll top desk was opened up into a bed, the railing was folded together and slipped into a closet, a table was transformed into a washstand, a cabinet turned into a bureau, the safe was put away in its case, the curtains were pulled down, and the room was to all appearances a simple sleeping apartment. By that means the poor dupe was never able to find the place where he had been bunkoed." —New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Red Tape Illustrated.

A correspondent passing hurriedly into the room of the committee on rivers and harbors pulled the knob off the door.

"How can I get that fixed, do you think?" asked the congressman. "Shall I get the carpenter or the locksmith?"

"The locksmith, I suppose."

"No, sir. Were I to send for the locksmith he would tell me to consult the architect of the capitol. He has no authority to fix doorknobs. Doorknobs are permanent fixtures and are solely within the jurisdiction of the architect of the capitol."

"Do you see that bookcase there?" said the committee secretary. "I caused the carpenter to paste some cloth on the inside of the glass doors in order that the books might not show. He did the work, but when he had finished I noted that he had not cleaned the glass before he put the cloth on. The thing looked so disreputable that I asked him why he had not cleaned the glass. He told me that the glass was a permanent fixture and that he had no authority to touch it, but that the placing of the cloth upon it was a temporary matter and was entirely within the province of his labors. The whole thing's got to be done all over again." —Washington Cor. Cleveland Plain Dealer.

She Didn't Buy It.

The following story will show the high price that illustrators of reputation command for their work: A young woman who had received treatment from Dr. S. Weir Mitchell of Philadelphia and was very fond of him decided, at a recent celebration of his birthday, that a fitting and appropriate gift would be the presentation of one of the original drawings of Mr. Howard Pyle for "Hugh Wynne." Forthwith she invaded The Century company's sanctum and, with her fingers tenderly grasping a new $10 note, asked to buy the drawing. She was informed that these pictures were never sold unless exceptions were made in cases where the artist himself or the author wished to make the purchase.

"Just so," said the young woman. "I wish to present it to Dr. Mitchell."

"Ah, in that case," said the gentleman at the desk, "we shall take pleasure in giving it to you at the exact price we paid for it, which is $100."

The little lady in her excitement dropped the $10 bill. The gentleman at the desk picked it up for her and smiled while she hurriedly took her departure. The good doctor was presented with a less appropriate gift that year.—New York Times.

Clear and to the Point.

The following is taken from a hotel advertisement in the Calcutta Times: "Gentlemen who come in hotel not say anything about their meals they will be charged for, and if they should say beforehand that they are going out to breakfast or dinner, etc., and if they say that they not have anything to eat they will be charged, and if not so they will not be charged, or unless they bring it to the notice of the manager of the place, and should they want to say anything they must order the manager for one, not any one else, and unless they bring not it to the notice of the manager they will be charged for the least things according to the hotel rate, and no fuss will be allowed afterward about it."

A Poultry Problem.

A Somerville man borrowed a neighbor's hen on the pretense that he wanted her to sit. As soon as he got the hen he broke up the sitting habit and got her to laying eggs. In the next six weeks she laid two dozen eggs. These he sold for 40 cents a dozen, and with the 80 cents that he got for them he bought the hen. Now the question arises whether the original owner of the hen was fooled or not.—Somerville Journal.

Majority Against Bonds, 180.---A Court House Will Never Be Built at Red Lake Falls.

Last Saturday the special election was held in Red Lake county to determine the will of the citizens on a proposition to bond the county for $10,000 for the purpose of erecting a court house and jail at Red Lake Falls. Owing to the fact that the great majority of the voters of this city and St. Hilaire are at present in the woods getting out the tall pine timber, the vote of these two places was very light, but, in spite of the extreme cold, and in the northern tiers of towns but two voted "yes." With the exception of the towns immediately surrounding Red Lake Falls, the great majority of every community voted "no" and even in the extreme southeast corner of the county the towns of Garnes, Lambert and Equality, which had been expected to favor the proposition, all lined up with the noes. As reports began to come in from the outlying districts, it was evident the farmers turned out very well and by their votes swamped the scheme to put our county needlessly in debt for the pleasure of Red Lake Falls. The vote by townships is given below and will prove interesting and instructive. Every township in the county, with the exception of Lake Pleasant, cast a number of votes against the bonds that the contest would not be as one sided as Red Lake Falls had fondly hoped, and when the returns from the last mentioned towns came in, the city down the river threw up the sponge and conceded defeat.

A Minister's Goodbye.

A report reached the Clarion office the first part of the week that a minister of one of our nearby villiges took permanent leave of his congregation a few Sundays since in the following pathetic manner:

"Brothers and Sisters—I came to say goodbye. I don't think God loves this church because none of you ever did. I don't think you love each other, because I never marry any of you. I don't think you love me, because you have not paid me my salary. Your donations are mouldy fruit and wormy apples, and by their fruits ye shall know them.

"Brothers, I am going to a better place. I have been called to be chaplain of a penitentiary. Where I go ye cannot come now, but I go to prepare a place for you, and may the Lord have mercy on your souls. Goodbye."—Berea (Iowa) Clarion.

THE INDIAN PINE.

Congressman Eddy's Bill Favorably Reported.

The house committee on Indian affairs last week ordered favorable reports on two of Eddy's bills. One provides for the sale of pine timber on the White Earth and Red Lake reservations at not less than $3 per 1,000 feet, to be scaled on bank. It further provides that the amount of timber cut on each reservation shall not exceed 10,000,000 feet in any one year. The proceeds, after deducting expenses of salaries of supervisors and scalers, are to be deposited in the treasury to the credit of the Indians and draw 5 per cent interest. The other bill provides for alloting Indians on the White Earth reservation 160 acres of land each.

LENT OBSERVANCE

Regulations for This Year Similar to Last Year's.

Yesterday was Ash Wednesday and Easter falls upon April 15 this year. Regulations for Lenten observance will be read in all Catholic churches next Sunday, not materially different from those of last year.

These rules prescribe fast and abstinence. Sundays are privileged days except that fish and flesh may not appear at the same meal. Meat or fish is allowed at the principal meal except on Wednesday, and Friday, [illegible] Saturday of Holy week, April 14.

On other days one square meal is allowed, but without meat either at noon or night, a cup of coffee or chocolate or tea with a bit of bread, not more than two ounces of solid food, for breakfast, and not more than one-fourth of a real meal at noon or evening collation.

From the duty of fasting, however, are excepted young persons and the aged, women bearing or nursing children and invalids, and, in the United States, working men and such others as the parish priest or confessor may deem exempt by special conditions.

Where the rule of fasting is relaxed, some equivalent self-denial is urged, particularly the giving up of intoxicants.

The regulations given by Archbishop Ireland urge upon all the faithful the religious duty of fasting and the duty of keeping the church in respect of others.

Postage Stamps in Convenient Form.

Every one who carries stamps knows what a nuisance it is to do so. The stamps will stick together. Special cases to hold them and oiled paper to keep them apart, with other devices, may be tried, but they are inconvenient and unsatisfactory. The Washington Star says that the third assistant postmaster general is considering a plan to save the annoyance of stuck-together stamps. The plan is to bind the stamps in little books, with alternating leaves of stamps and paraffin paper, the books resembling somewhat the telegraph frank books that are so common in Washington and which may have suggested the idea. The books will be of pocket size and will contain stamps to the value of 24 cents, 48 cents and 96 cents. The government will pay $2 a thousand for making these books, and will charge an advance of one cent each, which will yield a handsome profit on the enormous sales. The book containing twelve two-cent stamps and costing 25 cents would probably be the most popular. The idea is a sensible one, and it is strange that it had not been thought of before. The discouraging thing about carrying one of those books, though, is that the man who carries stamps is always the victim of the man who doesn't have any but wants to borrow.—Chicago Tribune.

Say! What's the matter with Rocksbury?

It was "a sad but glorious day" for the lower falls.

Now is the time to invest in Red Lake Falls real estate.

North, Nordon, Numedal, Bray, Sanders, Rocksbury—how's that for a "big six?"

There are seventeen voters in this city who feel cheap enough to give away now.

That earth quake like tremor felt throughout this vicinity is caused by Thief River Falls shaking hands with St Hilaire.

We have it on good authority that the Red Lake Falls Gazette will not issue a red, white and blue edition this week. Any old black ink will do now.

Now that the bond proposition has been voted down, it would be interesting to know on which kopje the Red Lake Falls people proposed to locate that court house.

BONDS VOTED DOWN.

The result of last Saturday's election means that a majority of the people living in Red Lake county do not want the county seat located at Red Lake Falls. Red Lake county was organized about three years ago and the county seat was temporarily located at Red Lake Falls. Had the proposition to bond the county for $10,000 and build a court house carried, it would have resulted in permanently locating the county seat at Red Lake Falls.

The election was held at a time of the year when the vote of Thief River Falls was at its lowest ebb, and consequently only 376 votes were cast in this city. The reason for this is very apparent. The Thief River Falls Lumber company alone has over a thousand men working in the woods and a large majority of this force are residents of this city. Many others, principally mill hands, have seized the opportunity given by the dull business season to visit other communities. It was right at this season that the Red Lake Falls people sprung the bond proposition, and they were wise to do so. If that decadent borough could ever expect to win out from our rising young giant of the north that was the time. But, handycapped, as we were, the people of this vicinity accepted the gage of battle, and, with the aid of the sturdy farmers, who did not believe that they should be taxed to rescue an over-inflated real estate boom from impending bankruptcy, the proposition to donate ten thousand dollars of the people's money to beautify Red Lake Falls was defeated by a round majority. It is not hard to foresee the ultimate result. Red Lake Falls, not now centrally located, will be, in a few years, hopelessly on the side when the inevitable opening of the reservation has added twelve new towns to our northeast territory. Their last hope was to fix the county seat for all time before it was everlastingly too late. They failed and it is now merely a question of time when the court house will come to a city more accessible to all residents of the county. And it is well. The News congratulates its fellow citizens upon the defeat of a scheme to saddle this young community not yet fully on its feet financially with a heavy and entirely unnecessary debt, and it further congratulates them that no hasty action was permitted to fix a county seat location at a point which will surely become more and more inconvenient to the majority of the people as the years go by.

WHY NOT USE IT?

Last Saturday's election has at last done one good thing. It has taught the people living in the northern part of the county their power. Red Lake Falls has heretofore controlled about everything in Red Lake county, while the voters in the northern part were blindly voting their ticket; Red Lake Falls was working the excitable French voters to do their bidding. They very naturally thought that the earth and the fullness thereof was theirs for the asking. The 1898 election clearly showed that neither the voters of Red Lake Falls or the French allies would stand by their party nominations. It is not to early to predict that in the next campaign party lines, so far as county affairs are concerned, will be disregarded just as completely in the northern part as in the southern part. Men now holding office in the county who obtained their election by trading party and everything in sight for their own election. The voters in the north part of the county are not fools and will not be tricked again. We all know that taxes have been climbing higher each year and that we have been compelled to bond for $30,000.00 in addition to pay running expenses. This must stop. Let the people organize and control their own affairs. Thief River Falls and St. Hilaire with the surrounding country hold the power. Why not use it?—St. Hilaire Spectator.

How to Freshen Chiffon.

Chiffon can be made to look like new by being carefully steamed, but it must first be very evenly pinned upon a box lid, length by length, to get the desired result.

It takes time to pin and unpin and pin again, but unless this is done the edge will be wavy and uneven. If it is to be used in a way that the edge will not show, then a quicker method to accomplish the result is to hold it stretched tightly between the hands.

Crape is even more satisfactory when treated in this manner, the steam giving it the stiffness of new material and also taking out all the dirt and dust. A yellowed crape done in this way will leave nothing to be desired.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of one hundred seventeen and 03-100 dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Ole Hansen and Barbro Hansen, his wife, mortgagors, to Charles J. Knox, mortgagee, bearing date the 1st day of November, 1894, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, on the 20th day of December, 1894, at 10 o'clock A. M. in Book 70 of Mortgages, on page 82.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Charles J. Knox, mortgagee, to Jerome W. Wheeler, by written assignment dated the 28th day of May, 1896, and recorded in the office of said Register of Deeds of Red Lake county, formerly a part of Polk county, Minnesota, on the 27th day of November, 1899, at 11:15 o'clock A. M., in Book F of Mortgages, on page 463; and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:

Lots one (1), two (2), three (3) and four (4) of block twenty-seven (27), Knox's Addition to Red Lake Rapids, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Red Lake county, formerly a part of Polk county, and state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Red Lake county, formerly a part of Polk county, Minnesota, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Red Lake Falls, in said Red Lake county, formerly a part of Polk county, and state, on the 9th day of March, 1900, at three o'clock P. M. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars, attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 18, A. D. 1900.

A GREAT NEWSPAPER.

It has always been claimed for The Chicago Tribune that it would, in all probability, pass with the highest average in any competitive examination among the newspapers of the United States for excellence in all departments of journalism.

"Under date of May 2, 1899, the Omaha World-Herald, editorially answering a letter from 'Inquirer' asking the names of the five best newspapers in this country, points out that a newspaper may excel in one way and be inferior in another. The World-Herald gives lists under five general headings of leading American newspapers distinguished especially for excellence, mentioning in all some twenty.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE HEADINGS:

"(1) Most and best news, foreign and domestic, presented attractively.
"(2) Best possible presentation of news briefly.
"(3) Typographical appearance.
"(4) Classification of news by departments.
"(5) Editorials.

"The Chicago Tribune is the only newspaper in the United States which the World-Herald considers worthy of mention under four different heads."—From the October Plain Talk.

Practically all high-class intelligent newspaper readers, comprising the best and middle classes in Chicago and vicinity, read The Chicago Tribune. A great majority of them read no other morning newspaper.

A Great Advertising Medium.

GRAND FORKS WOOLEN MILLS, Grand Forks, N. Dakota

$16.75 Warranted High Grade
We Dare to Describe All Our Sewing Machines, a thing that dealers in cheap rattle-traps dare not do. We sell you a high-grade machine at [illegible] factory list, calculating that each machine [illegible] will sell many others for us without [illegible]. This machine–Cordila No. 4–is constructed [illegible] in use, every bearing being of steel or case-hardened. The woodwork is of best quality, either Light Antique [illegible] on Oak finish. The motion is easy and light. It does not vibrate. It is a lock-stitch shuttle. The operation of the [illegible] feed mechanism is positive, giving an accurate 4-motion [illegible] movement to the feed without the use of springs. It has a [illegible] self-lubricating needle-bar, which is always kept clean, well oiled, and the oil cannot drop on the work. The needle is absolutely self-setting. There is but one hole to thread through—the needle's eye. It is thoroughly inspected and tested before leaving the factory, and is strongly crated, each being accompanied by the factory warranty for 10 years. Accessories and Attachments complete free. TERMS: $4.00 cash with order; balance C. O. D. At our remarkably close price this machine (usually sold at $25 to $35) will sell itself at sight. Your friends need but to see it to buy it. Customers may retain $1.00 from every cash order they send us (remitting $15.75 net).

SPECIALISTS FAILED.

Mrs. C. A. Merrill, of Chetopa, Kans., suffered from a peculiar nervous trouble which baffled the skill of leading specialists. She says: "I cannot say enough in praise of Dr. Miles' Nervine. I suffered agonizing pain in left side of my head and I thought it would drive me insane. Specialists in Cincinnati and Kansas City treated me without benefit. Then I began taking Dr. Miles' Nervine and obtained prompt relief, and finally a permanent cure."

Dr. Miles' Nervine
is sold by all druggists on guarantee, first bottle benefits or money back. Book on heart and nerves sent free.

"Strike For Your Altars and Your Fires."

Patriotism is always commendable, but in every breast there should be not only the desire to be a good citizen, but to be strong, able bodied and well fitted for the battle of life. To do this, pure blood is absolutely necessary, and Hood's Sarsaparilla is the one specific which cleanses the blood thoroughly. It acts equally well for both sexes and all ages.

Humor—"When I need a blood purifier I take Hood's Sarsaparilla. It cured my humor and is excellent as a nerve tonic." Josie Eaton, Stafford Springs, Ct.

THE LIFE INSURANCE CURE.

A Dying Bachelor Who Became Interested in a Plan for a Novel Funeral.

"I don't know that life insurance is a cure for disease," said the retired life insurance solicitor, "but I know of an instance which makes it look that way. In the town where I first began business was a bachelor of about 50 years, who was quite alone in the world, and had some years before taken out a five-thousand-dollar policy on himself for the benefit of a maiden sister, who had died a year before the events of this story. He kept his policy going, however, because it was a good way to save money, and one day he was taken down with some kind of fever. He grew worse day after day, until one day the doctor told him that he would in all likelihood be dead within the next twenty-four hours. This suggested his life insurance money, all he had to leave, and he immediately began to talk with the doctor on the subject of a proper disposal of it. He concluded after some thought that the best thing to do with it was to blow it in on a tremendous big funeral for himself, including a banquet for all the people he knew. This was an entirely new idea for a funeral, and when the doctor left him that night to the care of his nurse his mind was entirely occupied with his funeral. He talked to the nurse about it and when the nurse made him stop he lay and thought about it. In fact, he became so much interested in the details of his funeral that he quite forgot about having to die to make it possible. In the morning when the doctor came he found his patient in a wild perspiration and his pulse beating in much better fashion than it had been doing for some days. He also found the general condition of the patient much improved. He was greatly astonished, and at once began to ask questions. The patient told him with eager interest of a lot of new things he had thought of for the funeral and some that bothered him a good deal and said he had been thinking of it all night. Then the doctor laughed and told him he guessed the funeral would have to be postponed, for he wasn't going to die, just then anyhow. Nor did he, and he isn't dead yet, but he is married and has his policy paid up for his wife's benefit."

SMALL PIPES

And Mild Tobacco Satisfy the Desires of Japanese Smokers.

Washington Star: "You may have noticed that the Japanese who visit America are very moderate smokers," said a prominent Japanese now traveling in the United States. "Those of my countrymen who indulge in the weed mostly smoke cigarettes or preferably the smallest pipes filled with the mildest tobacco obtainable. Of course, there are Japanese who, like some Americans, have such a craving for tobacco that nothing less than the strongest cigar or the largest pipe will satisfy them. But such smokers are exceptionally few among the Japanese. As a rule, my countrymen, while at home and abroad, are satisfied with short smokes, such as a cigarette or a tiny pipe affords. The Japanese are moderate smokers, not so much because they are small people, but for the reason that up to within recent years but very little tobacco came into Japan and the tariff on it was very high. Being a poor but frugal race, the masses purchased only limited quantities of the weed, which, as a matter of economy, they have for generations been taught to smoke in only the tiniest of pipes. These pipes, the most popular of which hold about as much tobacco as would fill an ordinary thimble, are the survival of the days when money was scarce, tobacco dear and the tariff high. In another generation or two, when Japan shall have taken her place among the wealthy nations of the world, my countrymen will no doubt smoke large quantities of tobacco, and then the small pipes will be abandoned for big ones, such as Englishmen and Americans now smoke."

How Women Dress in Siberia.

Common-class women in Siberia wear shawls or kerchiefs on their heads while the rich women wear no head covering whatever. A traveler recently returned from that part of the world says that a Russian woman who is otherwise trim and modern in dress will go about with her hair disheveled to the point of the ludicrous. Less attention is paid to the head and feet than to other parts of their toilet. "It is odd enough to see them," says this same writer, "defying dripping decks and muddy roads in the thinnest of heelless slippers, while the breezes play havoc with the loose tresses of their hair. Their shirtwaist is a feminine terror, with a broad turnover collar, fancy cuffs, cotton bows, many buttons and numerous frills, in place of the natty American shirtwaist."

A Theater for Workingmen.

Arthur Krupp, a cousin of the great German iron founder, erected a theater a year ago in Berndorf, Austria, for the benefit of the workmen employed in his great steel works at that place. It was to have been dedicated by the Empress Elizabeth, but her assassination occurred just before the time set for the ceremonies. Recently Emperor Francis Joseph formally opened it in the presence of a great crowd. The theater is small, seating but 500 but it is described as being very beautiful in its decorations and adornments and most complete for the purposes to which it is to be devoted.

EASY LIFE IN NICARAGUA.

When the Family Is Out of Money Somebody Goes Out and Gets a Little Gold.

From the New Orleans Times-Democrat: "When I was in the Olancho district, in Nicaragua, last month," said a visitor who is largely interesting in mining in Central America, "I had an opportunity of seeing how the lazy natives tap nature's till when they need some small change. Near our camp by the river was a hut occupied by a typical Honduranian family, consisting of husband and wife, grandfather and grandmother, and a dozen or so assorted children. The only one of the crowd who did anything except rest and smoke was the wife. At intervals of perhaps a week she would sally out with the family tin-pan, erstwhile used for cooking, and proceed to an old placer digging on the river bank. There she would squat, throw a few gourds full of dirt into the pan, fill it up with water and begin the usual circular motion of gold-washing. She was very skillful and would keep a little sheet of dirty water spraying over the edge like a miniature cataract. When the water was exhausted a few spoonsful of sand would be left in the bottom of the pan, and, spreading it out thin, with a bit of stick, she would go over it, grain by grain, looking for 'color.' Whenever she saw a speck of gold she moistened the stick upon her tongue and picked up the particle by adhesion. Each bit of the precious metal was stored away in a quill plugged with clay at the ends, and I have known her to take but as much as a quarter of an ounce in the course of a day. Usually her limit was about $2, and when she got that she stopped. Then the head of the house would arise languidly and start for the nearest store twelve miles away. Sometimes he would trade the whole amount for whiskey, but as a rule he brought back tobacco, salt, meal and calico. There are hundreds of native families who live in exactly the same manner in Olancho. Sometimes the woman will be lucky enough to strike a rich pocket, that will yield a dollar or more a pan, but they never dream of washing it out at once and getting a stake. It simply means that they can secure their usual amount with less work."

ANOTHER AIRSHIP.

Inventor Declares It Will Remain in Air a Week at a Time.

The Swiss newspapers announce the forthcoming "launch" of a new airship over—not on—the Lake of Constance, says the London News. Its inventor is Count von Zeppelin, a retired German officer, who has for many years studied the question of steering balloons. He now claims to have solved the problem of the light motor. An aeroplane built by him is reported to have developed sufficient power to tow a boat on the River Inn at a speed of nine miles an hour. To minimize the risks of an unforeseen fall the count has selected the Lake of Constance as the scene of his decisive experiment. Its area of over 300 square miles will, he believes, be sufficient to enable him to execute all necessary evolutions. The vessel is "moored" at Friedrichshafen and is supported by sixty pontoons. There is a gas works in the vicinity. The inventor keeps the mechanism of his airship secret and has taken stringent precautions to warn off the curious. All that is known is that the vessel's proportions are immense—over 550 feet long and nearly fifty feet in diameter. It is cylindrical, with conical extremities, and is divided internally by strong partitions. The "hull" is of silk, stretched over a skeleton of aluminum. The power is supplied by two motors, placed beneath the cylinder, one at each end. The propelling principle is the ordinary screw, but there are three special devices for steering. Count von Zeppelin declares that his machine will be able to rise to a height of over 3,000 feet, lift a weight of nearly two tons, travel at a speed of ten yards a second, and remain in the air for a week at a time.

Meteors Prefer Morning.

An interesting and significant fact is that the average hourly number of meteors is only half as great in the evening as in the morning, and in the evening their velocity is lower, says Prof. C. A. Young in the New Lippincott for November. The reason is that at sunset we have before us the point in the heavens from which we are moving in our orbital journey around the sun, while in the morning we face the point toward which we are advancing; in the evening we are in the rear of the earth, at sunrise in front. This increase in the numbers and speed of the morning meteors is just what ought to happen if they are bodies moving indiscriminately in all directions under the sun's attraction, and with the velocity (about twenty-six miles a second) which a body would acquire in falling toward the sun from a distance very great as compared with the size of our planetary orbits.

Strange Story of a Watch.

A strange experience recently befell George Dietz, formerly a resident of Chester, Pa., but at the present time in the jewelry business in Honolulu. Mr. Dietz has recovered a watch which he lost over thirty years ago at Gettysburg. He was fighting for the north on that bloody battlefield when he dropped it. The watch was recently brought into the jeweler's shop by Harry Ellis of the Kansas volunteers. The soldier, who was bound to Manila, wanted to sell it. On being asked where he got it he said his father, who had found it on the battlefield of Gettysburg, had given it to him. The jeweler opened it and saw his name scratched on it. He lost no time in making a trade with the soldier.

PET SUPERSTITIONS.

Some That Influence All Sorts of People.

Dr. Samuel Johnson would never enter a room left foot foremost; the brave Marshal Saxe screamed in terror at the sight of a cat; Peter the Great was not equal to crossing a bridge when he came to it, unless to do so was absolutely necessary; Byron shared with less famous people than he the dislike to having the salt at table spilled between him and his neighbor. A sneeze is with half the nations of the world nothing to be sneezed at. To exclaim "God bless you!" when any one sneezes in your presence is a relic of what what the Roman did before us, and before him the Greek. Mohammed gives directions of the same kind to his followers, and the Hindu of today utters his pious ejaculation after the sneeze by way of prayer or good wish on behalf of the victim. Many people will avoid going under a ladder if they can get around it. The belief that if you put on your stocking the wrong side out it is lucky is very general, or was until the schoolmaster returned from abroad, and I myself remember an old woman who was convinced that turning her stocking inside out saved her from being lost when the fairies, one pitch-dark night, had misled her on a trackless English moor. What is to take the place of a lucky horseshoe when we all ride in automobiles? There is no room for the imagination in them. Some new mascot will have to be discovered. Charms of one kind or another are carried by people that have a pious contempt for heathen superstitions: a small potato, for example, to avert rheumatism, or a chestnut. The late journalist, George Augustus Sala, never traveled without carrying with him, as a lucky card, an ace of spades. Somehow it failed to save him from his creditors. But creditors are notoriously deficient in imagination. If Shylock had remembered this when he drew up his bond, "The Merchant of Venice" would never have been written.—Rochester Post-Express.

HANGED FOR BURNING COAL.

Strange Law Which Was in Force in England in 1306.

There will be an interesting function in London shortly, when the coal exchange celebrates its jubilee. The occasion is one for recalling strange reminiscences, for as late as the fourteenth century a prohibition was issued against the burning of coal, with severe penalties decreed against any person who warmed his house by a coal fire. In the early days of Lord Mayor Whittington the burning of coal was considered so great a public nuisance that it was made a capital offense, and one man was actually hanged for indulging in a coal fire. As a matter of fact, this ordinance was never repealed, but in "Dick Whittington's" third mayoralty it is evident there was a great trade in coal, and the suggestion has been made that coal was brought to London in boats known as the "cats," this was the real origin of the story of Dick Whittington and his cat. The coal exchange, however, is a modern institution. It is also one of the most important of London's marts. Under the shadow of its domed roof commercial transactions are daily carried through of greater value than in connection with any other mercantile building in the world. Unlike the corn exchange in Mark lane, it is not a private concern, but is a city market conducted on the same principles as the other markets opened by the city corporation. Opened with much ceremony in October, 1849, by the prince consort, the present building is just about to celebrate its jubilee. But the market itself is older than the building. Up to 1807 it was in the hands of private individuals, but in that year it was purchased by the corporation for £25,-100.—London Times.

A Curious Accident.

A curious accident took place at Brookfield, Ind. A local freight train was backed into a siding to allow a fast freight train to pass. The switch was left open, however, and the fast freight, traveling at the rate of thirty miles an hour, dashed into it. The crews of both trains jumped. The impact of the collision was so severe as to drive the tender of the stationary train off its truck, and telescoping a cattle car, which was loaded with coal, it rested half on the top of the third car. On the fast freight a car loaded with hogs was telescoped by one loaded with shelled corn, and the animals not killed in the collision were smothered by the corn. It is said that the locomotives are so interlocked that dynamite will be required to separate them.

Bird Friends of a Boston Policeman.

From the Boston Evening Record: On a short street leading from Washington street every noon there is a little occurrence in which a policeman figures, and which attracts the attention of many passers-by. The officer comes there to ring in a duty call and then gets some peanuts from a near-by stand and begins to whistle. In a moment dozens of pigeons begin circling around him, and he shells the peanuts, holds out his hand, and the pigeons light on his arm and hand and eat as many peanuts as they can get. One brown one is particularly tame and greedy, and will eat a pint of them, the officer says. Many people come there every noon to watch the little show.

QUEER FOSSIL.

Jaw of a Huge Unclassified Animal Found in New Mexico.

Santa Fe New Mexican: The fossil remains of a strange prehistoric animal were discovered recently at Postmaster Nusbaum's ranch, at Tesuque. Alphonso Dockweiler, who has charge of digging a ditch through a ridge on the ranch, picked up a piece of petrified bone the shape of a large tongue, but with a row of twelve teeth along what seemed to be the tip of the tongue. He dug a little further and found the remainder of what seemed to be the jaw of an animal that was part ichthyosaurus and part plesiosaurus, with some of the characteristics of the pterodactyl, perhaps. The jaw consisted of about twenty layers of bone in the shape of a tongue, and each layer was armed with a dozen teeth, which showed that the animal was herbivorous and not carnivorous. These twenty layers were evidently the upper jaw of the animal. Mr. Dockweiler expects to find the lower jaw and perhaps all of the remains of the strange animal. As much as he has found he will bring to this city and from here [illegible] to Smithsonian institution [illegible]ngton. Two layers of the [illegible] brought to the city by J. $20,000 PAID FOR A BIBLE

Psalterium, Printed in Gutenberg's Shop, Worth Even [illegible].

Fabulous sums are paid for copies of the earliest printed Bibles on account of their rarity. Yet it is known that many more were manufactured than have ever come to light, and every now and then we hear of another copy having been found in some garret or cellar amid the rubbish. The famous "Mazarin Bible" has been sold for more than $20,000, and this is called cheap, as it is one of the finest specimens of the printer's art ever produced, and, most interesting of all, was set up and published by Gutenberg in 1455, after three years of continuous labor. He printed only 100 copies, but eighty-five of these have never been found. It is called the Mazarin because the first copy to be discovered in modern times was in the library of Cardinal Mazarin. But there is another part of the Bible, called the "Psalterium," because it contains the Psalms only, which commands even a higher price, having been sold for $23,-000, for but six copies are known to be in existence. It was printed by John Faust and Peter Schoeffer on parchment in Gutenberg's shop, and is the first printed book bearing the year and day of its publication on the title-page. This inscription reads, "1457, on the eve of Ascension." Of course, all of the earliest Bibles were printed in Latin. The first complete Latin Bible with a date appeared in 1462, and is valued at $7,000. After that time many editions of the Bible appeared in all languages—German, English, French and Greek—and in 1514-1517 was the first polyglot Bible, one in which the Bible appeared in various languages side by side. The most valuable Bibles all date from the fifteenth or sixteenth centuries. After that no special value is attached to them.

Will Develop Japanese Mines.

The Japanese government intends to introduce in the next session of the diet a law freeing foreigners from all restrictions in regard to the mining business in Japan. The existing law prohibits them from becoming shareholders or partners in any mining company. By the new law such provision will be entirely done away with. It is evident that the government is beginning to realize that foreign capital will not come into the country unless foreign ownership privileges are first conceded. Mining enterprises requiring especially large amounts of capital, such privileges will now probably be granted. And it is likely that they will ultimately be extended to cover foreign ownership of real estate and industrial shares. It is quite evident that the mining resources of the empire are in an undeveloped state, and that they are arousing a growing interest and attention.

An Ancient Coin.

One of the prized curios of the Philadelphia mint is a coin which is 2,000 years old, and which was coined at the ancient mint of that other Philadelphia of the far east mentioned in the Bible. It is still in good condition, and the inscription is perfectly legible. The design on the face of the coin bears a striking resemblance to the Goddess of Liberty of our own currency, and underneath is the one word "Demus," which means "the people." On the other side is the figure of Diana, with her bow arched, and the inscription, "Diana, Friend of the Philadelphians." When this coin was struck off Philadelphia was the most important city of Lydia.

THE SIRDAR'S CAMEL CORPS.

A Complete and Self-Contained Little Fighting Force.

The saddle was of wood throughout, with broad fans, the splay of which could be altered to suit a camel's back without much trouble by the native saddler attached to each company, says the Cornhill. The pad was removable—leather outside, soft felt inside, the stuffing being of hair, and, by a system of pockets, this hair stuffing could be removed and shifted at will, so as to alter the pressure and prevent it hardening and forming into lumps, the men being taught to constantly remove and pull the stuffing of their saddles. Each saddle was fitted with one large leather "kherg," or bag, containing six days' forage, and with two smaller ones containing the rider's food and spare clothing, besides which each man was provided with two water skins, to be filled according to requirements. Thus equipped, a seven days' desert trip could be undertaken, if there were wells containing sufficient to water the camels about every third day. The men were armed with a Martini rifle and bayonet, and carried 100 rounds of ammunition, ninety in bandolier and pouches, the remainder on their saddles, sewn in a roughly made saddle cloth, so as to distribute the weight equally. They were clothed in a brown woolen jersey, [illegible] pantaloons and leather gaiters. The total weight carried when loaded up for a seven days' trip, with filled waterskins, would be a good 400 pounds, which, of course reduced itself daily as forage and water were consumed. Thus we have a complete and self-contained fighting force which in its own element, the desert, asks nothing from any one, which disappears and is swallowed up in the trackless waste, to reappear again after an interval of six days, having accomplished its task.

They Talk by Whistling.

Gomera, one of the Canary islands, is a small island containing about 12,000 inhabitants. It is exceedingly rugged in formation, and the deep gorges and ravines which separate its mountain ranges are unbridged, and, therefore, it may be necessary to travel several miles in order to reach a point only a few hundred yards distant. Therefore, to obviate the necessity of doing this, the inhabitants have developed a whistling language, by means of which two men standing on opposite sides of the gorge can convey their meaning to each other. The teeth and fingers are used as well as the lips. Communications are made by notes in the whistle corresponding to syllables. The whistle, of course, carries much farther, and is much more distinct, than articulate speech could possibly be under the circumstances.—Stray Stories.

Afghan Justice.

Not many years ago a queen's messenger or some such official was robbed though not injured in any way, on his road to Cabul, Afghanistan, and the British government, of course, wrote to complain. No reply was received for months, but, at last, the Ameer wrote: "The matter you mention has been thoroughly investigated, and not only have the robbers of your messenger been put to death, but all their children, as well as their parents and grandparents. I hope this will give satisfaction to her majesty, Queen Victoria." The "satisfaction" of the queen may be imagined.—Baltimore News.

THE KING OF FALI.

Surrounded by His Followers, a Truly Medieval Picture Was Presented.

My first sight of the king of Fali was most imposing, says the Geographical Journal. Having heard of the approach of my party, he came out to meet us. We had stopped the night before at the small village of Jepiroh, beautifully situated on high ground and chiefly remarkable for the numbers of small green and red parrots that swarmed in the guinea cornfields all round it. It was the only place where I saw them in any quantities. We started off about 5:30, while the heavy dew was still sparkling on the grass, and soon met the head of the Fali contingent. First came 150 bowmen carrying nothing but their weapons and wearing only the smallest of loin cloths. At regular intervals among them were mounted officers. Next came a bodyguard of twenty picked men, dressed in red gowns with white plaits down the back and armed with every imaginable kind of gun, the locks of which were incased in leather. After passing these men I came on a really beautiful sight. The king had drawn up under the trees on one side of the path, and some forty or fifty mounted followers had arranged themselves all around and behind him. They were dressed for the most part in white gowns, but generally with either a colored lining or another colored gown underneath. Voluminous white or blue turbans covered their heads, and some of them wore very handsome riding boots, though the majority were barefooted. The high-peaked saddles were covered with brightly colored saddle cloths and the horses' heads were almost hidden by enormous bridles, covered with the ornaments, which kept up a perpetual jingling as they tossed their heads about to keep off the flies. On my approach they waved their spears over their heads with the butt to the front in token of friendship. This, with the king in the center wearing a cap of chain mail under his turban, and bowing with courtly grace made a truly medieval picture.

The Oceanic's Godmother.

Virgil's often quoted "Dux femina facti" will not let us forget that it was a woman who founded Carthage. Since Queen Dido's day women, perhaps less famous but no less worthy, have been leaders in enterprises as far-reaching as the creation of that ill-fated kingdom. A New York letter in the Boston Post relates a pretty story of one who founded a floating kingdom; at least, we are told, the idea of the largest ship in the world was born in a woman's brain. When Mr. William J. Pirrie, head of the ship-building firm of Harland & Wolff, at Belfast, proposed to run for parliament, his wife dissuaded him. "Don't go to parliament, Willie," she said. "You can build boats better than you can make speeches." "By Jove, you are right!" exclaimed her husband, and forthwith set about making plans for a marine monster that should surpass anything afloat. The result in due time was the great White Star liner Oceanic, 704 feet long, with engines of 28,000 horsepower, and room to accommodate 2,100 people. Mr. Pirrie's tribute to his fair and brilliant helpmeet is quoted as follows: "It is my wife who is responsible for our big boat. In fact, she knows as much about it as I do. She followed the plans as keenly as I did for the two and a half years which we took in designing the building of the Oceanic. It was she who suggested many clever things about the arrangement of the ship. She suggested all the decorations." Apparently Mrs. Pirrie's suggestions determined the great size of the steamer, rendering it almost independent of weather and sure of its time schedules, its merit as an economical coal consumer, its exceptional space for passengers, and its sacrificing of high speed to comfort.

Strange Comrades for Man.

Dr. R. Hauthal, an Argentine savant, has put forward a startling theory concerning the remains of gigantic sloths, related to the great megatherium and the mylodon, recently found in Patagonia. In his opinion, these animals, whose race is now extinct, were kept in a domesticated state by the prehistoric inhabitants of Patagonia. A cave at Ultima Esperanza, where many indications of the former presence of the huge beasts have been found, is regarded by Dr. Hauthal as having been used by the ancient Patagonians as a stable for the beasts.

Gallant [illegible]

Fargo (N. D.) [illegible] to the Minneapolis Times: A new phase of the prohibitory law was tested at Ellendale recently in the case of the State vs. Snow. The defendant was a salesman and drove over the southern part of the state. On one of his trips he gave a woman a drink of whisky out of a bottle he was carrying. There was no evidence to show that he gave the whisky with any intention, or hope, of its being an agent to assist him in his sales, but he was arrested and taken into court on the charge of treating, which is against the law. The jury was out for a long time and finally disagreed. It is the first case in the state against a man on the charge of treating. Many people are unaware of that provision in the law, and it has always been regarded as a dead letter.

C. E. Traverse went down to Red Lake Falls Sunday with the returns of the First ward. It took a good man to carry 207 votes.

Homesteaders desiring to make final proof can do so in Thief River Falls before L. G. Browning and thus save a trip to Crookston.

J. Pache, of Red Lake Falls, was in the city the first of the week. In company with P. G. Paradis, of St. Hilaire, he will probably open up a saloon in this city in the spring.

A banquet and ball were given last night at St. Hilaire. A large number from this city attended.

The Carhart farm of 1,120 acres near Warren has been purchased by N. C. McDonald for $20,000, including stock, grain and farm machinery.

L. G. Browning, United States commissioner for the district of Minnesota, is prepared to give attention to homestead filings and take final proof.

Several fur buyers were in the city the first of the week. Carl Kretzschmar sold over $2,000 worth of furs to the McMillan Fur company, of Minneapolis.

Sandy Miller lost a purse Monday containing a small amount of money and some valuable papers. It was found by Frank Bourque, who returned it to the owner.

Mrs. W. T. Mullarky left yesterday for New Mexico, where she goes in the hopes of regaining her health. She was accompanied by her husband as far as St. Paul.

A St. Patrick's Day Ball will be given at Hotel Markham, St. Hilaire, on the evening of March 27. Music will be furnished by Prof. Juliott, the harpist, and tickets will be $1.

The dance given by the M. W. A. last Thursday evening was largely attended and was one of the most enjoyable functions ever given in Thief River Falls. The lodge netted a neat sum.

Deputy Sheriff Charles Latta, of Crookston, was in the city the first of the week serving notices upon owners of property upon which the tax has become delinquent. He was accompanied by his wife.

A. Wright was down to Crookston the first of the week and purchased the engines used in the Mallinger elevator. He has shipped them to this city and will operate his saw mill by steam in the future.

If you want to file on a piece of government land it will not be necessary to go to Crookston. Make your filing in Thief River Falls before L. G. Browning, U. S. commissioner for the district of Minnesota.

Ed. Foley and Miss Katie Holzknecht were married in the Catholic church Monday morning, a large number of the friends of the contracting parties being present. They left the first of the week for North Dakota on a wedding trip.

Chas. Durand, one of the well known settlers of the Red Lake country, has purchased lot 6 of block 10, Meehan's addition, and will build a house upon the same this spring. Mr. Durand has a family of children and he removes here in order that they may attend school.

Henry Barrett, of the town of Excel, Marshall county, Minn., was in the city today making arrangements for shipment of several cars of stock to the west. Mr. Barrett has recently sold his farm and personal effects in Marshall county and will seek his fortune among the hills and valleys of Montana.—Crookston Tribune, Feb. 23.

A. D. Stephens sold today to Edward A. Tronners, of Shelly, a quarter section of wild land near Thief River Falls for $1,500. This makes three pieces Mr. Stephens has sold in the town of North during the past week. He says there are already more calls for farming lands even at this early season of the year than there ever was in the boom days.—Crookston Times, Feb. 22.

Sibley La Bree, of Thief River Falls, the oldest son of John La Bree, who, by the way, was the first marshall of Crookston, is in the city closing a deal for the sale of his farm in which several thousand dollars are at stake. He will remove to Montana and engage in the stock business, and will take with him several cars of young stock. Attorney N. Campbell has charge of his affairs and will arrange for transportation, etc. The La Bree farm is one of the best in Western Minnesota.—Crookston Tribune, Feb. 23.

M. V. Evenson was down to Red Lake Falls yesterday.

Ed. Evenson came down from the Red lake the first of the week.

Services will be held in the M. E. church next Sunday at 11 o'clock in the morning and 7:30 in the evening.

W. G. Porter Tuesday celebrated the fortieth anniversary of his birth. Although he has been sickly for years, his friends would not be surprised to see him live to 80.

The meanest man yet hails from near Shelbyville, says an exchange. He had a well that needed cleaning badly, but, fearing the treacherous quicksand at the bottom, he was afraid to undertake it. He hung his coat on a post near the well, and went into hiding for a few days. His neighbors, missing him, and finding his coat near the well, surmised that he had sunk beneath the quicksands, so they worked with a will to find his body. After the well had been thoroughly cleaned out in their efforts to find the body, the wretch showed up.

Fosston is a good ways from Kentucky, but it seems that some of the customs that have made the Blue Grass state famous obtain with the people out east, and even when going to church they carry their guns. The Thirteen Towns tells of a sleighing party that was organized to attend a prayer meeting on Sunday night, and, after the devotions, one of the young men decided on the way home to have a little fun. He pulled his gun, and placing it close to the ear of a gentleman sitting in front of him and let go, just to frighten him. The rig struck a chuck-hole just at that particular instant, and his aim was so unsteady that the 38 caliber ball went through the leg of a lady sitting on the front seat.

Everybody is talking about what improvements will be made in Thief River Falls this spring. Numerous ones have recently purchased lots and are now waiting the coming of spring when they can begin work. Others, who already have good buildings, are talking of painting them up. A little paint, a little brightening up, a little cleaning up of private grounds and of streets and alleys, a little repairing of side walks, a general disposition to neatness and order of good taste is what every town needs to be attractive and well spoken of by the community. Let the coming spring find the work of improvement in general be our main determination. By each one making their own home beautiful, will make attractive streets.

Mr. Speer, of New Jersey, has a reputation extending over the world as being a reliable producer of Oporto grape juice and Port wine. They are ordered by families in Dresden, London and Paris for their superior virtues.

Successful Operation.

Dr. Morley performed an operation on little Louis Hoff this morning for cross eye which was in every way successful and the little man will be around in a day or two with this defect in his personal appearance entirely cured. Dr Morley expected to perform the operation yesterday without putting the boy under the influence of chloroform, but, as he was such a little fellow, he decided not to do so, and the longer but surer method was adopted this morning.—Crookston Times.

STAGE GLINTS.

Winifred Arthur-Jones, daughter of Henry Arthur-Jones, the famous dramatist, has made a hit as an actress in London.

"A wild burlesque on melodrama" is one of the mild criticisms that was awarded the attempt to offer "Phroso" as a first class performance.

Charles Hawtrey, the English actor, dislocated a shoulder while playing recently. He finished the play and then fainted—just like a woman.

Annie Russell will play next season in R. Marshall's comedy, "A Royal Family," the leading role in which Gertrude Elliott has made a London success.

McKee Rankin has written a new comedy drama called "A Country Merchant," announced as a picture of Yankee life. Charles Cowles is the man who is presenting it.

"The Gay Debutante" must have been pretty dismal out of New York, for she only lasted two weeks. Then she closed her tour, and her players are back on the Rialto.

Kirk La Shelle has been offered a London theater for two years, beginning Jan. 1, in which to present Frank Daniels in "The Ameer," Gus Thomas' "Arizona" and "The Bonnie Brier Bush."

Reports that Fannie Rice would appear in vaudeville are denied. She is to take out a new play, the very bad title of which is "The Funniest Thing That Ever Happened," which will be changed so soon as a better one can be secured.

The members of the Kendals' company, especially Madge herself, are devoted to long constitutionals, and nearly every day most of them may be seen striding along in that English fashion some of those on this side try so hard and so ineffectually to imitate.

It is probable that James O'Neill will make a tour of Ireland in the spring. Mr. O'Neill's managers state that they are now making arrangements to that end and that should they be successful Mr. O'Neill and his company will present "The Musketeers" and "Monte Cristo" in the Emerald Isle.

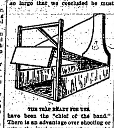
A BOX TRAP.

Simple Manner In Which One Woman Got Rid of a Great Pest.

Perhaps not all the "sisters" are fortunate enough to possess a henhouse which secures the poultry from the invasions of skunks, weasels, etc. Last winter we were annoyed much by skunks, and finally my husband planned and made a skunk trap and caught six skunks successively, the last being so large that we concluded he must have been the "chief of the band." There is an advantage over shooting or using the steel traps, as when caught in the box trap they may be carried off and box and all put under water until the animal is dead, thus preventing an "odoriferous exhalation." The trap is so easily made that any boy or girl who can drive a nail and saw a board should be able to make one.



THE TRAP READY FOR USE.

The plan from which ours was made may be of use to some one else.

The accompanying cut, Fig. 1, represents the trap when set. The bait is to be fastened on the inner end of the spindle. A good size for the trap is 7 by 8 by 24 inches, outside measure, but may be larger if desired. For a trap of this size cut two boards 6 by 23 inches for the sides, one 8 by 24 inches for the bottom, one 6 by 24 inches for the rear, to be cut as C in Fig. 2. The lid must be about 5¾ by 22¾ inches, the front the same width and five inches long. The lock for holding the lid down is made by nailing two slats one inch square and 18 inches long on the front of each of the side boards (as shown in Fig. 1) with a piece of board which has previously been fitted with a slat about one inch square and 20 inches long nailed on at right angles in the center. The hinges for the lid are made by driving a wire nail through the sides into the lid at each side near the rear.

The lock should work easily, so that it will fall into place when the lid drops. The spindle, A in Fig. 2, is cut with a shoulder which fits against the inside of the rear board, the notched end projecting out through a half inch auger hole. The upper end of the trigger, B in Fig. 2, fits into a notch cut about three inches above the hole for the trigger, while the lower end is hooked lightly in the notch cut in the outer end of the spindle. The string which holds the lid up when the trap is set is fastened near the center of the trigger, passed up over the top of the rear board and down to the front of the lid.—Mrs. Olive Chamberlain in Housekeeper.

Who Speaks First?

In your visits to the poultry coops at the shows this year look sharp for the man who advertises a guaranteed yearly egg record per hen. These are breeders who will soon be in demand, for to this standard must the industry be brought. Size, form, feathers, comb, wattle and leg featherings are all right and can easily be measured from the outside, but something more than this is demanded today, and the time is coming when the fair officials will require the record with the hen, as with other classes of stock. Looking for increased production, feeling the necessity for more eggs per hen, the demand will grow for the evidence upon which wiser and better selections may be made. Every man who breeds must have his eye on the 200 egg hen and seek diligently to find her. That she is far above the flocks of today there is no question, but no man dare say that diligent searching, coupled with skillful breeding, will not reveal her. The individual production of the flocks must be raised, and the man who speaks first and with authority, proving that he has reached a higher level than others, will find his surplus in active demand.—Maine Farmer.

Dry Earth.

Every season the admonition to lay in a supply of dry earth has been given, and it is one of the most important points to observe. A supply of dry earth, stored under shelter for winter use, will be found very valuable during the winter when the ground is frozen, and it will serve many purposes. As it costs nothing but the labor of storing it away, it should be attended to before the wet season begins.

Speer's Port Grape Wine

Nine Years Old,
Burgundy Eight Years Old, and
Claret 10 Years Old.
Extensive Wine Cellars.

Storing, Ageing and Racking Wine.

A wine made one year and sold the next is not a proper wine for invalids; to get rid of its coarse and injurious elements requires years for it to lay in wood casks, and by frequent drawing off from its gross sediment, or the coarse parts it becomes rich and mellow and valuable for invalids. It is sudorific, diuretic and blood making from the iron in the soil of the Speer vineyards in Northern N. J.

The principal varieties are the Port, Burgundy, Sherry and Claret and the Climax brandy. All these wines when stored for years and drawn off from time to time in fresh fumigated casks become vastly superior products and necessarily are more expensive. This is why Speer's wines and Brandy are more costly and so far superior to the California wines. They are absolutely pure; unexcelled by any in the world. Speer's wines are ordered by wealthy and refined families in Europe where they are prescribed by physicians and are esteemed for their superiority, velvety roundness, full body and refined flavor. The efficacy of these wines is wonderful. It has been a study and a pride during Mr Speer's life to produce a wine of the highest grade of perfection—not so much to make money as to excell in getting a wine of the richest character. He has spared no labor nor expense in bringing his vineyards and wines up to the above high standard of excellence. The Climax ★★★ Brandy twenty years old is equal to the finest French brands.

To be had of Druggists and Grocers who sell high class wines.

La Bree Avenue, Thief River Falls.

I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was, and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Say, John, what are you doing to look so healthy?"

A SUICIDE.

WASHBURN, WIS.

Well and Favorably Known in This City.

Dan McCarthy, who was employed last season as sawyer by the Thief River Falls Lumber company, was found last Thursday morning in box car on the Omaha flour dock at Washburn, Wis., dead. A rifle found beside him and a bullet hole in his left temple go to indicate that he commited suicide during the night. The body was frozen stiff when found. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide.

McCarthy was very well and favorably known here. He was considered one of the best lumber sawyers in the northwest and could always secure permanent employment at the best of wages. At times, however, he drank quite heavily and it is thought that he became desponded from the effects of a protracted spree, which caused him to commit the rash act, as no other cause for self-destruction is known. McCarthy was a married man and has a wife and three children living at Red Cliff, Wis.

OUR SENATOR

Married in Minneapolis Last Week.

Hon. O. H. Myran, of Ada, was married in Minneapolis last Wednesday evening, the bride being Miss Catharine Witzel. Mr. Myran is well known in this city, and is our representative in the state senate, having been elected in 1898 from the 61st senatorial district, which comprises the counties of Norman, Red Lake and Beltrami. His many friends in this city will extend congratulations.

AT WHOLESALE.

Furnishing Whiskey to Red Lake Indians.

Deputy U. S. Marshals F. W. Tufts, of Brainerd, and Robert Morrison, of Detroit, last week took three prisoners from the Red Lake Agency to Fergus Falls to await trial for furnishing whiskey to Indians.

Their names were At-wot-tay, May-mah-ge-gah-bow and Pat Kelly. The first named are nearly full blooded bucks of the Red Lake Chippewas, and the latter is a ladybuck from Cork.

The evidence is clear against the entire push, but particularly so against Kelly who had been placed under arrest by the Indian police at the Red Lake Agency just as the officers arrived there. Kelly is a stage driver, and had his rig so arranged that the booze could be secreted under the front portion of the wagon box. The officers caught him with three gallons and a quart of red liquor in his possession, and they not only arrested him, but confiscated his team and wagon, which he will forfeit to the government.

TO DAM RIVERS

And Establish Reservoirs—Meetings to Be Held.

As a result of the conference between Mayor Johnson of Fargo and Mayor Dinnie, of Grand Forks, held at Hotel Dacotha, last Friday evening, delegates from many towns interested will meet at Fargo, Wednesday, March 21, there to formulate plans and set the date for a gigantic meeting to be held in Grand Forks in the near future, at which time a memorial will be forwarded to Washington urging an appropriation of $800,000 by congress to be expended in the construction of dams and reservoirs at the sources of the Red and Red Lake rivers, the object being to prevent a repitition of the disastrous floods of several previous years and to improve the navigation on these streams. Col. Jones, of the corps of United States surveyors, in a recent report to his department stated that an appropriation of $800,000 would cover the entire cost of constructing the dams and reservoirs, which it is argued would effectually prevent further floods such as occurred in 1897, destroying millions of dollars worth of property throughout the valleys of the two rivers, amounting to several times the cost of the contemplated work in a single year. Aside from this the improvement in navigation that would result would be of inestimable benefit to every business man and farmer in the territory adjacent to the two rivers, as, if the plans formulated were carried out, both streams would be navigable the entire open season.

It is the intention to make the meeting to be held in Grand Forks a monster one and an endeavor will be made to have every city, town and township in the entire valley represented. A memorial to congress from such a representative gathering could not fail of proper recognition especially in view of the fact that a most disastrous flood occurred so recently. The benefits to be derived, it is thought, would be inestimable and and for this reason there would be not the slightest difficulty in arousing the widespread interest and hearty co-operation of every business man and farmer in the entire country affected, as their interests are mutual.

HE FORGOT

To Pay a Board Bill of Over Sixteen Dollars.

Ephram Drafane, who had been employed by the Great Northern in this city, drew his pay last week and left for Crookston. He forgot to pay a board bill of $16.50 to O. Persons, of the Cleveland house, who had a warrant sworn out for his arrest. Deputy Sheriff Hessley found the man in Crookston and he was tried before Judge Tarrant, who gave him thirty days in jail. Ephram was taken to Crookston last Saturday, where he was incarcerated in the Polk county jail.

The News office will be removed tomorrow to the First State Bank building opposite the Hotel Ogahmah. The new quarters will be more conveniently and centrally located.

FOUND THE COW.

Was Stolen About Two Years Ago.

Henry Lilsolt, of Thief River Falls, last week appeared before Judge Sullivan at Grand Forks and made complaint that a cow which had been stolen from his pasture June 1st, 1898, was in the possession of Peter Gosseline. A search warrant was issued and placed in the hands of Officer Guigley, who proceeded to dig up the cow and bring her into camp. As Mr. Gosseline bought the cow two years ago of a stranger and supposed the man he bought her of was the owner, no blame can possibly be attached to Mr. Gosseline, although the allegation in the complaint is that he had concealed the cow. The matter has not yet been settled.

Pension Items.

A recent report made by the commissioners of pensions to congress discloses the following facts in regard to the persons who are now drawing pensions. On account of the Revolutionary war there are four widows and seven daughters. War of 1812, one survivor and 1,998 widows. The various Indian wars from 1832 to 1842, 1,656 survivors and 3,889 widows. Mexican war, 9,204 survivors and 8,175 widows. It is quite a remarkable feature of the the above statement that there are four widows of the soldiers of the Revolutionary war, and 1,998 of the war of 1812 and only one soldier of that war. The longevity of these widows in comparison with that of their husbands is worthy of note. It would be fair to attribute much of it perhaps to the disparity in their ages, and not entirely to the hardships of war undergone by their deceased husbands. At the same rate it is predicted that there will be widows of the Civil war alive in the year 2000 A. D. It is now 35 years since the close of the Civil war and one-third of the entire Union army is on the pension list.

The Business Man.

The business man of these times would be seriously handicapped without his daily newspaper. He must not only keep posted with regard to the progress of events generally, but he wants particularly the most reliable and prompt service obtainable in the way of commercial news. In this particular, the Journal, of Minneapolis, concedes no equal among its Minnesota contemporaries. H. V. Jones, the commercial editor of the Journal, is recognised in commercial circles and by the commercial press of the country as an authority of high standing upon crop conditions and upon the commercial and financial situation of the northwest generally.

To Encourage Land Seekers.

The Great Northern has announced a rate of $5 from its terminals at the Twin Cities and Lake Superior to points as far north as St. Vincent, Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls. The dates, when the rates will apply are March 14, 20, 28. The excursions are for the stimulation of home seeker business and to give land seekers a chance to investigate the merits of the northwest.

SOW CLEAN SEED.

A Few Suggestions That Should Be Heeded.

The VanDusen-Harrington company, grain commission merchants, of Minneapolis and Duluth, have issued a very sensible pamphlet of "Suggestions for the Preparation of Seed Wheat," which they are distributing to the farmers and grain merchants of the Red River valley. A synopsis of the advice it contains is given below:

Our Northwestern farmers are all alive to the advantage of sowing good seed, very few of them, however, are careful enough to have the seed thoroughly cleaned.

Well matured and thoroughly clean seed is to be had so easily that there seems no excuse for sowing weed seed or poor wheat.

Light, shrunken or weak seed should never be sown. It makes no difference how the injury to the seed is brought about, whether by hot winds, wet weather, frost, parasites or by "burning" in the stack or bin. If inferior seed be sown, a good crop cannot be expected.

The best varieties for the farmer to sow for his main crop in any locality are those that have proved themselves adapted to that locality or to some locality having like soil and climate.

Continuous growth of wheat on the same kind of soil or under like climatic conditions does not cause degeneration, but, if proper care is taken in seed selection and the seed be kept pure, wheat grown for a long term of years in any locality should become, with each year, better adapted to the conditions of that locality. A change of seed from one locality to another often results in serious losses. Importation of seed from a distance should be resorted to only when it is impossible to obtain suitable seed near home, or when some new variety is to be tested, which should always be done on a small scale at first.

Smuts are caused by parasitic fungi, and the black, dusty masses which replace the heads and kernels of grain, from the "smut balls." These seeds are very minute and blow about and adhere to the kernel before it is planted. When the kernel sprouts, the black spores, or smut heads, also germinate and send delicate threads into the young seedling. These threads follow the growth of the plant and fill the head or kernel as soon as formed and there develop a mass of spores or smut seeds instead of wheat kernels. A careful estimate seems to show that one-fifth of all the wheat raised in Minnesota and the Dakotas is lowered one grade when it is marketed by reason of smut. One-fifth is about forty million bushels—and the loss on each bushel is certainly two cents, which makes eight hundred thousand dollars lost to our farmers. The above seems to us to be a very conservative estimate. We know that the loss is frequently five and sometimes ten cents per bushels.

There are several methods of treating seed wheat to free it from smut—the treatments most in use being with blue stone, lime, hot water and formalin. We will describe any of these methods when requested to do so. The value of formalin for this purpose (first made known by Professor H. L. Bolley, of the North Dakota experiment station), has proven to be the most satisfactory. It is used as follows: Make a solution of formalin, using one pound to 45 gallons of water. Put the wheat in a pile on the barn floor. Sprinkle the pile thoroughly with the solution and shovel over. Leave the grain piled for two or more hours and then repeat the sprinkling and shoveling until you are quite sure that all the grains have become wet, when the wheat may be sacked or piled until the next day. It is an advantage for the grain to be kept in the pile over night after the treatment, because the chemical has better opportunity to attack the smut spores. The drill should be set to sow more of this swelled seed than you would sow if dry. Formalin is non-poisonous. Formalin and formaldehyde are the same.

Do now whatever is necessary for seeding. Clean and sack the seed and clean, repair and oil the seeders. Remember that "As ye sow, so shall ye reap" and always lay by, at threshing time, the very best grain for seed.

By John W. Eastman.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

$1.50 PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

Thief River Falls, Mar. 8, 1900.

Probably never in the history of the United States have the representatives of a great political party forced the passage of a piece of legislation so universally condemned by the rank and file of the party as is the Porto Rican tariff act just pushed through the house by the powerful ways and means committee. Republicans all over the country have risen in indignant protest, and it is probable that the senate will be influenced by the tremendous pressure of public opinion to reject the house bill and thus pave the way for absolute free trade within the territory of the United States. The people demand nothing less.

The townsite boomers of the crooked city up the river by their plausible promises never meant to be fulfilled, and perhaps by the use of ——, always a convicting argument, have succeeded in fooling the people this time, and persuaded them to vote against their own interests.

Thus commented the Courier on the defeat of the proposition to bond the county for $10,000 and build a court house at Red Lake Falls. The offer of Thief River Falls to build a $10,000 court house and give it to to the county free of charge was made in good faith and will be fulfilled. The insinuation that money was used to defeat the proposition is far from the truth. A small fund to pay for necessary expenses was raised, and it was all spent legitimately.

DIPLOMATIC STATIONERY.

A Story Showing How It Is Misused Abroad For That Purpose.

The use of the official envelopes of the United States by both French and German spies is an old dodge, and a great many are stolen from the smaller consulates in Germany, where the folk in charge are rather careless about their stationery. Some inkling of this leaked out years ago, and the thing was talked about in diplomatic and newspaper circles as a good joke.

Bret Harte was then in the consular service in England, and naturally he heard the yarn. It struck him as good literary material, and he wrote a short story based upon it, which was published in one of the London Christmas annuals—I think The Graphic—but I am not quite sure, in either 1894 or 1895.

"This story," continued the newspaper man, "was quite different from Mr. Harte's usual vein and was very clever and amusing.

"It purported to be the narrative of the American consul at a fortified city in interior Germany and opened with the appearance at the local garrison of a very raw recruit, who speedily became the butt of his comrades.

"This poor fellow, who was the soul of good natured idiocy, used to come to the consulate to write letters to his 'brother in America,' and was allowed to help himself to the office stationery. Later on he disappeared and was supposed to have been drowned in the river while bathing.

"Two years afterward the consul was in Paris and while seated in front of a boulevard cafe was accosted by a smart young French captain in full uniform. The face of the soldier was strangely familiar, and suddenly a light broke in upon the consul. The smart captain was none other than the stupid recruit who had a dear brother in farway America.

"He was a French spy and a matchless mimic, and the consul forgot his chagrin over the misused stationery in his admiration for the man's pluck and audacity.

"The reader is given plainly to understand that the letters written at the consulate never went to America, but were addressed to a secret agent in Paris and passed safely through the mails, guarded by the official insignia of Uncle Sam.

"That tale is a tolerably striking confirmation of what I have said in reference to the use of our envelopes by spies on both sides."—San Francisco Chronicle.

SELECTIONS

UNITED STATES CITIES.

Some Odd Contrasts and Facts Revealed by Official Statistics.

Acting on instructions from congress the department of labor at Washington recently issued statistics relating to all the cities in the United States of a population of 30,000 or more. It was found, says the Pittsburg Dispatch, that there were 140 such cities, and the statistics collected throw much interesting light on their status and development.

The oldest city in the United States is Albany, which was incorporated in 1686, Philadelphia dating 15 years later. New York, Chicago and Philadelphia are the only American cities whose population runs into the millions. Some odd contrasts are presented in the tables which give the area covered by the different cities. It appears that Taunton, Mass., occupies territory greater than that of either Boston or Baltimore. New Orleans, a city of 285,000 inhabitants, covers 125,600 acres, while Newark, N. J., with a population of about the same size, occupies less than 12,000 acres. One expects to find the manufacturing districts of Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Illinois closely packed, but it is surprising to notice that Richmond covers only 6,520 acres and Louisville 12,800 acres as compared with Duluth and Des Moines, which, with much smaller populations in each case, cover, respectively, 40,000 and 34,500 acres.

The second table in the bulletin deals with saloons, police force and the number of arrests from drunkenness. Judging from the arrests made, it seems that Davenport, Ia., is the most sober city in the United States, while San Francisco and Boston suffer most from drunkards.—New York Telegram.

A Trick of the Plumber's Trade.

Foreman Parisl of the gas company, while boring a hole under the pavement at Oak and Fourth streets the other day so as to get in a service pipe for gas without breaking up the pavement, ran his auger through a lead service pipe connected with a water main. Water was flying in all directions, and as the lead pipe had been laid some 30 years ago and there was no record to show with what main it was connected the water could not be shut off. Finally Mr. Parisl broke open the pavement and jammed the end of the lead pipe and stopped the water from flowing through it.

The conundrum then was how to get the pipe repaired. A plumber was found who was equal to the occasion. He procured a lot of ice and some salt and packed the mixture around the "live" end of the pipe and soon froze the water solid in it. He then cut off the jammed end, inserted a piece in the broken length, made two joints, and then, removing the ice, the pipe soon thawed out, and the water flowed through it all right. The spectators who saw how it was done voted the plumber a genius, but he claimed no extraordinary credit for his skill, stopping such leaks being only a part of his business.—Portland Oregonian.

No, Not Whistler.

Professor Angeli, the queen's portrait painter, is a fortunate man. He alone is privileged to paint her majesty, not because he is a surpassingly fine artist, for in that respect his repute is not high, but because he is the only artist that the queen can bear to look at her. "Her majesty has got accustomed to me. To be constantly looked at by another man would greatly annoy her." It is useless to argue with regal prepossessions, but what a pity that her majesty did not choose an English or a Scotch or an American artist and get accustomed to him! Millais would not have looked at her more than was necessary, and as a painter he was worth a dozen Angelis. Mr. Sargent would have been a model of discretion and would have painted a portrait with tremendous force. Mr. Whistler—but, no, Mr. Whistler would have tried to instruct her majesty in the "gentle art of making enemies."—London Chronicle.

Every Congress Has Its Carpet.

The new carpet on the floor of the house of representatives is pretty to the eye and yielding to the touch. Every congress has its carpet. Congresses of even numbers have red carpets; congresses of odd numbers have green carpets—that is, in the one red is the dominant color, and in the other green dominates. As this is the Fifty-sixth congress—an even number—the carpet is red, and a very fine carpet it is too. There are 1,400 yards of it, and 200 yards more are laid away to piece it and patch it for the second session. The carpet of the last congress is now spread on the floors of the various committee rooms, and that will be the fate of its successor two years hence.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Women Smokers In London.

The restaurants where there is no restriction on women smoking include nearly all the most expensive and fashionable. The restaurants where the lady smoker is tabooed are, I should say, mostly those where the great British middle class treats its wives and daughters to a table d'hote at 5 shillings or, it may be, 3s. 6d. a head. There are, again, restaurants innumerable, not expensive and a trifle bohemian, where the ladies smoke as much as the men. The female smoker appears to flourish chiefly at the top and bottom of society. In the intermediate ranks she is looked on with suspicion.—London Truth.

Alexander Ramsey.

A letter received by a friend from Mrs. J. F. Burns, who, together with the children, recently joined her husband in Arizona, says that she does not like that country. The water there is poor, the flour they have is almost unfit to make bread and they have no end of trouble with flies—something out of the ordinary for a Minnesotan at this time of the year.

Lewis Ellington is still improving and hopes to be able to get out this week. At a meeting of the directors of the Scandia bank held on Saturday he was voted a vacation of three months in which to recuperate after his long, close and steady confinement to the details of the management of the bank, and it is likely that he will leave on a trip away, where he can lay aside all care and thought of business and become thoroughly restored.—Crookston Times.

Rev. G. F. Liening, after a sickness of a few weeks, is around again, and drove up to Middle River and preached there and Excel last Sunday.

Quarterly meetings of the Evangelical association will be held at Black River next Saturday and a part of Sunday. Rev. P. Lanx will conduct the meeting.

Fred Fair, of this city, and Will Dwyer, of Wisconsin, will wrestle next Saturday, March 10, in this city. The place for the wrestling match has not yet been selected.

There will be preaching at the parsonage hall of the Evangelical association on the corner of Horace ave, and 4th st. next Sunday at 7:30 p. m. Presiding Elder P. Lanx, from the Fargo Dist., will officiate. All are cordially invited to attend.

Ole Arneson and Miss Amelia Jensen were Wednesday united in the holy bonds of matrimony, Magistrate Toupin officiating. The groom is a prosperous farmer of Numedal, and the bride is a highly respected resident of Norden township. Mr. Arneson was left the same as homeless about two months ago by the loss of his former wife, with the care of a family and a large farm and farm property on his hands, and a woman at the head of his household was almost a necessity.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

Chris Porter, L. E. Maxwell, Ed. Baker and O. Grandstrand returned the first of the week from Grand Forks, to which point they succeeded in removing the old Red Lake Express. They experienced considerable difficulty in getting the boat safely there. It was hauled from this city to Buffington on sleds, but, owing to the lack of snow, had to be loaded on the cars at the latter point and shipped by rail to Grand Forks. Nearly every switch board enroute was knocked down, together with several telephone and telegraph poles. After the boat had been safely landed at the Forks and the party had prepared to return home, Chris Porter fell into a sewer, but, aside from the fact that the irrepressible Chris received a good ducking in unsavory water, no damage was done.

ROLLIS.

Mrs. George Drew is very sick at this writing.

R. Swhan was the lucky man this week to capture a wolf.

Mr. and Mrs. Abbott are entertaining friends from Alexandria.

O. J. Rollis returned Saturday from Thief River Falls with a large load of goods.

Nels Broodvick has returned from the pine woods where he worked this winter.

Jessie Waller was on the sick list the past week, but is reported better at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Forder and Mrs. J. Clark took advantage of the nice weather Sunday by calling around on friends.

BREVITIES

PERSONALITIES.

Baron von Windheim, chief of the Berlin police, is coming to this country soon for the study of our police methods.

Among the largest contributors toward a new home for consumptives in Chicago are Levi K. Leiter and H. O. Armour.

The late Mr. Samuel Walker of the Walker Oil works, Somerville, Mass., was the first man in America to import coal from Scotland for the manufacture of oil.

Samuel E. Eaton, whose death is announced, was known as "the father of insurance in St. Paul." It is said that he wrote the first insurance policy in Minnesota.

The late Thomas H. Ismay, who was the head of the White Star line of steamers, is deeply mourned by the old sailors of Liverpool, many of whom were kept from want through his generosity.

Charles Dani, the Italian cyclist who defeated the American Zimmerman at Florence, has been engaged as the leading tenor at the Lyric theater, Milan. He has had a thorough musical training.

M. Numa Droz, ex-president of Switzerland, whose death is announced, was born in the canton of Neufchatel Jan. 7, 1844, and was less than 37 years old when he became president of the Swiss confederation.

The friends of the Princess Ruspoli of Rome sympathize with her in the death of her distinguished husband. The princess was Miss Curtis, an American girl, and the prince was a member of the senate and mayor of Rome.

The new senator from Indiana, Beveridge, is still outclassed by Butler of North Carolina in respect to youth, the latter being 30 years of age and one year younger than the other. Following them come Penrose of Pennsylvania and McLaurin of South Carolina, both 39 years old.

Lord Armstrong, the famous gunmaker, has just entered his ninetieth year. It is now just 40 years since he was knighted for his invention of the Armstrong breechloading gun. But as the inventor of the modern system of hydraulics he deserves even greater fame than his gun has given him.

Mme. Duse is so much interested in dress reform that she lately got her daughter to write a letter in German to Frau Pachhammer in Berlin, president of the Society For the Improvement of Women's Dress, in which Mme. Duse declared that she herself never wears a corset either off or on the stage and has never allowed her daughter to wear one.

When Mr. Clark, junior senator from Montana, appeared to take the oath, he walked down the aisle on the arm of Mr. Carter, his colleague from the same state. A few minutes later the latter filed a protest against Clark's title to a seat on the ground that the newcomer's election had been procured by corrupt methods. Then the two went out to lunch together.

THE GLASS OF FASHION.

The combination of mink and ermine appears among the novelties in fur neckwear.

Gourrha aigrets which resemble a bunch of daisies blown by the wind are one of the fashionable hat trimmings.

A new veil, recommended especially for driving, has a transparent eye shield underneath which is said to protect the eyes from the dust.

A toque which finds some favor is made of smoky gray velvet, hand painted in a lighter shade mixed with white and completed with a gray tulle rosette and two wings and two fancy pins.

Toques with sable crowns and brims of mirror velvet, trimmed with muslin flowers, are a feature of millinery. Roses are the special kind, and the smaller sizes are much used, a wreath of white roses being the only trimming on a sable hat.

Very charming chinchilla turbans may be evolved from good bits of fur taken from collars and cuffs and muff coverings pretty well worn. By artfully matching the scraps themselves they have quite covered light buckram shapes, and by using a trifle of lace and small clusters of flowers to hide the conspicuous seams some admirable effects have been produced.—New York Sun.

PITH AND POINT.

How angry it makes a man to see any one he hates feel good natured!

Make a fool of yourself, and you will vindicate the opinions of those who hate you.

It is a swift age. Children think their parents are crazy, and parents think their children are crazy.

After the first baby arrives a man finds it more difficult to get sympathy from his wife when business is dull.

One of the funniest things in the world is to hear a quiet, timid little woman trying to entertain a man who is very deaf.

The first day after a fire you can't coax a fireman away from the engine house, but the third day he goes a block away and within a week has forgotten all about his caution.—Atchison Globe.

HUMOR

A CASE AT HAND.

The Professor's Lecture Had an Unexpected Illustration.

"In many cases of supposed heart disease," said the professor to the class of medical students, "the sufferer exhibits symptoms sufficient to alarm those who are accustomed to the true disorder."

The student at the foot of the class twisted around uneasily.

"It has been said by one," continued the professor, "who has given his life to the study of diseases of the heart that a sufferer from heart disease is rarely cognizant of the fact, a statement which is true if we except those acute attacks, which of course point out their own diagnosis. Chronic disorders are almost invariably insidious in their workings or, at any rate, give no symptoms which point the patient directly to the seat of the trouble."

The same student got up, but sat down again.

"There is a disorder of the heart, however," the professor proceeded, "which is marked by every symptom of distress of that organ and which is almost always confused with the graver forms of heart disease, but which, if properly and early treated, ends in recovery."

The same student looked out of the window suddenly.

"Excuse me, professor," he said, "but there she goes now, and, by thunder, I'm going right to her and propose to her flat. I haven't slept a wink for two nights."

And the professor smiled and went on with his lecture.

Her Charm.

"When I look at Mrs. Dapley, I can't help wondering whether it can be possible that her husband married her for love."

"Oh, no, he didn't!"

"Well, she didn't have money, did she?"

"No, but he could always keep step with her without assuming an unnatural gait."—Chicago Times-Herald.

A GREAT NEWSPAPER.

It has always been claimed for The Chicago Tribune that it would, in all probability, pass with the highest average in any competitive examination among the newspapers of the United States for excellence in all departments of journalism.

"Under date of May 2, 1899, the Omaha World-Herald, editorially answering a letter from 'Inquirer' asking the names of the five best newspapers in this country, points out that a newspaper may excel in one way and be inferior in another. The World-Herald gives lists under five general headings of leading American newspapers distinguished especially for excellence, mentioning in all some twenty.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE HEADINGS:

"(1) Most and best news, foreign and domestic, presented attractively.
"(2) Best possible presentation of news briefly.
"(3) Typographical appearance.
"(4) Classification of news by departments.
"(5) Editorials.
"The Chicago Tribune is the only newspaper in the United States which the World-Herald considers worthy of mention under four different heads."—From the October Plain Talk.

Practically all high-class intelligent newspaper readers, comprising the best and middle classes in Chicago and vicinity, read The Chicago Tribune. A great majority of them read no other morning newspaper.

Speer's Port Grape Wine

Nine Years Old,
Burgundy Eight Years Old, and
Claret 16 Years Old.
Extensive Wine Cellars.

Storing, Ageing and Racking Wine.

A wine made one year and sold the next is not a proper wine for invalids; to get rid of its coarse and injurious elements requires years for it to lay in wood casks, and by frequent drawing off from its gross sediment, or the coarse parts it becomes rich and mellow and valuable for invalids. It is sudorific, diuretic and blood making from the iron in the soil of the Speer vineyards in Northern N. J.

The principal varieties are the Port, Burgundy, Sherry and Claret and the Climax brandy. All these wines when stored for years and drawn off from time to time in fresh fumigated casks become vastly superior products and necessarily are more expensive. This is why Speer's wines and Brandy are more costly and so far superior to the California wines. They are absolutely pure; unexcelled by any in the world. Speer's wines are ordered by wealthy and refined families in Europe where they are prescribed by physicians and are esteemed for their superiority, velvety roundness, full body and refined flavor. The efficacy of these wines is wonderful. It has been a study and a pride during Mr Speer's life to produce a wine of the highest grade of perfection—not so much to make money as to excel in getting a wine of the richest character. He has spared no labor nor expense in bringing his vineyards and wines up to the above high standard of excellence. The Climax ★★★ Brandy twenty year old is equal to the finest French brands.

To be had of Druggists and Grocers who sell high class wines.

I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Say, John, what are you doing to look so healthy?"

AGAIN POSTPONED.

Hearing of the Red Lake County Case.

Attorney O. E. Aoughton, representing Red Lake county in the matter of county division affairs, appeared before Judge Watts last Wednesday and set up an answer to the claim of Polk county.

The defense alleges, among other things, that a portion of the demand made is based upon certain issues of bonds in times past which were fraudulent.

Claim is also made for a portion of the money that was in the county treasury when the separation was effected, and the defendant county also asks a portion of the money collected from delinquent taxes, all of which are purely questions of law.

A continuance was asked and granted until the 27th of March, in order to give time to file written arguments in the case, and a final hearing and disposal of the case will come up on that date.—Crookston Times.

ARE NOT STYLISH.

A New York Paper Criticises Our Congressmen.

The following from the New York Herald displays the usual abyssimal ignorance of the hard-shell easterner as to things western:

As a rule, Philadelphia and New York send the best dressed men to congress. When it is a question of the worst dressed member, there is no doubt that F. M. Eddy, of Minnesota, takes the premium; and yet it is probable that no other man in congress spends more money on his clothes than he does. If he gets a new suit, he buttons the lowest button into the top buttonhole, and, inside of forty-eight hours, that $75 costume looks like an arrangement in "hand-me-downs."

Eddy is an example of the man who wants to be a "howling swell," but cannot succeed somehow. He was born way up in Minnesota when that part of the country was a wilderness, and as a boy he worked in a brickyard. The most unpretending of men and jolliest of good fellows, he is exceedingly popular. The people of his district worship him, and no wonder, as when he goes out on an electioneering tour he wears a blue shirt and a pair of tall boots, hires a brass band to help along the enthusiasm, and talks to the lumbermen in the logging camps in their native Norwegian.

Twine is Scarce.

The rope manufacturers are buying up all the binder twine that can be procured, and, as a result, there is already a great shortage of twine in the northwestern states. There is practically no hemp procurable and the twine manufacturies will have a hard time of it. The rope manufacturers were driven to the purchase of twine on account of their inability to secure hemp.—Minneapolis Times.

See What a President Says on Brandy for Sickness.

The president of the Baltimore medical college, who has thoroughly tested Speer's wines and brandy, says: "Speer's climax brandy is a pure and valuable article in all cases of disease in which a reliable stimulant is required. I regard it superior to most French brandies.

FROZEN TO DEATH.

An Aged Resident of Red Lake Falls Found Dead.

Last Wednesday morning the body of an aged man, Alexi Violet, was found by an employee of the Great Northern road half reclining against the company's water tank in that city, frozen stark and stiff. The coroner was summoned and an inquiry developed the fact that the deceased had been in the city the day previous and had been drinking. He had started for home late at night but mistook the route and, being old and quite feeble, had sat down by the tank, probably to rest. He fell asleep, never to wake again in this world. Deceased was 70 years of age and has resided at Red Lake Falls for a number of years. He leaves a widow and a family of grown children.

INDIAN CENSUS.

Report Shows 1,000 More Deaths Than Births.

Washington, March 10.—The annual reports of Indian agents which have been received by the commissioner of Indian affairs will be printed in the form of an appendix to the report of the commissioner. They show that the number of Indians is 297,905, of which number 95,659 wore citizens' dress, while 31,923 wear a mixture of Indian and civilized clothing. Those who can read number 42,597 and 63,814 can carry on an ordinary conversation in English. There are 25,236 dwelling houses built for Indians, 1,150 of which were built within the last year. The number of births was 4,237 and the deaths 5,253. Twenty-six Indians were killed by whites and seven whites by Indians. One Indian was killed by other Indians. The number of Indian criminals punished was 1,469. There were 31,655 Indian church members and 348 church buildings upon the various reservation. The amount of money contributed during the last year by religious and other societies was, for education, $261,515; for general church work, $119,407, and $10,016 from New York for the support of the schools established by that state.

Reports Required.

The state board of health is adopting stringent measures to secure reports of births and deaths. Notices have been sent to town clerks and health officers of villages throughout the state informing them that it is their duty to see that parents and guardians make the proper reports in this matter, and that anyone failing to do so is to be prosecuted under the law. Town clerks and health officers in turn who neglect this matter are also to be prosecuted by the state board. It is doubtful if any law on the statutes is much more generally ignored than this, indeed, its violation has been so universal that the statistics bearing on this subject are considered of little value. Not half of the officers see to it that the law is enforced.

A Strong Combination.

A strong combination in the way of first-class newspaper features is made up of the Minneapolis Journal's incomparable northwest news service, its superior Washington service, and "Barts" daily cartoons. These three features alone make the Journal invaluable to the northwestern readers.

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

The Republican state convention to elect delegates to the national convention will be held in Minneapolis, May 10.

The county conventions will be held May 9.

The state convention to nominate a state ticket will be held in St. Paul, June 28.

The county conventions will be held June 21.

The representation will be the same as in 1898. Red Lake county is entitled to seven delegates.

DR. COLE A CANDIDATE.

Major Cole, formerly surgeon of the Fourteenth regiment, has announced himself as a candidate for the Republican nomination for congressman from the Seventh district. Mr. Cole gave the following reasons as his claim upon the Republicans of the district:

First. I am a Republican, and in accord with the national administration on the great questions growing out of our late war with Spain; and particularly on the question of the Porto Rican tariff as announced by President McKinley in his message to congress on that subject, and I approve and endorse the vote of Representatives Fletcher and Heatwole on that tariff bill.

Second. Two years ago I was urged by friends to become a candidate for congress at that time, and declined for the reason that I then thought that Hon. Frank M. Eddy should be accorded another term, believing that such third term would round out his honorable congressional career.

Third. At the last election I refused to become a candidate for re-election to the state senate, and then publicly gave as my reason for such refusal that I intended to be a candidate for congress in two years from that time, and did not think it fair to my friends or the Republican party to be a constant seeker for public favors.

Mr. Cole is well and favorably known throughout the district, and, should he receive the nomination, would have the hearty support of all loyal Republicans. Congressman Eddy, however, is a candidate for re-election, and his claims upon the Republicans of the Seventh district are greater than those of Mr. Cole's. He redeemed the district from the Populists, has been elected each year by increased majorities and has been a faithful representative. The northern portion of the district will be solid for the re-election of Eddy, and it is to be hoped that the southern portion will follow suit.

PRIVATE JOHN STEM, of the 12th U. S. infantry, formerly of Traill county, N. D., writes from Luzon: "Before we left Angeles a letter carrier of Aguinaldo's was caught with letters on his person from insurgent officers in Manila sending clippings of W. J. Bryan's latest speeches to the rebel officers at Tarlac. Now if that isn't enough to turn any true American against the Democratic party, I don't know what is. They encourage the insurgents in every way possible. I wish they would have to face a shower of bullets for about three hours once and then, may be, they would want the war to close. I believe, too, that a good dose of the chills and fever would do them some good. A fellow cannot escape from or get out of the malaria here, if he stays for 50 years. It got me when I first got to Angeles and shows up about twice a month. It never kills anyone, but it is awful unpleasant to have."

FROM CHILDHOOD DAYS.

Looking Back to the Times When Spankings Were Administered.

"I don't believe in whipping children myself," said the unmarried woman. "I never was whipped but once in my childhood that I can remember."

"And that time?"

"I sat in the middle of the floor with my cat and teased my grandmother for some jam, and she said I couldn't have any. I didn't look at her, but I said slowly to my pussy:

"'Pussy, I wish one of us three was dead. It ain't you, and it ain't me.' My mother came in and heard it, and I got my whipping quick. Every other time when I was naughty and she sent for me I used to run to her and say, 'Kiss me quick, mamma,' and she couldn't whip me after that."

"I used to get an occasional whipping," said the woman next door, "and I never surprised my mother but once. She had been scouring the neighborhood for me, when I was playing in the next block, just after dark. Mother was terribly worried. Jimmie Thompson, who lived on our street, had fallen in the water and been drowned, and mother was imagining all sorts of things about me till I guess she convinced herself that I was drowned too. When they found me and brought me home, I got a spanking. And then I walked out of the room, saying with great dignity:

"'I don't believe you're my mother at all.'

"'What's that, child?' she almost screamed in her astonishment. 'Come back in this room.'

"'I don't believe you're my mother at all,' I repeated firmly. I was 9 years old.

"It so disconcerted her that she talked to me for an hour and kissed me and petted me and forgot all about going out to console poor Mrs. Thompson, down the street. When I got into bed, happy, my childish brain had only one thought: Why didn't I think of scaring mother that way before?"—New York Press.

A Reassuring Indorsement.

She handed the check to the paying teller. She was calm and collected, as if it was an everyday matter.

"Madam," said the teller gently, "you have forgotten to indorse it."

"Indorse it?" with a little worried smile.

"Yes. You must write your name on the back here to show that you will repay this bank in case the issuer of this check should fail to answer our call."

"Oh!" she said, accepting the pen.

When the teller looked at the check again, this is what he read:

> The —— bank has always paid up what it owes, and you need have no worry. Therefore, I indorse this check. Very truly yours,
> MRS. J. B. BLANK.

The teller fell over into the vault.—Syracuse Herald.

A Conundrum.

"I heard the following conundrum," said H. A. Fallows, "which struck me as distinctly clever: 'What character is there in the Bible who possesses no name, who suffered death in different form from any inflicted before or since that time, a portion of whose shroud is in every household, and the cause of whose death has been made famous by a modern author?'

"Give it up, eh? Well, the answer is, Lot's wife. She possesses no name; no one else met death through being turned into a pillar of salt; salt is in every household, and Edward Bellamy wrote 'Looking Backward;' so there you are."—New York Tribune.

How to Make Wine Sauce.

Beat two tablespoonfuls of butter to a cream. Add gradually one-half of a cupful of powdered sugar and beat this until white. Add the white of one egg unbeaten and beat again. When ready to serve, add one-half of a cupful of boiling water and one-half of a cupful of sherry wine. Cook over boiling water until smooth, but not any longer. Do not make this sauce until ready to serve it. If it stands, it will lose its lightness.

How to Make Fish Omelet.

Two eggs, four ounces of cold fish, a teaspoonful of parsley, two ounces of butter. Beat the yolks and whites of the eggs separately, then together; flake the fish and add the parsley and an ounce of butter, broken into small pieces. Mix these all together; put an ounce of butter in an omelet pan; let it melt, but not brown. Pour in the mixture; stir it with a spoon. The minute the omelet commences to set stop stirring, double the omelet, shake and fry till it is a golden brown; turn on to a very hot dish.

OLD SENATORS.

Many of Them Have Passed the Threescore and Ten Mark.

Four of the oldest men in the senate sit side by side in the front row. They are Pettus of Alabama, who is 78 years old; Cockrell of Missouri, who is 65; Vest, also of Missouri, who is verging on 70, and Morgan of Alabama, who will be 76 next June.

Age has dealt lightly with these four old men with the exception of Senator Vest, who is beginning to give evidence of the weight of threescore years and ten upon his diminutive form, says the Washington Post. Pettus is wonderfully well preserved. He is known as the Confucius of the senate because he looks so wise and is so deliberate in his talk. Cockrell is one of the hardest workers in the senate, and his constant watchfulness while bills are being considered is proverbial. Vest used to be one of the greatest orators and debaters in the body, but of late he has participated but little in the proceedings. Morgan is one of the wise men of the senate. He knows everything about everything. When he was a boy and books were scarce, he used to train his memory by learning to repeat each volume, a chapter at a time. His parents wanted him to become a minister, but he drifted into law and then into politics. He is one of the few men in the senate who have the really broad gauge of a statesman.

Very few of the old men in the senate show their age. No one would ever suspect that Platt of Connecticut was 72 or that Cullom of Illinois was 70 last November. Senator Hawley of Connecticut is 73, Gear of Iowa will be 75 next April, and Hoar of Massachusetts is 73. Senator Teller is still vigorous, with his seventieth birthday rapidly approaching, and Frye is a remarkably young man for the weight of nearly 70 years. Jones of Nevada is 69, while his colleague, Stewart, is 72.

Senator Bate of Tennessee, like the late Senator Harris, will not disclose his age. He must be 70 or thereabout, for he was a soldier in the Mexican war, over half a century ago.—Boston Herald.

Pure Liquid Air.

The color of pure liquid air is a beautiful pale blue. Before an eastern college recently was exhibited two samples of liquid air in glass tubes. One was made from air which had been washed to purify it from dust, soot, carbonic acid and other impurities. This, when condensed, was a pale blue liquid. The other sample was made by condensing some of the air of the lecture room in which the audience was assembled and was an opaque, blackish fluid, resembling soup in appearance.

It would appear as if condensed samples of air might afford an easy means for comparing different kinds of contamination. It may be possible some day to supply the hospitals of tropical countries where the natural air supply is bad and the necessity for a better one very pressing with beautiful blue country air guaranteed absolutely pure. This can never be accomplished, however, until some means have been provided for transporting liquid air to considerable distances without enormous losses, caused by its return to its former state.

The Lash In England's Navy.

Flogging is almost unknown in the British navy nowadays, but it has not been abolished by law. The lash is used as a punishment for a limited number of offenses, and not infrequently years pass without a single application of the lash. Recently, however, an incorrigible character on board one of the warships at Cape Town was sentenced to receive 18 lashes. He became unconscious before the punishment was completed and was sent back to his quarters. The affair has created a great sensation in England and may lead to organized agitation for the abolition of flogging in the navy. Fifty years ago a sentence of 18 lashes would have seemed to the public simply a normal penalty for an infraction of discipline and would have occasioned no comment. Today it is described as brutal.—Boston Transcript.

That Lafayette Dollar.

Readers who may wonder why it is that their favorite newspapers do not illustrate the new Lafayette dollar among other matters of interest are informed that it is because of the peculiar wording of an act of congress and the peculiar interpretation placed upon it by the secret service department of the treasury, which, taken together, make it a penal offense to print a representation of any coin. MOMENTS OF DANGER

CRUCIAL SECONDS IN THE LIVES OF ENGINEERS.

Just What They Do, or Should Do, in Cases of Peril on the Rails—Few Have Been Found Wanting When the Emergency Came.

To the engineer belongs the most hazardous and at the same time the most responsible task of any of the men who run the train, and the passengers on one of the great fliers as they loll back in their seats reading the most recent work of fiction or gazing placidly forth at the scenery scarcely ever give a thought to the fact that ahead of them is a dust and oil begrimed man who, for the time being, literally carries their lives in the hollow of his sweaty hand. It is extraordinary how few cases there are where engineers have been found derelict in the moment of trial. There have been innumerable wrecks since railroads were first introduced into the country, but the record of the number of engineers who have failed when the crucial test came is infinitesimal.

When once danger appears in front, an engineer's duty is, first, to close the throttle; second, to apply the airbrakes; third, to reverse the engine—that is, to throw over the reversing lever, which enables the engine to run in the opposite direction from which it had been going; fourth, to reopen the throttle. To do these four acts calls for but a small fraction of time, but where wrecks result the danger is usually so imminent as frequently not to leave even sufficient interval to accomplish them, and often when the ruins have been cleared away the body of the faithful guardian has been discovered with his hand stiff in death on the throttle, reverse lever or brake, and bearing silent witness as to how far he had got toward the accomplishment of that duty which he had yielded his life to perform.

Many engineers are reckless and will take awful chances. At one time a certain driver was taking through a special train consisting of four empty freight cars and a caboose. The station master told him that the down train was a trifle late and due at the next station beyond, seven miles away, at 2:37 o'clock. Glancing at his watch, the engineer said he had nine minutes and decided to take the chance. He had to cross a bridge just beyond the town he was leaving, and midway across he began to increase his speed. As the engine struck ground again on the other side and they headed straight up the river's valley he threw her wide open and gave his engine every ounce of steam there was in the boiler. Three miles farther on, when running to the limit of his capacity, he struck the down train head on. Both engineers and firemen were killed outright, and the engines reduced to a condition that rendered them only fit for the scrap heaps.

Strange to say, no passengers or other members of either crew were killed outright or afterward died as the result of injuries received. Only the shoulders and head of the fireman of the special were ever found. He had been driven into the door of the fire box feet first, but had stuck at the shoulders. The white hot fire within had completely incinerated the rest of his body. To look at the door of a fire box such a casualty as that seems all but impossible, the opening looks so small. In reality, however, it is large enough, as any railroad man can tell you.

The watch of the engineer of the special when found was still running and was four minutes behind. It was to this error of his timepiece that the tragic death of himself and his three companions was due.

In daylight it is the habit of the engineer to follow with the eye the glistening track of rails over which he must travel. Should a rail be misplaced, it would break this line of light and betray itself to the watchful man in time to stop and save his train. This particular wreck, however, resulted from that curse and dread of all railroad runners—the washout. The culvert which caused it was a short one, its width being hardly greater than the combined length of engine and tender. The masonry had been carried away; but, the fishplates and spikes holding firm, the rails still crossed the gully. This held the rail line of light true, and in consequence the engineer was well up to the danger before he realized it. He was able to stop the train, but to do so had to go into the ditch himself, although fortunately he did not lose his life.

He was washed out of his cab window by the flood. His jumper catching over a stone, the train newsboy fortunately found him in time to save him from death by drowning. So close a thing was it that when the train came to a full stop the front wheels of the forward truck of the baggage car were hanging over the opening made by the washout. No one was injured save the engineer, who escaped with a couple of broken ribs and a dislocated shoulder. He completely recovered, however, and is one of the most trusted engineers on that particular line to this city.

A rather amusing thing occurred in connection with this wreck. There was little coal in the tender, what was left being in the rear, and the fireman [illegible]

Bankrupt's Petition For Discharge.

In the matter of Emil J. Holmes, Bankrupt. } In Bankruptcy.

To the Honorable William Lochren, Judge of the District Court of the United States, for the District of Minnesota.

Emil J. Holmes, of St. Hilaire, in the County of Red Lake, and State of Minnesota, in said district, respectfully represents that on the second day of February, A. D. 1900, last past, he was duly adjudged bankrupt under the acts of Congress relating to bankruptcy; that he has duly surrendered all his property and rights of property, and has fully complied with all the requirements of said acts and of the orders of the court touching his bankruptcy.

Wherefore he prays that he may be decreed by the court to have a full discharge from all debts provable against his estate under said bankrupt acts, except such debts as are excepted by law from such discharge.

Dated this 6th day of March, A. D. 1900.

EMIL J. HOLMES,
Bankrupt.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
District of Minnesota, Sixth Division—ss.

On this 10th day of March, A. D. 1900, on reading the foregoing petition, it is Ordered by the court, that a hearing be had upon the same on the 27th day of March, A. D. 1900, before said court, at Fergus Falls, in said district, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon; and that notice thereof be published in the Thief River Falls News, a newspaper printed in said district, and that all known creditors and other persons in interest may appear at the said time and place and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered by the court, that the clerk shall send by mail to all known creditors copies of said petition and this order, addressed to them at their places of residence as stated.

Witness the Honorable William Lochren, Judge of the said court, and the seal thereof, at Fergus Falls, in said district, on the 10th day of March, A. D. 1900.

Some of the farmers of Roseau county are taking advantage of the bankruptcy law and four have recently filed petitions in bankruptcy with Referee Vaule, of Crookston. Their aggregate assets amount to $615.50 and liabilities amount to $9,244.

Clerk John Mickleson, of the Modern Woodmen, last Monday received a draft for $500 for the widow of the late John Sande, it being the amount of insurance carried by Mr. Sande in the above named order. The money was received thirty days after the proof of death had been sent in and goes to show that the Woodmen are meeting all obligations promptly.

Many of our citizens are being called upon to make payment of taxes for years gone by, which they have every reason to believe have been paid at the time, and in some cases they hold receipts for taxes which are now claimed to be due over in Polk county, under the forfeited sale. Whether this is caused by the dishonesty or carelessness of former county officials is a question.

James McGrein, of Crookston, was in town Tuesday transacting business with A. J. Dwyer, for whom he is building a steam tug to be launched on Red lake for the purpose of handling Mr. Dwyer's logs. This tug will be the largest and most powerful on the lake, as it will be capable of taking a raft of 1,000,000 feet of logs across the lake at a single tow. This will be a great saving of both time and expense to Mr. Dwyer in handling the vast drive of logs he has on Red lake every spring.—Beltrami County Advocate.

How to Make Hollandaise Sauce.

Cream one-half of a cupful of butter. Add the yolks of three eggs, beaten one at a time, beating thoroughly with the butter after each yolk is added. Then add a little salt, a dash of cayenne pepper and juice of one-fourth of a lemon, a little at a time. Just before serving add one-fourth of a cupful of boiling water. Place the bowl in a pan of boiling water and stir the mixture constantly until it becomes quite thick. Remove and stir for one minute. If it cooks too long, it will curdle.

How to Make Corned Beef Hash.

Two bowls of corned beef, four bowls of boiled potatoes chopped fine, a dash of pepper. Grease a baking dish; put the hash in it to moisten with a cup of water. Insert a knife all over the top and put dots of butter in. Bake an hour and a half.

How to Serve Wild Duck.

TO WRESTLE.

Fred Fair and Will Dwyre Will Mix Up Tonight.

There will be a wrestling match this evening at the city hall between Fred Fair, the well known local wrestler, and Will Dwyre, of Wisconsin, which promises to afford a world of amusement for "the boys." Dwyre has put up some good work in very strong company and has been thrown only by McMillan, Burns and McCloud, while the reputation of Fair as a good thing needs no comment in this city. The match will be on its merits, three falls out of five, catch-as-catch-can.

AT $500.

Saloon Licenses for This Year Will Be the Same.

At a meeting of the city council held Monday evening, the question as to the price to be charged for liquor licenses came up. A number of the saloon keepers were present, and some were in favor of making the license $750, while a majority of them favored $500, and this was the price the council finally decided upon. There will be three or four new saloons opened up in the city this spring. The chief of police was also given instructions to close all saloons promptly at 11 o'clock in the future.

Another Accident.

A terrible accident occured in one of Bagley's lumber camps Friday afternoon, as a result of which John Newman, a chopper, whose home is at Stillwater, Minn., is lying at a point of death in the hospital at Bemidji, with his skull crushed, his shoulder dislocated and otherwise bruised and disfigured. He was chopping down a tree when one which another chopper was felling came crashing down upon him, knocking him insensible and bruising him terribly. His companions conveyed him to camp as quickly as possible, from where he was taken to Ferris, where medical aid was summoned. Everything possible was done to make the injured man comfortable and he was taken to the Bemidji hospital on the first train. He had not yet recovered consciousness when taken to the hospital, and it is very doubtful if he will ever recover sufficiently to know what happened.

The fact that the unfortunate man has a wife and several children at Stillwater makes the case a sad one should it result fatally, as is feared.—Crookston Times.

Some Big Figures.

State Auditor Dunn has made a summary of the tax lists of the Minnesota counties for 1899, which shows that the total assessed valuation of the state is $585,083,828, being about $6,000,000 more than for 1898. In round numbers there are $250,000,000 of acre property, $240,000,000 of city lots, and $92,000,000 of personal property. The average rate of taxation is 24.85 mills, as against 23.9 for 1898.

A Strong Combination.

A strong combination in the way of first-class newspaper features is made up of the Minneapolis Journal's incomparable northwest news service, its superior Washington service, and its "Bart's" daily cartoons. These three features alone make the Journal invaluable to the northwestern readers.

FOUR GREAT HANDS.

HELD IN A TRENTON POKER GAME MANY YEARS AGO.

The Winner Not Only Got Away With a Small Fortune, but, Thanks to His Betrothed, Did Not Have to Postpone His Wedding.

Good stories are told of the poker games that were played in Trenton away back in the fifties, and perhaps none is better than that which relates how a wedding was postponed because the bridegroom was interested in a good sized jackpot.

One of the hardest players that the "regulars" had to deal with was James Rawson, who ran a general merchandise store down in Cumberland county. He also was interested in the oyster trade and, as the saying is nowadays, he had money to burn.

In the winter of 1854 Rawson came to Trenton to help push through the legislature a bill in which he was interested, and one evening he got mixed up in a game of poker in the United States hotel with Sol Travers, Jerry Holcomb and Dick Collins, three of the gamest players that ever drew cards.

The game was innocent enough when it started, but along about 3 o'clock the next morning it had assumed proportions calculated to make an ordinary player gasp when the bets were made. Rawson was the youngest man at the table and had probably played poker less than any of the others, but he had money and nerve, and the way he used both made the other players keep their eyes open. There wasn't much difference in the winnings up to 2:30 o'clock, when the cards suddenly got freakish, as they will sometimes, and began to run against Rawson.

The players wouldn't give up the game to eat, and they had their food brought to them when breakfast time came. They laid down the cards long enough to eat, then went at it again. Rawson's hard luck kept up. He turned his hat around, crossed his legs, got up and walked around his chair, rung in a new pack of cards and did everything that a superstitious poker player does to change his luck, but it wouldn't change. His money kept drifting away until 10 o'clock in the forenoon, when he counted his capital and found that he had $200 left. He had fed about $1,800 to the "tiger" and naturally felt a trifle cranky.

At last a jack pot was started about 10:30 o'clock, and the cards were dealt around half a dozen times or more, and nobody got openers.

"Hurry up, boys, and open it," said Rawson. "I've got to catch that 11:45 train. I'm going to be married tonight, and I must be in by 5 o'clock and dressed for the occasion."

But the boys didn't seem to be able to hurry. They dealt and dealt, but the right kind of hands wouldn't fall, and finally there was a snug little pot of about $600 on the table. At 11:30 Travers opened the pot for $100. Holcomb and Collins staid.

"I feel just as if I was going to win that pot," said Rawson, writing some figures on a piece of paper and tossing it to the center of the table with what money he had left. "I'm shy $50, boys; but I guess I'm good for it."

"Your check is as good as your money," said Travers.

"Every bit," said Holcomb and Collins.

"But you'll never catch that train," remarked Travers.

"By thunder," exclaimed Rawson, "I forgot all about that!" He looked at his watch and found that he had three minutes in which to get to the station. "There's no use in trying to make it now," he said. "They'll have to postpone the wedding. I'll telegraph that I've missed the train." A few minutes later a messenger was sent to the telegraph office with a message, and the game went on.

"The pot was $1,000 strong when the men drew cards, and the result was the most remarkable set of poker hands that the old time players in Trenton recall. Travers was dealing. Holcomb called for one card. Collins took one, Rawson took four, and Travers drew one.

Everybody around the table saw that there was business ahead. Travers made a bid for a raise by betting $25, which was lifted $200 by Holcomb, and Collins raised the $200 so that when it came around to Rawson it cost $425 to come in. Everybody thought he would throw down his cards, but he didn't. He slowly drew a checkbook out of his pocket and wrote a check for $1,000 and shoved it into the middle of the table, thus raising Collins $575. The other players thought he was bluffing. Travers met the raise at once and added $500 to it. Holcomb saw that and raised it another $500. Collins simply saw the raise, and Rawson lifted it another $1,000.

Travers settled back in his chair and eyed Rawson narrowly. "You've got pretty good nerve, old man," he said, "but you can't make me lay down; not on a four card draw anyway." Then he saw Rawson's $1,000 raise and increased it $500.

"I call you," said Holcomb, shoving in $1,500.

"I might as well take a chance for money," said Collins, laying $1,500 on the pile. Rawson put down another check for $500.

"Well, boys, I'm sorry for you," said Travers. "I've got four queens." He threw them down.

"That beats my four jacks," said Holcomb, "and my four tens," said Collins, "but it don't beat my four kings," said Rawson, spreading out his cards. He had four kings and an ace.

"Thunderation, what a draw!" exclaimed Travers.

"'Twas pretty good," said Rawson, raking in the money. "I got them all in a bunch. I held up an ace."

Rawson won $15,000, and $11,250 of it came out of the pockets of the other three men. It was the biggest jackpot ever won in Trenton.

After the money had been counted and stowed away in Rawson's inside pocket he expressed remorse over his indifference to his wedding appointment. But he didn't have long to mourn. The girl he was to marry had a mind of her own, and when she received Rawson's telegram she got herself ready and, boarding a north bound train, came to Trenton, where she arrived about 6 o'clock in the evening. Rawson was delighted to see her, and they went to a preacher and were married.—New York Press.

WHISTLE AWAY.

Whistle away, my merry boy,
With happy face and heart of joy.
If it will help you to be strong,
Whistle a tune when things go wrong,
And whistling lightens it for you.
If e'er your task is hard to do,
Whether it be sowing the seeds,
Hoeing the corn or pulling weeds,
Gathering fruit or raking hay
Or driving cows, whistle away.

Whistle a tune, if you can't sing,
And that should seem the next best thing
That you can do. Perhaps 'twill cheer
The hearts of some who chance to hear.
Better to whistle than to pout
And scold and fret, no one can doubt.
So keep a merry heart, my lad,
And thus make other people glad.
Do all the good you can each day,
And as you toil whistle away.

IT KILLED THE CHILD.

The Sad Result of Overtaxing a Little One's Mental Ability.

"Speaking about precocious children," said a resident of North Indianapolis a few evenings ago, "reminds me of an incident which occurred about three years ago in this locality. The family in question lived in a beautiful cottage home on Clifton street. The parents were well educated, and they had three children—two boys and a girl. The boys were rather slow, as the world would term it, in their mental capacity, while the girl was unusually bright and precocious in her nature. The parents were very proud of her and taught her easy verses and stories which she would repeat at the request of her mother's friends, who wondered at her brilliancy.

"At last the mother thought if she could teach her to repeat 'Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight' with accuracy and proper expression she would accomplish a wonderful feat and her little 3-year-old tot would be the admiration of the entire city. So she set about to accomplish the task and spent many long and weary days before the little one could repeat the poem, a task which is difficult for one of mature years and much training as an elocutionist. Finally her dream was realized. Her baby, in her childish talk and simplicity, could repeat the poem word for word, and in her dimpled hands she would emphasize the strongest passages with the proper gesture.

"One night they gave a party and invited their friends. During the evening the guests, knowing the remarkable ability of the child, asked her to speak for them. The mother, anxious to astonish her guests with her baby's wonderful memory, asked her to speak 'Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight.'

"The child was tired and sleepy, but she heeded her mother's request. She began the difficult task, and when about half way through she forgot. Her mother helped her out by prompting, and she continued. Finally she hesitated again and said:

"'I can't 'member it, mamma.'

"At last, tired and sleepy, she sank down on the floor and fell asleep. The mother carried her to her bed and snugly tucked the covers about her, but the little one was nervous, and in a short time symptoms of brain fever began to develop. All through the night in her delirium she would cry out:

"'I can't 'member it, mamma.'

"The fond parents, realizing their mistake, did all in their power to restore the little one to health again, but it was too late. The months of weary toil and the climax of the night were too much for the childish nature and ability of the babe, and before dawn she had passed into that peaceful sleep which knows no waking. No; it does not pay to tax the mental ability of a child beyond its strength."—Indianapolis Sentinel.

Bound to Be Safe.

Washington has an old blind colored man who makes his living by traveling from door to door selling matches. As he is a good natured old fellow he has many friends, who are careful to see that he is in need of nothing. One day not long ago his customers heard that he and his family had had the misfortune to lose their house and their few personal belongings by fire. Many offers of assistance were made. The morning following his loss the old man was on his beat as usual. A certain lady who took considerable interest in him gave him an overcoat and some other clothes for himself and his wife. It being early in the day, the lady said, "Uncle Joe, you'd better leave these things here till you go home tonight."

"No," said Uncle Joe. "It ain't no use. I'm gwine to kerry 'em 'long."

"Yes, Uncle Joe," said the lady, "but they'll be heavy and bother you."

"Dat's all right, missus," said the darky, "but I hain't gwine to run no chances, for I'se afraid when I gits back you'll change your notion."—Washington Star.

Good Toothpicks Are Scarce.

Toothpicks are a necessity of civilization; and it is the hardest job in the world to obtain a satisfactory one. The old fashioned goose quill ruins the gums, causing them to recede, which means "sans teeth" at 50. The hard pine pick should land its maker in the penitentiary. The soft, white pine pick is a joy. The orange wood pick, "made in Portugal"—and why made in Portugal—is white, sweet, smooth, strong and pliable. It will not sliver, and does not injure the enamel. It is genuine and cheap—800 for 10 cents. Teeth are remorselessly disappearing, and dentists attribute it to picks. Nothing is recommended now but dental floss.—New York Press.

A department of the big Waldorf-Astoria hotel never seen by visitors and seldom by guests is the lost and found room in the top floor. The articles stored in this room are valued at many thousands of dollars. Among them are overcoats, shawls and capes by the score; umbrellas, hats, caps, walking sticks, gloves, knives, rings, pocketbooks, handkerchiefs, snuffboxes, chatelaines, vinaigrettes, brushes, soap boxes, jewelry, traveling bags and even well filled dress suit cases and odds and ends.—New York World.

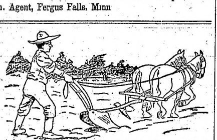
ALFRED SPEER,
THE ORIGINAL
Port Grape Wine Producer in America.

The first native wine sold and used in San Francisco and Sacramento was from Speer's Passaic, N. J., vineyards, was shipped around Cape Horn before there was any railroad to California, and are now being used by physicians and first families there as the richest and best wine to be had

The juice of the Portugal Port Wine grape grown in N. J. is thick and rich same as the juice of pears and other fruits grown here. From California pears you can squeeze water as from a sponge; so with all fruits grown in California; while those grown in New Jersey are solid in substance—less juice but thick and richer. The New Jersey apples, for instance, make a cider that was always popular the world over. If you want a wine for sickness or for entertainments don't take cheap, watery wines but choose a first class old, full bodied, high grade wine from Speer's Passaic vineyards. Sold by Druggists.



I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Say, John, what are you doing to look so healthy?"

A GREAT NEWSPAPER.

It has always been claimed for The Chicago Tribune that it would, in all probability, pass with the highest average in any competitive examination among the newspapers of the United States for excellence in all departments of journalism.

"Under date of May 2, 1899, the Omaha World-Herald, editorially answering a letter from 'Inquirer' asking the names of the five best newspapers in this country, points out that a newspaper may excel in one way and be inferior in another. The World-Herald gives lists under five general headings of leading American newspapers distinguished especially for excellence, mentioning in all some twenty.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE HEADINGS:
"(1) Most and best news, foreign and domestic, presented attractively.
"(2) Best possible presentation of news briefly.
"(3) Typographical appearance.
"(4) Classification of news by departments.
"(5) Editorials.
"The Chicago Tribune is the only newspaper in the United States which the World-Herald considers worthy of mention under four different heads."—From the October "Main Talk.

ADDS TO FORCE.

Beutner Appoints 15 Special Game Wardens.

Fifteen additional game wardens have been named be Executive Agent Beutner to serve during the spring and assist the regular officials in the protection of feathered game against spring shooting. Ten more will be appointed in a few days, which will give the state game and fish commission the service of twenty-five special wardens during the spring. For the first time in the history of the state, spring shooting will be illegal, and anyone who wings any variety of acquatic fowl until Sept. 1 will be prosecuted. The state game commission at a recent meeting decided to enforce the law vigorously, and to this end the extra deputies have been appointed. They will be scattered all over the state.

Cass Lake Resort.

A syndicate has been organised at Cass Lake to construct a dock, improve the landing and grade a drive-way from the city to the lake shore. Robert Jarvis, Conductors Carson and Corgill and John Lydick are the promoters of the scheme and about $3,000 will be expended on the work. The same gentlemen have leased a tract of land consisting of 40 acres on the lake front, upon which they will erect a number of cottages for rent during the summer months. Those who wish to erect cottages of their own can also rent ground of the above parties.

The object is to make things convenient for pleasure seekers who have heard of the fame of Cass Lake as a summer resort. A new line of steamers will also be put on and an ice house be built on the lake shore for the convenience of those who wish to pack their "day's catch" of fish for shipment home. As soon as the above improvements are completed (and work up on the dock has already begun) an excursion will be run from Grand Forks.

Sheep Raising Pays.

It would be a great thing for farmers and for the state, if the present high prices for stock continue. There are millions of acres of land which should be used for sheep growing. This county alone can furnish grass for many thousand sheep. The price of wool and mutton promises to be the best for many years and will induce a great many to go into sheep growing. The increase of population in the country will keep up the demand if the protective tariff is not taken off and the wool and sheep of foreign countries admitted in great bulk. Mixed farming is what pays best here as elsewhere as anyone can see who notices what farmers have been getting ahead. Dairying is helping also and the cream separating which gives a better quality and more butter is being used more freely. It is a money maker and all who have given it a fair trial can see—Anton Fried in Jamestown, N. D., Alert.

Will Hunt at Fergus Falls.

Monday morning Andrew Suhrs, of Emardville township, was brought before Judge Knight, charged with insanity. The patient said his soul was lost and that he was looking for it, and when he found it he was going to kill himself. The judge told him he could (or would have to) find it at Fergus Falls, whereupon he was rejoicing to go. He was turned over to E. A. Moran, who took him down the same day.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

BIG FIGURES

Increase in the Value of Farm Products.

The improvement in agricultural conditions now, contrasting with the depths of depression in 1894-96, is as little appreciated by the outside public as was the farmers' condition during the hard times. It is concertive, however, to say that the produce of the United States farms for the past year was worth to the farmers over $1,000,000,000 more than in either of the depressed years noted. This is an average advance of 31 per cent in values compared with the low point.

These statements are made by the American Agriculturist for March, which contains an elaborate review of the agricultural situation from a financial and industrial standpoint. The live stock of the country is said to be worth $700,000,000 more than during the hard times, or a gain of 38 per cent.

Staple crops are worth $400,000,000 more than then, while other crops show an increase of 25 per cent or $200,000,000 compared with the depression of 1894-5-6.

The product of live stock such as meats, dairy products, calves, mutton, sheep and lambs hides and pelts, colts, mules, etc., are said to show a gain of $370,000,000 or 40 per cent above the low point.

He's Indignant.

Jens Jenson, a bright Norwegian boy of Ashton, is righteously indignant, says the Minneapolis Journal. Jens came out from Norway, and, taking the advice of sophisticated friends, decided to secure employment on a farm until he had acquired the rudiments of the language. Consequently he struck out into the country, where, in a thrifty settlement, he obtained work, and for seven months served faithfully, meanwhile devoting himself to the task of securing a speaking acquaintance with the vernacular. When his term of service had expired, he drew his wages and came into town to exploit his linguistic accomplishments, but, to his consternation, the natives could not comprehend a word he attempted to speak. He had been working in a German settlement and learned to talk Dutch.

Nothing Else Like It.

The Journal Junior, the weekly supplement of the Minneapolis Journal, for and by the children of the northwest, is altogether unique. There is nothing else like it in the country. President Northrop, of the University of Minnesota, says of this peculiar feature of the Journal that the one who conceived the idea was inspired. Educators and parents commend it highly.

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

The Republican state convention to elect delegates to the national convention will be held in Minneapolis, May 16.

The county conventions will be held May 9.

The state convention to nominate a state ticket will be held in St. Paul, June 28.

The county conventions will be held June 21.

The representation will be the same as in 1898. Red Lake county is entitled to seven delegates.

One thing is certain—the congressman elected in the Seventh district next fall will be a Republican.

As a matter of expediency, the Porto Rico tariff bill may be all right, but, as a matter of principle, it is all wrong.—Elk River Star-News.

H. L. Melgaard, the well known Argyle banker, has announced himself as a candidate for delegate to the national Republican convention.

Anent the Porto Rican tariff there seems to be a general disposition among northwestern constituencies to forgive their erring representatives, providing they will take it all back and promise to never do so again.

The Porto Rico tariff will not cut much of a figure as an issue in Minnesota state politics. Where everyone feels one way on a subject then there is always a difficulty in making an issue of it.—Elk River Star-News.

The Minneapolis Times has nominated Senator Davis for president. This is of course subject to the will of the Republican party, for the Times has no desire to use its great power as a moulder of public opinion in too arbitrary a manner.

The "Order of Eagles" initiated a man in St. Paul last week and the doctors declare that there are strong hopes of his recovery. He is at present in the hospital suffering from a gunshot wound and the brethren are trying to buy off the newspapers.

If England owned Porto Rico it would admit all Porto Rican products free of duty and permit the levy of a duty on English goods imported to its dependency. Shall the United States be less just and generous than England?—Alexandria Post-News.

Elmer E. Adams, chairman of the Seventh district Republican congressional committee has called a meeting of the committee to meet at Moorhead on Friday, March 23, for the purpose of issuing the call for the Republican congressional convention.

Congressman Eddy's free home bill will probably be acted upon by congress next week. The prospects of the bill becoming a law are said to be very bright, and it is to be hoped that the Republican congressmen from Connecticut will be magnanimous enough to support the measure which, by the way, is of more interest to the residents of the Seventh district than the Porto Rico tariff bill.

Ezra G. Valentine, the well known Breckenridge attorney, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for congressman from this district. Mr. Valentine is chairman of the Red River Valley Drainage committee, in which capacity he has rendered the farmers of the Seventh district a great deal of assistance. He is an advocate of the scheme to build a reservoir system at the head of the Red and Red Lake rivers, which would prevent the occurence of spring floods and greatly improve the navigation of the rivers. In announcing his candidacy, Mr. Valentine says:

"So far as I am concerned, I intend this canvass to be open and above board, and I shall say nothing to injure my friend, Mr. Eddy. I do not wish my friends to do anything to create a disturbance in our party. I want the canvass to be so conducted that when it is finished we shall still be friends and all be ready to work faithfully for the successful candidate."

The full beauty of the scheme to reduce the tariff on imports from Porto Rico to 25 per cent of the existing rate is seen when we come to get the matter down to figures. Tobacco is the principal crop of the island, and tobacco now sells in New York for from 35 to 40 cents per pound. The tariff on tobacco is $1.85 and 25 per cent of that would be just 46¼ cents per pound, or a tax of 6¼ cents more than the highest market value per pound. This leaves the trusting Porto Rico farmer just 6¼ cents less than nothing to pay for raising and shipping his crop. You can readily figure out for yourself how long it will take the Porto Ricans to become rich at this rate. The further reduction to 15 per cent now proposed will not help much, for at that it imposes a tax of 27¾ cents upon a product worth but 40 cents at best, giving a glorious balance of 12¼ cents per pound to pay labor, transportation and profit as against 40 cents the home tobacco planter receives for the same product. It's a bright idea. The man who first sprung it on congress deserves a medal.

F. G. Peterson arrived in the city yesterday from Winston, Mont., and will make this city his home.

E. Thompson, who had been street commissioner in this city during the fall and winter, died Sunday. He was buried today.

At Ipswich, S. D., a secret society has its hall directly above the theatre. A play was in progress the same night a candidate was initiated up stairs, and an explosion occurred which wrecked the stage, and seriously injured several of the actors. The floor of the lodge room hoisted and threw the blindfolded candidate clear to the ceiling. When he struck the floor he calmly waited several minutes for the frightened members to continue the initiation, thinking that his quick trip was a part of the regular ceremony.

War Department to Control.

Washington, March 20.—The committee today directed Judge Morris to make a favorable report on the bill to settle the differences between the navigation and the lumber interests in the upper Mississippi, St. Croix, Chippewa, Red Lake and Nemadji rivers. The bill was drawn by the committee and submitted to the secretary of war, who approved it. It provides that navigation and logging in these rivers shall be under control of the secretary of war, who shall make regulations which will have the force of law and the violation of which will subject offenders to a fine of from $100 to $2,500. This will practically leave the control of these rivers with Major Abbott or any other engineering official in charge of the district.

Bankrupt's Petition For Discharge.

In the matter of Emil J. Holmer, Bankrupt. } In Bankruptcy.

To the Honorable William Lochren, Judge of the District Court of the United States for the District of Minnesota.

Emil J. Holmer, of St. Hilaire, in the County of Red Lake, and State of Minnesota, in said district, respectfully represents that on the second day of February, A. D. 1900, last past, he was duly adjudged bankrupt under the acts of Congress relating to bankruptcy; that he has duly surrendered all his property and rights of property, and has fully complied with all the requirements of said acts and of the orders of the court touching his bankruptcy.

Wherefore he prays that he may be decreed by the court to have a full discharge from all debts provable against his estate under said bankrupt acts, except such debts as are excepted by law from such discharge.

EMIL J. HOLMER,
Bankrupt.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
District of Minnesota, Sixth Division—ss.

On this 10th day of March, A. D. 1900, on reading the foregoing petition, it is Ordered by the court, that a hearing be had upon the same on the 27th day of March, A. D. 1900, before said court, at Fergus Falls, in said district, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon; and that notice thereof be published in the Thief River Falls News, a newspaper printed in said district, and that all known creditors and other persons in interest may appear at the said time and place and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered by the court, that the clerk shall send by mail to all known creditors copies of said petition and this order, addressed to them at their places of residence as stated.

Witness the Honorable William Lochren, Judge of the said court, and the seal thereof, at Fergus Falls, in said district, on the 10th day of March, A. D. 1900.

AN UNTIMELY END.

Hogan Larson but 24 Years of Age.

After a long illness, Hogan Larson died last Friday of Bright's disease. He was buried Tuesday afternoon in Greenwood cemetery, the funeral services being held in the Methodist church and were under the auspices of the Modern Woodmen lodge, of which the deceased was a member. The deceased was a young man well known about town and had many friends. He was an engineer by trade and was but 24 years of age. He was a member of the Modern Woodmen, in which order he carried insurance to the amount of $1,000, the beneficiary being Mrs. Hill, a sister, living at McKinley, Minn.

UP A NOTCH.

International Money Order Post-office.

Postmaster Ira C. Richardson has received word from the postmaster general that the office in this city has been designated an international money order office, and after Monday, April 2, orders can be purchased on all foreign countries. This is another indication of the growth and advancement of Thief River Falls.

ROLLIS.

Knute Peterson is suffering with rheumatism.

Herbert Sterricker left for his home in Alexandria Thursday.

E. F. Burns is having his house re-shingled and other improvements made.

C. E. Johnson made a trip to Thief River Falls last week for a load of goods.

Saturday was St. Patrick's day, and Mrs. E. F. did not forget to wear her green.

Mr. Davis, of Argyle, has entered a contest against D. B. McHaley, of St. Paul.

Carl Whitcomb, attorney at law, of St. Paul, has filed on a claim in section 20.

Rev. A. S. Steunes, of Perley, Minn., held services at the home of O. J. Rollis Sunday.

Messrs Rollis, Waller, Burns and Star left town Tuesday morning bound for Thief River Falls.

We want the public to know that there is not and has not been a case of diphtheria in the town of Rollis.

Messrs. Ellingson and Rustvold, of Hendrun, are here looking over the country trying to find a place to locate.

Dan Abbott is receiving a visit from his brother. He is pleased with the country and is thinking of locating here.

Clerk—G. A. Drew.
Treasurer—O. J. Rollis.
Assessor—John Clark.
Justice—E. F. Burns.
Constable—H. V. Drew.

Palaces on Wheels.

The Burlington's new Minneapolis and St. Paul-Chicago and St. Louis Train consists of, a buffet library car, a combination sleeping car, a standard sleeping car, compartment sleeping car, a dining car, a reclining chair car, a day coach (high back seats.)

The most costly, beautiful, luxurious cars on earth; Steam heated; Electric lighted; Wide Vestibuled. No extra fares.

LIGHT AND WATER

A Petition Will Be Presented to the City Council.

It is announced sub rosa by parties interested that a petition will be circulated about town in a few days asking the council to put in electric lights, water works and a system of sewerage. While all of the above would go nicely with a progressive and growing little city like Thief River Falls, it is something that should be thoroughly discussed before any action is taken. The experience other cities have had should be of benefit to this city.

GOLDEN ROD.

Handsome Plume-Like Flower Kills Horses.

A number of horses in this vicinity have recently died from an unknown cause, and Capt. R. B. Vining, of this city thinks that the following explains the cause:

"Milwaukee, Wis.—According to Dr. C. F. Scott, the state veterinarian, the golden-rod, the flower over which so many women rave, is responsible for the death of hundreds of horses in the lumber region of Wisconsin. Dr. Scott thus tells of how he discovered the cause of the mortality:

"'For the past three years the lumbermen of northern Wisconsin have suffered the loss of over 1,000 head of horses from a disease that no one up to a recent date could diagnose correctly. I was at F. C. Leonard's place at Haywood ten days ago. He had lost seventy head of horses from the disease. I killed a horse to determine the cause of the disease. At first I thought it was anthrax, the symptoms being similar. I sent the blood and spleen on to Washington, but the authorities could not determine the cause.

"'Then I began a little thinking on my own account. I was told that the horses had been feeding on golden-rod. I remembered then that in my youth horses had become diseased from eating the leaf and root in Canada. I sent to Canada and am satisfied there is where the trouble lies. There is no cure for it. Nothing can be done except to destroy the leaf and root. This disease will last from three weeks to three months and results in a general wasting away of the tissues, and in a few days a fat, healthy animal becomes a skeleton.'

"Mr. Traux, of Eau Claire, had ten head of horses that were turned into a rich field of golden rod. Five of them died and the five remaining will have to be shot."

Money In Sheep.

The Moorhead Independent tells of one Red River Valley farmer who is making money raising sheep: George W. Bilsborrow, manager of the Allen farms, has just sold to the Fargo Packing company and Rusch & Smith 232 head of sheep and lambs. The net amount received for the entire lot was $1,182.50, a fraction over $5.05 per head. Mr. Bilsborrow says farmers can raise stock successfully and profitably if they only take the trouble. He is well pleased with the result of sale. The price per pound live weight was 4½ cents for sheep and 6 cents for lambs.

Advertised Letters.

The following is the list of letters remaining uncalled for at the Thief River Falls, Minn., postoffice for the week ending March 17, 1900:

Anderson, Mrs. P.
Hanson, Hans K.
Nybus, Anders A.
Nelson, Charley.
Olson, Emma E.
Pearson, Mrs. O.
Picket, Mrs. Helga.

NEW SETTLERS

Coming Into Thi Section of the Country.

Almost every train brings in number of prospective settlers his section of the country. Dealers in real estate all say that the are having many inquiries regarding farm lands, and a great deal of real estate is being transferred. While this section still offers cheaper lands than can be had in any other part of the state, farm lands are advancing at a rate, and the wise man will buy real estate now.

A Political Lover.

A rising young politician of Michigan recently made application for the hand of his sweetheart in the following manner, says an exchange: "My dear Miss ——: I hereby announce myself as a candidate for your hand, and shall use all fair and honorable means to secure the nomination. I know there are many candidates in the field, and I hesitated before entering the race, but now I am in to stay. My views on love and matrimony have often been expressed in your hearing and need not be expressed here. You know I favor the goldstandard of love—100 per cent dollar love—and a maintenance of that standard after marriage. If you decide to confer upon me the honor I seek, please fix a date for a caucus with your mother. I have no objection to her acting as temporary chairman of the permanent organization. Should the result of the caucus be satisfactory, we can soon hold the primaries and select the date and place of the convention. I never believed in long campaigns, so if you decide to honor me, I will ask you to make the convention date as soon as possible. Devotedly yours."

The following telegram answered it: "Caucus unnecessary. Nomination unanimous. Come at once and fix date of ratification."

A New Deal.

Representative Stevens, of St. Paul has decided to offer an amendment to the law prohibiting the driving of logs in navigable streams, authorizing the secretary of war to provide regulations on the advice of the chief engineer, which would enable steamboat men and lumbermen to use streams without detriment to the business of either. This will apply to the Mississippi, Chippewa, Red Lake and St. Croix rivers. The phraseology of the amendment has not been completed, and will probably not be presented until the interests concerned have had a hearing before the committee on rivers and harbors.

TWENTY-SEVEN CENTS A DAY.

Many Men Manage to Get Their Meals on That Amount.

"Oh, yes, there are plenty of fellows in this city who live well on 27 cents a day," said a dining room owner to a reporter. The lunch man has been in the business for years and knows what he is saying. "I'll tell you how they do it. They get up in the morning and with 6 cents go to a 3 cent lunch room. There they procure a cup of coffee and a sandwich, each costing 3 cents, or something of that sort. This is sufficient for them.

"At lunch time they visit the 3 cent place again and with a piece of pie and a glass of milk are contented until dinner. That is a total of 12 cents. At dinner they go to the regular lunch or dining rooms and eat themselves happy on 15 cents. At a number of regular dining rooms in the city a dinner can be bought for 15 cents and will be a good one too. It will consist of soup and bread, one meat and one entree, two vegetables, a piece of pie or other dessert and a cup of tea or coffee.

"But where these sharpers do the lunch room proprietors is in another way. They have become so expert at the business that they know when each dining room is to have a certain dish for dinner, and therefore they have their pick of meats and other things. I remember that I used to serve chicken on a certain day. I soon found that these fellows were getting the best of me. All of them would visit me on 'chicken day' and with their 15 cents would get a good dinner. The next day they would disappear and would show up at the dining rooms of some other man.

"Of course I couldn't stand the expense of this kind of business, and I disarranged the entire programme of the young fellows by not having any regular bill of fare for every day in the week, as most dining rooms have. I lost some of this trade, but in doing so I think I made money. These 27 cent fellows can scent ice cream for days ahead and will be on hand. They are never suspected of their shrewd ways because most of them dress well and hold good positions. For all I know they may do this to save money. I expect, however, that they simply save to spend in dress and in making an appearance in other ways where their style will show to advantage."—Washington Star.

LONDON CAB DRIVERS.

What They Must Do and Know to Procure a License.

Last summer in Scotland Yard I attended an examination of men who desired to be appointed bus and cab drivers, and the affair was most amusing.

They've a rickety old bus down there, a perfect ark, and attached to the fore of it a brace of one time Derby winners likely that after a meal of ginger and pepper do get up enough animation to drag that ark at a spanking gait the length of the inclosure.

The would be driver mounts the box, whips up the horses and attempts to drive between two stakes planted in the ground so close together that to go between them means to escape them at the hubs scarcely more than a quarter of an inch on either side.

Sometimes the driver manages it. If he repeats the feat two or three times with success and also manages to get his horses pulled up sharp when a finger is raised, the finger of a proxy policeman, he is appointed and given the first opening. And thereafter for years he is privileged to amaze Americans by his wonderful cleverness with the reins in the crowded Strand or Piccadilly circus.

It is different with the would be cabbies. They, too, are compelled to drive between stakes and to pull up their nags, but more than that is asked of them.

"If you were to pick up a fare in the Addison road to drive to Upper Bedford place, what would be your route?"

Such question as that are put to them. Now there are endless routes, but cabby is obliged by law to take the shortest, and if he cannot draw the line along the map of London marking that shortest route he is told to go home and study for another month.

But where he fails dozens of others succeed, and a single walk along a London street bears proof of the enormous number of men who know their city like a book. How many hansoms there are in London I do not know, but I know this: The cab I called one morning was No. 8, the cab I called that afternoon was No. 60,678.—Detroit Free Press.

A Dream Superstition.

I heard what was to me at least a brand new piece of superstition yesterday, and when I think of the risks I've run all these years because I didn't know of it my blood runs cold. I met a woman from Virginia in market yesterday, and the talk falling on dreams I recalled a most blood curdling nightmare I had had the night before.

"I must tell you what I dreamed last night," I said.

"Let me ask first whether it's a pleasant or an unpleasant dream?" said the lady from Virginia.

"Decidedly unpleasant."

"Then for mercy's sake don't tell it!" said she. "Never tell a bad dream on Saturday, for we say in Virginia—

"Friday night's dream on Saturday told
Is sure to come true, no matter how old."

Old Women, 1784.

There is not such a thing as a decent old woman left. Everybody curls their hair, shows their neck, and wears pink, but your humble servant. People who have covered their heads for 40 years now leave off their caps and think it becomes them; in short, we try to outdo our patterns, the French, in every ridiculous vanity. Lady Northumberland gave an entertainment last week, in which was an artificial goose in her feathers, and a hen with seven little chickens. The dessert was a landscape, with gates, stiles and cornfields; but I have, I am afraid, tired you with the account of such follies.—Letters From Lady Coke to Mrs. Eyre.

Quite Like a Ring.

"My love for you," he said to the homely heiress, "is like this ring."

"How sweet!" she exclaimed. "You mean it has no end."

"Precisely," he said, and then he added under his breath, just to square himself with his conscience, "and no beginning."—Chicago Post.

Playing Cards.

The marks on playing cards are said to have their origin in a symbolic representation of four different classes of society. Hearts represent the clergy, spades the nobility (derived from the Italian word "spada," meaning sword), clubs the serfs [illegible] the citizens.

TRAIN JUMPING AS A FINE ART.

No Longer Practiced Much, but Formerly Flagmen Had to Do It.

Jumping from trains is rapidly becoming a lost art. One does not need to be very old in the railroad business to remember when a flagman was not considered half a flagman unless he could tuck a lantern or a flag under his arm and let himself down to the ground from the high step of a caboose when the train was running at 25 miles an hour. Every man of the crew did it in those days. It was not merely an accomplishment; it was something they had to learn, for which they had use in their business every day. In those days a flagman practically had no other duty than to protect the rear of his train. The books of instructions were very explicit on this point, and the word "immediately" was so prominent that you could see it about as far as you could see the book itself. The moment the slack came in the train after the engineer had whistled for brakes the flagman was supposed to jump off and run back to hold up the next train, and with trains running under a five minute limit a man had to be particularly nimble. While men were not specially and officially instructed in the art of jumping off moving trains, still a brakeman had no chance of being promoted to flagman if he lacked nerve or was otherwise unfit for the practice. There are sometimes fat flagmen now. There were none then.

The block system has been chiefly instrumental in doing away with train jumping as a fine art. By this system every train is assured of an absolutely clear track for a certain distance. If for any reason a train comes to a stop between two signal points a flagman must go back, but this is only in the nature of additional precaution. The flagman is no longer the sole protector of a train in the rear, and the trains are under better control on account of the airbrake and other appliances.

It would be hard to say how fast a train a man could jump from. In general it depended much upon the man. Men have jumped from trains running at the rate of 35 miles an hour, and the first step they took when they struck the ground was about a rail length—30 feet. Sometimes it was easy for them; at other times a depression or an elevation of an inch under your foot would be enough to make every muscle in your body sore for a week, although you were able to keep your footing. Nowadays, except in rare cases, a man has no business and is assuming an unnecessary risk in getting on or off trains running faster than 14 miles an hour.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

TAGGED FOR RECOGNITION.

How Relatives Who Have Never Met Pick Each Other Out In a Crowd.

A man with a piece of pasteboard stuck in his hatband where it could easily be seen attracted the attention of a passenger in the Pennsylvania railroad waiting room in Jersey City on Saturday afternoon, and walking over to Detective Peter Morris he said laughingly, "Look at that guy over there with the price tag in his hat." Detective Morris walked carelessly around in front of the "guy," and when he got back he told the passenger that he had made a mistake. "That's not a price tag," said the detective. "It's a card the man is wearing in his hat for identification. Wait awhile and you'll know more about it."

In a few minutes the southern express came rolling into the big train shed, the locomotive puffing and snorting. The man with the tag stood in a conspicuous place near the gate through which the passengers pass on their way to the ferryboat and closely watched the passengers as they came along. Finally his eye rested on a pretty young woman who wore a white satin bow conspicuously on her bosom. She caught sight of the tag at the same moment, and the two greeted each other cordially, exchanging a few words, and went toward the boat together.

"There," said Detective Morris to the passenger who had discovered the tag, "we have that here every day. Those two are probably relatives who have never seen each other before. People in the south and west often send their children to visit relatives in New York who have never seen them, nor have the relatives seen the children. In order that they may not go astray or fall into the wrong hands the relative sent to meet them wears something conspicuous like the tag in that man's hat, and the visitor wears a similarly distinguishing mark like the satin bow the young woman wore."—New York Sun.

Evolution of the French Sardine.

The visitor to the coast of Maine is often amazed at the surprising versatility of the lowly herring. In many of the herring coast villages thousands of cases of herrings are shipped to various sections of the country disguised as French sardines, brook trout and mackerel.

The herrings, when unloaded from the little steamer which brings them from the weir, are separated into three piles, according to size. The evolution of the herring then begins. The largest size rapidly develop into mackerel, the medium size are soon well on their way to becoming brook trout, while the smallest in the course of a day are ready to be sent into the unsuspecting world gorgeously labeled in black and gold, "Fine French Sardines."

Some slight difference in the preparation and the alluring labels are all that distinguish the mackerel from the brook trout and the brook trout from the sardine.—New Lippincott's.

Graded According to Capacity.

The amount of beer consumed by men who work in breweries is little short of appalling, 100 glasses a day being not considered unusual. In one of the breweries up town there is quite a system in dispensing drinks to the employees. Every man is graded according to his capacity, and tickets are issued to the men when they come to work in the morning. Each ticket is good for a glass of beer. Some men get 100, others 80, others 60 and so on down to the novices, who are only allowed 25 until their capacity is accurately judged.—Philadelphia Record.

A Redhot Flood.

An example of mixed metaphor was heard at a seamen's meeting at South Shields last week, an enthusiastic speaker urging the crowd to "take the tide by the flood and grasp it red hot."—London Chronicle.

It is astonishing how much more uncomfortable a pew is after two hours than a theater seat.—Somerville Journal.

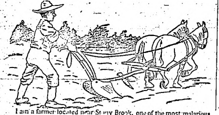
ALFRED SPEER,
THE ORIGINAL
Port Grape Wine Producer in America.

The first native wine sold and used in San Francisco and Sacramento was from Speer's Passaic, N. J., vineyards, was shipped around Cape Horn before there was any railroad to California, and are now being used by physicians and first families there as the richest and best wine to be had

The juice of the Portugal Port Wine grape grown in N J, is thick and rich same as the juice of pears and other fruits grown here. From California pears you can squeeze water as from a sponge; so with all fruits grown in California; while those grown in New Jersey are solid in substance—less juice but thick and richer. The New Jersey apples, for instance, make a cider that was always popular the world over. If you want a wine for sickness or for entertainments don't take cheap, watery wines but choose a first class old, full bodied, high grade wine from Speer's Passaic vineyards. Sold by Druggists.



I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Say, John, what are you doing to look so healthy?"

A GREAT NEWSPAPER.

It has always been claimed for The Chicago Tribune that it would, in all probability, pass with the highest average in any competitive examination among the newspapers of the United States for excellence in all departments of journalism.

"Under date of May 2, 1899, the Omaha World-Herald, editorially answering a letter from 'Inquirer' asking the names of the five best newspapers in this country, points out that a newspaper may excel in one way and be inferior in another. The World-Herald gives lists under five general headings of leading American newspapers distinguished especially for excellence, mentioning in all some twenty.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE HEADINGS:

"(1) Most and best news, foreign and domestic, presented attractively.
"(2) Best possible presentation of news briefly.
"(3) Typographical appearance.
"(4) Classification of news by departments.
"(5) Editorials.

"The Chicago Tribune is the only newspaper in the United States which the World-Herald considers worthy of mention under four different heads."—From the October Plain Talk.

Practically all high-class intelligent newspaper readers, comprising the best and middle classes in Chicago and vicinity, read The Chicago Tribune. A great majority of them read no other morning newspaper.

The Chicago Tribune prints more advertising year in and year out than any newspaper in the West.

THEY FLOP OVER.

People Disgusted at Warren and Vote for License.

The election held at Warren last Tuesday resulted in the question of license being carried by 37 votes. There were 267 votes cast: K. J. Taralseth was elected mayor, C. L. Stevens recorder and J. P. Easton justice of peace. Aldermen were elected as follows: C. A. Tullar, L. Lamberson, Aug. Lendgren. This is the largest majority ever given either for or against license, and is the first time in seven years that license has carried in Warren. The grand jury having been in session a full week and incurring much expense to the taxpayer in an attempt to indict someone for selling liquor and having accomplished practically nothing, had the effect to turn a large number of anti-license votes.

NEW SETTLERS.

A Number Coming Up Into This Country.

Crookston, Minn., March 24.—The outlook for a healthy immigration of large proportions into the upper Red River valley during the coming summer has not been better in years than it is today. While it is yet too early to note the arrival of settlers in large numbers, there have already arrived at the Great Northern station in this city forty cars of emigrants and movables. These are considered but the advance guard of those who are to follow.

There are three sources of supply for these new homes: the vast area of government land, the large tracts of land owned by the Great Northern railroad and the state swamp lands, which, owing to the extensive drainage that has been accomplished by the state and the valley counties, are very prominently in evidence.

The receiver and register of the United States land office in Crookston express themselves as confident that the filings on government land will be unusually brisk during the spring months, and people are not only seeking claims rapidly upon the land now open, but they are squatting on the six townships that are to be opened during the months of May or June in Roseau county.

The sales of land at the Great Northern agency in this city have run from 6,000 acres during each of the winter months, and that, too, on a continually advancing price, until now the wild land owned by this company is held at the minimum price of $10 per acre, and from that to $15 per acre.

Good Advice.

It would be well for some of our citizens to strictly observe the following, clipped from an exchange: "The best way to build up a town is to stand by every man in the place who does right. Whenever a man is doing well do not tear him down. All residents should be partners, not opponents. In all probabilities, the more business your rival does the more you will do. Every man who treats his customers honestly, courteously and fairly, will get his share, and the more business that can be secured by united efforts the better it will be for all. When a town ceases to grow it begins to die, and the more readily utter ruin comes to all. If a man shows ability to prosper do not pull him back through jealousy or weigh him down through a cold indifference."

CHURCH VS. LODGE

Why the Latter Is More Popular.

Anoka Union: There's a family in Anoka, husband, wife and child, who are suffering for the necessities of life. Time and again have they been hungry. The man and woman belong to a church, a little way from Anoka, however, inquire around and you can find out which church, and yet the membership of that church have failed to help them, not from ignorance of their condition, mind you, for the pastor and some of the members know. The husband is a helpless invalid and the wife pretty near it.

Had the head of the family been a member of any one of the secret orders, having an organization in the city, I'll bet all I'm worth that their wants would have been supplied as soon as the matter was brought to their attention. It's the business of the lodges to take care of those in need and they are never backward in doing charitable acts. But it would seem it was not of churches. No wonder the lodges are gaining fast in membership and no wonder men join them in preference to a church.

STAMP BOOKS.

A Popular Form for Stamps Soon to Be Issued.

The March issue of the Postal Guide contains the following information regarding the new books of stamps which the government will issue. There is already considerable inquiry at the local postoffice for the books, which demonstrates that they will be popular with the public. Stamp books will probably be placed on sale at the office here some time the first of May. The following is the circular:

About May 1, 1900, the post office department will be ready to supply postmasters, for sale to the public, small books of 2 cent stamps, interleaved with paraffined paper to prevent premature adhesion. The pages are of six stamps each, making a book of convenient size to carry in the pocket or pocket-book.

Only three different quantities will be so furnished: One book of twelve 2 cent stamps, one book of twenty-four 2-cent stamps and one book of forty-eight 2 cent stamps, of postage value 24, 48 and 96 cents, respectively. Each book will be sold at an advance of one cent on the stamp value, to cover the cost of binding.

It Skims the Cream.

The cream of anything is the best of anything. That is what the Minneapolis Journal, by its large corps of special correspondents in New York, Chicago, Montreal, Boston and other cities takes from the special news service of the leading eastern and foreign newspapers, as supplementary to its reports of the Associated Press, the greatest world-wide newsgathering agency in the world. This, in effect, gives the Journal a correspondent in every quarter of the globe and access not merely to the special news service of one big eastern daily of which some of its Minnesota contemporaries boast, but to the best that they all have. For proof of this see the columns of the Journal.

NEW BUILDINGS.

A Number Will Be Built in This City This Spring.

The indications are that an unusual amount of building will be done in Thief River Falls this spring. A number of new store buildings will be erected, and a larger number of residences. There is not a vacant dwelling house in Thief River Falls today and there are a number of families intending to remove here this spring. The Thief River Falls Lumber company intends to build six or seven houses, James Meehan, Jr., will also build a number on the addition recently platted by him, and there will be a number of individuals who will build homes of their own. Let the good work go on!

MAY 15.

The Date on Which Eddy Will Be Re-Nominated.

The Seventh district Republican congressional committee met at Moorhead last week and decided to hold one convention for the purpose of electing two district national delegates and selecting delegates to the state convention to be held in Minneapolis May 16, and for the nomination of a congressional candidate.

The convention will be held at Moorhead, May 15, at 2 p. m. The basis of representation is the same as that adopted by the state committee, and gives a total of 188 delegates, devided among the counties as follows:

Becker, 11; Big Stone, 9; Clay, 11; Douglas, 13; Grant, 9, Kandiyohi, 14; Kittson, 8; Marshall, 10; Norman, 11; Otter Tail, 19; Polk, 14; Pope, 12; Red Lake, 7; Roseau, 6; Steven, 9; Swift, 10; Traverse, 7; Wilkin, 8; total, 188

It is more than probable that Congressman Eddy will be renominated. The situation at present indicates that E. G. Valentine will have his own county, Wilkin, and that A. B. Cole will have the Otter Tail delegation.

Valentine will also have a scattering strength through the Red River valley, but, if the unit rule is enforced, it is doubtful if either Valentine or Cole can secure any but their home counties.

There is but little disaffection because of Eddy's vote on the Porto Rico tariff bill, and that issue will cut but little figure in the nominating convention.

Will Soon Open Again.

Satisfactory adjustment of the Wilmes hotel fire loss was reached last Friday, and Monday morning a large force of men were put to work repairing the damage, which will probably occupy two weeks' time. The whole rear end of the building will be re-painted, papered and kalsomined, which, with the carpenter work, will restore the hotel to its former excellent condition. The amount of the settlement was $1,150, which will be paid at once. Five companies are interested in the payment of the claim.—Red Lake Falls Courier.

See What a President Says on Brandy for Sickness.

The president of the Baltimore medical college, who has thoroughly tested Speer's wines and brandy, says: "Speer's climax brandy is a pure and valuable article in all cases of disease in which a reliable stimulant is required. I regard it superior to most French brandies.

COMING NUPTIALS.

Otto Olson and Miss Stella Gunderson.

Invitations have been issued to friends of the contracting parties announcing the coming marriage of Otto Olson and Miss Stella Gunderson. The event will take place next Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, April 5. Both the bride and groom are well known in this city and will receive the best wishes of the entire community.

One on Eddy.

The Washington correspondent of the St. Paul Dispatch relates a good one on our congressman, which took place at the Carlisle Indian school on the occasion of the annual commencement of exercises which were attended by several senators and congressmen. All unbeknown to the member from the Seventh district, Mrs. Eddy had arranged with Major Pratt for the transfer of one of the handsome young Indian maidens, who had graduated high in the class of 1900, to Washington, and to be attached to the Eddy family, as a companion for the children. The Indian girl, Miss Alice B. McCarthy, a Chippewa quarter-blood, was of course delighted with the prospect. Just before the visiting party started for home, she came up to Mr. Eddy, her face beaming, and exclaimed: "How happy I am that I am going with you. I hate to leave old Carlisle of course, but I know that you will take the very best care of me."

The congressman from Glenwood, it is stated, will have to do some explaining before the house committee on Indian affairs, and Senator Thurston already threatens an investigation by the senate.

The Bonds Sold Well.

One of the most important business transactions of the county board this week was the selling of the bonds, the proceeds of which will be used in construction of county ditch No. 1, to drain the muskeg west of St. Hilaire, and runs through Sanders, Black River and River Falls. The bonds were for an aggregate sum of $9,000, bearing 5 per cent interest and will run ten years. Stoddard, Nye & Co., of Minneapolis, were the highest bidders and the bonds were disposed of to them for a premium of $500. The other bids were Jefferson Cosson, $9,370; Trowbridge, McDonald & Moor Co., $9,471, and Jas. G. Foley, $3,000 worth at per value. The money for the payment of these bonds will be raised by assessment upon the lands benefited.—Red Lake Falls Courier.

Pine Talk.

Gen. C. C. Andrews, speaking before the Central high school, of Minneapolis, last week said:

"Today we are cutting fifteen thousand million feet of pine in our Minnesota forests each year, but when you shall have reached only middle life, the demand on our forest resources will be far greater than now. We should begin to lay the foundations of sustained forest products because nature will work with us. The pine is content with a meagre diet of principally air and water, and, in our climate, will grow on land too sandy for farming at a rate to net 3 per cent interest. But as it will require, on an average, eighty years for a crop of pine to grow on such soil to merchantable size, individuals will not engage in the business on a large scale. The state must undertake it."

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

$1.50 PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

Thief River Falls, Mar. 29, 1900.

If Congressman Eddy had not secured a public building for Fergus Falls, his chances of carrying Otter Tail county would have been unquestioned.

The Crookston Journal advises the Republicans of Polk county to get together for the purpose of organization. And that is just what the Republicans of Red Lake county should do. A good organization would insure success in this county next fall.

The fusion forces in Minnesota will have a campaign fund of over $60,000 this year. All officeholders under the present administration are paying monthly assessments to J. M. Bowler, treasurer of the finance committee, and the assesments are made according to the following proportionment:

Offices paying $65 a month, $1.50 a month.
Offices paying $75 a month, $2 a month.
Offices paying $1,000 a year, $2.50 a month.
Offices paying $1,100 a year, $3 a month.
Offices paying $1,200 a year, $4 a month.

When it comes to such fat offices as oil inspector and surveyor general of logs, it is reported that all the way from one-fourth to one-half of such officeholders' salaries are placed in the contribution box.

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

The Republican state convention to elect delegates to the national convention will be held in Minneapolis, May 16.

The county conventions will be held May 9.

The state convention to nominate a state ticket will be held in St. Paul, June 28.

The county conventions will be held June 21.

The representation will be the same as in 1898. Red Lake county is entitled to seven delegates.

DITCH NUMBER 2

Will Be Completed in About a Year.

The viewers of the proposed new ditch, which will be known as county ditch No. 2, and drains Norden, North and a part of Rocksbury, have made a favorable report to the county commissioners, and final action in the matter will be taken sometime in May. The estimated cost of constructing the ditch is $7,500, and will greatly improve the farming lands north and west of the city. The work of digging the ditch will not be commenced before next fall.

Palaces on Wheels.

The most costly, beautiful, luxurious cars on earth. Steam heated; Electric lighted: Wide Vestibuled: No extra fares.

A BOOM ON.

Fully 10,000 Settlers for the Northwest.

Wednesday was said to have been the heaviest day for homeseekers St. Paul has experienced in the past 19 years. The Great Western railway brought in most of the settlers, the greater number coming from Iowa, Missouri and Kansas. Several extra trains were run, and the total number of movers was said to have reached a thousand, with 160 car loads of household effects.

The Great Northern railway took most of the colonists out of St. Paul, it requiring four trains and a total of 56 coaches to handle the business.

The movers for the most part are bound for the northern part of North Dakota in the vicinity of Bottineau and Minot.

The Soo and the Northern Pacific also took out numbers of people who will make their homes in the Northwest and on the coast. It is estimated that 10,000 people have gone from the older states of the West into the Dakotas the present season, there to make homes for themselves, and they are still coming. A company of 3,000 Dunkards from Pennsylvania and Ohio are expected to arrive March 27 to 28, bound for their settlement in North Dakota.—Minneapolis Tribune.

SOCIETY AT WASHINGTON.

Dr. Bristol, Pastor of the President, Says Social Atmosphere There Is Sweet and Wholesome.

Dr. F. M. Bristol, President McKinley's pastor, contributes to the New York World a paper on "Degeneracy of American Society," in which he says: "I protest against the application of the term 'society' to that little set of fools who contribute nothing but scandal to the annals of a community. True society of America, composed of the brains and virtue of her typical men and women, to be found in Washington, New York, Baltimore, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and in every city and town and village of this country, is worthy of all honor and respect. Husbands never had more virtuous wives nor wives truer husbands; sons never had sweeter, purer mothers, nor mothers nobler, cleaner sons; brothers never had more chaste, intelligent sisters, nor sisters more heroic, chivalrous, high-minded brothers than they have to-day and in our own America.

"I am bound to say that the highest standard of American society may be found at the national capital. The social atmosphere of Washington is sweet and wholesome. It was never more so. No social scandals tarnish the purity of our official or congressional life. Finer specimens of moral, intellectual and patriotic womanhood cannot be found in this country or in the world than are to be met at the social functions of the beautiful capital, where the best traditions of republican purity and democratic simplicity are preserved and exemplified in the domestic virtue, affection and happiness of the first home of the land.

"Surely the American people may justly felicitate themselves on the high and unsullied record of that first home of the land from the glorious day of Martha Washington to the good and happy day of Ida McKinley."

MAY BE STORY OF THE MAINE.

Spanish Cipher Cablegram Found by an American Soldier in Manila.

"Blue tape" is the expression which might properly be applied to Spanish official circumlocution. C. Leland, a young man from Bismarck, N. D., came to Chicago a few days ago to join a regiment which he had heard was being recruited there for service in the Boer army. He carried a little bundle of blue paper which might reveal the secret of the Maine explosion in Havana harbor if the writing on it could be read. It purports to be a dispatch in cipher from a Spanish official in Havana to Gov. Gen. Augusti at Manila. It is dated February 18, 1898, and written in Spanish cipher code on a narrow ribbon of light blue paper, about 100 feet long. The paper is wound in a circular coil and makes a bunch six inches in diameter. There is nothing on the paper to establish its genuineness, says the Inter Ocean.

Young Leland got it from Charles Jackson, a soldier in a South Dakota regiment that served in the Philippines. When the American army took possession at Manila this paper, with a great many other official documents, it is said, was found in a safe in the governor general's office. Gen. Otis ordered them all burned, but Jackson rescued the cipher cablegram from the pile as a souvenir. He was killed soon afterward, but previous to that had mailed the paper to Leland.

RIFLES FOR SHARPSHOOTERS.

The Present Infantry Weapon Is Not Well Designed for Long Range.

The Napoleonic maxim that "fire is everything" is truer in these days of smokeless powder and long-range weapons than ever before, says Cassier's. An expert shot is no longer blinded by his comrade's smoke; nor is his position revealed by his own smoke when firing from cover. Ten sharpshooters nowadays are worth more than 50 bunglers with the rifle. The present infantry weapon, however, is not well designed for sharpshooters.

If the sharpshooter is required to use regular infantry ammunition his rifle should differ from a common musket in the following particulars: Its barrel should be thick throughout, tapering slowly toward the muzzle. On a telescope-sighted gun it need not be over 24 inches long. This restricted length, together with the amount of metal in the barrel, would give it stiffness, would keep it from excessive heating, would neutralize recoil, and would enable the man to hold steadily when shooting from hip rest, which is the steadiest of all offhand positions and as practical in the field as on the range. * * * It is a mistake to use high powers in a rifle telescope. They restrict the field vision, lessen the illumination and magnify errors of holding. So far as aiming is concerned, a power of four diameters draws a man 1,000 yards distant to within 250 yards of the shooter, and this is close enough for murderous accuracy.

TOBACCO HEART.

It Is Not Alone Users of the Weed Who Become Victims of This Affection.

"You have," said the physician, "the tobacco heart." The patient made answer: "Doctor, I never smoked but once, and that was when I was a boy." This happened in Germantown, says the Philadelphia Record. Both men laughed, and the physician prepared to examine the patient again, so as to make another diagnosis. After a half hour of hard work the tobacco heart still seemed to resemble the man's disease, and the physician said: "What do you do for a living?" The man replied: "I am a tobacconist." "Well, then, of course, you've got the tobacco heart, whether you're a smoker or not," said the physician. "All day long you breathe in tobacco. The dust of it fills your lungs, circulates with your blood all over your body, and is digested with your food. I have had a number of cases such as yours, and I prescribe eight hours a day in the fresh air. You'll find it hard to follow this prescription. Away from the tobacco-laden air of your shop you will have the uneasy, restless longing to get back to it which the smoker, after a few hours of abstinence, has for a cigar. That is strange, but you'll find it true. You have unconsciously acquired the tobacco-breathing habit, and it's a habit harder, I believe, to break than the smoking habit itself."

INDIANS AT PARIS.

American Redmen Will Be an Interesting Feature of the Exposition.

The Indian village at Paris will occupy a space of 200 by 100 feet, writes Frederick Boyd Stevenson in Woman's Home Companion. It will represent the Indian at home on his reservation. There will be seen the wigwams of skin and cat-tail rushes. The squaws will prepare the meals in the crude utensils. They will pound the corn in the wooden mortars and cook the stews in the big kettles. The women of rank will be distinguished from the others by their earrings, their jewelry, their fine feathers and the paint upon their faces. The ghost dance and the marriage dance will be performed. There will be the exhibitions of skill with the rifle and tests of horsemanship. The keeper of the wampum, of the secret lodge—the chief of the medicine men—will sit in his wigwam in Paris as he sits in Black River Falls, making medicine for the safe return of his people to the prairies and forests of the west that they love so well. Fifty of the finest specimens of men, women and children from the eight leading tribes will be selected for the trip. They will comprise members of the royal families and personages of high rank in several Indian nations—the chiefs, the princesses, the head councilmen and the great medicine men.

The Animal Kingdom.

Die Natur gives statistics of the number of species of animals now known to exist on land and sea, the total being placed at 400,000, while there are 150,000 catalogued kinds of plants. The insects alone furnish 208,000 species, of which 120,000 are coleoptera, with lepidoptera, 50,000, and hymenoptera, 38,000. The birds number 13,000, the fish 12,000 and reptiles 8,300, of which 1,640 are serpents, 800 being venomous. The amphibians are 1,300 in number, spiders, 20,000; mollusks, 50,000; worms, 8,000; echinoderms, 3,000. The Museum of Natural History at Berlin contains 200,000 species, the collection numbering 1,600,000 specimens.

Almost as Bad as Greeley's.

Among living statesmen, Mr. Goschen writes probably the worst hand. His figures are fairly clear, as one would expect from so eminent a financial authority, but some of his correspondence would eclipse Dean Stanley's letters for being indecipherable. Mr. Goschen took up one of his own memoranda the other day, and, being very short-sighted, exclaimed: "A man who writes like that ought not to be in the public service."

THE CZARINA'S ALLOWANCE.

Why Her Highness' Decision in Regard to Tobacco Was Speedily Changed.

Some time ago the czarina, who is a very philanthropic woman, made up her mind that the lavish use of tobacco in Russia was doing harm. She thereupon prohibited the use of the weed, and especially of cigarettes, in the court, says the Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

A few days passed and her imperial majesty needed some money. It did not come, even after she had sent a confidential servant to the treasury. At last, in place of money, came a white-bearded old man from that institution, with pleasant voice and attractive address.

"There must be a mistake, your imperial majesty. Two weeks ago you prohibited the use of tobacco in the court, and so great is your influence and so deep the love for you among the people that the sales of the weed dropped down to a fraction of what formerly was the case, and the internal revenue receipts became less than the expenses. The government appreciated your high munificence, because under the law of the land your income is charged against the tobacco tax of this district, and it was supposed that you had concluded to give up your wealth in order to carry out your views upon reform."

The following week, so the story goes, the rule was relaxed, and the czarina's sudden poverty vanished as if by magic.

CENSUS FACTS

Which Should Be Heeded by Farmers.

To build up a great office like the Census Office in fifteen months from absolutely nothing to an efficient machine, employing about three thousand men in Washington and about fifty thousand elsewhere in the country, is a difficult task, and entire success is out of the question. The office naturally compares itself with the stage of preparation attained at the same period ten years ago and tried by this test, it has gained several months on its predecessor. One of the problems before it is how to put in the time thus secured in such a way as to benefit the census.

In the Agricultural Division the need of time for preliminary work is perhaps as great as anywhere in the census office. Farmers, as a class, do not keep their accounts as well as manufacturers, and the returns from farmers may occasionally include serious errors which a trained eye will at once detect. Hence the farm schedules must be examined and such errors corrected before the tables can be made up from them with safety. If a farmer reports that his land sown to wheat was ten acres and the yield four thousand bushels, it is clear that an average yield of four hundred bushels to the acre is incredible, and must be rejected or corrected in accordance with the probabilities. Sometimes the truth can be made out by an expert from comparison with entries in other parts of the schedules; sometimes correspondence must be opened to settle the doubt. All this ranks under the general head of verifying each of the millions of farm schedules. To accomplish this in the time allowed, the work of several hundred clerks will be required, and they must have hard and fast rules to guide them. For example, they might be told: When the wheat reports show a product of over forty bushels to the acre, they are suspicious and must be laid aside for an expert to pass upon. But any such rules must vary with the section of the country. A yield of twenty bushels in one section might be more questionable than a yield of forty bushels in another. Hence the division must fix in advance what is the range of reports in each part of the country and for each crop that may be accepted as probable on their face and not requiring special examination. To get the limits of probability for each county in the United States, that is, the maximum and minimum yield and the maximum and minimum price which may be accepted without verification, is the object of an extensive correspondence now being carried on by the agricultural division under the direction of Mr. L. G. Powers, chief statistician in charge of that division. Three simple schedules have been prepared and printed on different colored paper in order that they may be readily distinguished one from another. One of them covers ordinary garden vegetables, a second covers fruits, and the third the great staple field crops. Each asks about the units of measure employed and the net price realized, and the two more important schedules, those for staple field products and for vegetables, ask for the highest and lowest yield of each crop per acre. These schedules are being mailed to prominent farmers all over the country and in many instances returns have already been received. When the returns have been received and tabulated, a scheme will be made from them of what is to be accepted as correct in each case and what is to be probed farther. The only aim of the office is to get what was really the intention of the farmer in answering the questions. If the presumption is strongly against his meaning what the schedule says, the office will try to learn by correspondence from the supervisor or enumerator or the farmer himself what the real facts were.

If the farming public will continue to co-operate with the heartiness already displayed, this effort will result in a more trustworthy census of farms than has ever been taken. Farmers, as a class, are less able to co-operate than the representatives of any other great industry. Hence the census office can do more for centralized lines of business, which can and do make their own investigations, and it will do its best to present a full and accurate photograph of this leading occupation. The director of the census urges every one interested to aid the work.

ROLLIS.

Albert Lunsetter was in Thief River Falls this week on business.

Master Dan Burns was quite sick the past week but is better at this writing.

John Barra reports a ten pound boy at his home.

Herbert Forder arrived here Friday from Dassel. He drove across the country a distance of 475 miles.

Mr. Bent Johnson is confined to his bed for the past week with what is supposed to be inflamation.

Five land hunters were seen in town today.

Mrs. Will Drew was calling in town Tuesday.

Mr. Johnson went to Thief River Falls the first of the week to telephone to Crookston for a doctor for his brother, Ben.

Nels Abbott, who is visiting his brother, Dan, here, will leave for his home near Grand Forks today.

Cattle buyers are numerous these days. All paying good prices.

The foreman on the Langseth farm of Thief River Falls was in this vicinity Wednesday.

Nels Abbott was received with honors when he came into town Sunday evening. He was riding with one of our bachelors who was supposed to bring his bride home, and Mr. Rollis was the first to greet him with a horn, and when Mr. Abbott told he that he didn't understand it all, Rollis went behind the store and kicked himself.

The Red Lakers.

Indian Commissioner Jones said that arrangements would probably soon be concluded to make allotments on the Red Lake reservation. The Red Lakers contend that under an agreement with the government they have the right to continue their tribal relations. Senator Nelson has urged for some time that the lands should be occupied in severalty. It is not unlikely that Commissioner Hall will be directed to proceed to make allotments at Red lake.—Washington correspondence in the Pioneer Press.

LARGEST TREE IN THE WORLD.

Called the Hurricane Tree in the Capital of the Bahama Islands.

In Nassau, the capital city of the Bahama islands, they say "the tree in the public square"—not the trees. Now, the public square of Nassau is quite as large as that of most cities of the size, but there is only one tree in it, and that tree literally fills the square and spreads its shade over all the public buildings in the neighborhood. For it is the largest tree in the world at its base, although it is hardly taller than a three-story house. It is variously known as a ceiba, or a silk cotton tree, but the people of the low islands of the West Indies call it the hurricane tree. For no matter how hard the wind blows it cannot disturb the mighty buttressed trunk of the ceiba. In the hurricane of last spring all the palms and many of the other trees of Nassau were overturned, but the great hurricane tree, although it lost all its leaves, did not lose so much as a branch. Its trunk throws out great curving, wing-like branches, some of them 20 feet wide and nearly as high. These extend into the ground on all sides and brace the tree against all attack, while the great branches spread a thick shade overhead. In the tropic sunshine of midsummer, hundreds, even thousands, of people may gather in the cool of its shadow. No one knows how old the great tree is, but it must have been growing hundreds, if not thousands, of years. A very old picture in the library at Nassau shows the tree as big as it is at present, and even the oldest negro in the island cannot remember when it was a bit smaller.

JUSTICE IN CALHOUN COUNTY.

What Happened to a Game Warden Who Prosecuted Fish Dynamiters.

George Cunningham, of Calhoun county, who was in Chicago the other day with live stock, told a story of the arrest of some Calhoun citizens for capturing fish by the use of dynamite. The fish were in a lake or slough on private property, and hundreds of pounds were secured by the explosion. The game and fish warden of the district was notified by some one "not engaged in his own business," according to George, and the dynamiters were arrested and taken before a justice of the peace at Hardin. After hearing the pros and cons of the case the justice turned to the warden and said:

"These gentlemen are discharged, and you will pay the costs of this suit or be committed to jail. Calhoun county belongs to Calhoun people. We have always fished wherever we wanted to, and in any durned way we wanted to, and we are goin' to keep on doin' as we please on our own property.

"Oh, I know what you are goin' to say: 'There is a state law ag'in blowin' fish out of the river.' This wasn't no river; and, besides, Calhoun county hed her own laws long before this blamed blowin'-up law was passed. Ask Jim Ward or Buck Hinrichsen, our ex-congressman, if that ain't so.

"You pay the costs and go back to Alton. We ain't got nobody in jail nohow, and the sheriff is gettin' mighty lonely, and I'd just as lief you wouldn't pay as not."

The warden paid the costs and took an appeal.

A DIPLOMAT'S PUG.

Marquis of Salisbury and Other Personages Wrought Up About It.

One almost forgets how long ago it is since the muzzling order was first issued, but shortly after the inception of that order a housemaid "attached" to a foreign legation took a pug dog, also "attached" to the same legation, out for a walk, says Chambers' Journal. She was stopped by a constable, who asked her why the dog was not wearing a muzzle.

The housemaid replied that the dog did not possess a muzzle because it was a diplomatic dog. The constable responded that the dog was a pug, and that he was not a fool. The constable took the name and address of the housemaid.

A few days later a summons arrived at the legation. The housemaid did not present herself at the court, and the magistrate imposed a fine on her.

At last the foreign minister went to the marquis of Salisbury about the matter. The result was that all the officials connected with the case were reprimanded, and a "note" was addressed from Lord Salisbury to all the legations in London, in which note Lord Salisbury said he had the honor to call attention to a certain order entitled the "muzzling order," by which it was enacted with all dogs, when taken into public places, should wear a muzzle over the head.

Drunkenness a Century Ago.

In reviewing "The Early Married Life of Maria Josepha, Lady Stanley," the London Spectator comments on the light in which drunkenness was regarded at the beginning of the century. There was a christening of twins, and rejoicing among the neighbors, tenants and laborers. "All the guests," says Maria, "were as drunk as I ever had the pleasure of seeing anyone." Among the laborers, however, "that extent of intoxication was not reached which causes men to be swine." Lady Sheffield, who received this account of the festivities, replies: "I would have given a great deal to be present; there is nothing I love so much as such sort of festivities, where one has the satisfaction of knowing that one makes one's friends happy as well as drunk." In London, she declares, "when you give a ball you affront many people, please a few, make many drunk, and yourself miserable."

ENGLAND'S BLACK ALLIES.

South African Basutos Have Adopted Civilized Customs and Manners.

The South African Basutos would be a difficult nation to suppress and bring under control again if once armed, says Collier's Weekly. They are a warlike and superior Kaffir tribe, numbering over 220,000, and have adopted more of the civilized manners and ways of the white settlers than any other of the South African natives. Fully 50,000 of them are said to be adherents of the different Christian missionaries who have labored among them. They have never been disarmed, and in an emergency they would prove a formidable foe in the field. The paramount chief to-day is Lerthodi, a man of great force and emergency, and highly civilized. He is the direct successor of Moshesh, the famous chief who built up the Basuto kingdom out of the fugitive clans that were driven southward in the first decade of the present century.

The English had a clash with the Basutos in 1848 after a victory over the Boers. The Basutos were severely defeated in the opening campaign, and before a larger reenforcement of English could be dispatched to the scene Moshesh prudently sued for terms of peace. This wily move saved the Basutos from an exterminating war with the English and made the two nations live peaceably together for upward of half a century. The English, in fact, became their protectors and advisers. When the war between the Basutos and the Boers of the Orange Free State broke out, ten years later, the paramount chief, Moshesh, appealed to the governor of Cape Colony, who interfered and settled the disputed boundary question. This was repeated again in 1865, when the Boers made a supreme effort to annihilate the Basutos, whom they accused of stealing their cattle. This time the English declared the Basutos English subjects, and the Free State had to settle the matter with the British high commissioner.

CENTRAL ASIA.

Preconceived Notions About It All Wrong—Good Health Resort.

One finds a difficulty in associating Central Asia with the idea of a health resort, says the London Lancet. The names of Bokhara, Samarkand and Tashkend call to mind pictures of a country the past history of which was one of nameless horrors and the recent history of which is one of reluctant submission after a bloody war to the overwhelming might of Russia, which only succeeds in keeping peace by free use of the iron hand barely concealed under the velvet glove of civilized rule.

The climate one is apt to think of as one of burning heat in summer, alternating with arctic cold in winter. All these preconceived opinions are probably equally wrong. Central Asia is settled and as safe under civilized western rule as India; and as regards climate, though the plains suffer from extremes, there are said to be hill stations admirably suited for health resorts. Such a place is Rokube, 3,550 feet above sea level, in the hills, not far from Samarkand, where the mortality is very low and chest diseases are almost unknown. Other places in the neighborhood are equally favored.

The winter is mild, and spring begins in March. The sky is constantly clear and the air is of great purity. The climatic conditions are compared with those of Greece or Italy, but are more continental in character. Next year a military sanitarium is to be established in this spot.

WOMAN'S MOST WINSOME AGE.

Thirty Is Considered the Time of Her Most Winsome and Captivating Beauty.

Why do women hesitate to tell their age? By common consent it is regarded as very rude and boorish to ask a woman a categorical question regarding the number of her birthdays. Yet there shall be no diffidence on the point, and reticence on the subject is hard to explain. Except for some reason connected with business which may find in accumulating years a handicap, a man is usually very open about his age and as ready to proclaim it as his wife and sisters are to conceal theirs. Probably the feeling in the matter had its origin in the long ago when matrimony was the ordinary woman's only desirable goal, and when as she grew older her chances of finding a mate diminished perceptibly, says Collier's Weekly.

The situation has so entirely changed, and spinsterhood has become so inviting that we should expect to discover an alteration in the manners of women on this point and to find them quite candid as to their claims to maturity or the reverse. Fifty years to-day looks as 40 did a score of years ago. Thirty—always a very winsome age, the age of woman's most captivating beauty—is now to be distinguished in freshness and bloom from 25. Outdoor life is doing for women what nothing else can do—making them beautiful and keeping them young.

Migration of Swallows.

Swallows migrate to Central America and the southern part of Mexico. They like it pretty warm. Early in March they begin to appear in the southern states, but they seldom get far north until the latter part of April. The robins don't care for such a warm climate, and very few of them get as far south as Mexico.

ALFRED SPEER,
THE ORIGINAL
Port Grape Wine Producer in America.

The first native wine sold and used in San Francisco and Sacramento was from Speer's Passaic, N. J., vineyards, was shipped around Cape Horn before there was any railroad, to California, and are now being used by physicians and first families there as the richest and best wine to be had

The juice of the Portugal Port Wine grape grown in N. J. is thick and rich same as the juice of pears and other fruits grown here. From California pears you can squeeze water as from a sponge; so with all fruits grown in California; while those grown in New Jersey are solid in substance—less juice but thick and richer. The New Jersey apples, for instance, make a cider that was always popular the world over. If you want a wine for sickness or for entertainments don't take cheap, watery wines but choose a first class old, full bodied, high grade wine from Speer's Passaic vineyards. Sold by Druggists.

I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. A GREAT NEWSPAPER.

It has always been claimed for The Chicago Tribune that it would, in all probability, pass with the highest average in any competitive examination among the newspapers of the United States for excellence in all departments of journalism.

"Under date of May 2, 1899, the Omaha World-Herald, editorially answering a letter from 'Inquirer' asking the names of the five best newspapers in this country, points out that a newspaper may excel in one way and be inferior in another. The World-Herald gives lists under five general headings of leading American newspapers distinguished especially for excellence, mentioning in all some twenty.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE HEADINGS:

"(1) Most and best news, foreign and domestic, presented attractively.
"(2) Best possible presentation of news briefly.
"(3) Typographical appearance.
"(4) Classification of news by departments.
"(5) Editorials.

"The Chicago Tribune is the only newspaper in the United States which the World-Herald considers worthy of mention under four different heads."—From the October Plain Talk.

KNIGHTS OF MALTA

A New Lodge to Be Organized in This City.

Lewis E. Green, of Grand Forks, deputy organizer of the Knights of Malta, arrived in the city last week and is soliciting for membership to his order. He states that the required number have signified their willingness to become members of the order and that a lodge will be instituted here sometime in May. Sir W. H. Becker, supreme organizer of the lodge, will deliver a lecture on the benefits and aims of the order in the Odd Fellows' hall next Monday evening, and all are invited to attend, ladies included.

Fewer Questions.

The census enumerator, when he comes around next June, will not ask if your grandfather was a monkey, nor compel you to take an invoice of family skeletons for the edification of the government. The manner in which the enumerators will work this year is very different from what in was ten years ago. That census was taken under a law that required enumerators to ask a great number of obnoxious questions. Sensitive people were obliged to divulge their hidden ailments and harassed persons struggling under a burden of debt, yet making a great effort to keep up appearances, were compelled to confine their financial woes to the enumerator. He demanded information as to sight, hearing, speech and mind, and asked sternly if any member of the family was a convict, a pauper or a homeless child. Of course, the answers thus obtained were not for publication, but were tabulated by men who had sworn that they would not divulge anything. Instead of ten questions asked by the enumerator in 1890 only four will be asked in 1900. These will require information about population, vital statistics, manufactures and agriculture. In cities the enumerator will frequently not need the agricultural schedule, and in the country the one for manufactures will not be needed, and in these cases the enumerators will have to carry but three schedules.

Our Indians Abroad.

The usual number of Indians are enjoying their semi-annual excursion as witnesses in the liquor cases to come before the United States court in this city, and some of them find it difficult to keep sober long enough to give their testimony. One of the redskins called at the saloon of John S. Olson Tuesday morning and demanded some whiskey, a demand which Mr. Olson politely refused. The fellow left, but a few hours later returned in a highly intoxicated condition and demanded some beer. He was again refused, whereupon he drew a revolver and repeated his demand. Mr. Olson stepped into his private room and rang the telephone for the police and the disorderly redskin was soon taken into custody.—Fergus Falls Journal.

Again Continued.

The case brought up by the Polk county commissioners to secure a settlement of affairs with Red Lake county resulting from the division of Polk has again been continued—this time until April 4. This is done for the purpose of allowing Red Lake county to put in evidence some records relating to tax levies and certain funds that they claim should be deducted from the amount Polk county demands.—Crookston Tribune.

NEXT WEEK.

Farmers Will Commence Seeding Wheat.

The prospects are that the farmers will commence seeding wheat the first of next week. The conditions this year have been more favorable than ever before. There is little or no water upon the ground, which, by the first of next week, will be in excellent condition. Some of the farmers living on the ridges west of town began seeding the first of this week, but they are always about a week earlier than those living on the level prairies. The indications are that a bountiful harvest will be reaped in this section next fall.

Roseau Booming, Too.

Settlers are flocking into Roseau county in considerable numbers and this spring promises an increased population of several hundred new settlers. The indications are that this year will see the population of the county reach the 10,000 mark. The number of homesteads taken in the county is now over 2,000, representing a population of 7,000. The settlement of Roseau county has been slow as compared with sections which have been boomed, yet the county has had the advantage of a steady growth in settlement by a class of people who are contended and prosperous. A railroad projected into the county would precipitate a boom that would cause a quick settlement and filing upon all available homestead land subject to entry. That section of the country tributary to Roseau village is already assured of a market for grain and stock during the winter over the Winnipeg road, the hauling distance being 15 miles from Roseau.—Roseau Times.

Northern Minnesota Firemen.

The Northern Minnesota firemen's tournament will be held at Fosston during the coming summer. The Fosston company is already beginning preparations for the event. A call has been issued to the various towns interested to send delegates to the convention at Crookston on April 4 to discuss methods and preparations. Will Thief River Falls be represented?

Married Last Week.

William Whitman, of this city, and Miss Agnes McLennon, of Crookston, were married last Wednesday evening at the residence of the bride. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. G. R. Poole, in the presence of a few friends. The bride is one of the estimable young ladies of Crookston and the groom is a popular young business man of this city.

See What a President Says on Brandy for Sickness.

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

The Republican state convention to elect delegates to the national convention will be held in Minneapolis, May 16.

The county conventions will be held May 9.

The state convention to nominate a state ticket will be held in St. Paul, June 28.

The county conventions will be held June 21.

The representation will be the same as in 1898. Red Lake county is entitled to seven delegates.

IF Congressmen Eddy secures the passage of the free homes bill at this session of congress, he will be stronger in the Seventh district than ever before.

THE St. Paul Republicans have nominated Chester R. Smith for mayor and the Democrats have put up Robert A. Smith. To an outsider it looks like two much Smith.

A MEETING of delegates from twenty different towns in western Polk county will be held at East Grand Forks next Saturday for the purpose of discussing the advisability of petitioning to be set off from Polk county, with a new county seat at Fisher.

COL. COOPER, promoter of the proposed national park in Northern Minnesota, is still enthusiastic over the scheme, and states the prospects of the bill being passed are favorable. The park would embrace about 80,000 acres, and the timber would be removed scientifically, with benefit to the park and to the Indians.

THERE is a strong demand for the repeal of the bankruptcy law, and in all probabilities something will be done at this session of congress. It has been in effect long enough to allow those who have been oppressed by old debts to get rid of them, and now it only proves a menace to the business interests of the country, as it permits dishonest persons to contract large debts and then escape the payment of them by resorting to the bankruptcy law.

NAT CAMPBELL has been elected mayor after one of the hottest municipal campaigns ever witnessed in Crookston. The election of Campbell is said to have considerable significance in Democratic circles. He is a candidate for delegate from the Seventh district to the national Democratic convention, and; in the event—but it is very improbable—of the election of a Democratic president, he would hold down one of the easy chairs in the land office.

THE congressional contest in the Seventh district is in the judgment of many good Republicans entirely out of place in view of the fact that the next re-districting of the state may play hurl-carl in location of aspirants and congressmen. For this reason alone it has been urged that the present congressman be let alone and more especially as there is nothing to urge against his re-election. A campaign against the re-nomination of Mr. Eddy is likely to engender more or less feeling which will not add materially to his vote.—Roseau Times.

Live Stock Census.

The coming census of live stock will undertake three new features—classification by age and partly by sex and use, a count of pure-blood animals, and an enumeration of stock not on farms and ranges; these last amounting to several million head. The age classification was undertaken in response to a demand of the stockmen, who felt that the more enumeration of animals, regardless of age and use, was about as valueless as a count of inhabitants without distinction of age, sex, color and occupation. They expressed a desire to secure a basis for calculating the approximate number of live stock and the productive capacity of the entire mass of cattle or sheep for any particular season, and the sceedules have been prepared to meet their wishes.

In Memoriam.

Whereas, the Omnipotent Power hath deemed it fit to remove from our midst our highly respected friend and brother neighbor, Hogan Larson, therefore, be it resolved that Ogahmah camp No. 8401, Modern Woodmen of America, mourning his departure with the relatives and friends of our late neighbor, shall, as a symbol of our loss, direct that the charter of our camp be draped in mourning for the period of thirty days, and that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our order, and further be it resolved that copies of these resolutions be sent to the father, brother and sister of our departed friend.

EXPERIMENT STATIONS.

Secretary Wilson, of Agricultural Department, Makes Report on Work Being Done.

Secretary Wilson has sent to congress his report of the agricultural experimental stations of the country. It is a voluminous document, and will be of great interest to the farmers. Last year at the Illinois station the work included field experiments with corn, with special reference to the effects of detasseling, root pruning at different depths, and previous treatment of land on the cost of products; culture experiments with sugar beets, cow-peas, feeding experiments with pigs and dairy culture; variety culture, and other experiments with orchards and small fruits and vegetables; studies of bacterial and fungus disease of plants, especially the smuts of maize and broom corn, pear blight and apple scab; soil studies and chemical investigation. Chemical and microscopical studies are being made with reference to the effect of breeding corn in protein and fat contents.

Observations have been made on the effect of different depths of cultivation on the moisture content of the soil. Mechanical studies of soils from different parts of the state have been made with the aid of the new apparatus, devised at the station for mechanical analysis of the soil. Experiments of different methods of treatment of soil and with drainage are being conducted on peculiar soils in the southern part of the state.

Cooperative experiments have been continued with sugar beets, in which 900 farmers have taken part, analytical work being done at the station. Special experiments on the durability of the different kinds of wood are being carried on by the horticulturists. Spraying experiments are being made in the orchards outside of the station. The results of these experiments are given in bulletins prepared by the agricultural department.

CHARGED WITH MAN-EATING.

Three Indians from British Columbia Will Be Tried for Cannibalism.

Three chiefs of the Alberta bay tribes of Indians were brought to Vancouver, B. C., from northern British Columbia to be tried for their lives for eating human flesh. The offenses were committed at a potlatch three weeks ago given by Chief Gilhunk.

During the potlatch the ancient death dance was called for. Martyrs were asked to step into the circle. Two young bucks and an Indian maiden answered the call and stood near a fire, naked, while ten painted savages danced around them, darting at them and biting pieces out of their arms and legs and eating the bleeding morsels.

A missionary complained to the government, who warned the tribe that if it eats human flesh again its land will be taken away. In the meantime the three chiefs are to suffer for their tribe at the hands of the law.

SILVER FOUND IN INDIANA.

Rich Quartz Discovered in a Cave Near Town of Butler—Mysterious Indian.

Silver ore has been discovered in Orange county, Ind., under peculiar circumstances. David Ross, a farmer, discovered a cave on his farm rich in bearing ore, and it is believed that when the cave is explored the find will be of more importance than is now credited to it. Near the entrance to the cave are several Indian hieroglyphics cut in the bark of trees, and on several trees in the immediate vicinity are the figures of a human hand pointing in the direction of the cave, the opening of which was cleverly concealed, and without the guiding hands it would have been almost an impossibility to have discovered it. Additional value is placed on the find for the reason that a strange Indian spent several days in that vicinity two years ago looking for the signs on the trees, but was unsuccessful.

BARONESS HIRSCH'S BEQUESTS

Value of Those Given to New York Institutions Is at Last Made Public.

It is announced that the bequests made by the late Baroness Hirsch in favor of New York institutions are now available for their objects, and that the funds into which they have been converted will reach this city during the month. The chief beneficiaries of these bequests are the Educational Alliance and the United Hebrew Charities. Their total amount is 7,500,000 francs ($1,500,000). The fact that these institutions were remembered in the will of the baroness was announced at the time of her death, but the value of the bequests, representing the residue of the Hirsch estate, had not until now been legally settled up.

S. G. Byerly, representing the Duluth Brewing company, was in the city last Friday. His company is thinking seriously of building a cold storage in this city and selling beer to the trade.

The best flax story is now reported from western Walsh county, where a farmer raised 2,500 bushels of flax from 100 acres of a $750 farm, and is still selling it at home for $1.75 per bushel, for seed. A $4,375 crop off a $750 farm is pretty swift farming.

Torgus Hemmestedt, the famous ski runner, and champion of the world in this sport, has bought a tract of land near Thief River Falls, where he will engage in farming.—Ada Herald.

Of Red Lake county's $63,000 levy for 1899, which became due Jan. 1, 1900, $25,700 was paid before March 1st. This shows an excellent condition of the financial affairs of the people living in the county.

If you want to file on a piece of government land it will not be necessary to go to Crookston. Make your filing in Thief River Falls before L. G. Browning, U. S. commissioner for the district of Minnesota.

There will be services in the Catholic church on Easter Sunday, April 15. High mass will begin at 10 a. m., instead of at 10:30. Confessions will be heard from 8 o'clock on, on Sunday morning. Rev. Ansgar, O. S. B.

The younger element in Red Lake Falls have organized a juvenile lodge. The leading qualifications for membership are strict attendance at school, no profanity and no cigarettes. With these rules a similar lodge in Thief River Falls ought to be a success—perhaps.

A contract has been let to P. L. Perrault to saw 2,000,000 feet of lumber and 2,000,000 shingles on White Earth reservation. Work will commence at once. The lumber will be used by the Indians to build houses. The saw mill will be located a few miles of White Earth lake.

Instead of decreasing, the inflow of immigration to the Northwest is daily on the increase. One day recently it required fifty extra cars to bring to St. Paul from Chicago the crowds of homeseekers who are flocking to Northern Minnesota, North Dakota and the Pacific coast states.

Work was commenced the first of the week by H. H. Olson for the building he will erect this spring on the corner of La Bree avenue and Second street. The building will be covered with steel sheeting, but it has not yet been decided whether or not to make it two stories high.

A petition for a side walk from Phil Zeh's residence to the Catholic church has been circulated and signed by a majority of the property holders affected. It will be presented at the next meeting of the city council, and, if it is acted favorably upon, a side walk will be built this summer.

It seems that Polk county has for years harbored a leper, although nothing has been known of the case officially. The name of the afflicted party was Andrew Borsh, and his home was in Garfield township. He died on Tuesday of last week and was buried at Fertile. He was 65 years old and has been afflicted for several years.—Crookston Times.

Minnesota has taken steps to import the hemp and manila for its penitentiary twine plant and has an agent in the Philippines who cabled that he can buy and ship the raw material at a price considerably below that asked in this country. The material will be shipped across the Pacific, instead of by the eastern route as hemp is at present imported.

Wm. V. Warren was drowned last week at Twin Lakes, on the White Earth reservation. He was one of the best known men on the reservation, and was the only living son of Wm. Warren, the author and historian. His first wife was a daughter of the famous chieftain, Hole-in-the-day. His second wife was a St. Paul girl, a Miss Jennie Kennedy.

A very successful month of business has just been closed at the United States land office at Crookston. The number of homestead entries outside the reservation is exactly 100, while 58 were made inside the reservation. The number having proved up on homesteads reaches 23 and the cash entries 28. The total receipts for the month are $11,058.98.

W. A. Kratka left Monday for Iowa where he will purchase a car load of horses and cattle.

The small boy who spends his time collecting tobacco tags and wrappers in order to secure a jack-knife offered by a generous tobacco company will be out of a job henceforth. The treasury department has ruled that no tobacco company can ship premiums for tags or other things that accompany the "plug."

Deputy Head Counsel Case organized a camp of Modern Woodmen at Warroad Tuesday evening and one at Ross Wednesday evening. Mr. Case is certainly a great worker in the order. Mr. Case also instituted a camp at Greenbush last evening, which makes five camps of the order in Roseau county.—Roseau Times.

A meeting was held Monday night for the purpose of reorganizing the Select base ball nine, of this city, which won so many laurels last summer and wiped the earth with everything in sight. J. Armstrong was elected manager; Wm. Murphy, captain; Sam Hunt, secretary, and J. B. Armstrong treasurer. It is the intention of the club to secure permanent grounds, to erect a pavilion and a fence and charge an admission fee.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

A increase in population of 900,000 in ten years in Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana is shown by R. L. Polk & Co.'s Northwestern Gazeteer, just issued. The present population is placed at 2,725,000. The number of new settlements recorded in the four states in two years is 480, there now being 5,724 cities, towns and villages in the four states, which is an increase of 1,835 in ten years. This rate of growth is almost unparalleled.

The people of Twin Valley are circulating a petition to remove the county from Ada to Twin Valley. Ada is in the center of the settled portion of the county, and has two votes to Twin Valley's one outside the reservation. Twin Valley expects to offset this by the Indian vote and the opposition to Ada of some of the merchants in the villages in the western part of the county. Ada people will circulate a remonstrance against the removal. The fight is occasioned by the project to build a new court house at Ada.

The McIntosh Republican sees great possibilities in corn, and says: "The time has arrived when farmers of this county should pay more attention to production of corn. It is almost a sure crop every season; cultivating a corn crop is more beneficial to the soil than summer fallowing. Responsible parties are now contracting for all the corn which can be produced in this country at good prices, with which they purpose feeding and fitting their cattle for the eastern market. This will insure the farmers the highest price for eastern market. This will insure the farmers the highest price for their stock and create a market for corn."

The president of the Baltimore medical college, who has thoroughly tested Speer's wines and brandy, says: "Speer's climax brandy is a pure and valuable article in all cases of disease in which a reliable stimulant is required. I regard it superior to most French brandies.

"BILL BACK-ACHER."

A Story of Hard Field Work in India with General Gatacre.

An Indian correspondent of M. A. P. tells a little story of Gen. Gatacre. He was in command of a district in India, and there had been a field day. This, with Gatacre at the head of affairs, means a good deal more than it does with the ordinary general. There were long marching, forced marching and mimic hill warfare in full field order, and Tommy sweated for hours. How many miles had been covered I will not attempt to say. Some allege 25, others 12, but anyhow the long day was at an end, and, disheveled and footsore, the troops marched back into camp. 'Twas then that I heard this delightful little dialogue: "Tired, Bill?" said a private to a comrade. "Na," unblushingly came the reply. "Well, Bill, seeing how it's all over, I think I shall just drop into the canteen and have a quart of ale. What are you going to do, Bill?" There was a pause. "Do, Enery?" said the dust-begrimed Tommy. "Well, Enery, I shall just go and have a bit of a wash, and then I think I'll go for a walk." The tale went round many a table in the land of exile, and no one who knew Gatacre failed to laugh outright when they heard it. Tommy thinks the world of Sir William, however; his only objection is that "he does make 'em work"—wherefore hath he been nicknamed "Backacher" by his men.

COATS THAT LAST A CENTURY.

Ah Sin in His Native Land Highly Prizes a Venerable Garment.

Gentlemen who take delight in sartorial changes as frequent almost as those of the moon might learn a lesson from John Chinaman, with whom, even though he be well off, it is felicity to wear his grandfather's coat. Not only is the common-looking, shapeless blouse of his ancestor prized because it is his ancestor's, but because of its intrinsic value. The clothing usually worn by the Chinese is of the purest silk and costs anywhere from $100 to $200 a suit. As a nation the Chinese object to wearing clothing of any other kind, and centuries of experiment have taught them how best to make up the costly caterpillar thread into the most durable form. On this account the Chinese dress, though of purer material, has none of the sheen usually associated with silk, a peculiarity which has resulted in the erroneous ideas as to their composition.

All the garments are made in China and are only exported for the personal use of celestials in foreign countries. Owing to their cost, however, they are only purchased at long intervals, each garment being of so durable a character that they are handed down to the third and even the fourth generation.

DRIFTWOOD OF ALASKA.

A Deposit of Logs That Have Come from Japan, China and India.

There is an extraordinary deposit of driftwood on the coast of Alaska, some 1,200 or 1,500 miles northwest of Seattle. A constant deposit of logs and driftwood has been going on for hundreds of years, and it is due to the phenomena of the tides, the Pacific gulf stream, the ocean currents and the peculiar formations of the shore-lines at that point. According to the Chicago Times-Herald, logs and timbers are readily identified there as having come from Japan, China, India and other localities of Asia, as well as from California, Washington and other parts of the American continent. There are the logs of camphor tree, the mahogany, the redwood and the pine. Some of these from the state of Washington bear the names of the men who felled the trees and the sawmills for which they were destined. Some logs eight feet in diameter are often seen there, and some entire trees [illegible] feet long, easily identified by the roots having [illegible] [illegible] The [illegible] [illegible] and they are as [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] immersion [illegible] salt water.

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

The Republican state convention to elect delegates to the national convention will be held in Minneapolis, May 16.

The county conventions will be held May 9.

The state convention to nominate a state ticket will be held in St. Paul, June 28.

The county conventions will be held June 21.

The representation will be the same as in 1898. Red Lake county is entitled to seven delegates.

If Congressmen Eddy secures the passage of the free homes bill at this session of congress, he will be stronger in the Seventh district than ever before.

The St. Paul Republicans have nominated Chester R. Smith for mayor and the Democrats have put up Robert A. Smith. To an outsider it looks like two much Smith.

Just why people living in this section of the Seventh district desire to take a part in the location of a postoffice building in Fergus Falls is hard to tell. But some of them do.

A meeting of delegates from twenty different towns in western Polk county will be held at East Grand Forks next Saturday for the purpose of discussing the advisability of petitioning to be set off from Polk county, with a new county seat at Fisher.

Col. Cooper, promoter of the proposed national park in Northern Minnesota, is still enthusiastic over the scheme, and states the prospects of the bill being passed are favorable. The park would embrace about 80,000 acres, and the timber would be removed scientifically, with benefit to the park and to th that the next re-districting of the state may play hari-cari in location of aspirants and congressmen. For this reason alone it has been urged that the present congressman be let alone and more especially as there is nothing to urge against his re-election. A campaign against the re-nomination of Mr. Eddy is likely to engender more or less feeling which will not add materially to his vote.—Roseau Times.

Live Stock Census.

The coming census of live stock will undertake three new features—classification by age and partly by sex and use, a count of pure-blood animals, and an enumeration of stock not on farms and ranges; these last amounting to several million head. The age classification was undertaken in response to a demand of the stockmen, who felt that the mere enumeration of animals, regardless of age and use, was about as valueless as a count of inhabitants without distinction of age, sex, color and occupation. They expressed a desire to secure a basis for calculating the approximate number of live stock and the productive capacity of the entire mass of cattle or sheep for any particulal season, and the sceedules have been prepared to meet their wishes.

In Memoriam.

Whereas, the Omnipotent Power hath deemed it fit to remove from our midst our highly respected friend and brother neighbor, Hogan Larson, therefore, be it resolved that Ogahmah camp No. 8401, Modern Woodmen of America, mourning his departure with the relatives and friends of our late neighbor, shall, as a symbol of our loss, direct that the charter of our camp be draped in mourning for the period of thirty days, and that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our order, and further be it resolved that copies of these resolutions be sent to the father, brother and sister of our departed friend.

IN THE

EXPERIMENT STATIONS.

Secretary Wilson, of Agricultural Department, Makes Report on Work Being Done.

Secretary Wilson has sent to congress his report of the agricultural experimental stations of the country. It is a voluminous document, and will be of great interest to the farmers. Last year at the Illinois station the work included field experiments with corn, with special reference to the effects of detasseling, root pruning at different depths, and previous treatment of land on the cost of products; culture experiments with sugar beets, cow-peas, feeding experiments with pigs and dairy culture; variety culture, and other experiments with orchards and small fruits and vegetables; studies of bacterial and fungus disease of plants, especially the smuts of maize and broom corn, pear blight and apple scab; soil studies and chemical investigation. Chemical and microscopical studies are being made with reference to the effect of breeding corn in protein and fat contents.

Observations have been made on the effect of different depths of cultivation on the moisture content of the soil. Mechanical studies of soils from different parts of the state have been made with the aid of the new apparatus, devised at the station for mechanical analysis of the soil. Experiments of different methods of treatment of soil and with drainage are being conducted on peculiar soils in the southern part of the state.

Cooperative experiments have been continued with sugar beets, in which 900 farmers have taken part, analytical work being done at the station. Special experiments on the durability of the different kinds of wood are being carried on by the horticulturists. Spraying experiments are being made in the orchards outside of the station. The results of these experiments are given in bulletins prepared by the agricultural department.

CHARGED WITH MAN-EATING.

Three Indians from British Columbia Will Be Tried for Cannibalism.

Three chiefs of the Alberta bay tribes of Indians were brought to Vancouver, B. C., from northern British Columbia to be tried for their lives for eating human flesh. The offenses were committed at a potlatch three weeks ago given by Chief Gilhunk.

During the potlatch the ancient death dance was called for. Martyrs were asked to step into the circle. Two young bucks and an Indian maiden answered the call and stood near a fire, naked, while ten painted savages danced around them, darting at them and biting pieces out of their arms and legs and eating the bleeding morsels.

A missionary complained to the government, who warned the tribe that if it eats human flesh again its land will be taken away. In the meantime the three chiefs are to suffer for their tribe at the hands of the law.

SILVER FOUND IN INDIANA.

Silver ore has been discovered in Orange county, Ind., under peculiar circumstances. David Ross, a farmer, discovered a cave on his farm rich in bearing ore, and it is believed that when the cave is explored the find will be of more importance than is now credited to it. Near the entrance to the cave are several Indian hieroglyphics cut in the bark of trees, and on several trees in the immediate vi-

S. G. Byerly, representing the Duluth Brewing company, was in the city last Friday. His company is thinking seriously of building a cold storage in this city and selling beer to the trade.

The best flax story is now reported from western Walsh county, where a farmer raised 2,500 bushels of flax from 100 acres of a $750 farm, and is still selling it at home for $1.75 per bushel for seed. A $4,375 crop off a $750 farm is pretty swift farming.

Torgus Hemmestedt, the famous ski runner, and champion of the world in this sport, has bought a tract of land near Thief River Falls, where he will engage in farming.—Ada Herald.

Of Red Lake county's $63,000 levy for 1899, which became due Jan. 1, 1900, $25,700 was paid before March 1st. This shows an excellent condition of the financial affairs of the people living in the county.

If you want to file on a piece of government land it will not be necessary to go to Crookston. Make your filing in Thief River Falls before L. G. Browning, U. S. commissioner for the district of Minnesota.

There will be services in the Catholic church on Easter Sunday, April 15. High mass will begin at 10 a. m., instead of at 10:30. Confessions will be heard from 8 o'clock on, on Sunday morning. Rev. Ausgar, O. S. B.

The younger element in Red Lake Falls have organized a juvenile lodge. The leading qualifications for membership are strict attendance at school, no profanity and no cigarettes. With these rules a similar lodge in Thief River Falls ought to be a success—perhaps.

A contract has been let to P. L. Perrault to saw 2,000,000 feet of lumber and 2,000,000 shingles on White Earth reservation. Work will commence at once. The lumber will be used by the Indians to build houses. The saw mill will be located a few miles of White Earth lake.

Instead of decreasing, the inflow of immigration to the Northwest is daily on the increase. One day recently it required fifty extra cars to bring to St. Paul from Chicago the crowds of homeseekers who are flocking to Northern Minnesota, North Dakota and the Pacific coast states.

Work was commenced the first of the week by H. H. Olson for the building he will erect this spring on the corner of La Bree avenue and Second street. The building will be covered with steel sheeting, but it has not yet been decided whether or not to make it two stories high.

A petition for a side walk from Phil Zeh's residence to the Catholic church has been circulated and signed by a majority of the property holders affected. It will be presented at the next meeting of the city council, and, if it is acted favorably upon, a side walk will be built this summer.

It seems that Polk county has for years harbored a leper, although nothing has been known of the case officially. The name of the afflicted party was Andrew Borsh, and his home was in Garfield township. He died on Tuesday of last week and was buried at Fertile. He was 65 years old and has been afflicted for several years.—Crookston Times.

Minnesota has taken steps to import the hemp and manila for its penitentiary twine plant and has an agent in the Philippines who cabled that he can buy and ship the raw material at a price considerably below that asked in this country. The material will be shipped across the Pacific, instead of by the eastern route as hemp is at present imported.

Wm. V. Warren was drowned last week at Twin Lakes, on the White Earth reservation. He was one of the best known men on the reservation, and was the only living son of Wm. Warren, the author and historian. His first wife was a daughter of the famous chieftain, Hole-in-the-day. His second wife was a St. Paul girl, a Miss Jennie Kennedy.

A very successful month of business has just been closed at the United States land office at Crookston. The number of homestead entries outside the reservation is exactly 100, while 58 were made inside the reservation. The number having proved up on homesteads reaches 23 and the cash entries 23. The total receipts for the month are $11,052.98.

People coming down from the lake state that the Red Lake river is open from the outlet to Little Grove.

The small boy who spends his time collecting tobacco tags and wrappers in order to secure a jack-knife offered by a generous tobacco company will be out of a job henceforth. The treasury department has ruled that no tobacco company can ship premiums for tags or other things that accompany the "plug."

Deputy Head Counsel Case organized a camp of Modern Woodmen at Warroad Tuesday evening and one at Ross Wednesday evening. Mr. Case is certainly a great worker in the order. Mr. Case also instituted a camp at Greenbush last evening, which makes five camps of the order in Roseau county.—Roseau Times.

A meeting was held Monday night for the purpose of reorganizing the Select base ball nine, of this city, which won so many laurels last summer and wiped the earth with everything in sight. J. Armstrong was elected manager; Wm. Murphy, captain; Sam Hunt, secretary, and J. B. Armstaong treasurer. It is the intention of the club to secure permanent grounds, to erect a pavilion and a fence and charge an admission fee.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

A increase in population of 900,000 in ten years in Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana is shown by R. L. Polk & Co.'s Northwestern Gazeteer, just issued. The present population is placed at 2,725,000. The number of new settlements recorded in the four states in two years is 480, there now being 5,724 cities, towns and villages in the four states, which is an increase of 1,655 in ten years. This rate of growth is almost unparalleled.

The people of Twin Valley are circulating a petition to remove the county from Ada to Twin Valley. Ada is in the center of the settled portion of the county, and has two votes to Twin Valley's one outside the reservation. Twin Valley expects to offset this by the Indian vote and the opposition to Ada of some of the merchants in the villages in the western part of the county. Ada people will circulate a remonstrance against the removal. The fight is occasioned by the project to build a new court house at Ada.

The McIntosh Republican sees great possibilities in corn, and says: "The time has arrived when farmers of this county should pay more attention to production of corn. It is almost a sure crop every season; cultivating a corn crop is more beneficial to the soil than summer fallowing. Responsible parties are now contracting for all the corn which can be produced in this country at good prices, with which they purpose feeding and fitting their cattle for the eastern market. This will insure the farmers the highest price for eastern market. This will insure the farmers the highest price for their stock and create a market for corn."

The president of the Baltimore medical college, who has thoroughly tested Speer's wines and brandy, says: "Speer's climax brandy is a pure and valuable article in all cases of disease in which a reliable stimulant is required. I regard it superior to most French brandies.

RESIST ENORMOUS PRESSURE.

Small Steel Balls Cannot Be Crushed by Ordinary Mechanical Devices.

The resisting power of steel balls to pressure has never been actually determined, and recent tests reported to the American Society of Mechanical Engineers leave the question still in doubt. At these tests balls were procured of sizes ranging from one-half to one inch in diameter from six manufacturers, and the attempt was at first made to test the balls by crushing between hardened steel plates. Difficulty was experienced, however, in procuring steel so hard that it would not indent under the pressure to which it was subjected in contact with the balls, and the plan was adopted of placing three balls in a row in a special holder, which kept them in line axially. Pressure was then brought to bear upon the two outer balls, eventually crushing the middle one.

After this series of tests was completed a steel was found that answered the purpose for testing the balls between flat surfaces and another line of tests was conducted with the balls between two flat plates of this steel. A singular fact is that in the first series nearly all the balls were broken by the formation within the ball of a conical wedge which was gradually forced toward the center of the ball until the latter was split. The base of the cone was approximately circular, with its center at the point at which the crushing force acted.

IN A MILITARY HOSPITAL.

The Strange Effect of Medical Training on a Class of Orderlies.

A class of orderlies had been carefully instructed by a medical officer on the subject of enteric fever. The instruction, says the Cornhill Magazine was rather over their heads, and much time was wasted in trying to explain the origin of enteric from a specific germ. On going over the subject the following week the class was asked: "What did you learn about germs?" No answer. "Well, what are germs?" Much scratching of well-oiled heads and solemn silence. "Come, now, what are germs?" Answer: "Them things wot you ketches wen you gits to bed at night."

An orderly who came up for training announced himself as a person of much experience. "Ah've seen a deal of sickness in my time. You see, Ah nursed me father a matter o' seven years—"ee 'ad a ferocious liver."—(Cirrhosis of liver?)

The orderly is not without his ideals and his ambitions. "W'en I leaves the army and gits 'ome, I'm a-going to set up in the medical line." "Why, are you going to be a doctor?" "No, not that, but the nixt thing to it(!) I'm a-going to 'ave a little shop in the pills and ointment line, and I'd make a rare good thing out of it if it wasn't for these yere alchemists wot picks to pieces all a poor chap sells." Unfortunately, this man did not live to open the little shop of his dreams, for he was killed while serving with the Tirah field force.

ANIMALS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

The Climate Is Not Favorable to Them—Dogs and Horses Victims of Disease.

It always seemed strange to me that the Natal climate, which is, on the whole, so healthy for human beings, should not be favorable to animal life, says the Cornhill Magazine. Dogs do not thrive there at all, and soon become infested with ticks.

One heard constantly of the native cattle being decimated by strange and weird diseases, and horses, especially imported horses, certainly require the greatest care. They must never be turned out while the dew is on the grass, unless with a sort of muzzling nosebag on, and the snakes are a perpetual danger to them, though the bite is not always fatal, for there are many varieties of snakes which are not venomous. Still, a native horse is always on the lookout for snakes and dreads them exceedingly.

One night I was cantering down the main street of Maritzburg on a quiet old pony on my way to the legislative council, where I wanted to hear a very interesting debate on the native question (which was the burning one of that day), and my pony suddenly leaped off the ground like an antelope and then shied right across the road.

This panic arose from its having stepped on a thin strip of zinc cut from a packing case, which must have been opened, as usual, outside the store or large shop which we were passing. As soon as the pony put his foot on one end of the long curled-up shaving it must have risen up and struck him sharply, waking unpleasant memories of former encounters with snakes.

Traveling Smoke.

During the volcanic eruption in the Hawaiian islands last summer, the smoke rose to a height of between five and six miles, and then drifted away to the northeast. At a distance of 600 miles from Hawaii it settled upon the surface of the sea, and was then carried back by the northeast wind to its place of origin, where it arrived a fortnight after its original departure, and covered the entire group of islands with its heavy pall.

Hard on the Cook.

A strange method of cooking an egg is sometimes employed by shepherds in the east. The egg is placed in a sling and whirled round and round until the heat of the motion has cooked it.

A BABY'S LONG RIDE.

Little Tot Travels from New York to Oklahoma Alone.

Helen M. Francis, Aged Three Years and Eight Months, Breaks the Record for Traveling Unattended—How It Was Done.

Assistant General Passenger Agent Palmer, of the Wabash road at Chicago, has received a telegram from Stroud, Okla., announcing that Helen M. Francis, three years and eight months old, had arrived safely at that point after having traveled from New York city without escort other than the trainmen to whose care she had been committed. Officers of the road say that, so far as they can learn, little Francis is the youngest child that has ever traveled alone by railway on a journey of such length.

The child was placed aboard a West Shore train in New York, tagged for Stroud. Conductors on every division along the West Shore, the Wabash and the Santa Fe were notified, and where change of cars was necessary passenger agents were instructed to take charge of her. From Buffalo to Chicago and from there to Kansas City the route was via the Wabash. From Kansas City to Stroud the youthful passenger was the guest of the Santa Fe.

The girl is the daughter of a railroad man with headquarters in New York. Her mother died recently and the father desired to send her to her grandmother.

The incident strongly illustrates the state of perfection that railroad transportation has reached.

Railroad officers say that they are not anxious to assume charge of children traveling without escort, but they never refuse to assume the responsibility when exigency requires.

GRAFTED EGG-FILM.

Indianapolis Physicians Heal the Victim of an Explosion—Peculiar Phase of Case.

The second successful operation of skin grafting by using the skin or inner film of newly laid eggs has been accomplished at the city hospital at Indianapolis by Dr. W. V. Morgan and other physicians of that institution. The subject is Scott Smith, a colored man.

A microscopic examination shows that the skin of the egg is now a part of Smith's body, but it remains white, while the other skin is black. The blood circulates through it as through other parts, but it is yet an open question whether the pigment which colors the negro's skin will enter the new skin and also color it.

Smith is in mortal terror for fear that feathers will grow out of his face and neck where the egg film was applied.

It is said that the only other successful operation of the kind ever performed was in a Brooklyn hospital.

THE NAVAL RESERVES.

Plans Made for Their Summer Work —To Be Taken for Cruise on the Prairie.

The programme for the summer's work of the naval reserves of the Atlantic states has been arranged by Lieut. Commander W. H. H. Southerland, who has charge of naval militia matters. It has been decided to again utilize the Prairie, which was used on this work last year, and which is engaged in transporting the government exhibit to the Paris exposition. Orders will be given the commanding officer of the ship to return to the New York navy yard by April 10 for fitting out for several months' cruising with the naval reserves. Two weeks will be the duration of the practice cruise for each command, and the summer's work will begin about April 23, when the Louisiana battalion will be taken on a trip in the gulf. Each state will be taken out in succession, and the dates of the various cruises will be within about ten days of last year's dates.

GOLD ORE IN ILLINOIS.

Two Farmers Near Red Bud Said to Have Discovered Paying Quartz.

Red Bud, Ill., was thrown into a state of excitement the other day when Raymond Mudd and James McNabb, two farmers living ten miles southwest of here, brought in samples of gold-bearing quartz from Camp's creek, where they had been prospecting for some time. An old prospector residing at Red Bud, whose field of operations has included the fields of New Mexico, Colorado and Arizona, pronounces the specimens as good gold-bearing quartz that would yield $118 to the ton. Camp's creek is a part of the Ozark range and the formation is such that mineral was always supposed to abound there. Several years ago a party of prospectors found silver ore, but in such small quantities that it could not be mined profitably. Mudd and McNabb went to St. Louis to see if they could interest capitalists in their find.

Culture in Boston Kitchens.

According to the labor bulletins of Massachusetts, says the New York Press, Boston servant girls keep on their kitchen shelves volumes of Goethe, Schiller, Eliot, Dumas, Thackeray, Victor Hugo and Shakespeare. One can imagine tears for the sorrows of Werther and Charlotte splashing into the pancake batter and the sputtering scrapple forgotten for a comparative criticism of Mary Cowden Clarke. Beautiful idyl of home! Better a dinner of greens where erudition is than a stalled ox and no Chautauqua course therewith.

The first native wine sold and used in San Francisco and Sacramento was from Speer's Passaic, N. J., vineyards, was shipped around Cape Horn before there was any railroad to California, and are now being used by physicians and first families there as the richest and best wine to be had

The juice of the Portugal Port Wine grape grown in N. J. is thick and rich same as the juice of pears and other fruits grown here. A GREAT NEWSPAPER.

It has always been claimed for The Chicago Tribune that it would, in all probability, pass with the highest average in any competitive examination among the newspapers of the United States for excellence in all departments of journalism.

"Under date of May 2, 1899, the Omaha World-Herald, editorially answering a letter from 'Inquirer' asking the names of the five best newspapers in this country, points out that a newspaper may excel in one way and be inferior in another. The World-Herald gives lists under five general headings of leading American newspapers distinguished especially for excellence, mentioning in all some twenty.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE HEADINGS:

"(1) Most and best news, foreign and domestic, presented attractively.
"(2) Best possible presentation of news briefly.
"(3) Typographical appearance.
"(4) Classification of news by departments.
"(5) Editorials.

"The Chicago Tribune is the only newspaper in the United States which the World-Herald considers worthy of mention under four different heads."—From the October Plain Talk.

Practically all high-class intelligent newspaper readers, comprising the best and middle classes in Chicago and vicinity, read The Chicago Tribune. A great majority of them read no other morning newspaper.

The Chicago Tribune prints more advertising year in and year out than any newspaper in the West.

BADLY INJURED.

Two St. Hilaire Ladies Thrown from a Buggy.

Mrs. A. C. Adams and Mrs. W. G. Cunningham, of St. Hilaire, were thrown from a buggy in this city last Friday afternoon and were quite badly hurt. The accident happened on the branch of the railroad track which runs to the Thief River Falls Lumber company's mill. The ladies were en route from St. Hilaire to this city, where they intended to visit friends, and the team was driven by C. B. Alexander, also of St. Hilaire. There is quite a pitch hole where the railroad crosses the street, and, in going over this, the hind seat in the buggy was broken, throwing the ladies out backwards. They struck upon their heads and were both rendered unconscious. They were at once taken to the home of Mrs. G. H. Turville and medical aid was summoned. An examination proved that they were not hurt seriously, and they were removed to their home at St. Hilaire the first of the week.

The outcome of the matter will probably be that a suit for damages will be commenced against the city, although opinions differ as to whether or not they are entitled to any. Eye witnesses to the accident claim that the team was being driven in a reckless manner and that at the time they crossed the railroad track they were going much faster than the city ordinance permits, but the driver, on the other hand, claims that due precaution was being taken. In conversation with the News, Mr. Adams stated that he would not have had the accident happened to his wife for $1,000, and this is probably the amount he will ask the city to pay him.

An "Oye" Story.

The Rock Island Railway company not long since issued an order requiring its section foremen to report to an oculist on certain days and have their eyes examined. One afternoon, after the oculist had examined all who presented themselves, and was about to leave his office, a messenger boy rushed in with a small package neatly tied up in tissue paper, and, upon opening it, it proved to contain a glass eye, and was accompanied by the following note:

Oye Inspector:

Dear Sur: The day befoor yisterday, at nune, I got word to cume down and hav me ise looked into for culur blindness, as ye call it. I had forty-five tied and ten rales to put down beyont the sand cut, and as jerry Sullivan an Dominick Coolly hav bin indisposhed since the wake that was holded over the ded corpus of Danny doherty, me hands wur tue short to spare me. THE CALL ISSUED

For the Republican County Convention.

Ira C. Richardson was down to Red Lake Falls last week to attend a meeting of the Republican county committee. It was decided to issue a call for the county convention to elect delegates to attend the congressional convention on the 9th of May, at 3:30 p. m. The primaries will be held on the 7th of May, at 7:30 p. m. Each voting precinct in the county will be entitled to three delegates, and the convention will be one of the largest ever held in the county—a total of seventy-two delegates.

Every member of the county committee was present at the meeting, and it goes to show that the Republicans in this county will take an active interest in politics in this county this year. A call will be issued later for the convention to elect a Republican county ticket, and it is thought that a strong ticket will be put in the field. Chances of success never looked brighter.

NEWS OF WORLD.

The St. Paul Dispatch Gives It to Its Readers.

If anything had been lacking to make a perfect metropolitan newspaper of the St. Paul Dispatch, the want was entirely filled when it completed arrangements for the special foreign cable service which is now brightening its columns. It is really astonishing how the recent war with Spain has developed the American thirst for the news of the world. It placed America in a new position with regard to the rest of the earth and gave new importance to the events of the world at large. If the movements of foreign powers were one of interest, they became doubly so when America rose into place as a world power. The St. Paul Dispatch recognized this when it secured this cable service, with its news from first hands. No longer is London the sole source of all European news, and no longer is the news of the world filtered through British channels and tinted with English ideas. It comes to the Dispatch straight from each European center and without bais or prejudice. This will be gratifying to all intelligent people of the Northwest, particularly so to that large foreign-born element which delights in information direct from the fatherland. The Dispatch has secured a resident correspondent in every large city on earth, who uses both cable and mail in sending in every news event of interest and all public gossip that is dear to the heart of the newspaper reader. In the past six years the Dispatch has made great strides to the front and is today recognized as the greatest evening newspaper of the Northwest.

The subscription price being so small, it puts a daily paper in reach of everybody. Send 25 cents for one month's trial subscription to St. Paul Daily Dispatch, St. Paul, Minn.

A COPPER MINE.

One Discovered in the Country North of Here.

F. C. Rossini, of Bemidji, claims to have discovered a copper mine in the country north of the Upper Red lake, and has organized a company to be known as the Silver Key Copper Mining company. A number of people headed by Mayor Frank Dudley, of Bemidji, left last week for the country where the prospective copper mine is located and will examine the property. Mr. Rossini, it is said, has some very rich specimens of copper ore which he took from the mine last fall, and he is very enthusiastic over the belief he entertains that the company has a bonanza.

Tedford's Brick Block.

The new tile floor in Tedford's place is a beauty, the body pieces being four inches square, a grayish color, with inch and one quarter blue dot corners. Mr. Tedford expects to move into his new place sometime next week, and about the 21st have a formal opening, giving two or three hours in the afternoon to the ladies who wish to look through his establishment.

The restaurant and hotel part of the building occupying the east room on the first floor and twenty-two rooms up stairs will be in keeping with the saloon part. It has a large maple floor, and the upper story has pleasant and commodious rooms. This portion will be occupied by R. S. Bennett. The building will be heated from a furnace in the basement, and it is wired for electric lights. It is a very complete and thoroughly up-to-date building, and, when completed and furnished, will cost close to $17,000.—Cass Lake Times.

At the Right Time.

It is essential to every American reader who wishes to keep up with the times. The New York Sun says of it: "THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW constantly offers to the public a programme of writers and topics that excite the reader and gratify the intellectual appetite. In this respect there is no other magazine that approaches the NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW."

It is neither a partisan nor a sectarian publication, but

in which intelligent readers are interested are promptly discussed in its pages, and facts and arguments are presented with all the ability and logical force of the most eminent writers in the world.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION.

The Republican county convention for Red Lake county, Minn., will be held at the court house in the city of Red Lake Falls, Minn., on Wednesday, the 9th day of May, A. D. 1900, at 2:30 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing seven delegates to attend the Republican congressional convention to be held in the city of Moorhead, on the 15th day of May, A. D. 1900, to place in nomination a candidate for congress for the Seventh congressional district, and also seven delegates to attend the Republican state convention to be held in the city of Minneapolis on the 16th day of May, A. D. 1900, for the purpose of electing four delegates to attend the Republican national convention to be held in the city of Philadelphia, Pa., on the 19th day of June, A. D. 1900, and also to name nine presidential electors. Each voting precinct in the county or Red Lake will be entitled to three delegates to the aforesaid Republican county convention.

The primary elections for the purpose of choosing the three delegates to attend the Republican county convention will be held in the various precincts throughout the county on Monday, the 7th day of May, A. D. 1900, at 7:30 o'clock p. m.

Republican County Committee,
O. G. Rapp,
L. C. Simons, Chairman.
Secretary.

The announcement of Admiral Dewey's intention to become a presidential candidate is not received with much enthusiasm by men who stand high in the ranks of the Democratic party and it is doubtful if he receives the nomination. The local Democrats, however, are unanimous for him, and will endeavor to send Dewey men to the Seventh district congressional convention.

Mr. Robert P. Porter, who was superintendent of the eleventh census, and who was sent last year to Cuba and Porto Rico as special commissioner for the United States to investigate the industrial and commercial conditions prevailing there, has written for April North American Review a very valuable paper on "Our European Trade"—more especially our trade with France, Germany, and Great Britain. The fact of most startling import in the history of our recent commercial development is the vast increase in our exports of manufactured articles, which, during the past fourteen years, has reached the astounding aggregate of two hundred million dollars. Mr. Porter calls attention to the consternation which has been produced in the minds of some of our European rivals by this unprecedented progress, which signifies the eventual change of the United States from an agricultural and raw-material producing state to an industrial state, although the volume of our agricultural exports has by no means decreased. This extraordinary development Mr. Porter regards as the most conclusive vindication of the wisdom of our protective policy. Mr. Porter, however, utters a warning against the danger of indifference to our foreign trade, and he finds a distinct menace in the commercial activity of Russia:

"Now that our foreign commerce has reached nearly $2,000,000,000, we can well afford to give it serious attention. It will not drift along as heretofore. Russia, while exceedingly partial to the United States in purchasing railway equipment and supplies and machinery of all sorts which she is not prepared to make in sufficient quantities herself, is, at the same time, energetically looking after the European markets for the products of her strongest industries. Her treaty with Germany, her friendly relations with France and her recent overtures to England are all in the line of a policy which has for its basic principle the broadening of the European markets for Russian foodstuffs, petroleum oil, mineral products, wool, timber, fibers, hides and skins. The activities of Russia, which we admire so much and on which so much has lately been written, mean a necessity for greater activities on our part to retain the markets for our exports of agricultural products and of raw material, which, as I have pointed out, have not declined with the stupendous increase in our exports of manufactures. As our home market becomes less attractive to the European manufacturer, he will naturally become less friendly to the United States and more willing to encourage his own government to make commercial alliance with the great European power which is doing so much to bring the Far East, with all its possibilities, nearer continental Europe."

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

The Republican state convention to elect delegates to the national convention will be held in Minneapolis, May 16.

The county conventions will be held May 9.

The state convention to nominate a state ticket will be held in St. Paul, June 28.

The county conventions will be held June 21.

The representation will be the same as in 1898. Red Lake county is entitled to seven delegates.

OUR EXCHANGES.

The highest compliment that can be paid to our Minnesota congressmen, and one that is being paid every day, is the disposition to overlook their mistake in the treatment of the Porto Rican tariff question and re-nominate them in spite of their vote on that bill. Minnesota has the ablest delegation it has ever sent to Washington, and, barring the action against inter-territorial free trade, it has faithfully and honestly represented the state. One mistake, even though it be a grave one, can be forgiven in a man who has shown a constant and unvarying disposition to do what is right.—Princeton Union.

Complaint is being made that the Prison Mirror is being run as a Democratic paper by General Warden C. McC., etc. Reeves. Why not Democratic? Has not Governor Lind asserted that while all Democrats are not horse thieves, all horse thieves are Democrats? And later, that if the walls of all prisons were torn down the Democratic vote in the country would be materially increased? Feed the prisoners what they want.—Anoka Herald.

We notice that the experiment is being tried in some of the older towns in the state of doing away with poll tax road work, and no poll taxes are levied. There are, no doubt, some instances where a poll tax secures a little labor on the highways which would not have been secured through property taxes. But, generally speaking, the collection of a poll tax in labor on the highway is a farce, and might as well be done away with. The burden of the maintenance of the highways will not be made heavier to any appreciable extent if the poll tax is abolished. And it might as well be dispensed with.—Crookston Journal.

The young man who gets hold on a piece of land and holds on to it, come what will, is the man whose posterity will own the soil and will leave their impress of the country in which they locate. Working for a boss is alright when we are young, but there is none so helpless as he who, in old age, has to earn his bread butter in response to the 7 o'clock bell or whistle.—Wabasha Herald.

The American, and particularly the American farmer, is an expansionist by intuition: He is, without exception, alive to his own business interests and always ready to get more of a good thing. More than 100,000 of him stood on the dead line when Oklahoma was admitted and joined in the race for a farm. When the Red Lake reservation was thrown open for settlement, every available acre of it was taken as fast as the clerks in the land department could record the entries. From the time the original thirteen colonies expanded into fourteen up to the time they had expanded into forty-five, with all the adjacent territory purchased or annexed, the United States has been an expansion nation. The nation, like the individual, wants all it can get of a good thing, provided it can get it by honorable means. Porto Rico and the Philippines are ours by right of conquest, purchased by the blood and treasure of the nation, and the people will never consent to any proposition which contemplates their surrender. To ask their surrender would be a piece of folly equalled only by that of asking an Oklahoma or Red Lake settler to cancel his entry and deed his homestead back to the government. The ranting talk of "imperialism" is nothing more or less than a bugaboo raised by issueless Democratic leaders to confuse and alarm the voter and prejudice the people against the administration. The Republican party stands unconditionally and proudly pledged to the policy of expansion with all that policy involves and will gladly join issue with the Democrats and fight it out in that line.

An exchange says a Kansas duck, which had faithfully stuck to business during the summer and several dozen fawn colored eggs, complained that she was not appreciated. "See that hen over there," said the duck. "She has not laid as many eggs as I have, nor as big, but she has books written about her and verses composed in her honor, while nobody is saying a word about me." "The trouble with you," said the wise rooster standing near, "is that you do not tell the public what you have done. You lay an egg and waddle on without a word, but that sister of mine never lays an egg without letting everyone know it. If you want to cut any ice in this community you must learn how to advertise."—Crookston Times.

The Red Lake River Is Free from Ice.

The ice in the Red Lake river went out the first of the week, the earliest it has been known to go out for years. While the water in the river is quite low, the steamboats will commence running at once, although they will not be making regular trips until the ice goes out at the Red lake. The business upon the river this season will be of considerable importance to this city.

DOES DAMAGE.

The Viking Knocks Down 125 Piles.

The Viking, which had been laying in the river a few miles north of the city since last fall, came down river the first of the week with the ice and did considerable damage. It knocked down 125 of the Thief River Falls Lumber company's piles, and it will put the company to considerable inconvenience and expense to replace them at this time of the year. The boat was also somewhat damaged.

Money in Pork.

They raise hogs successfully up near the north border apparently. A Pembina man recently shipped 3,000 pounds to the Thief River Falls market.—Crookston Times.

Yes, and the hogs could be raised just as successfully by the farmers living in this vicinity as at Pembina. Owing to the large lumber interests here, the price of pork in Thief River Falls is higher than at any other point in the state, and the sooner the farmers realize this fact the better it will be for them.

A GREAT NEWSPAPER.

It has always been claimed for The Chicago Tribune that it would, in all probability, pass with the highest average in any competitive examination among the newspapers of the United States for excellence in all departments of journalism.

"Under date of May 3, 1899, the Omaha World-Herald, editorially answering a letter from 'Inquirer' asking the names of the five best newspapers in this country, points out that a newspaper may excel in one way and be inferior in another. The World-Herald gives lists under five general headings of leading American newspapers distinguished especially for excellence, mentioning in all some twenty.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE HEADINGS:
"(1) Most and best news, foreign and domestic, presented attractively.
"(2) Best possible presentation of news briefly.
"(3) Typographical appearance.
"(4) Classification of news by departments.
"(5) Editorials.
"The Chicago Tribune is the only newspaper in the United States which the World-Herald considers worthy of mention under four different heads."—From the October Plain Talk.

Practically all high-class intelligent newspaper readers, comprising the best and middle classes in Chicago and vicinity, read The Chicago Tribune. A great majority of them read no other morning newspaper.

The Chicago Tribune prints more advertising year in and year out than any newspaper in the West.

Last winter Edward Berg was shot in the head by a companion while hunting out near Nary on the Duluth line. He was taken to the Brainerd hospital and the bullet and a small portion of the brain was removed. He has been discharged as cured and now finds that, although he could before the accident talk English fluently, he has entirely lost all knowledge of the language, and must learn it all over again.

Ed. McDonald was arrested Tuesday in P. Wilmes' saloon. He entered the place with a revolver in his hands, stating that he intended to clear out the house, but was overpowered before any damage was done. He was taken before Judge Johnson yesterday, but was allowed to go, upon the promise that he would leave today for Bemidji, where he has a ticket of admission to a hospital, as he is quite sick. McDonald is a lumberjack who has made this city his headquarters for the past year or so, and is about 50 years of age. He had been drinking quite heavily for several days, and it is thought that his mind had become temporarily deranged, as he had had no trouble with anyone in Mr. Wilmes' place.

"A FLOWER OF HELL."

Strange Blossom Recently Sent from Central America to an Indiana Man.

E. C. Downey, an attorney of Churubusco, Ind., who spent many months in Central America, has just received from a friend in Guatemala one of the most wonderful species of flowers known to mankind. It is called the "rose of hell," and grows only in the vicinity of Antigua, near the crater of the volcano of Fuego. It is looked upon by the native Indians with a superstitious dread, and is named the "rose of hell" because it thrives better near the steaming Fuego than away from it.

The Indians regard the crater of Fuego as the doorway of the infernal regions, and this flower as being produced by the evil spirits associated with the demons of the sulphurous clime where the souls of the sinful all go.

The flower is very deadly, and when boiled into a liquid and given to any animal death rapidly follows without pain, as quiet and peaceful as sleep. Science does not record another instance where this wonderful flower is found except in Guatemala, and the only place it is found in that country is near the doorway of the famous Fuego volcano. Several universities of this country will send after specimens of the rare flower and use it for experiments and demonstration to the classes in botany.

No Boer Spinsters.

Old maids do not exist in the Transvaal. There aren't enough women to go round, and every girl usually is lucky enough to come off with more than one proposal. Women school teachers especially are fortunate. They teach one term—rarely more. Before the end of it some rich young bachelor among the Boers has proposed and been accepted, for their admiration for the woman gifted to earn money with her brains is unbounded.

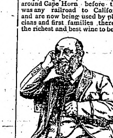
ALFRED SPEER,
THE ORIGINAL
Port Grape Wine Producer in America.
The first native wine sold and used in San Francisco and Sacramento was from Speer's Passaic, N. J., vineyards, was shipped around Cape Horn before there was any railroad to California, and are now being used by physicians and first families there as the richest and best wine to be had



The juice of the Portugal Port Wine grape grown in N. J. is thick and rich same as the juice of pears and other fruits grown here. From California pears you can squeeze water as from a sponge; so with all fruits grown in California; while those grown in New Jersey are solid in substance—less juice but thick and richer. The New Jersey apples, for instance, make a cider that was always popular the world over. If you want a wine for sickness or for entertainments don't take cheap, watery wines but choose a first class old, full bodied, high grade wine from Speer's Passaic vineyards. Sold by Druggists.

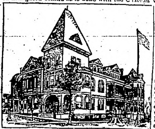
Chateau de Speer Wines

of Passaic, N. J. Vineyards.

These Wines Rival the World in Excellence.

Old, rich and mellow by age and years of care and frequent racking in fumigated cellars as is done with the Chateau Wines in France.



Photograph of Chateau de Speer.

The Chateau contains a limited supply of Private Stock Port nineteen years old, besides Burgundy and Claret of nearly the same age. The Speer Port, however, nine years old, as well as the Burgundy Claret and Sherry, are high class wines. The ★★★ Climax Brandy is 18 years old. All are preferred where known by the Medical profession as superior to any that can be had, for their excellent effect upon the system when used by invalids, the weakly and aged persons and in general family use. Northern New Jersey climate, and soil abounding in iron is just adapted for this grape for Port wine. It is the same kind of soil as in Portugal. Speer's winery and vineyards are the only Port grape vineyards in the United States; only vineyards that cultivate the real Port wine grape of Portugal; while other wines or mixtures called port are made without a single Oporto grape in them. Mr. Speer is the first and only one who imported the vines and acclimated the real Port wine grape vines of Portugal. He spent thousands of dollars as a hobby to see what he could do toward acclimating these Portugal vines here. It took eight years for them to become acclimated before Mr. Speer got a single grape; during those years all died except about eight hundred vines, when those began to grow vigorous and bear fruit; from these, layers were made for new vines. The vineyards now cover fifty six acres. It has proven a success. The grapes are allowed to hang on the vines until they begin to raisin, when they have parted with some of the water and are rich in sugar; and the wine made from Port wine grapes is the only real genuine Port wine made in America. It is by far THE wine for weakly persons, the aged and for evening entertainments.

DR. ABBOTT ON LABOR

His Views on the Solution of Existing Problems.

Believes It Lies in the Direction of Industrial Democracy—Says Labor Should Employ Capital, Not Capital Labor.

Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott, lecturing in New York to workingmen on "The Democracy of Industry," said: "My object is a very simple one. It is to try to put before you the goal toward which we ought to be moving, and some of the steps by which to approach it. I have endeavored to describe by the words 'industrial democracy' the ultimate end toward which we ought to strive. In politics we have already obtained democracy—the rule of the common people. There are bosses, I know, but they remain bosses only so long as the people consent. While there is democracy in politics, there is not democracy in industry. I am not going to argue tonight whether there should be industrial democracy or not. I am going to assume that there should be, and that it is the ultimate end toward which we should work."

Outlining the evolution of labor conditions from feudalism, when the labor and the land were owned by the feudal lord, to the present time, when the laborer is free to move about as he wills, Dr. Abbott said:

"Now the capitalist owns the tools with which the laborer must work. Now the laborer is subject to the man who owns the tools. The men who do the work should own the tools. This means that the laborers should own the railroads and mines on and in which they work. That is, labor should employ capital, instead of capital employing labor."

Dr. Abbott suggested several steps which might be taken immediately toward the attainment of this end. These steps included reform in taxation, abolition of all government privileges, popular ownership of natural monopolies, saving of money and a broadening of industrial education.

A REMARKABLE VERDICT.

Both Plaintiff and Defendant Won, According to the Jury's Decision.

What is probably the most remarkable verdict ever rendered by a Hampden county (Ill.) jury was brought in the other morning by the jury in the case of Daniel J. Spellacy against Paul Siegert. The 12 men, instead of finding for one party, made all parties happy by bringing in two verdicts, one for the plaintiff for $357, and the other for the defendant. It was so evident that something was wrong that Judge Dewey sent them back to the jury room, and they returned a verdict for the plaintiff for $357, as in the first instance.

The jury went out in the afternoon and did not agree again until evening. A sealed verdict was returned by the foreman, and Clerk Morris opened it and read that the jury found for the defendant. "So you say, Mr. Foreman, and so you all say?" said the clerk, but it was at once evident that they did not all say so, as they began to shake their heads, and the reason was explained by the foreman, and a second verdict, for the plaintiff, came out of the envelope. Both verdicts were regularly signed by the foreman. Judge Dewey had the jurors retire to their room and correct their error, but T. J. O'Connor, attorney for the defendant, who came in soon after, requested that an exception be saved for him as to the question. This was allowed, and the matter will be taken to the supreme court. Clerk Morris says this is the first time in his experience that a jury ever brought in a "double-barreled" verdict of the kind.

MACHINERY FOR GERMANY.

Exports from the United States to That Country Are Steadily on Increase.

Vice Consul Monaghan at Chemnitz reports to the state department that owing to the increased importation of American machines into Germany the total value of the imports of machinery increased from $10,472,000 in 1890 to $13,328,000 in 1898.

The vice consul transmits two newspaper reports touching upon American trade with Germany. The first appeals to the German shoe manufacturers to combine to secure an increase of the tariff on shoes to 20 per cent. in order to ward off the invasion of American shoes.

Another extract inveighs severely against the German officials who awarded a contract for 20 American locomotives, charging that the Americans made their bid appear lower than the German bidders by omitting the tariff amounting to about $1,000 on each locomotive. This "business trick" is severely criticised, and there is also a reference to American locomotives as inferior, being "locomotives built by the dozen."

The vice consul, however, says that this duplication of parts in American machinery is really a great virtue, while the bureau of foreign commerce points out that the American companies which bid upon the locomotives corrected the bid to compensate for the tariff before the award was made.

PRESIDENT HARPER'S JEST.

Head of Chicago University Tells Alumni He Has Never Asked for Money.

Amid shouts of laughter from 80 alumni of the University of Chicago, President William R. Harper declared the other night that he had never solicited one penny for that institution. The occasion was the second annual banquet of the University of Chicago Alumni club, and, although the head of the Midway institution spoke with apparent seriousness, his reiterated statements that all of the university's millions came unsolicited only served to further stir the mirth of the former students.

After preliminary remarks alluding to the remarkable growth of the university, President Harper said that he wished to disclaim the reputation of a beggar which had been given him, and for the university that of a begging institution. Never, said Dr. Harper, in the history of the university, had one penny of the generous donations been asked for. When John D. Rockefeller first wrote Dr. Harper he willingly went to Cleveland, but did not ask for money. Mr. Rockefeller had, however, seen a want of the Chicago school, and had availed himself of an excellent opportunity to fill it. None of Rockefeller's later gifts had been solicited, but, stated Dr. Harper, the opportunity had continued, and Mr. Rockefeller had continued to avail himself of it.

Stilling the expressions of uproarious mirth which his statement had produced, the speaker said: "I'm not joking, gentlemen: this is true. Of course, when President Eliot, of Harvard, said the same thing he was jesting, but you all know that I do not jest."

TO EXPLORE CUBA.

Representatives of Smithsonian Institution to Gather Specimens of Fauna of Island.

A dispatch to the New York Times from Havana says: Students of natural history are likely to derive some profit out of Cuba. Spaniards would not permit its exploration, and only accounts of what may be found picked up here and there by searchers before the Spanish authorities heard of what they were doing and stopped them have been published.

William Palmer, chief taxidermist of the Smithsonian institution, with J. H. Riley, also of the Smithsonian force, have just started into Pinar del Rio province on an exploring trip. Their purpose is to gather specimens of the fauna of the island for the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo. They expect to dive into the wilds of the western portion of the island and work eastward until October. Should their discoveries warrant a return they or others will complete the exploration next year.

The Smithsonian visitors will live in a tent, moving it daily. They are authorized to hire guides and pack animals, and they are equipped with full paraphernalia for preserving the specimens they gather.

HIS WEALTH HIDDEN.

Aged Ohio Farmer on His Deathbed Reveals the Location of the Treasure.

Hezekiah Williams, an aged farmer in Troy township, O., was taken suddenly ill the other day, and thinking that he was going to die called his two sons, Carl and James, to his bedside and told them that if they would go to the old log house near by, in which the family formerly lived, they would find an oaken box containing $2,000 in silver and gold. The sons followed the old man's directions and brought the treasure that had been hidden for many years to the house. The family sat about the bedside and counted out the money, and when they announced the amount the old man nodded his head in assent and died. Mr. Williams was a thrifty farmer and none of his relatives knew or even suspected that he had any money. The treasure is all that is left to the family besides the little tract of land on which they live.

QUADRUPLETS BORN.

A Detroit Father Evinces No Surprise When Informed of the Matter.

Allen McDonald early the other morning was surprised by the arrival of quadruplets, but the surprise did not last long, as he went to work as usual with the Michigan Telephone company, for whom he is a laborer, and made no fuss over the matter further than telling his boss of the occurrence. McDonald already had two children. The four new babies, two boys and two girls, average about 3½ pounds, and at last accounts mother and children were doing well. McDonald and Mrs. McDonald are about 35 years old. McDonald himself is one of twins, but there have never been twins, triplets or quadruplets in Mr. McDonald's family before.

I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Say, John, what are you doing to look so healthy?"

VOL. XVII. NO. 15. [redacted] THIEF RIVER FALLS, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, APRIL 19, 1900. TERMS: $1.50 IN ADVANCE.

A BIG LAND DEAL.

The N. P. Sells Over 500,000 Acres of Land.

One of the biggest land deals ever made in this country was closed last Friday in Minneapolis. By the terms of the negotiations, a half million acres of Minnesota land owned by the Northern Pacific passes into the hands of a syndicate of capitalists including F. E. Kenaston, of Minneapolis, and Frank O'Meara and O. A. Robertson, of St. Paul.

Three bids were made by the syndicate, the price which dropped the plum being in the neighborhood of $1 an acre. Other considerations, which are said to be involved, increase the magnitude of the deal to about $1,000,000. The entire realty holdings of the Northern Pacific are affected by it.

NEWS OF WORLD.

The St. Paul Dispatch Gives It to Its Readers.

If anything had been lacking to make a perfect metropolitan newspaper of the St. Paul Dispatch, the want was entirely filled when it completed arrangements for the special foreign cable service which is now brightening its columns. It is really astonishing how the recent war with Spain has developed the American thirst for the news of the world. It placed America in a new position with regard to the rest of the earth and gave new importance to the events of the world at large. If the movements of foreign powers were one of interest, they became doubly so when America rose into place as a world power. The St. Paul Dispatch recognized this when it secured this cable service, with its news from first hands. No longer is London the sole source of all European news, and no longer is the news of the world filtered through British channels and tinted with English ideas. It comes to the Dispatch straight from each European center and without bais or prejudice. This will be gratifying to all intelligent people of the Northwest, particularly so to that large foreign-born element which delights in information direct from the fatherland. The Dispatch has secured a resident correspondent in every large city on earth, who uses both cable and mail in sending in every news event of interest and all public gossip that is dear to the heart of the newspaper reader. In the past six years the Dispatch has made great strides to the front and is today recognized as the greatest evening newspaper of the Northwest.

The subscription price being so small, it puts a daily paper in reach of everybody. Send 25 cents for one month's trial subscription to St. Paul Daily Dispatch, St. Paul, Minn.

Set Aside the Verdict.

An order was filed in the district court here Friday in which Judge Watts orders judgment for the defendants, notwithstanding the verdict in the case of P. A. Hagglund vs. St. Hilaire Mill Co. This case was tried here during the February term and the jury gave Hagglund, the plaintiff, a verdict of $1,800 for injury received while at work in the defendant's mill at St. Hilaire. This verdict is set aside by the order on the grounds that sufficient cause of action was not proven by the plaintiff.—Red Lake Falls Courier.

IN THIS CITY

Will the Populist Convention Be Held

K. M. Hansen was down to St. Hilaire last Saturday to attend a meeting of the Populist county committee. All members were present except the secretary, J. W. Swanstrom, of this city. A call was issued for a convention to be held in Thief River Falls on April 28, and the primaries will be held on the 27th of April. Delegates to the congressional and both state conventions will be elected.

It is understood that the delegates to the congressional convention will be instructed for A. R. Holston, of Crookston, for Congressman.

Murder Most Foul.

On Wednesday Justice of Peace Jens Peterson and Gilbert Anderson, of the town of Lind, brought in custody Sever Sockness and wife charged with the deliberate and premeditated killing of Rasmus Metling Tuesday noon. The dead man appears to have been a partner and made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Suckness for a number of years. He was waylaid as he entered the house and shot by Suckness with a rifle, the ball entering and crossing the breast. The shot did not prove fatal, whereupon Sockness felled his victim with the butt end of the gun, crushing the skull. Sockness gave himself up, admitting that he killed the man, and stating that it was done to prevent Metling from killing himself and family, having previously threatened to do so. It is suspected to be a case of jealousy. The crime created intense excitement in the vicinity where it occurred, which was in the unorganized town east of Lind, being town 159-43. Coroner Holm left on Wednesday to hold an inquest. The dead man was 56 years of age. The exact facts in the case are not obtainable.—Roseau Times.

A New Experiment.

One of the large insurance companies has sprung a new policy. Hereafter the company will keep the total abstainers who insure with them in a class by themselves. If, at the end of their dividend period, it is shown that the mortality of this class is better than that of the other classes, these policy holders will be given a better settlement than is usual under the old policy. As a temperance experiment this will be interesting.—Princeton Union.

See What a President Says on Brandy for Sickness.

ARBOR DAY.

Gov. Lind Designates Tomorrow, April 20th.

Governor Lind last week issued a proclamation designating Friday, April 20, as Arbor and Bird Day and recommends that it be suitably celebrated by the planting of trees and patriotic public school exercises. In his proclamation the governor says:

"The work of building our great commonwealth, of which we are so justly proud, has been facilitated in no small degree by the riches of our forests. They have furnished the material for the homes of our people, employment for their industry, and an abundant return for their capital and labor. But we have felled more than we have planted. We have used more than we have provided. It is apparent to all that the time for husbanding this, as we do our other great resources, has arrived.

"We cannot restore the forests nor shade and shelter the prairies at once, but we can make a beginning. We will never have intelligent forestry until we have an intelligent appreciation of the beauty and value of trees. To insure this, we must begin at the homes, in the schools and with the children. And now that spring has come, throbbing with life and promise, our people can, and I trust will, make this beginning by planting trees and shrubbery to shade and beautify our homes, our public grounds and our highways. I appeal especially to the teachers of the state and to the pupils in our schools to take up this work, and to insure its continuance as a patriotic duty."

Gone Beyond.

Adam Henry, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Zeh, died Wednesday morning, April 16th, of pleura pneumonia, after an illness of a week, aged two years, one month and two days. The funeral occurs this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The little fellow was in the full bloom of beautiful childhood, and was a most promising boy. The shattering of the parents' fond hopes, in the death of their sweet boy calls forth the tender sympathy of many sorrowing friends.—Red Lake Falls Gazette, April 12.

THURSDAY, APRIL 19, 1900.

The Red Lake county Republicans are unanimously in favor of re-nominating Frank M. Eddy, and the delegation to Moorhead will be instructed for him. It is understood that neither Valentine or Cole will attempt to carry this county, but will make an effort to get the delegates from Polk and Marshall counties.

The senate last week passed a resolution abolishing contract schools for Indians. Under the existing laws the secretary of the interior has been authorized to make contracts with the various religious denominations for the education of Indian children at places where sectarian schools cannot be provided. Formerly large sums of money were paid to religious denominations for the education of the Indians, and the Catholic church had accomplished a great deal of good.

The Fergus Falls Journal has the following to say regarding Otter Tail county's "favorite son:" "The fact that Dr. Cole is making a town canvass to carry his own county shows the utter weakness of his candidacy. If this work is necessary, as it seems to be, to secure the support of his home county, where is his strength coming from to carry enough of the eighteen counties in the district to secure even the nomination, to say nothing of an election? No congressional convention with a hard fight ahead, in a close district like this, will ever nominate a man whose candidacy does not create greater enthusiasm than is shown at his home for the doctor. His backers, however, will be satisfied if, by using him for a stalking horse, they can prevent Otter Tail from supporting Congressman Eddy. This is for the people of the county to decide."

REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION.

The Republican county convention for Red Lake county, Minn., will be held at the court house in the city of Red Lake Falls, Minn., on Wednesday, the 9th day of May, A. D. 1900, at 2:30 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing seven delegates to attend the Republican congressional convention to be held in the city of Moorhead, on the 15th day of May, A. D. 1900, to place in nomination a candidate for congress for the Seventh congressional district, and also seven delegates to attend the Republican state convention to be held in the city of Minneapolis on the 16th day of May, A. D. 1900, for the purpose of electing four delegates to attend the Republican national convention to be held in the city of Philadelphia, Pa., on the 19th day of June, A. D. 1900, and also to name nine presidential electors. Each voting precinct in the county or Red Lake will be entitled to three delegates to the aforesaid Republican county convention.

The primary elections for the purpose of choosing the three delegates to attend the Republican county convention will be held in the various precincts throughout the county on Monday, the 7th day of May, A. D. 1900, at 7:30 o'clock p. m.

OUR EXCHANGES.

The Fertile Journal wants to know who is going to furnish the Republicans their campaign money this year. It says that neither the gold bugs, the tariff men, the trusts nor ship owners will put up. Well, as long as we have the common people with us we don't need any.—Norman County Index.

There are two very important constitutional amendments before congress: one to make the office of United States senator elective and the other to make the presidential term six years with no second term. Both of these amendments, if submitted to the people, would be adopted, but it is a difficult matter to get them through the senate.—Elk River Star-News.

Enumerators appointed to take the census will be furnished with badges by the government which are to be worn in a conspicious place so as to be plainly seen, and which will be their credentials for gathering their statistics. These badges will be made of German silver, one and one-fourth inches wide by one and five-eighths inches long, shield shape, surmounted by an eagle and bearing the words, "United States Census, 1900." An order has already been placed for 60,000 of these badges by the director of the census.—Adrian Democrat.

Congress has taken belated steps to erect in the national capital a suitable monument to the memory of Gen. U. S. Grant. Congress is gradually working up on history. It has only been about fifteen years since Grant died, and fifteen years is pretty quick work for congress when it comes to recognizing the glories of a dead hero. It is a good deal easier to screw a $1,000,000 out of congress with which to recognize the achievement of some tuppenny naval expert than it is to get through an appropriation for a few thousand dollars to carve in stone the record of one of the nation's heroes. It has been said tersely and wittily that there is no pocket in a shroud; and it might be added that there isn't any rake-off in a small appropriation for a tombstone.—Princeton Union.

Already the politicians are anticipating a big increase in Minnesota population, which will increase the congressional representation. The Mankato Review figures on nine districts, presuming that the basis shall be about as the last one made by congress, to wit: 187,000 to the district. As to the Twin cities, Hennepin remains alone, with an estimate of 230,000, while Ramsey, Anoka and Washington make another district, with a little rising of 200,000. This calls for a state population of 1,857,000, an increase of a little over 282,000, as against an increase of 456,000 from 1885 to 1895. By the new arrangement the following counties would compose the Ninth district: Otter Tail, Wilkin, Wadena, Hubbard, Clay, Becker, Norman, Beltrami, Polk, Red Lake, Kittson and Roseau.—Crookston Times.

An effort is to be made at the Paris exposition to perfect a world wide farmers' organization along the lines suggested some time ago, for the control of production and prices of all farm products. The plan is identical with that under which the National Grain Grower's association, a state branch of which was recently organized in Grand Forks, is working. If successful, this will be a trust before which all others will fade into insignificance. There are tremendous obstacles in the way, chief among which is the immense number of small producers to be interested, all of whom must be held fast by some kind of binding compact. Whether such an organization can be formed and successfully controlled may be doubted, but the spirit of organization is in the air, and who can tell what may be done?—Grand Forks Herald.

Gov. Lind is making a high bid for the support of the gold Democrats in the campaign now in progress in St. Paul. The public is already familiar with the means by which Judge Willis was forced off the ticket as a candidate for mayor and Bob Smith substituted. In his letter of withdrawal Judge Willis pointedly named Gov. Lind and Chairman Rosing, of the Democratic state central committee, as the main parties who brought the pressure to bear upon him to induce him to withdraw. The Smith campaign is being made by D. W. Lawler, R. T. O'Connor, Michael Doran, Pat Conley, and Judge Flandrau, and other prominent gold Democrats who led the bolt against Lind in 1896. Willis was the almost unanimous choice at the primaries held to name a candidate for mayor, but on the morning of the convention the gold Democrats packed the hall and organized a rump convention. Gov. Lind instantly sided with the gold men, although his free silver associates had been, and were, supporting Willis. The incident not only points the ingratitude of the governor, but plainly shows that he regards free silver as a dead issue, and is willing to place the machinery of the party in the capital city of the state in the hands of the ultra gold men.

RIVER IS LOW.

Steamboats Can Not Make Any Trips.

Never in the memory of the oldest inhabitant was the water in the Red Lake river as low as it is at present. The river was very low last fall and there was practically no snow this winter, and, unless there are heavy spring rains, the loggers and steamboat men will have all kinds of trouble. The river between this city and Red Lake Falls is so low that it can be walked across in places, and the saw mills at St. Hilaire, Red Lake Falls, Crookston and Grand Forks will probably be forced to close down or experience considerable trouble and expense in getting their logs down. Logs can be driven as far as this city easily enough, but it is doubtful if they can be taken any further, and old lumbermen state that the prospects of seeing a log jam containing about 75,000,000 feet of logs below here are very probable. A great deal of trouble will also be experienced by the lumbermen in driving the creeks which flow into the Red lake.

The Thief River Falls Lumber company's steamboat, the Alice, attempted to make a trip up the river Tuesday, but, after succeeding in getting up the river about two miles, had to give it up. The boat is thoroughly equipped with the best and most modern machinery and draws only 12 inches.

Base Ball Club.

Through the efforts of Isedor Lewin, a base ball club has been organized in this city and the indications are that Thief River Falls will have a better club this year than ever before. The club will start out with a fund of about $50, which was raised by Mr. Lewin, and a grand dance will be given in a few weeks, the proceeds being used to purchase base ball suits, etc. Clubs have been organized at St. Hilaire and Red Lake Falls.

A GREAT NEWSPAPER.

It has always been claimed for The Chicago Tribune that it would, in all probability, pass with the highest average in any competitive examination among the newspapers of the United States for excellence in all departments of journalism.

"Under date of May 3, 1899, the Omaha World-Herald, editorially answering a letter from 'Inquirer' asking the names of the five best newspapers in this country, points out that a newspaper may excel in one way and be inferior in another. The World-Herald gives lists under five general headings of leading American newspapers distinguished especially for excellence, mentioning in all some twenty.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE HEADINGS:
"(1) Most and best news, foreign and domestic, presented attractively.
"(2) Best possible presentation of news briefly.
"(3) Typographical appearance.
"(4) Classification of news by departments.
"(5) Editorials.
"The Chicago Tribune is the only newspaper in the United States which the World-Herald considers worthy of mention under four different heads."—From the October Plain Talk.

Practically all high-class intelligent newspaper readers, comprising the best and middle classes in Chicago and vicinity, read The Chicago Tribune. A great majority of them read no other morning newspaper.

The state dairy and food commission will prosecute the T. M. Roberts' supply house, Minneapolis, for selling boiled linseed oil that fails to pass the state test for purity. The manufacturers of the oil, which is made in Chicago, contend that boiled linseed is not required to pass a purity, as it is not used for food purposes. The oil manufacturers of this state claim that they are manufacturing a superior product and that the oil should come up to the law's requirements.

Small Fire.

The fire department was called out Monday afternoon by the burning of a wood shed in the rear of Mayor Kretzschmar's residence. The building was completely destroyed, as the fire had gained considerable headway before it was discovered, but the firemen did good work in saving adjacent buildings. The origin of the fire is unknown. No insurance.

ALFRED SPEER,
THE ORIGINAL
Port Grape Wine Producer in America.
The first native wine sold and used in San Francisco and Sacramento was from Speer's Passaic, N. J., vineyards, was shipped around Cape Horn before there was any railroad to California, and are now being used by physicians and first families there as the richest and best wine to be had

The juice of the Portugal Port Wine grape grown in N. J. is thick and rich same as the juice of pears and other fruits grown here. From California pears you can squeeze water as from a sponge; so with all fruits grown in California; while those grown in New Jersey are solid in substance—less juice but thick and richer. The New Jersey apples, for instance, make a cider that was always popular the world over. If you want a wine for sickness or for entertainments don't take cheap, watery wines but choose a first class old, full bodied, high grade wine from Speer's Passaic vineyards. Sold by Druggists.

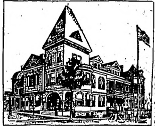
of Passaic, N. J. Vineyards.

These Wines Rival the World in Excellence.

Old, rich and mellow by age and years of care and frequent racking in fumigated cellars as is done with the Chateau Wines in France.



Photograph of Chateau de Speer.

The Chateau contains a limited supply of Private Stock Port nineteen years old, besides Burgundy and Claret of nearly the same age. The Speer Port, however, nine years old, as well as the Burgundy Claret and Sherry, are high class wines. The ★★★Climax Brandy is 18 years old. All are preferred where known by the Medical profession as superior to any that can be had, for their excellent effect upon the system when used by invalids, the weakly and aged persons and in general family use. Northern New Jersey climate, and soil abounding in iron is just adapted for this grape for Port wine. It is the same kind of soil as in Portugal. Speer's winery and vineyards are the only Port grape vineyards in the United States; only vineyards that cultivate the real Port wine grape of Portugal; while other wines or mixtures called port are made without a single Oporto grape in them. Mr. Speer is the first and only one who imported the vines and acclimated the real Port wine grape vines of Portugal. He spent thousands of dollars as a hobby to see what he could do toward acclimating these Portugal vines here. It took eight years for them to become acclimated before Mr. Speer got a single grape; during those years all died except about eight hundred vines, when those began to grow vigorous and bear fruit; from these, layers were made for new vines. The vineyards now cover fifty six acres. It has proven a success. The grapes are allowed to hang on the vines until they begin to raisin, when they have parted with some of the water and are rich in sugar; and the wine made from Port wine grapes is the only real genuine Port wine made in America. It is by far THE wine for weakly persons, the aged and for evening entertainments.

FOR ITS FAST SHIPS.

Trans-Atlantic Steamship Line to Utilize Wireless Telegraphy.

Marconi System to Be Put in Operation for Communicating Approach of Ships on Each Side of the Atlantic.

The North German Lloyd line will adopt the Marconi system of wireless telegraphy on its fast vessels as a means of communicating with land on each side of the Atlantic.

Gustav H. Schwab, general managing agent, will urge the erection of a lofty mast on the Nantucket south shoal lightship, about 240 miles from Fire island. This will enable steamships to communicate with New York 15 or 16 hours before they reach their piers.

A series of experiments conducted on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, which arrived the other day, was successful in every way. From a sprit which had been run up from the mainmast until its tip was 185 feet above the deck one of Marconi's electrical engineers who was on board communicated satisfactorily with Borkum island, in the mouth of the Ems.

The wire from the truck of the sprit extended into the second cabin smoking-room of the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse. On the island of Borkum had been planted a mast 185 feet high. Owing to the disparity in the height of the spars, the Borkum station received messages from the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse while the ship was 50 miles away, whereas the ship received messages from the island only at a distance of 35 miles. Greetings and business messages were exchanged by Capt. Bartelmann with the officials of the line in Bremen.

A tall spar had also been stepped on the Borkum fireship, 25 miles farther out to sea than the island, but a storm dismasted it. When replaced it will be feasible to telegraph to and from the North German Lloyd express ships, 90 miles from Bremerhaven, to Borkum, 25 miles to the fireship, and 50 miles farther to the steamship, a total of 165 miles.

It is proposed also to step a spar on the Scilly islands. The system is to be extended to public use, so that passengers can send and receive messages at sea. The ships to be equipped with the Marconi system probably will be the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, the Kaiserin Maria Theresa, the Friedrich der Grosse and the Grosser Kurfurst.

BURIED GOLD.

Ohio Man Receives a Request from a Life Convict in Spain—Treasure Near Santiago.

James H. Case, a druggist, is being urged by Col. Edward Simora, a life convict in a Madrid (Spain) prison, to go to Madrid and recover a satchel containing a diagram showing where $650,000 is hidden near Santiago, Cuba. Simora says he was purchasing agent for the Spanish army in Cuba, and, anticipating American success, drew all the money at his command from the banks, sealed it in a casket of lead, and buried it. He says he has no Spanish friend who can undertake the mission for him. With his letters are notes from Abbe Folquart, a priest of the prison, saying that Simora is of a high family, and that he smuggled his letter out of the prison for him, and that he can be relied upon. George Allison, of company B, Eighth regiment, O. V. I., met Simora in a Santiago hospital and gave him Case's address. In the civil war Simora was attached to Gen. Pennington's staff, and in the Shenendoah valley came near being captured by confederates, Case, who was on picket duty, having rescued him.

STUDY OF HOUSEKEEPING.

Speakers at Woman's Club Say Public Schools Should Teach New Science.

The education of the housekeeper of the future will be acquired in the public schools if recommendations of speakers at the meeting of the Chicago Woman's club in University hall are adopted. The subject was "The Value of Domestic Economy in the Elementary and Higher Schools," and all of the speakers urged the introduction of the study of the housekeeper's arts in the common schools. Much applause was gained by one speaker who declared that this education should not be confined to girls, but should be shared by boy pupils. A proper appreciation of the housekeeper's cares and the introduction of the business abilities of men into the conduct of the household were declared to be the solution of the problem of conducting the ideal home.

GATLING'S MOTOR PLOW.

The Inventor of the Gun Tells of His New and Peaceful Device.

Dr. Richard J. Gatling, inventor of the celebrated rapid fire gun bearing his name, is visiting friends in Chicago. Dr. Gatling came to Chicago in the interests of his new invention, the automobile plow.

"While I attained fame in the first place through the invention of a killing machine," said he, "I am endeavoring now to induce humanity to consider a device that will prove not only a labor saver, but a man saver. I refer to my automobile plow, which is capable of breaking from 40 to 50 acres of land a day at a cost of 25 or 30 cents an acre. No horses are required and it is so easy to guide that a child may direct it in the way it should go."

STATISTICS ON SHIPBUILDING.

The bureau of foreign commerce has published interesting statistics as to international shipbuilding, forwarded by Vice Consul Murphy at Bremen. The German authorities, from whom he quotes direct special attention to the enormous predominance of England in the shipbuilding world, showing that the English shipbuilders in 1899 porduced tonnage, exclusive of war vessels, only one-fifth less than the entire steam fleet of Germany. Adding war vessels aggregating 168,000 tons, the total output of the British shipyards was 1,584,000 tons.

Although Germany occupies first place after England in shipbuilding, she is nevertheless England's best customer, and last year took 68,000 tons from England. Altogether, there was a total production throughout the world outside of England of 881,000 tons of shipping. For several years Germany has been at the head of the list, and Great Britain, being excelled only in 1899 by the Unietd States, owing to the latter's activity in building war vessels.

Last year Germany turned out 252,000 tons as compared with 233,000 tons for the United States. It is noticeable that 40,000 tons of Germany's production was in war vessels, while the United States' output of war vessels was only 9,000 tons.

MAY BECOME A BARONESS.

Widow of Magician Hermann to Marry a Wealthy Russian Captain.

It is probable that Mrs. Adelaide Hermann, widow of Hermann the magician, may be a Russian baroness. Baron Ivan Svenorak Orskevitch, of the Russian cavalry, holding the position of captain and large of wealth, is mentioned as the man who is to marry the charming widow.

Back of all this there is a romance The baron is a widower. Hermann and his wife visited Russia. They were entertained by Baron Orskevitch, who was charmed with the magician's wife. The Hermanns left Russia and Hermann, in the height of his career, died. For some weeks Mrs. Hermann has played in vaudeville theaters in the far west.

The baron found time to run over from Russia to San Francisco and come east, closely following Mrs. Hermann to New York. When she came back she wore a magnificent diamond and sapphire ring. To a close friend she confided that the ring meant an engagement.

IS TO MARRY AGAIN.

Formal Announcement of Mrs. Goelet's Engagement to New York Broker to Be Made in June.

Mrs. Robert Goelet, whose husband died on board his yacht Nahma at Naples on April 27, 1899, will sail for Europe. She will board her yacht at Calais for a three months' cruise and will return in June. The formal announcement of her engagement to Francis B. Riggs will then be made, it is said. Mr. Riggs is a broker, a silent partner of the firm of Maxwell & Scoville, in the Drexel building. He is a member of the Union, Metropolitan and Racquet clubs, and lives at the Renaissance, Forty-third street and Fifth avenue. The engagement comes as a surprise to society.

Mrs. Goelet, by her husband's will, is in receipt of $200,000 a year, together with the Newport villa, the town house, 591 Fifth avenue, and other corresponding bequests, including the yacht Nahma, all of which she holds in trust for her two children.

BABY TELEPHONES TO HEAVEN

Rev. Case Davis, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Warren, Ill., has a daughter nearly three years of age who is very particular about saying her prayers before retiring each night. One evening last week her mother was detained from hearing her prayers at the usual hour, and little Louise waited patiently some time. Finally patience ceased to be a virtue with her, and she climbed upon a chair, and, taking down the receiver of the telephone, shouted into it:

"Hello, Central, dive me heaven. I want to say my prayers."

She struck the keynote, for immediately her mamma heard the little one's prayers without the use of a telephone, and the sleepy little one was snuggled into bed.

CHARGED WITH WITCHCRAFT.

A Palmist Arrested at New York Under a Law Enacted in 1700.

Under a law which was enacted in 1709, Mme. Steller, a palmist, is in Hackensack jail charged with exercising witchcraft. The law reads: "Any person who shall pretend to exercise or use any kind of witchcraft, conjuration, sorcery or enchantment, shall be subject to a fine of not more than $1,000 or three years' imprisonment, or both." Justice Cumming, of Hackensack, committed Mme. Steller on complaint of Inez Backus, a negress, who said she had been swindled out of $20.

"She told me she could not tell my fortune unless I gave her some money to hold in her hand," said Miss Backus. "I let her hold a $20 gold piece, and that's the last I saw of it."

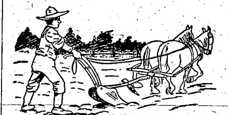
12 to 24 hours ahead of any Northwestern paper.



I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Say, John, what are you doing to look so healthy?"

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS.

VOL. XVII. NO. 16. THIEF RIVER FALLS, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, APRIL 26, 1900. TERMS: $1.50 IN ADVANCE.

MAY 3.

Date On Which the Free-Homes Bill Will Pass.

Washington, April 18.—If the free homestead bill does not pass at this session of congress its friends will be greatly surprised. Action taken by the house this afternoon granting unanimous consent for the consideration of the bill paves the way for the measure to pass the house, and there is no doubt of its passing the senate, as it has already gone through that body on several occasions in previous congresses. Representatives Eddy and Morris, of Minnesota, and Gamble and Burke, of South Dakota, are entitled to great credit for securing the decision reached by the house, as they have, particularly Messrs. Eddy and Burke, on the public lands committee, and Mr. Gamble, on the floor of the house, worked steadily to clear up the situation and secure action at this session. So well were the plans laid by these members, it became a certainty that, unless unanimous consent were given for the consideration of the bill, the committee on rules, headed by Speaker Henderson, would bring in a rule giving time for considering the measure. In the last congress the free homestead bill had the opposition of Speaker Reed and several strong Eastern members to contend against, backed as they were also by the opposition of the friends of agricultural colleges. As the bill will be presented on May 3, the date fixed for its consideration, it will extend the provisions of the free homestead act which applies to the public domain in general, to lands which have been purchased by the government from Indian tribes, and which purchase resulted in the opening of those Indian lands to settlement, but for which settlers were compelled to pay $1.25 an acre for such lands. It has long been contended by representatives in states where these lands are located, that the Indian lands should be opened to free homestead entry on the same terms as other public lands which the government has purchased or in any other way acquired. The result will be that the remaining Indian lands will be paid for out of the public treasury and the lands will be given free to settlers, provided the bill passes congress, as it is now expected to do. Representative Eddy and the South Dakota members had conferences today with representatives of the agricultural colleges, after which a plan was agreed upon which is believed to make certain that the state agricultural colleges will not be unfavorably affected by the passage of the free homes bill. An amendment will be offered on the floor by Mr. Eddy making this certain by designating how funds for the colleges are to be obtained from other sources, providing the opening of the lands for free homes affects in any way, which its friends deny, will be the result, the receipts of the agricultural colleges. The bill will be pressed vigorously and its friends are now confident that it will pass the house by a good majority. It means the opening to free homestead settlement many thousand acres of valuable lands in the northwest for which $1.25 an acre is now charged.—Washington correspondence in the Pioneer Press.

THE TAX SALE.

A Few Pointers From State Auditor Dunn.

State Auditor Dunn has just issued a circular giving final instructions to the county auditors relative to the forfeited tax sale to be held May 7th. Parties wishing to redeem their property will be given opportunity to do so up to the last moment, but not after bidding has commenced. Should any tract be sold for more than the taxes and interest charged against it, the surplus will not be paid to the original owner, but will be credited to the revenue fund of the county.

State lands held under contract will be sold the same as other lands, the purchaser acquiring only the rights of the original purchaser. In every instance purchasers will be required to make immediate payment, and all tracts not paid for will be re-offered before the sale is adjourned. The certificate issued by the auditor will be entitled to record the same as a deed to real estate, but the subsequent taxes must all be paid the same as with other conveyances. Many property owners have already paid the taxes, and thus taken their property from the list and others have signified their intention of so doing. It should be borne in mind, however, that redemption must be made before the land is offered, otherwise the owner will be on the same footing with other bidders, and may be compelled to pay many times the amount charged against the land or lose his title. To let the land go to sale expecting to be able to bid it in at half the tax will be dangerous, and may prove expensive, for it would cost more to contest the law than any tract in the list is worth.

To Import Colored Girls.

The housewives of Grand Forks have had great difficulty for some time past in securing competent girls for general housework, and to overcome this difficulty, the Pioneer Employment company, of that city, has been corresponding for some time past with eastern agencies, with the view of securing competent help. Last week a letter was received from an eastern party, which stated that 30 good colored girls, ranging in age from 18 to 30 years, could be furnished, all of whom had received schooling as cooks and housekeepers.

The cost of furnishing these girls will be about $30 each, which amount will have to be paid by those hiring the girls, to be paid back by the girls in monthly installments. All who fail to secure a desirable girl will be refunded the amount of their deposit at once. The proposition is looked upon very favorably, and, within a short time, the entire bunch will undoubtedly be sent for, as it has been impossible for some time past to secure good help.

A representative of the state dairy commission has made twenty-seven arrests at Bemidji for the unlawful sale and use of oleomargarine. Twenty-five pleaded guilty and paid $25 fine each. Two stood trial by jury and were acquitted.

A BAD FIRE.

Town of Edinburg, N. D., Flame Swept Last Friday.

Edinburg, N. D., on the Park river branch of the Great Northern, had its entire business portion burned last Friday. The fire started in a drug store in the south part of the village, and twenty buildings were burned so quickly that the occupants could not save a dollar's worth of stock or household goods.

So sudden was the outburst of fire that two ladies were unsuccessful in making their escape, and Mrs. Lindahl and Mrs. Bjornson were burned to death.

The town will be rebuilt at once. The Thief River Falls Lumber company received an order for several car loads of lumber Monday from a lumber dealer over there.

Cannot Attend Drainage Convention.

In a letter just received by the editor of the View, Congressman Eddy states that his family is quarantined for diphtheria. This news will be received with deep regret by hundreds of our readers, who will join with us in hoping that the sick ones will speedily recover. Mr. Eddy fears that his family will not be well in time to allow him to attend the drainage convention, which he very much desired to participate in. He will come if possible, however.

In his letter Mr. Eddy also says that the free homestead measure is liable to come up any day, and, as he has been the special champion of this measure, it is quite essential that he remain in Washington to take charge of it.—Valley View, East Grand Forks.

Palaces on Wheels.

The most costly, beautiful, luxurious cars on earth. Steam heated; electric lighted. Wide vestibuled. No extra fares.

See What a President Says on Brandy for Sickness.

The president of the Baltimore medical college, who has thoroughly tested Speer's wines and brandy, says: "Speer's climax brandy is a pure and valuable article in all cases of disease in which a reliable stimulant is required. I regard it superior to most French brandies.

If anybody has a message for the people of this community, he cannot deliver it to them so effectually, so cheaply, so quickly in any other way as through the columns of this paper.

It is the business of the News to carry messages of one kind and another into homes. The message will be delivered, too, under favorable conditions, for few persons take up their local paper except in a pleasant and receptive frame of mind.

The sign upon the fence board may be good, but it can be seen only by travelers who go that particular road. The message in the local paper carries itself to thousands, no matter by which road they travel.

Select your space and put your message where it will do the most good. We, perhaps, can help you, if you will but ask us.

THE NEWS,

By John W. Eastman.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

THURSDAY, APRIL 26, 1900.

Mayor H. H. Aaker, of Moorhead, is a candidate for the Populist nomination for congressman from this district.

It may be pertinent to ask of the Pelican Rapids Press who pays for the extra blue marked copies it distributes and what it gets per inch or line for the disgraceful stuff it is publishing.—Alexandria Post-News.

Yes, and who furnishes the copy?

The Minneapolis Journal issued as a supplement to its regular issue of April 18 a 76-page write up of "Commercial Minneapolis at the Dawn of the 20th Century." The issue is devoted to a description of the city's industries, an account of its progress in various directions and interesting historical matter.

Next week Congressman Eddy's free homes bill will be voted upon in congress, and people who are in a position to know predict that it will become a law. This bill is of more importance to the residents of this section than any other legislation that could be enacted, and it is to be hoped that the settlers in this section will appreciate the efforts of our congressman.

The Crookston Times, the leading Democratic paper in the Seventh district, serves notice upon the Populists that, in case A. R. Holston is nominated for congressman, the Democrats will not indorse him. The Times might also have said that a majority of the people living in the Seventh district will not indorse Holston or any other candidate the Populists put up.

The Crookston Times sizes up Hans Johnson's candidacy for the Republican nomination for congressman from this district correctly, when it says:

> Revenue Collector Hans Johnson was down in Fergus the other day and solemnly informed his acquaintances that he will get what delegates Congressman Eddy fails to get north of the N. P. line. The bulk of the Republicans seem to think that this is about true, but they are not inclined to think the admission seriously jeopardizes Mr. Eddy's chances of nomination on the first ballot.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION.

The Republican county convention for Red Lake county, Minn., will be held at the court house in the city of Red Lake Falls, Minn., on Wednesday, the 9th day of May, A. D. 1900, at 2:30 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing seven delegates to attend the Republican congressional convention to be held in the city of Moorhead, on the 15th day of May, A. D. 1900, to place in nomination a candidate for congress for the Seventh congressional district, and also seven delegates to attend the Republican state convention to be held in the city of Minneapolis on the 16th day of May, A. D. 1900, for the purpose of electing four delegates to attend the Republican national convention to be held in the city of Philadelphia, Pa., on the 19th day of June, A. D. 1900, and also to name nine presidential electors. Each voting precinct in the county or Red Lake will be entitled to three delegates to the aforesaid Republican county convention.

The primary elections for the purpose of choosing the three delegates to attend the Republican county convention will be held in the various precincts throughout the county on Monday, the 7th day of May, A. D. 1900, at 7:30 o'clock p. m.

Republican County Committee,
C. G. Rapp,
Chairman.
L. C. Simons,
Secretary.

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

The Republican state convention to elect delegates to the national convention will be held in Minneapolis, May 16.

The county conventions will be held May 9.

The state convention to nominate a state ticket will be held in St. Paul, June 28.

The county conventions will be held June 21.

The representation will be the same as in 1898. Red Lake county is entitled to seven delegates.

OUR EXCHANGES.

The indications now point to the re-nomination of all the congressmen from this state. Of course each has some little opposition in his district, but most of it can be traced to disappointment because some other man was elected for postmaster, and will not be very serious.—Elk River Star-News.

Some of the towns in neighboring counties are moving in the matter of enforcing the law in regard to noxious weeds. This is a matter that should receive attention in every township. It is only by such general enforcement that real substantial and permanent good can be accomplished.—Crookston Journal.

* * * *

The worst objection the Democrats can find to the new currency law just passed by congress is that it increases the volume of currency. This indeed sounds strange coming from a party which four years ago fairly went wild over a desire to increase the volume and decrease the purchasing power. but there is one admirable trait in the Democratic party—every four years it acknowledges that it was wrong four years previous.—Sherburne Advance.

* * * *

Congressman Eddy does not seem worried over the coming contest for the congressional nomination. So far he has remained right in Washington attending to his duties and allows the other candidates full swing. He has a strong organization in the district, however, which is looking after his interests and the chances are still in his favor. Speaking of the other candidates, he always says a good word for them, and thereby sets his supporters a good example.—Ada Index.

* * * *

It has been remarked wherever political campaigns have been held during the past year that it is extremely difficult to stir up interest or evoke enthusiasm in them. The explanation is quite simple. The people are too busy making money to take an interest in politics, and too well satisfied with conditions to care to change them. It is when times are hard and money scarce that it is easy to stir up political interest. When men are idle they are perfectly willing to sit for hours listening to campaign orators, but when they are busy at good wages they feel that they are better employed and that it is a mere waste of time to sit around the country crossroads talking politics. All the same those who do vote will vote for a continuance of good times, and an indorsement of the administration which is responsible for them.—Princeton Union.

* * * *

For a little while Andrew Carnegie was the idol of the Bryan Democracy, because of his radical and sensational declaration against expansion. It was announced that he would make a tremendous contribution to the campaign expenses of the Democratic candidate for president, and would support Bryan or whoever the Democrats nominated. Then the Democrats began to figure on an anti-trust platform, and, just as they had the thing figured out nicely, Mr. Carnegie and Mr. Frick got together and organized a steel trust, covering the mills of the continent and capitalized the outfit at a few hundred millions. Mr. Carnegie evidently knew which side of his bread was buttered when he made up his mind to support the Democratic candidate for president and had in view the fact that the Democrati never accomplish anything, and that it was perfectly safe for his trust to take chances with a Democratic president and a Democratic congress.

IN HARD LUCK.

Attorney Hibner Is Without Household Goods.

Attorney Hibner, accompanied by his wife and child, left this city last Wednesday for Crookston and they have not yet returned, but it is expected that they will arrive home today, and will find of the duplicity of Mr. Hibner's old friend, P. O. Bergh.

Some time ago Mr. Hibner either bought or contracted for some furniture from Bergh, and it is suspected that payments have not been made promptly, for on Monday, at the instance of Bergh, the rooms of the attorney were entered and all of the furniture was taken away. Mr. Hibner has been informed by friends in this city as to what has taken place, and says that, upon his return, he will make it uncomfortable for Bergh. He says he will endeavor to ascertain what the constitution means when it says no one shall be deprived of "life, liberty or property without due process of law."

Again In Court.

The old case of H. W. Lee vs. the city of Thief River Falls was aired again before Judge Watts in Crookston Tuesday on an order to show cause why Lee's judgment against the old village should not be paid. Francis Hibner appeared for the city. The question seems to be as to the validity of Lee's judgment, and Judge Watts was of the opinion that this depended upon the validity of the organization of Thief River Falls prior to the passage by the legislature of the curative act. Mr. Hibner did not put this question in proper shape, and the judge gave the parties twenty days in which to make up the pleadings.

Ditch Job Let.

The work of digging the proposed new Sanders-St. Hilaire ditch was let Monday by the county auditor at Red Lake Falls. A contract for digging about five miles was awarded to G. O. Setnes, a farmer living west of here; Anton Anderson, of St. Hilaire, and K. M. Hansen, of this city, the work being done for $7,000. Sam Dainard received about one-third of a mile, and a Grand Forks company secured the rest.

Mr. Hansen states that all the men and teams that can be secured will be hired at once and the work will be pushed.

Notice.

The herd on the chief section for the coming season will be in charge of Fred Rollette.

A Pleasant Party.

Miss Anna Meehan very pleasantly entertained a company of young folks last Friday night. The evening was spent in card playing and dancing, and among those present were: Misses Anna Connely, Bessie Bailey, Florence Wallin, Manda Thompson, Nellie Curran; Messrs. M. K. Wall, Ed. Bell, Hal Heritage, Gus Mucky, E. Crowe, H. G. Dobner, Herbert Forder, Dave Benzie, Isidor Lewin, M. Connely; Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Purdy and Mr. and Mrs. Robert McGinn.

A GREAT NEWSPAPER.

It has always been claimed for The Chicago Tribune that it would, in all probability, pass with the highest average in any competitive examination among the newspapers of the United States for excellence in all departments of journalism.

"Under date of May 2, 1899, the Omaha World-Herald, editorially answering a letter from 'Inquirer' asking the names of the five best newspapers in this country, points out that a newspaper may excel in one way and be inferior in another. The World-Herald gives lists under five general headings of leading American newspapers distinguished especially for excellence, mentioning in all some twenty.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE HEADINGS:
"(1) Most and best news, foreign and domestic, presented attractively.
"(2) Best possible presentation of news briefly.
"(3) Typographical appearance.
"(4) Classification of news by departments.
"(5) Editorials.

"The Chicago Tribune is the only newspaper in the United States which the World-Herald considers worthy of mention under four different heads."—From the October Plain Talk.

Practically all high-class intelligent newspaper readers, comprising the best and middle classes in Chicago and vicinity, read The Chicago Tribune. A great majority of them read no other morning newspaper.

The Chicago Tribune prints more advertising year in and year out than any newspaper in the West.

N. W. Tarrant placed a new awning in front of his place of business yesterday.

Reports of bad forest fires continue to come from points on the Fosston branch. The whole region is remarkably dry for this season of the year, and a soaking rain would do an immense amount of good.

If you want to file on a piece of government land it will not be necessary to go to Crookston. Make your filing in Thief River Falls before L. G. Browning, U. S. commissioner for the district of Minnesota.

Ole Finberg, who has been conducting a general store at Holt, has decided to remove to Thief River Falls. He has purchased a lot opposite H. Langseth's store and will erect a store building upon the same.

Capt. McDonald the first of the week purchased 80 acres of land adjoining his farm north of here and now has 225 acres. He has rented it to a Moorhead man, who arrived in the city the first of the week with about 50 cattle.

W. A. Kratka, accompanied by his two sons, Will and George, arrived in the city last Friday from Lansing, Iowa, with a car load of stock for his farm south of the city. Mr. Kratka's family will remove here sometime during the summer.

Mrs. Morisette, who left for Colorado several months ago to seek relief from consumption, has returned to Cass Lake, Minn., where her husband is, and is reported as not improved. She will spend the summer there and return to Colorado in the fall.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

The work of building Voracheck & Blaha's saloon building on La Bree avenue is progressing at a very rapid rate, and it will be completed in a few weeks. It will be one of the best and most substantial buildings in the city when completed. The new firm purchased fixtures for the building the first of the week.

Wheelock's Weekly, of Fergus Falls, says that the big excursion to Norway which Rev. B. B. Haugen and Prof. Reimestad are arranging will sail from New York May 16 on the White Star liner, Oceanic, the largest vessel in the passenger traffic. The excursion will be a very large one. Over 100 have already paid part of their passage money, and fully 300 are expected to go.

A number of people were busy the first of the week removing to different parts of the city. J. F. Mays removed to the First ward. Chas. Nelson removed into the building vacated by Mr. Mays; Chas. Schuster removed to the building vacated by Mr. Nelson, and Sam Heasley, who had conducted a restaurant on La Bree avenue, removed to the house vacated by Mr. Schuster. Herman Ohm will occupy the building vacated by Mr. Heasley with his grocery store and will live in the rear part of the same, and John Pacha will occupy the Ohm residence.

Rev. N. J. Vernon, the Methodist minister at St. Hilaire, died Monday, after an illness of but four days' duration. The funeral services were held in St. Hilaire Tuesday afternoon, and were under the auspices of the Modern Woodmen, in which lodge the deceased carried insurance to the amount of $3,000. The body was taken to Canada for interment. The deceased was married less than a year ago. A large number of Woodmen from this city attended the funeral.

As Rev. A. A. Myers accompanies Mrs. N. J. Vernon with remains to Chicago, he will not be able to hold I. O. O. F. anniversary as intended next Sunday morning. Upon the recommendation of Rev. Dr. Forbes, no services will be held for two Sundays, as the pastor will take in the opening of the general conference of the M. E. church, which will shortly convene in Chicago.

ALFRED SPEER,
THE ORIGINAL
Port Grape Wine Producer in America.
The first native wine sold and used in San Francisco and Sacramento was from Speer's Passaic, N. J., vineyards, was shipped around Cape Horn before there was any railroad to California, and are now being used by physicians and first families there as the richest and best wine to be had

The juice of the Portugal Port Wine grape grown in N. J. is thick and rich same as the juice of pears and other fruits grown here. From California pears you can squeeze water as from a sponge; so with all fruits grown in California; while those grown in New Jersey are solid in substance—less juice but thick and richer. The New Jersey apples, for instance, make a cider that was always popular the world over. If you want a wine for sickness or for entertainments don't take cheap, watery wines but choose a first class old, full bodied, high grade wine from Speer's Passaic vineyards. Sold by Druggists.

of Passaic, N. J. Vineyards.
These Wines Rival the World in Excellence.
Old, rich and mellow by age and years of care and frequent racking in fumigated cellars as is done with the Chateau Wines in France.

Photograph of Chateau de Speer.

The Chateau contains a limited supply of Private Stock Port nineteen years old, besides Burgundy and Claret of nearly the same age. The Speer Port, however, nine years old, as well as the Burgundy Claret and Sherry, are high class wines. The ★★★Climax Brandy is 15 years old. All are preferred where known by the Medical profession as superior to any that can be had, for their excellent effect upon the system when used by invalids, the weakly and aged persons and in general family use. Northern New Jersey climate, and soil abounding in iron is just adapted for this grape for Port wine. It is the same kind of soil as in Portugal. Speer's winery and vineyards are the only Port grape vineyards in the United States; only vineyards that cultivate the real Port wine grape of Portugal; while other wines or mixtures called port are made without a single Oporto grape in them. Mr. Speer is the first and only one who imported the vines and acclimated the real Port wine grape vines of Portugal. He spent thousands of dollars as a hobby to see what he could do toward acclimating these Portugal vines here. It took eight years for them to become acclimated before Mr. Speer got a single grape; during those years all died except about eight hundred vines, when those began to grow vigorous and bear fruit; from these, layers were made for new vines. The vineyards now cover fifty six acres. It has proven a success. The grapes are allowed to hang on the vines until they begin to raisin, when they have parted with some of the water and are rich in sugar; and the wine made from Port wine grapes is the only real genuine Port wine made in America. It is by far THE wine for weakly persons, the aged and for evening entertainments.
Sold by Druggists and Grocers.

SONS AND FATHERS.

A Chicago Man Pays the Debts of His Dead Sire.

Honorable Conduct of Simeon B. Chapin Who Wipes Out $40,000 Liabilities Long Since Outlawed and Forgotten.

Simeon B. Chapin has paid in full all the claims against his father, the late E. D. Chapin, a board of trade operator, who met with business reverses years ago, owing between $35,000 and $40,000 after he had given his last cent to his creditors. Mr. Chapin was under no obligation to assume his father's liabilities. He was a boy when his father failed. All the claims had been outlawed years ago and the creditors had forgotten that the deceased Mr. Chapin owed them anything. They had dismissed the accounts from their minds long ago, and when the son handed checks to them they were as surprised as pleased. Many of them were in doubt at first as to the fact that they were creditors.

Mr. Chapin paid what he could, but when he died, 17 years ago, there was still nearly $40,000 of unsettled claims in creditors' books, and these were transferred to the profit and loss accounts on the ledgers long ago, nobody expecting to realize a cent on them.

Mr. Chapin, Jr., was a schoolboy when his father died. Shortly after the latter's death he entered the office of Armour & Co., and a few years later went into the brokerage business for himself, making a success.

At the beginning of this year he felt able to pay all claims against his father, and through agents who were old friends of his father rounded up all the latter's creditors and offered them dollar for dollar on their claims. They were surprised by the offer and accepted it gladly. Since then Mr. Chapin has wiped out all the indebtedness.

"We have been paid in full and it was a pleasant surprise," said Mr. Schwalbacker. "The claim was outlawed long ago, and even if it had not been we had no claim on the son. He was under no obligation to pay it, and it certainly was a most creditable act. His action is most honorable."

"I had forgotten all about my claim," said John Cudahy. "The fact that the father owed me anything slipped from my memory long ago, and you can imagine that I was surprised when the young man handed me a check for $1,400, which was due Cudahy & Stever when I was in the commission business. It is a pleasure to tell of the honorable act of the young man."

TINY SKYSCRAPERS.

Models of America's Tall Buildings Planned for the Exposition at Paris.

Models of modern skyscrapers are to be exhibited at the Paris exposition, according to an announcement made by Willard A. Smith, who is taking Commissioner General Ferdinand W. Peck's place in the United States while the latter is in Paris. Mr. Smith is director of the department of civil engineering and transportation. He is regarded as one of the best authorities on engineering in the United States. He is the editor of the Railway Review. During the world's fair he was chief of the transportation department.

"There is not a skyscraper constructed with the steel skeleton method in all Europe," he said, "and the models which are to be shown will be of the greatest importance to the foreign architects. Manufacturers interested in steel construction work have aided financially in this exhibit and we have made a duplicate model of the Broadway Chambers building, an 18-story structure which is now in course of erection in New York.

"There will be two models, each ten feet high. One of them will show the building complete, covered with stone at the base and terra cotta in the upper stories. The other is a model of the steel skeleton, which will show the manner in which the beams are joined, parts of the fireproof tiling, elevators in operation and the plumbing in detail."

KISSED BY FAIR SINGERS.

Grau Is Congratulated by Members of His Company for Honor Conferred Upon Him by France.

There was an unusual ceremony the other day at the Metropolitan opera house, New York, the occasion being the presentation to Manager Maurice Grau by all the members of the opera company of a token of congratulation on the honor recently conferred on him by the French government in creating him a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor. Standing in front of the draped easel and addressing Mr. Grau, Edward Lauterbach made the speech of presentation. Mr. Lauterbach said that France had reflected credit on herself, and that Mr. Grau's elevation to the rank of chevalier of the legion was the more gratifying in view of the fact that although a native of France he was a citizen of the United States.

"I thank you from the bottom of my heart," replied Mr. Grau. "I can only say that without your loyal support all my efforts would have gone for naught. It is to you that the greater share of the credit is due."

Mme. Eames embraced the manager and kissed him on both cheeks, her example being followed by Mlle. de Lussan and almost all the other women.

ATTAINING OLD AGE.

The Philosophy of Longevity Is Depicted by Prof. Cyrus Edson.

Addressing the Hundred Year club at New York the other night on "The Causes of Natural Death and How to Attain an Active and Useful Old Age," Dr. Cyrus Edson said that longevity is due to unusual powers of assimilation. Dr. Edson spoke of the trades and professions in which statistics had shown the fatalities to be earliest. Among the most fatal of the trades were those of steel polishers and potters. Merchants came well up in the list for early deaths and it had been shown that the mortality among butchers after the age of 25 is large. Among physicians also, he said, there is a high mortality rate much above the average, due to irregularity of living.

On the other hand, farmers and hunters, from their open-air life, often attain to old age.

"But," he added, "if the intellectual parts of the brain of the farmer had proper activity and exercise he would live longer. Rapid thought leads to longevity. Men in the city in this respect have a distinct advantage over the farmer. Not only is a well-balanced mind essential to old age, but a well-balanced active mind."

From this Dr. Edson deduced that "nature is a relentless fool killer." Statistics show, he added, that men of genius live a remarkably long life.

There should not be more than eight hours' sleep, he said, as too much sleep makes the sluggard. Excessive sleep results in degeneration from disuse of the mental faculties. After 35 years of age we never need more than eight hours, unless it is to "catch up." The cry of doctors ten years ago was to build up the body, but building the mind is equally, if not more, important.

GOVERNMENT POWDER PLANT.

Manufacture of Smokeless Article to Be Begun Very Shortly at Indian Head.

Manufacture of smokeless powder by the government will shortly be started at the Indian Head proving grounds. The buildings of the plant are practically completed. The machinery has been delivered and its installation will be accomplished soon. In order to avoid injury to the proving grounds the plant has been established on a tract of land several miles away, and the two points are connected by a railroad.

The factory and the railroad are to be operated by an electric plant, which has been established in the power house. The powder plant comprises a nitric acid factory, cotton washing house, cotton drying house, cotton storehouse, ether factory, pulping and poaching house, hydrating house, mixing house, press house, nitrating house, solvent recovery house, four powder dry houses, packing house, two magazines, a stand pipe for water supply, with a 300,000 gallons capacity and acid storing and mixing tanks.

Rear Admiral O'Neill, chief of ordnance, asserts that there is no intention on the part of the government to enter into competition, except as to quality, with private manufacturers.

Experiments will be made at the factory with a view of improving the quality of the powder. There is a disposition on the part of the private manufacturers to secure a limitation by specific provision of the amount of powder which the government factory shall turn out.

NANSEN'S PLANS.

To Carry Out Hydrological Studies Around Iceland in Specially Constructed Vessel.

Herr Fridtjof Nansen has been interviewed by a correspondent of the Lokal Anzeinger. He was passing through Berlin on his way to Breslau.

Speaking on the subject of his future plans and the late Andre, he said that he would leave Christiania on May 15, in order to carry out hydrological studies around Iceland for the Norwegian government.

A specially-constructed vessel has been ordered for this voyage. It will be similar to the Fram, but smaller. The expedition will return in the autumn.

In reply to the question: "Do you intend to proceed to the Arctic regions again?" Herr Nansen said that he had certain plans in view which, for the present, he preferred to keep secret. As to Andre, Herr Nansen said: "I believed as long as possible in his return, making the most liberal allowance of time for his reappearance, but I no longer have any hope

"I do not believe that he is living; otherwise we should certainly have heard of him. All that can be looked for now is the recovery of his body."

Stamping Out a Nuisance.

A London magistrate has made an example of one of those pests of the street who cry false war news. He said he would like to see them prosecuted for obtaining money under false pretences by selling papers which do not contain the news they bellow in raucous tones. For that offense the penalty would be more severe than a fine of 20 shillings, or seven days' imprisonment, which the magistrate imposed in the case before him.

A Serious Lack.

Even if we do show skyscraper models at the Paris exposition, says the Chicago Record, visitors will have no idea what they are like without the elevator boy to order patrons around.

Steel Production.

In 1850 there were 71,000 tons of steel made in the whole world. In 1898 the United States alone made 9,075,000 tons.

I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Say, John, what are you doing to look so healthy?"

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS.

VOL. XVII. NO. 17. THIEF RIVER FALLS, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, MAY 3, 1900. TERMS: $1.50 IN ADVANCE.

TRI-STATE

Drainage Convention Will Be Held May 10

AT GRAND FORKS.

A Large Number of Delegates Appointed.

The effort to get the government interested in establishing a reservoir system in the Red River valley will be pushed along at a vigorous rate, it seems, from the interest being taken in the convention to be held in Grand Forks on May 10th, says the Crookston Times. Upwards of 1,400 delegates have been appointed, and every city and village from Ortonville to Winnipeg will be represented. The plan of improvement contemplates the formation of two reservoir systems at Red lake and Lake Traverse, for the purpose of diminishing the effects of the floods and storing water for use at low stages in the Red river system. The Red lake reservoir system contemplates the construction of a reservoir dam with lock in Red Lake river near the outlet of the lake. Navigation up the Red Lake river is to be provided for by the construction of locks and dams at Crookston and Thief River Falls.

The plan for the Lake Traverse reservoir system contumplates the diversion of Otter Tail river in Rabbit and Bois de Sioux rivers by constructing a dam and canal near Breckenridge, a dam and lock in Bois de Sioux below the mouth of Rabbit, a dam at the foot of Big Stone lake and excavation of a canal to connect Big Stone lake with Lake Traverse.

The estimated cost of the works is:

Red Lake system	$300,000
Lake Traverse system	560,000
Total cost	$860,000

It is expected that this system will prevent overflow and furnish water sufficient for navigation during the open season, create water transportation for a distance of 990 miles on Red Lake and Red rivers, give a feeling of security in possessions to 500,000 people, cheaper transportation, build up industries and incourage investments. It is asserted that if this system had been established and completed before the flood of 1897 it would have saved the loss from damages occasioned thereby estimated at $3,000,000.

Fant to Be a Promoter.

H. Fant, of Thief River Falls, was in this city this morning on his way to Grand Forks. Mr. Fant will soon put in a telephone exchange at Thief River Falls, having obtained a franchise from the council at its last session for that purpose, and anticipates putting in an excellent electric light service there, providing the council will take hold of the matter in the right spirit, which it certainly should do if that city expects to keep apace with the growing conditions of that portion of the Red River valley.—Crookston Tribune, April 26.

Lost $25.

John N. Whitman last week had the misfortune to lose a pocket book containing $25—two tens and a five. Mr. Whitman's name was written upon the pocket book, and there were also some letters and other papers in the same which would give the finder an opportunity to know to whom it belonged.

SOME BAD FIRES.

Capt. Vining Says They Were Worse Than Reported.

Capt. E. B. Vining returned to this city last week from a trip to the Red Lake Agency. He went in from Solway and says that on his trip out the party came near being overcome by the flames of a forest fire by which it was surrounded. The country north of Solway and Shevlin has been burned over very generally, and an immense amount of damage done. Settlers' homes have been swept away in great numbers, and a large amount of timber destroyed. The fire swept through the country traversed by Halverson & Richards' logging railway which is getting out logs for the Crookston mills, and destroyed several cars, the pile driver and other portions of the equipment, together with 6,000,000 feet of logs. Several large bunches of logs belonging to other firms were also burned.

A PRETTY AFFAIR

Was the Behrns-Brewster Wedding at Fisher.

Miss Abbie Brewster and Will F. Behrns, of Thief River Falls, were married at the residence of the bride's parents in Fisher on Sunday at 5 p. m. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Murphy, of Bemidji, in the presence of friends and relatives. The decorations, which were very prettily arranged, were of flowers and vines. Miss Nellie Brewster presided at the piano, and rendered the wedding march from Lohngrin. Misses Adeline Brewster and Beatrice Bent acted as flower girls and wore pretty dresses of white, ribbon trimmed. The bride wore white silk trimmed in satin and pearls and carried flowers. The ceremony was read under an arch of white and pink decorated in evergreens, after which a splendid supper was served in the dining room from a table decorated with flowers and vines.

The bride has been a teacher in this county for a number of years, and the groom is employed in the capacity of agent at Thief River Falls. Mr. and Mrs. Behrns left for a southern and western trip, and will be absent about a month.—Crookston Times.

They Never Drink.

There are hundreds of horses and thousands of cattle in the Hawaiian islands which never take a drink of water throughout the whole course of their lives.

On all the islands the upper altitude of the mountains are given up to cattle ranges. The cattle run wild from the time they are born until they are sent to the slaughter house. Except possibly two or three months in the rainy season there are no streams or pools of water in any part where the cattle range, but everywhere there grows a recumbent, joint grass, known by the native name of maninia. This is both food and drink. Horses and cattle, grazing on it, neither require water nor drink it when offered.

"Pat" Is Building.

P. H. Wall is erecting a business block on his lots adjoining the postoffice, the dimensions of which are 24x60, two stories, frame. Mr. Wall expects to have the building completed within the next two weeks, when he will move into the same with his stock of furniture and furnishings.—Cass Lake Times.

THE POPS.

They Hold Their County Convention

IN THIS CITY.

H. E. Ives, Chairman; K. M. Hansen, Secretary.

The Populist county convention to elect delegates to the congressional and both state conventions was held in this city last Saturday. The delegates were called to order by Chairman H. E. Ives at 11 o'clock, and K. M. Hansen was made secretary. A committee on credentials was appointed, and Mayor Kretzschmar, who was present, was asked to welcome the delegates to the city, which he did, in a few well chosen words, and the convention adjourned to meet at 1:30.

At the afternoon session the committee on credentials reported the following entitled to seats in the convention:

Black River—A. M. Hanson.
Louisville—S. W. Bleau and A. D. Berry.
Red Lake Falls, town—Jeff Porter and F. Belair.
Rocksbury—F. T. Satre and P. Engelstad.
Red Lake Falls, city—E. A. Moran, Van R. Brown, J. E. Bray, S. A. Swanson, Frank Jeffers and W. Lemieux.
River Falls—P. O. Hagglund.
Thief River Falls—K. M. Hansen, Geo. Jarman, Alex Sweass and Frank Tilton.

The temporary organization was made permanent and the selecting of delegates was then taken up. There was considerable contention as to who would go to the congressional convention as delegates, there being twelve candidates and only eight to be chosen. They go uninstructed, and a part of them are said to favor Holston for congressman, while others on the delegation are decidedly against the Crookston attorney.

The delegates elected to attend the congressional convention were:

Frank Jeffers, H. E. Ives, E. A. Moran, S. A. Swanson, K. M. Hansen, A. M. Hanson, S. W. Bleau and Geo. Jarman.

The delegates elected to the state convention to elect delegates to the national convention were:

Peter Hall, W. Lemieux, C. E. Boughton, S. A. Swanson and Tom Belair.

The delegates elected to attend the state convention which nominates a state ticket are:

W. Lemieux, C. E. Boughton, S. A. Swanson, Frank Jeffers, K. M. Hansen, Van R. Brown and H. E. Ives.

A Sad Death.

A most remarkable and lamentable accident occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ildaige Baril on Sunday, when their 5-months-old baby lost its life by strangulation. The family were at church, and had left the children together. The older children gave the baby a gum drop, which became lodged in the child's throat, and the older ones were not able to render any assistance. When the parents arrived home the baby was in the last agonies of slow strangulation. The father immediately started for a doctor, but had hardly gotten beyond the door when he was recalled, as the little one had passed away. The funeral occurred Monday afternoon.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

HE SEES CHANGES.

Wiley Tindolph Is Pleased With the City.

Wiley Tindolph, a gentleman who at at one time owned a large majority of the town lots in the city of Thief River Falls, and who still has a number left, arrived in the city last week from Chicago.

Mr. Tindolph has not been in the city since the early ninetys, and consequently notes with satisfaction many substantial improvements. Then the city had a population of only a few hundred, while today it is a thriving city, with a population of over 2,500. Mr. Tindolph is seriously thinking of remaining here permanently and looking after his interests.

Glass Broken.

During the storm last Friday evening, one of the large plate glass windows in the Odd Fellows' block was blown down and completely destroyed. The glass was slightly cracked last year, caused presumably by a stone thrown by a slingshot, and has been in a weak condition ever since. It will cost the Odd Fellows about $100 to repair it.

Facts for European Travelers.

Duluth is about 1,040 miles from the nearest Atlantic seaport—Montreal—a 36-hour journey. Splendid vessels of 10,000 tons leave Montreal tri-weekly for Liverpool. The distance is 2661 miles. Duration of voyage, seven days. Steamers are scheduled to sail one hour after arrival of passengers via Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic Ry. The journey from Duluth to New York or Boston is about two days. Distance to Liverpool—from New York 3,130 miles. From Boston 2,997 miles. The largest and fastest vessels afloat sail daily for Europe. Intending European passengers should arrange passage through a reliable and experienced agency to insure economy and comfort. THE NEWS,

By John W. Eastman.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

$1.50 PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

THURSDAY, MAY 3, 1900.

TOMORROW the free homes bill will come up in congress for consideration.

REPORTS from Otter Tail county would indicate that Frank M. Eddy will secure the delegation from that county in his fight for re-nomination.

THE Republican primary elections will be held in the various precincts throughout Red Lake county on Saturday evening at 7:30. Every Republican should attend.

WE predict that there will not be a delegate elected to attend the Republican county convention to be held at Red Lake Falls next week who is not in favor of re-nominating Eddy.

THE wheat crop of this section promises to be the largest this year in the history of the county. The increase in the number of acres sown and the favorable conditions indicate that there will be over 600,000 bushels of wheat brought to the Thief River Falls market next fall.

A LARGE number of the state papers are booming Hon. A. N. Dare, of Elk River, as a candidate for the Republican nomination for state railroad and warehouse commissioner. Mr. Dare is a man in whom the people have confidence, and, if he is nominated, it will be worth many votes to the Republican state ticket.

A. R. HOLSTON secured control of the Polk county Populist convention, and delegates favorable to his candidacy for the congressional nomination were named. The Times, the leading fusion paper of Crookston, says that a majority of the delegates were opposed to indorsing Holston, but the wily politicians proved to be too much for the unsuspecting farmers.

LAST week the ways and means committee decided to lay on the table the Tawney resolutions calling on the commissioner of internal revenue for information about oleomargarine ingredients. The majority report will contend the law prohibits the disclosure of this information, and that it was obtained under a pledge of secrecy. Representative Tawney will make a minority report recommending that the resolution be adopted. It will hold the law in regard to oleomargarine expressly provides that manufacturers shall make known the ingredients of oleomargarine, in order that the government may determine if substances injurious to health are used in the manufacture of this product.

REPRESENTATIVE McCLEARY, of Minnesota, last week presented Admiral Dewey one of the most beautiful and unique of the many gifts he has received. It was a watch, paid for by penny contributions from 50,000 school children in Minnesota and the Dakotas, collected by the Minneapolis Journal and 185 country dailies and weekly newspapers. The idea was suggested and the fund was started by Archie Cadsow, a lad of 16 living at Rosemount, Minn., who took the watch to Washington and assisted at the presentation. The watch, chain and seal are made of gold mined in the Philippines and gun metal taken from the tip of a torpedo fired by the Spaniards at Dewey's flagship at the battle of Manila. The case is ornamented with an admiral's flag in blue and white enamel.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION.

The Republican county convention for Red Lake county, Minn., will be held at the court house in the city of Red Lake Falls, Minn., on Wednesday, the 9th day of May, A. D. 1900, at 2:30 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing seven delegates to attend the Republican congressional convention to be held in the city of Moorhead, on the 15th day of May, A. D. 1900, to place in nomination a candidate for congress for the Seventh congressional district, and also seven delegates, to attend the Republican state convention to be held in the city of Minneapolis on the 16th day of May, A. D. 1900, for the purpose of electing four delegates to attend the Republican national convention to be held in the city of Philadelphia, Pa., on the 19th day of June, A. D. 1900, and also to name nine presidential electors. Each voting precinct in the county or Red Lake will be entitled to three delegates to the aforesaid Republican county convention.

The primary elections for the purpose of choosing the three delegates to attend the Republican county convention will be held in the various precincts throughout the county on Monday, the 7th day of May, A. D. 1900, at 7:30 o'clock p. m.

Republican County Committee,
C. G. Rapp,
Chairman.
L. C. Simons,
Secretary.

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

The Republican state convention to elect delegates to the national convention will be held in Minneapolis, May 16.

The county conventions will be held May 9.

The state convention to nominate a state ticket will be held in St. Paul, June 28.

The county conventions will be held June 21.

The representation will be the same as in 1898. Red Lake county is entitled to seven delegates.

OUR EXCHANGES.

One of the aspirants for aldermanic honors in the city of Moorhead at the recent election is in jail, charged with robbery from the person. He is the same fellow who was arrested last year for chicken stealing. Maybe the boy who came west and wrote to his father back east, "Father, come west; some —— mean men get office," was not so very far from the mark.—Fargo Call.

We have unbounded sympathy for those Populists who are affiliating with the democrats. After having belonged, for many years, to a party which could make no headway in national politics, it is no wonder that they are going over to a party which at least has a possibility of success. It would be an odd sensation for a Populist to feel that he had actually voted for a winning candidate. And, we fear, the time has not yet come.—Pipestone Star.

The world's wheat crop of 1898 was the largest on record and footed up to 2,921,045,000 bushels. The 1899 crop was nearly 200,000,000 bushels smaller, but it was much larger than the crop of any other year. A booming market can hardly be expected after two bumper crop years. Prosperity and generally high prices for everything else is what keeps wheat from going lower than it is. The immediate future of wheat will depend upon the 1900 crop prospects, with chances in favor of a moderate rise in price.—Ada Index.

A municipal experiment deserving attention and imitation is being pursued in St. Joseph, Mo. The town needed certain improvements. Particularly were the streets in a condition which required a large expenditure of money for repairs. The city officials were in possession of most of the public moneys; that is, their salaries amounted to the larger part of the funds. Three-fourths of the city's money was paid to these officials. In order to make the improvements, it was necessary either to reduce these salaries, to issue bonds or to increase taxation. The first method was adopted, but in an extreme degree. The mayor found citizens who were wealthy and capable at the same time and willing to serve the city officially, with the reward for their labor found in a better equipped municipality. The men were found, the salaries are now being saved, and the improvements are being made. The effect of this departure upon the city and its political situations will be watched attentively. It is worthy of imitation, and, while there have been isolated similar cases, such as that of Dr. Washington Gladden, there has not been for so extended a time and so extensive a service a like experiment.—St Paul Dispatch.

Russia Places Contracts for Freight Cars with Home Firms.

Takes This Position in Equipping Trans-Siberian Railroad Because Her Large Manufactories Were Shutting Down.

According to the statements of a gentleman representing the Russian government, who has just returned from a visit to St. Petersburg, American manufacturers must not look to the immediate receipt of any large contracts for equipment and material for the Trans-Siberian railroad.

The gentleman referred to, who is in close touch with the officials of the Muscovite government, said:

"Prince Hilkoff, the Russian minister of ways and communications, and M. De Witte, the finance minister, are entirely opposed at the moment to sending heavy contracts out of the country. This decision has been arrived at in view of the fact that several of the large Russian manufacturing concerns are shutting down through lack of work. Orders for 5,000 freight cars for the Trans-Siberian road were being awarded just as I left the capital to four Russian concerns that were on the eve of suspending operations because of the dullness in trade. In fact, these firms were actually in the hands of receivers, owing to financial embarrassment. The cars are to be delivered inside of one year. I was told by one of the principal engineers in the ministry of ways and communications that the Trans-Siberian road will require 15,000 cars in all. So that as contracts for 5,000 cars have been placed, as above stated, 10,000 more will be ordered.

"Contracts for bridges estimated to be worth some $300,000 have just been placed with Russian manufacturers. Such proceeding was actuated partly by the ministers' policy, but it was also found that while further fostering native industries by awarding the contracts to Russian bridge-makers, the latter offered additional advantages, as they undertook to deliver the material by June, whereas the best inducement as to delivery that American bridge manufacturers could make was completion of the contracts by November next."

GREW BONES BY THOUGHT.

John Espy, of Xenia, Ohio, Reproduces Four Inches of Crushed Limb.

S. W. Winter, who lives at No. 201 First avenue, Joliet, Ill., vouches for a case similar to the one published in the Chicago Inter Ocean in which Mrs. S. V. Hughes-Graham, of Chicago, told of the growing on of a finger by the power of thought.

John Espy, of Xenia, O., a cousin of Winter's, succeeded in reproducing by mental process four inches of bone in the lower part of his leg between the knee and the ankle. Some years ago Espy was driving a team of horses hitched to an old-fashioned thrashing machine. The horses ran away, the machine was overturned, and Espy's leg was caught between the wheels and crushed to a jelly. He was taken to Xenia, O., and physicians declared at once that the only way to save his life was to amputate the leg at the knee joint. Young Espy declared that he would rather take his chances and try to save the leg. The wounded limb was bandaged and put in an improvised swing.

At the end of six weeks the crushed bone had worked out, leaving about four inches of boneless, bruised flesh. The doctors continued to insist on amputation, but the boy and his parents stuck to their belief that the bones would grow in again, and thought all the time of such a miraculous cure. Within three weeks from the time the old bone came out the new bone grew in. The leg became as strong as ever, but a trifle shorter, so that Espy walked with a very slight limp.

TO SING GERMAN LULLABIES.

Chicago Public School Children Will Be Taught Simple Ditties.

German lullabies are to be sung in Chicago public schools. Kindergarten and primary grade pupils are to daily sing simple songs of Germany, as they now sing the simple songs of English-speaking countries. The German committee of the board of education decided on the innovation. Trustee Joseph S. Schwab said:

"I believe German songs will prove a wonderful aid in the teaching of German. Our youngest pupils will become familiar with German words, phrases and expressions, and when they come to take up the study of German regularly they will find it comparatively easy. In addition German children will have the pleasure of learning the melodies of the 'fatherland,' songs which their parents know and love. The plan is to introduce simple songs, somewhat similar to those in English now sung by the children every day. Germany is the land of music, and her songs are well worthy to be sung everywhere."

Need Disciplining Also.

A Philadelphia man has been sent to jail for a year for selling copies of Daudet's story of "Sapho." Up to the hour of going to press, says the Chicago Times-Herald, nothing has been done to the fools who bought the books.

Mrs. M. A. Hennings has sold her Thief River Falls property to Hanson & Barzen, of that place. The land comprised 25½ acres, unplatted, and is situated on the outskirts of the city, along the G. N. track. The consideration was $500. Mrs. Hennings at one time refused $1,000 for the tract.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

J. W. Wheeler, of Crookston, one of the directors of the First State bank of this city, was here last week looking after his business interests.

Bert Walter received a letter from P. Morisette the first of the week. He states that his wife's health is still poor and that she will have to spend next winter in Colorado.

People wishing to have their cows herded this summer should make arrangements with Fred Rollette at once. The herd will be started May 1, and the sum of $1 per month per head will be charged.

The members of the Modern Woodmen have chosen up sides, and will make an effort to increase the membership to the order in this city. The side which secures the largest number of new members will be treated to a dinner by the losing side.

Postmaster Richardson has received a supply of the new government stamp books. The books are made up of 12, 24 and 48 two-cent stamps to the book, and sell for a cent in advance over the value of the stamps. Paraffine paper is used and the books will be found very convenient to those who wish to carry stamps in their pockets.

Tumbled Down.

A tall brick fire wall that has recently been erected between the Hotel Wilmes and P. A. Kaufer's building at Red Lake Falls was completed last week, and, through some fault in construction, it fell Sunday, completely crushing the building owned by Mr. Kaufer, and occupied as a saloon by Philip Cheyer. The building was a total wreck, and the stock destroyed completely.

The adjoining building owned by J. A. Duffy and occupied by Mr. Bray as a hardware store was also damaged to the extent of $500, the damage to Mr. Bray's stock being placed at $1,000.

Happenings on Sunday, as it did, no one was in either of the buildings. Had the accident occurred at any other time, a loss of life would undoubtedly have resulted.

Knights of Malta.

A meeting was held Monday evening, at which time Organizer Green and Field Deputy Adams perfected a temporary organization of the Knights of Malta. The lodge will be instituted on the evening of May 28th, at which time the secret work of the order will be given. The following officers were elected:

Commander—Geo. H. Gibson.
General Essemo—Alton Baumann.
Captain General—W. F. Gibson.
Recorder—J. S. Darnin.
Assistant Recorder — Louis French.
Treasurer—C. F. Umbright.
Senior Warden—R. B. Dirby.
Trustees—John Baumann, Chas. Rockstad and John Rogers.

There are several appointive offices that will be announced on the 28th of May.

Go to France.

Joseph Duchampe and Mrs. Sam Gosseline have received word from France of the death of their mother. Mrs. Gosseline left for France yesterday, but Mr. Duchampe will not leave before next week, as he has considerable business to look after here. The mother leaves a large estate which is to be equally divided among six children, the other four residing in France. Both Mr. Duchampe and Mrs. Gosseline will probably remain in France the greater part of the summer and will attend the Paris exposition.

A GREAT NEWSPAPER.

It has always been claimed for the Chicago Tribune that it would, in all probability, pass high the highest average in any competitive examination among the newspapers of the United States for excellence in all departments of journalism.

"Under date of May 3, 1900, the Omaha World-Herald, editorially answering a letter from "Inquirer" asking the names of the five best newspapers in this country, points out that a newspaper may excel in one way and be inferior in another. The World-Herald gives lists under five general headings of leading American newspapers distinguished especially for excellence, mentioning in all some twenty.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE HEADINGS:
"(1). Most and best news, foreign and domestic, presented attractively.
"(2). Best possible presentation of news briefly.
"(3). Typographical appearance.
"(4). Classification of news by departments.
"(5). Editorials.
"The Chicago Tribune is the only newspaper in the United States which the World-Herald considers worthy of mention under four different heads."—From the October Plain Talk.

Practically all high-class intelligent newspaper readers, comprising the best and middle classes in Chicago and vicinity, read The Chicago Tribune. A great majority of these read no other morning newspaper.

The Chicago Tribune prints more advertising year in and year out than any newspaper in the West.

Chateau de Speer Wines
of Passaic, N. J. Vineyards.

These Wines Rival the World in Excellence.

Old, rich and mellow by age and years of care and frequent racking in fumigated cellars as is done with the Chateau Wines in France.

Photograph of Chateau de Speer.

The Chateau contains a limited supply of Private Stock Port nineteen years old, besides Burgundy and Claret of nearly the same age. The Speer Port, however, nine years old, as well as the Burgundy Claret and Sherry, are high class wines. The ★★★ Climax Brandy is 18 years old. All are preferred where known by the Medical profession as superior to any that can be had, for their excellent effect upon the system when used by invalids, the weakly and aged persons and in general family use. Northern New Jersey climate, and soil abounding in iron is just adapted for this grape for Port wine. It is the same kind of soil as in Portugal. Speer's winery and vineyards are the only Port grape vineyards in the United States; only vineyards that cultivate the real Port wine grape of Portugal; while other wines or mixtures called port are made without a single Oporto grape in them. Mr. Speer is the first and only one who imported the vines and acclimated the real Port wine grape vines of Portugal. He spent thousands of dollars as a hobby to see what he could do toward acclimating these Portugal vines here. It took eight years for them to become acclimated before Mr. Speer got a single grape; during those years all died except about eight hundred vines, when those began to grow vigorous and bear fruit; from these, layers were made for new vines. The vineyards now cover fifty six acres. It has proven a success. The grapes are allowed to hang on the vines until they begin to raisin, when they have parted with some of the water and are rich in sugar; and the wine made from Port wine grapes is the only real genuine Port wine made in America. It is by far THE wine for weakly persons, the aged and for evening entertainments.

A "HALL OF FAME."

Splendid Structure on Hudson to Immortal'ze Great Americans.

Gift of $100,000 to the New York University to Be Used in Erection of Building—Judges to Pass on Names.

The country at large and New York city are to have a "Hall of Fame for Great Americans," a splendid structure, that will rear itself high above the Hudson. The council of the New York university met and formally announced and accepted a gift of $100,000. The money is to be used to build the "Hall of Fame" on University heights, a colonnade 500 feet long, which will look towards the Palisades and the valleys of the Hudson and Harlem rivers.

Chancellor of the University MacCracken said recently he was not at liberty to tell the name of the American who makes this gift or to describe him further than that he is a citizen of New York and a friend of the university.

The conditions of the gift, readily accepted by the university council, are directed to make sure that none but the names of truly great Americans shall be inscribed in the "Hall of Fame."

One hundred and fifty panels, each about two by eight feet, will be provided in the "Hall of Fame" for the names of the great. Fifty of these will be approved by the two bodies of judges. At the close of every five years thereafter five additional panels shall be inscribed, so that the entire number shall be completed by A. D. 2000.

The statue, bust, or portrait of any person whose name is inscribed may be given a place either in the "Hall of Fame" or in the museum adjoining.

Mrs. Robert Goelet offered the trustees at their meeting a memorial of her late husband. It is a bronze statue typical of "Alma Mater" and will cost $35,000.

BOY WONDER IN TELEGRAPHY.

Is Only Eleven But Can Send a Long Press Message Without the Least Concern.

Perhaps the youngest telegraph operator in the country "holding down" a regular office in a courthouse town is Willie Barr, the "manager" of the office at Kingstree, the largest town on the Atlantic coast line between Florence and Charleston, S. C. There is just business enough at that point for one good operator, and "Little Willie" does it all. He is in sole charge, and has been for the last four months. The boy is now just 11 years and 1 month old, and he has been able to do some work on the wire for two and a half years.

When he was eight years old an operator who took a fancy to Willie came to Kingstree and the boy spent hours each day in the telegraph office, fascinated by the strangeness of the thing. Gradually he learned the calls of the different stations on the road by ear; then he was able to catch short words in messages going through. All this time the ambitious little chap was practicing "sending" on a dummy, and finally was permitted to "talk" to operators on the line. When the boy was ten years and six months old, and it became known that there would be a vacancy in the Kingstree office, he applied for the place. The authorities were not disposed to put a child in charge, but Willie got on the train, went to division headquarters, and stood the most rigid examination in the most satisfactory manner. He got the place.

The boy will tackle with perfect unconcern a thousand-word press dispatch, and will send it faultlessly—more than can be said for many adult operators outside the cities.

BAN ON DRESSING GOWNS.

Northwestern Coeds at Evanston, Ill., Hereafter Must Dress for Breakfast.

There are sleepy faces and numerous wailings at Woman's hall, Evanston, Ill., where the pretty coeds live who attend Northwestern university. For an edict was sent forth by Dean Miller that said that all the girls hereafter must dress before appearing at the breakfast table. This means that henceforth, instead of jumping from a soft pillow into a dressing gown or bed quilt and slippers and hurrying down to the dining-room just as the bell quits ringing, each fair maiden will be compelled to take as much care in arranging her tresses and selecting her gown as if she were going out to dinner.

"It's a shame that we have to dress just for breakfast," said one of the dwellers at the hall as she pouted a pair of red lips and stamped her foot. "We have to get up so much earlier that we lose almost an hour's sleep every morning. What difference does it make anyway how we look when we go to breakfast? There's no one there to see us but ourselves, so why should anyone care whether we wear dressing gowns, bed quilts or slippers?"

The dean says that the order will be enforced rigidly in spite of the girls who say it hurts their feelings.

WILDCAT ALARMS.

Escapes at Madison Square Garden During a Show But Is Captured Before Doing Any Harm.

There are always exciting incidents at a sportsmen's show at Madison Square garden, New York. The chief episode the other afternoon was the escape of a wildcat, and while at large there were enough cold chills in the amphitheater to make the atmosphere frigid. Some workmen were engaged in taking the brute out of his traveling box and transferring him to a wire cage. The cat did not seem to object particularly, until some of the spectators crowded close to the cage and then he swallowed his sharp teeth and uttered that peculiar swish-like sound often heard by hunters in the forest.

Just about the time the sleek and graceful looking animal was expected to leap from the box to the cage he changed his mind, and, seeing a slight opening between the two, took French leave, to the consternation of the crowd. The animal climbed up some foliage, and the spectators wished that they were on the roof. Even the Indians hitched up their buckskins and thought it about time to crawl under cover. The cat made its way along the balcony toward the musicians, who were just finishing a selection and who had not noticed the disturbance on the main floor. When the leader saw the cat coming his baton was waved wildly in the air, and he started for one of the private boxes on the next tier. The other musicians rose as a man, astonished at the conduct of their leader, and they saw something. Every horn player in the band turned his instrument toward the wild cat and the blast that was emitted was enough to startle any animal. It was too much for the cat, for the animal saw that he was not wanted, and, turning quickly, he made tracks for a hiding place. He found it under the stairs, and then the men in the amphitheater held a consultation.

Finally two old circus men, Donald and Lewis, volunteered to capture the animal. A wild cat at bay is a nasty customer for dog or man, but the old circus men said that if they were provided with a bicycle lamp and some rope that they would do the trick. They did it, too. The cat was placed in his cage and peace and quiet again reigned in the garden.

CARNEGIE PLANS A PALACE.

New York Mansion Will Be Arranged with Special Thought for His Little Girl.

In the house Andrew Carnegie is building Mrs. Carnegie is the chief architect and Margaret Carnegie, the only child of the steel king, the chief ruler. While Mrs. Carnegie is the actual designer, the firm of Babb, Cook & Willard will carry out her ideas in the interior arrangements, and these, in turn, will be made with an eye single to the comfort and enjoyment of the child. Little Margaret will be three years old the last of this month. The house is rising at Fifth avenue and Ninety-first street, with Central park for a foreground.

The house will be a combination of several styles of architecture, last century English predominating. The cost will be $1,000,000. A garden will cost more than half a million additional.

It is said that a private kindergarten, a glass winter garden, and playrooms in which a school of children could revel will be little Miss Margaret's own premises.

Plenty of room, plenty of air, and lots of flowers, with birds, will make the little heiress the most envied of the curled darlings of the metropolis.

MILES' DOG REX.

Gordon Setter of the General Which Has a Long and Interesting Pedigree.

Gen. Miles has as a member of his household Rex, a Gordon setter of great intelligence. Rex has a long and interesting pedigree which would admit him to any society founded upon pride of birth. Rex first came under the general's notice years ago at a bench show when a puppy. Since that time Rex has had both a civil and military training, but the latter has not been severe, as he is naturally of a good disposition. He is the pet of the household and understands all conversation.

Gen. and Mrs. Miles have had him as a companion in their private car on two trips to the Pacific coast, and he is quite familiar with Chicago scenes. He loves to go for a ride in the carriage. Formerly he preferred to run beside it, but since the enactment of the absurd law by which dogs in the district have been muzzled in midwinter he objects to footing it, as he is then subjected to the humility of a muzzle.

He is living in hopes some congressman will become the friend of his race and legislate in his behalf.

Flying Hospital in South Africa.

The latest development in military hospitals is called the imperial yeomanry flying hospital, and consists of two curricles, or broad two-wheeled carts, each drawn by two horses, which keep pace with the cavalry. One, says the London Leader, contains a cupboard full of splints, bandages, medicines; the other is constructed to accommodate eight patients in stretchers.

Rapid Time to the Orient.

From London to Bombay in 11 days is the remarkable programme laid out by the Peninsular & Oriental Steamship company. The journey will be made by the Brindisi route, and involves faster time than is usual on Italian railways. The chief item is the voyage from Suez to Bombay, which is made at the rate of 17 knots an hour.

I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Say, John, what are you doing to look so healthy?"

FREE HOMES.

Congressman Eddy's Bill Passed the House.

After eight years of delay, the house of representatives has passed the free homestead bill, which, if it receives favorable action in the senate, as is expected, will open a large area of the public domain to free entry of settlers who are clammoring for the benefits of the old free homestead law. Last week's result was brought about by the activity and preseverance of a few representatives, principally from the Northwest, some of whom have persistently advocated the free homes bill for years. While the bill has been before the house eight years, notwithstanding the most vigorous efforts on the part of its friends, little progress has been made until the present session. However, when the bill came up for passage last week, there was hardly a dissenting voice. The radical change in the sentiment of the house toward the free homes bill is due to the efforts of Representatives Eddy and Morris, of Minnesota; Gamble and Burke, of South Dakota, and Flynn, of Oklahoma, ably backed up by solid delegations from the Northwestern states.

Minnesota had a conspicuous part in the passage of the bill, the measure being handled on the floor by Representative Eddy, while Representative Tawney presided in committee of the whole. Two years ago the house leaders were united in opposition to the bill. Last week only two speeches were made against it, and these came from Southern Democrats. Representative Sherman, of New York, offered an amendment eliminating all reference to agricultural colleges, the adoption of which would have defeated the bill, but the action of the New York man was manifestly perfunctory. The bill was taken up promptly with a brief but strong argument by Representative Eddy in behalf of the measure. The time allowed for the consideration of the bill being limited, the speeches were necessarily brief, but those of Representatives Eddy, Morris, Gamble and Burkee were particularly to the point, bringing out the strongest arguments in favor of the measure. The bill as passed applies only to lands which have already been thrown open. State agricultural college funds will not be affected by the proposed law, as it is expressly provided that the appropriation in support of these institutions shall not be diminished by any diminution in the proceeds from the sale of public lands. The main object of the bill is to give to settlers on Indian reservation lands which have been opened to settlement the right to free homestead entries instead of compelling the settler to pay $1.25 an acre for the lands. In other words, the government is to pay the Indians for the lands just as other public lands have been purchased and given to settlers under free homestead laws.

POLITICAL NOTES.

A Number of Candidates for Office.

The politicians and office seekers in Red Lake county are commencing to get a "hustle" upon themselves, and the indications are that Red Lake county will witness a "red hot" campaign next fall. Neither the Populist or Republican county conventions have been called as yet, but, in all probabilities, the county tickets will be nominated at the time the delegates are elected to attend the state conventions to nominate state officers.

The dissention in the ranks of the Populist party, which is very evident to an unbiased spectator, will be taken advantage of by the Republicans, who will name a complete county ticket. The Populist party in the county today is divided into three factions, and it is not believed—owing to the fact that each faction wants to name all of the county officers—that they will ever be able to get together.

F. A. Grady, of Red Lake Falls, was in the city last week transacting business. Mr. Grady is a candidate for the Populist nomination for county attorney, as is also H. W. Lee, of this city, and Van R. Brown, of Red Lake Falls. The latter's friends in Red Lake Falls, who secured for him the nomination two years ago, are said to be in favor of Mr. Lee this year, while F. A. Grady claims that he will receive the solid support of the Red Lake Falls delegation. Mr. Brown, however, is stronger in the northern portion of the county then he was two years ago and may again secure the nomination.

J. L. Johnson, of St. Hilaire, will be a candidate for the Populist nomination for judge of probate, but the indications are that J. T. Knight will be re-nominated, although Mr. Johnson will have a strong following from the central portion of the county.

About the only Populist who will not have opposition for renomination is Frank Jeffers. Mr. Jeffers is very popular with all factions of the Populist party—and also with the school teachers—a majority of whom are ladies and can vote.

There will be a large number of contests for each place upon the Republican county ticket, but it promises to be a good natured affair. The Republicans in this county cannot afford to get into any quarrel, and, if a harmonious convention is held, the chances of success in the county next fall will be very good.

P. Engelstad, of Rocksbury, is being quite favorably mentioned as a candidate for county auditor. Mr. Engelstad is very well and favorably known in the northern portion of the county, and, should he decide to make the run, will undoubtedly poll a good vote. Adam Zeh, however, will be a candidate for re-nomination, and he is particularly strong in Red Lake Falls and the southern townships.

K. M. Hanson is being mentioned as the Populist candidate for the nomination for representative from Red Lake and Beltrami counties. At present there is no Republican candidate for the nomination in this county, and the indications are that Beltrami county will be allowed to name the nominee, although Red Lake county will have a majority of the delegates in the convention.

FROM ALASKA.

Pat H. Cavanough Writes to R. McGinn.

Robert McGinn last week received a letter from P. H. Cavanough, who, in company with Archie Young, Hugh Dean and Barney Anderson, left this city in the spring of '98 for the gold fields of Alaska. Mr. Cavanough states that he is located at Cape York, near Cape Prince of Wales, and Anderson and Young are also there. The letter is dated Oct. 28, 1899, and at that time he and Anderson had sixty claims staked out and recorded. He says he believes the country is as rich as at Cape Nome and that there is a great rush of people there, and, as he was there first, he hopes to make some money. On one of the claims they dug out $8 worth of gold in four hours, the largest piece being worth 83 cents. As yet they have no idea of the value of their claims. Everything in the vicinity has been staked out, and there is no chance for anyone else. He says that the report of the amount of gold taken out of Cape Nome has not been exaggerated. There are plenty of provisions in the country and there will be no suffering.

LOTS OF GLANDERS

Found by Veterinarian in Western Polk.

Dr. Langevin informs the Crookston Times that he has found a large number of horses infected with glanders in the western part of Polk county, particularly in the township of Tynsid.

One man, Ole Johnson, had 12 horses, three of which he has already killed. The remaining nine are all badly affected. Dr. Langevin ordered four of these killed forthwith. On the farm of Mrs. Johanna Thorson were found nine horses, two of which were at once condemned and ordered shot. The remainder will be tested, and there is little doubt that they will also be destroyed.

Thomas Logan, chairman of the supervisors of the township, secured the services of Dr. Langevin, and he thinks there are several other farms in that part of the county where the disease exists. The laws of North Dakota are less stringent in dealing with this disease, and the probability is that affected horses have been brought across the river and sold or traded to the Polk county farmers, and in this manner the disease was brought in.

COMMISSIONERS

Held an Important Meeting Last Week.

K. M. Hanson was down to Red Lake Falls last week to attend a meeting of the board of county commissioners. The commissioners purchased the old Polk county jail and it will be located in a building to be erected back of the city hall in Red Lake Falls. In the future Red Lake county prisoners will be kept there instead of being boarded in the Polk county jail.

Mr. Hanson secured an appropriation of $100 to repair the road from D. Connely's to Martin Rockstad's, on the condition that Thief River Falls would donate a similar sum. As the city council has already voted $100, the work will probably be commenced at once.

ASKS $40,000

From the City of Thief River Falls.

Attorney Halvor Steenerson, of Crookston, was in the city last week and, as attorney for Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Cunningham, the two St. Hilaire ladies who were injured in this city some time ago at the railroad crossing, served notice upon the city clerk to the effect that damages to the amount of $40,000 would be asked. The city's interests will be looked after by Ira C. Richardson, and the Great Northern railroad will be made defendants with the city.

Side Walk to Cemetery.

Residents of the East side have petitioned to the city council for the building of a side walk along Superior avenue to Greenwood cemetery. There is a great deal of travel upon this street, and, if the sidewalk is built, it will be a great accommodation to the public.

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

The Republican state convention to elect delegates to the national convention will be held in Minneapolis, May 16.

The county conventions will be held May 9.

The state convention to nominate a state ticket will be held in St. Paul, June 28.

The county conventions will be held June 21.

The representation will be the same as in 1898. Red Lake county is entitled to seven delegates.

Facts for European Travelers.

Duluth is about 1,040 miles from the nearest Atlantic seaport—Montreal—a 36-hour journey. Splendid vessels of 10,000 tons leave Montreal tri-weekly for Liverpool. The distance is 2661 miles. Duration of voyage, seven days. Steamers are scheduled to sail one hour after arrival of passengers via Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic Ry. The journey from Duluth to New York or Boston is about two days. Distance to Liverpool—from New York 3,130 miles. From Boston 2,997 miles. The largest and fastest vessels afloat sail daily for Europe. Intending European passengers should arrange passage through a reliable and experienced agency to insure economy and comfort. This can be done by applying to T. H. Larke, Ass't Gen'l Pass. Agent, D. S. S. & A. Ry., 426 Spalding Hotel block, Duluth. Tickets via all Trans-Atlantic lines. Cabin plans, and complete up-to-date information as to rates and service on all steamers. Agency for Thos. Cook & Son's European Tours. Many steamers are now full full for both going and return trips this summer. Prompt application should be made for stateroom berths.

Palaces on Wheels.

The most costly, beautiful, luxurious cars on earth. Steam heated; electric lighted. Wide vestibuled. No extra fares.

By John W. Eastman.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

$1.50 PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

THURSDAY, MAY 10, 1900.

H. Johnson and Dr. Cole have withdrawn from the congressional race. There are a good many people who have an idea that they never entered.

It is now an assured fact that Congressman Eddy will be renominated by acclamation at the Republican convention to be held in Moorhead one week from today.

E. E. Corliss, of Fergus Falls, has probably come to the conclusion that he does not carry as many votes around in his vest pocket as he thought he did.

The indications are that Hugh Thompson will have the solid support of the Red River valley counties in his effort to secure the Republican nomination for railroad and warehouse commissioner. This section of the state is entitled to recognition.

The passage of Congressman Eddy's free homes bill adds $200 to the value of every homestead on the ceded lands of the Red Lake Indian reservation. Since the land has been opened to settlement there have been 10,000 claims taken, and the amount put into the pockets of the settlers in this section will amount to $2,000,000. When Mr. Eddy comes up for re-election it is hoped that the settlers will not forget his efforts in their behalf.

The Populists in this county will fuse with the Democrats this year, so says the Gazette, the official paper of the Populists in Red Lake county. Two years ago the Populists scoffed at the idea of fusing with the Democrats in this county. Now it is different. But let them fuse with the Democrats, the Prohibitionists, the Socialists and the Silver Republicans. It will make no difference to the Republicans, as their ticket will be elected by a big majority next fall.

The discord in the Populist ranks of Red Lake county, upon which the Republicans hoped to base their campaign, has proved to be only a false alarm. At the convention at Thief River Falls Saturday the greatest of harmony prevailed among the delegates, and everything indicates that the "pops" will line up for battle this fall with a more solid front than ever before.—Red Lake Falls Courier.

At the convention held in Thief River Falls there were but eighteen delegates present; not enough to get up a good sized riot, such as they generally have in Populist conventions in this county. Wait until the convention to elect county officials is held, and then talk about harmony.

THE REPUBLICANS

Held Their County Convention Yesterday.

The Republican county convention was held yesterday at Red Lake Falls. It was a large and representative gathering, and John A. Duffy was made chairman, while L. C. Simmons was elected as secretary. A great deal of time was taken up by discussing whether or not the delegation should be instructed for Frank M. Eddy for congressman. It was finally voted not to instruct, although a majority of the delegates favor the renomination of F. M. Eddy. It was decided to let each commissioner district select a delegate to the congressional convention, and two were elected at large. The various commissioner districts reported as being in favor of P. E. Schmidsang, John Quincy Adams, Ovid Moreau, C. L. Dobner and C. G. Rapp, while Ira C. Richardson and John W. Eastman were elected delegates at large.

The delegates elected to attend the state convention were: C. G. Rapp, W. A. Case, Dr. Watson, F. J. Stebbins, L. C. Simmons and Ovid Moreau. The following resolutions were adopted:

We, the Republicans of the county of Red Lake, in the state of Minnesota, in convention assembled, hereby declare our faith in the principles of the Republican party, as announced in its platform adopted at the national convention held in St. Louis in 1896, and approve the policy of the national administration during the war between the United States and Spain, and its efforts to suppress the rebellion in the Philippines.

We recognize in the Hon. Frank M. Eddy a faithful congressman and an able defender of the rights of settlers upon the public domain, and congratulate him upon his success in securing the passage of the free homes bill by the house of representatives, and hereby pledge our earnest and undivided efforts to secure his re-nomination and election to the high office he holds, and urge upon his attention the desirability of having the agricultural lands within the diminished Indian reservation and within the boundaries of the counties of Marshall and Red Lake, Minnesota, immediately opened to settlement.

Dated May 9, 1900.

ACQUITTED.

M. Peterson Charged With Stealing $20.

The case of the state of Minnesota vs. Martin Peterson, charged with stealing a $20 bill from S. Kenison on the 4th of January, was tried before Judge C. E. Traverse and a jury in the city hall Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Kenison, it seems, after paying up numerous judgments, attorney's fees, etc., had five $20 bills left, which he placed in his trunk in his room at the Red Lake hotel. He testified that his room was entered on the 4th of January by some unknown person, his trunk unlocked and one of the $20 bills taken.

Andy Erickson, proprietor of the Red Lake hotel, testified that he suspected that Peterson had taken the money. Peterson had been employed in the Thief River Falls Lumber company's mill during the summer and was hurt some time in September, and his physical condition was such that he could not do any hard work. He had, however, done chores about the hotel, and, to gain an entrance to his room, it was necessary for him to go through the room occupied by Mr. Kenison. Mr. Erickson stated that on the morning in question no one excepting the chamber maid, Peterson and himself had been in Kenison's room. Peterson had been without money all winter, and on one occasion had endeavored to borrow money of Mr. Erickson. Inquiry about town by Mr. Erickson developed the fact that he had secured change for a $20 bill from Kittle Knutson, a bartender employed in George Williams' saloon.

Alex Golla testified that he drove Peterson's team to the woods on the 7th day of November. That he had asked Peterson for some money with which to buy medicine for the horses, and had been told that he (Peterson) had none.

Peterson was the only witness in his on behalf. He denied that he took the money, and said that he had money in his pockets all winter. Said that last fall he had sold a water tank for $10, some lumber for $16.50, had got $18 from Martin Rookstad for work for his team, and drew $35.50 from the Thief River Falls Lumber company, and that the company had paid $115 to Mr. Erickson for his board. Of this amount he spent $15 for a harness, $6.05 for medicine and $9 for a trip to Crookston. He admitted to getting a $20 bill changed in George Williams' saloon, but said that it was in March, after he had secured pay for the work of his team in the woods, instead of in January, as was sworn to by Mr. Knutson.

The jury was out only about five minutes and brought in a verdict of not guilty.

ALFRED SPEER,
THE ORIGINAL
Port Grape Wine Producer in America.

The first native wine sold and used in San Francisco and Sacramento was from Speer's Passaic, N. J., vineyards, was shipped around Cape Horn before there was any railroad to California, and are now being used by physicians and first families there as the richest and best wine to be had

The juice of the Portugal Port Wine grape grown in N. J. is thick and rich same as the juice of pears and other fruits grown here. From California pears you can squeeze water as from a sponge; so with all fruits grown in California; while those grown in New Jersey are solid in substance—less juice but thick and richer. The New Jersey apples, for instance make a cider that was always popular the world over. If you want a wine for sickness or for entertainments don't take cheap, watery wines but choose a first class old, full bodied, high grade wine from Speer's Passaic vineyards. Sold by Druggists.

NEW WRINKLE IN BEGGING.

An Exceedingly Smooth Individual Who Finds Chicago Business Men Easy Prey.

He came into the office with a stride that one learns to expect in people of consequence. It was easy to infer that he would not have tiptoed into the presence of the president of the United States, says the Chicago Inter Ocean.

"Ah, Mr. Jones?" he inquired, with a Chesterfieldian bow.

"That's my name," granted the man at the desk, who made no pretensions to style and whose time was worth money.

"Here is my card," said the stranger, laying down a slightly soiled pasteboard.

"I am thinking of locating a publishing plant here," he remarked, as he helped himself to a chair, "and I want your advice on it."

This was the beginning of it, and for ten minutes the distinguished publisher sat with his feet on the register and expounded his plan for investing hundreds of thousands of dollars. He incidentally smoked one of the editor's 25-cent cigars. The stranger knew all the old-timers in newspaperdom apparently and his reminiscences were not so very bad.

"Well, I mustn't keep you from your work any longer," the visitor said at last, as he rose to go. "I—er—Mr. Jones, the fact is, I am without small change—nothing less than a $100 bill—have to get out to the South side—can you kindly loan me a dime?"

Jones mechanically fished a dime from his pocket, the stranger received it with a bow and a smile of thanks, and hurried out.

"Well, I—I must be behind the times," murmured Jones, as he looked at the card. "This is a new wrinkle in begging."

Mr. Jones later found that eight of his friends had contributed a dime the same day under precisely similar conditions.

COAL MINES IN INDIA.

No Danger of Fire Damp Exists in Any of the Principal Pits of That Country.

Coal is widely distributed throughout India, except in Bombay and Sind, the northwest provinces, and Oudh, Rajputana and Mysore, where the product is either scantily distributed or entirely absent. The seams in Bengal and Assam are frequently from 50 and 80 feet to as much as 180 feet in thickness. The pits are often of considerable depth. At present the deepest appears to be about 700 feet. In many cases the working of the seams leads to the escape of little or no fire damp, so that the miners are able to work with naked lights. At the present time Bengal produces more than three-fourths of the coal mined in India. Indian coal varies much in composition and quality. Most of it is quite suitable for ordinary purposes, while some of the samples, e. g., certain of these from Bengal and central India, are of excellent quality, equal to that of the best British coals.

The fixed-carbon of the Bengal coal ranges between 50 and 60 per cent., and the calorific value exceeds 6,000 calories—equal to about ten British thermal units—while the ash often does not much exceed and in some instances falls below ten per cent. and the sulphur frequently present in but very small proportion.

A great deal of the Bengal coal is serviceable steam coal. Many samples cake well and contain little sulphur, and the coke is therefore suitable for iron smelting.

LITTLE DOLLMAKERS.

German Children Taught the Work When Hardly More Than Babies.

Over in Germany there are 5,000 children in one district alone who are employed to dress dolls and help in the manufacture of various kinds of toys, says the Philadelphia Record. All the children who do this work are under 12 years of age. They are taught the art of dressing a doll at the tender age of four. At the same time, according to the compulsory education law, they are obliged to go to kindergarten school for at least one year, and that term is devoted to such things as making dolls and dressing them—doing everything, in fact, except molding the heads, which is done by men expert at the business.

After that the German children have three or four years of study, when they are allowed to go into the doll or toy factories to add to the daily income of the family to the extent of a few cents a day.

The children who go to the kindergarten have lots of fun making clothes for the dollies, and so fond do they get of the little wax-faced creatures that they are often sore at heart when the matron comes around to collect them all to be sent abroad.

Boer Marksmanship.

The fine marksmanship of the Boers is attested by the fact that of the 305 men wounded by them in the battle of the Tugela in December, 194, or more than half, were hit in the extremities, for which soldiers usually aim. All but eight were struck with mauser bullets, the wounds, according to the British surgeons, being "humane in the extreme." Twenty-six were hit about the head and 20 in the body.

Boer Electric Alarms.

Once armies were guarded at night by sentries pacing their rounds. Now, in South Africa, the Boers stretch electric wires around their camps, which, when touched, set bells a-ringing at headquarters. In brief, it is a giant system of burglar alarms to guard an army from surprise. There are few more striking appliances of science to warfare than this.

New Zealand Lambs.

Reports from New Zealand indicate an exceptionally prolific season. In Canterbury especially the crop of lambs is said to be extraordinary, not only twins, but triplets also being unusually numerous, while there are not a few reports of four lambs to the ewe, and one ewe is mentioned as having dropped five lambs. According to the Littelton Times, F. Todhunter of Westerfield, Canterbury, has in one paddock 20 ewes with triplets and one with five lambs, three of which are being reared by hand. Another breeder has about 150 lambs to the 100 ewes, nine being triplets and two having produced four each. In both these flocks Shropshire rams were used, the ewes being three-quarter bred Leicesters in the former case and half breeds in the latter. Reference is also made to a wonderful Southdown ewe kept by a butcher as a decoy in his slaughter yards. She was bought as a lamb 13 years ago and has had twins every year since she was a yearling, having produced 24 lambs.

A GREAT NEWSPAPER.

It has always been claimed for The Chicago Tribune that it would, in all probability, pass with the highest average in any competitive examination among the newspapers of the United States for excellence in all departments of journalism.

"Under date of May 2, 1899, the Omaha World-Herald, editorially answering a letter from 'Inquirer' asking the names of the five best newspapers in this country, points out that a newspaper may excel in one way and be inferior in another. The World-Herald gives lists under five general headings of leading American newspapers distinguished especially for excellence, mentioning in all some twenty.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE HEADINGS:

"(1) Most and best news, foreign and domestic, presented attractively.
"(2) Best possible presentation of news briefly.
"(3) Typographical appearance.
"(4) Classification of news by departments.
"(5) Editorials.

"The Chicago Tribune is the only newspaper in the United States which the World-Herald considers worthy of mention under four different heads."—From the October Plain Talk.

Practically all high-class intelligent newspaper readers, comprising the best and middle classes in Chicago and vicinity, read The Chicago Tribune. A great majority of them read no other morning newspaper.

The Chicago Tribune prints more advertising year in and year out than any newspaper in the West.

Chateau de Speer Wines
of Passaic, N. J. Vineyards.
These Wines Rival the World in Excellence.

Old, rich and mellow by age and years of care and frequent racking in fumigated cellars as is done with the Chateau Wines in France.

The Chateau of Chateau de Speer.

The Chateau contains a limited supply of Private Stock Port nineteen years old, besides Burgundy and Claret of nearly the same age. The Speer Port, however, nine years old, as well as the Burgundy, Claret and Sherry, are high class wines. The ★★★ Climax Brandy is 15 years old. All are preferred where known by the Medical profession as superior to any that can be had, for their excellent effect upon the system when used by invalids, the weakly and aged persons and in general family use. Northern New Jersey climate, and soil abounding in iron is just adapted for this grape for Port wine. It is the same kind of soil as in Portugal. Speer's winery and vineyards are the only Port grape vineyards in the United States; only vineyards that cultivate the real Port wine grape of Portugal; while other wines or mixtures called port are made without a single Oporto grape in them. Mr. Speer is the first and only one who imported the vines and acclimated the real Port wine grape vines of Portugal. He spent thousands of dollars as a hobby to see what he could do toward acclimating these Portugal vines here. It took eight years for them to become acclimated before Mr. Speer got a single grape; during those years all died except about eight hundred vines, when those began to grow vigorous and bear fruit; from these, layers were made for new vines. The vineyards now cover fifty six acres. It has proven a success. The grapes are allowed to hang on the vines until they begin to raisin, when they have parted with some of the water and are rich in sugar; and the wine made from Port wine grapes is the only real genuine Port wine made in America. It is by far THE wine for weakly persons, the aged and for evening entertainments.

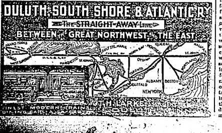
The Chicago Record, alone of all American newspapers outside New York city, now prints original and exclusive cable dispatches daily from the leading capitals of Europe.



ABOUT THE WILY BOER.

According to This Writer to Purloin Seems to Be Second Nature to Him.

I spent quite two years going about from farm to farm with wagon loads of miscellaneous goods, bartering them for ostrich feathers, ivory, hides, wool, live stock or whatever I could get, says George Lacy in the North American Review. I scarcely ever exposed samples of my goods at any farm without attempts being made to purloin articles that could be readily concealed. All took part in this, old and young, male and female, and constant watch had to be kept. I once detected a young girl, the daughter of a Boer who was then and long afterward a prominent member of the Free State volksraad, trying to secure a case of watches under her apron.

No shame is evinced on detection; the matter is treated as a good subject for laughter. In purchasing horses and cattle the greatest care had to be exercised. No London horsecoper could compete with the average Boer in the art of passing off brokenwinded horses or sand-cracked trek oxen as sound animals. Dishonesty extends further still than to matters of this kind.

A Boer whose name is well known to the world, many years ago, when acting as president of a land commission for apportioning out farms in the Leydenberg district, "did" my partner out of 36,000 acres of land by as barefaced a piece of knavery as could be conceived.

AN AMERICAN BOY.

Corporal Tobin, Who Was the First One to Reach the Top of Spion Kop.

The ubiquitous American has come to the front again. According to the Illustrated Mail of London Corporal Tobin, an American boy, was the first soldier to reach the summit of Spion Kop. Lieut. Preston Brown, of the Second infantry, now stationed at Fort Thomas, says that there was a young private of the name of Hugh Tobin in the Fifth artillery while he was a member of that organization, and he has reasons to believe that the young American who distinguished himself at Spion Kop is the identical person. Lieut. Brown remembers Tobin as a bright lad and a good soldier. The following extract from a letter written from the seat of war to the Mail was accompanied by a photograph of the hero. "The first position taken by our troops during the assault upon Spion Kop was won by the F squadron of South African light horse, and the first man to gain the summit of the hill was Corporal Tobin, an American. When he reached the crest some distance in front of his comrades he found the enemy had already fled, and, turning, shouted to the men climbing the ascent: 'Come on, there is no one here.' Almost immediately the advance swept the brow of the hill, which was then occupied by them until subsequently relieved by the men of the queen's."

EARTHQUAKES ON THE CANAL.

Upheavals of the Soil and Volcanic Eruptions May Cause Trouble.

The liability of the proposed interoceanic waterway to damage from volcanic eruption and earthquake is an important feature of the Nicaragua canal question. No less than 20 important craters have been counted in the mountains of Central America, 13 of which are known to have been in eruption within the last 200 years and eight since 1850. The last noteworthy display was from Ometepe in 1883. This crater is on the island of Ometepe and is situated about ten miles from the channel of the proposed canal through Lake Nicaragua. On the same island is Madera—six miles from the channel—which has been in eruption in this century.

The eruption of Cosiguina, 155 miles from Brito, the western port of the canal, which occurred in 1835, was a terrific explosion. Bowlders were thrown great distances and ashes were carried more than 1,000 miles. Momotombo, on the shore of Lake Managua, 90 miles from Brito, was in eruption in 1852. El Viejo and Chichigalpa, 115 and 110 miles respectively from Brito, have been active in this century. In Costa Rico also are several craters which have been in eruption in this century.

BOER LAAGERS.

Camp Defenses Formed from Wagons Placed Axle to Axle with Poles Outward.

In South Africa, whenever travelers "outspan" for the night, they invariably form the wagons into a defensive work called a laager. Provided there are enough wagons, this is either square or oblong, the latter shape being preferred. When each ox is allowed 30 square feet the smallest laager that will hold the oxen is that formed by 60 wagons. These are formed in single rank in a hollow square, touching, and with their poles outward. This renders the improvised protection easily removed when the order to "inspan" is given. Each wheel should be locked and fastened securely to its neighbor, to prevent an enemy from dragging out one of the wagons and thus gaining access to the square. Every human being and animal must be within the inclosure before dark, or they may run serious risk from being fired upon by their own friends. If time permits a shelter trench should be dug all around the laager, so that, with men lying in them, the others posted on the wagons, a double tier of infantry fire may be maintained.

NEARLY DOUBLED.

Demands of American manufacturers for the class of materials which cannot be produced at home are likely to make the importations of the fiscal year 1900 larger than those of any preceding year. In the seven months ending with January the importations of articles in a crude condition which enter into the various processes of domestic industry amounted to $160,063,032, or practically twice as much as in the corresponding months ending with January, 1897, when they were $89,860,326, and the percentage which manufacturers' materials formed of the total importation was 34.79 per cent., against 24.74 per cent. in the corresponding months ending with January, 1897.

While there has been a steady growth during the decade in the importations of raw materials for use of manufacturers, no year has shown so large an increase as the present one, the importations of this class of material in the seven months ending with January being nearly 50 per cent. in excess of those of the corresponding months of one year ago, and, as already indicated, practically double those of the corresponding months ending January, 1897.

Ten great articles form the bulk of this great class of our importations, crude materials for use in manufacturing. They are silk, fibers, wool, Egyptian cotton, crude rubber, wood, tobacco, hides and skins, chemicals and tin in pigs and bars for use in manufacturing tinplates.

These ten articles form about 80 per cent. of the grand total importations of manufacturers' materials.

FOR USE OF CADETS.

Cutters from Warships Will Be Loaned to Military Academies to Teach Soldiers Seamanship.

Cadets of military academies will be glad to know the senate committee on naval affairs has made a favorable report upon the bill authorizing the loan of cutters belonging to warships for the purpose of teaching them the art of seamanship. This measure was introduced by Senator Fairbanks, and it authorizes the president, upon the application of the governor of any state of the great lakes, to direct the secretary of the navy to furnish to one well-established military school in that state desiring to afford its cadets instructions in elementary seamanship one fully-equipped man of war cutter for every 20 cadets in actual attendance.

The secretary is also directed to furnish other equipment that may be spared and is deemed adequate for instruction in seamanship. Before these military schools can avail themselves of the privileges accorded by this measure they must have adequate facilities for conducting upon some body of water suitable for seamanship practice a cutter drill, and have in attendance at least 150 cadets in uniform receiving military instruction and quartered in a barracks under military regulations.

Senator Fairbanks has made up his mind to have a law of this kind placed upon the statute books and he will do all in his power to have his bill adopted.

SLEEPS IN LONG TRANCE.

Pauline Fitzgerald Puzzles Doctors of New Haven, Conn., by Protracted Sleep.

The medical profession at New Haven, Conn., are greatly puzzled over the case of Pauline Fitzgerald, a domestic aged 19 years, who has been in a trance at the general hospital there for six weeks. When the girl first came to the notice of the hospital physicians she appeared to be in a sound sleep and could take but little nourishment, and that in liquid form. During her protracted sleep in the institution her condition has remained the same and the doctors have been unable to diagnose it. There have been signs of failure on the part of the patient. As nothing dangerous was noticed during her confinement, the girl was transferred to the Springside home. She has opened her eyes several times since being taken to the latter institute and the hospital authorities reported that hypnotism had been tried upon her, with the result that the sleeping girl was revived sufficiently to be able to talk in a whisper.

ADVANCES PRICE OF DRUGS.

War in South Africa Caused Certain Drugs to Soar, Making Sickness a Decided Luxury.

The war in Africa has lifted the price of certain drugs so high that sickness has come to be a luxury. Cocaine, quinine, aqua ammonia, fluid extract of ergot and iodide of potassium, for all of which there is a large and constant demand, have all advanced in price. Cocaine has doubled in value, while fluid extract of ergot, which a few weeks ago could be had for $1.80, now brings four dollars a pound at retail. This is said to be due to a scarcity of dry ergot in South Africa because of bad crops. The price of carbolic acid has almost doubled, which is due to the fact that the chemical is used so extensively in the making of lyddite shells that England has placed a ban upon its exportation. Other drugs have gone up in proportion, not entirely because of the Boer war, but presumably because the various chemical trusts control the supply and can dictate prices.

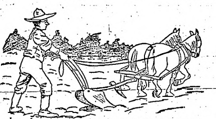
12 to 24 hours ahead of any Northwestern paper.



I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Say, John, what are you doing to look so healthy?"

WANTED.—A case of bad health that R·I·P·A·N·S will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word R·I·P·A·N·S on the package and accept no substitute. MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS.

VOL. XVII. NO. 19. THIEF RIVER FALLS, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, MAY 17, 1900. TERMS: $1.50 IN ADVANCE.

THE DRAINERS.

Interest Taken in the Drainage Convention.

Mayor Carl Kretzschmar, C. A. Robbecke, Matt Barzen, Ira C. Richardson, Lars Backe and Dan Shaw returned to this city last week from Grand Forks, where they had been in attendance at the tri-state drainage convention. The delegates from this city report that a very successful meeting was held and they succeeded in getting a resolution passed favoring the opening of the agricultural lands in the Indian reservation in Red Lake and Marshall counties.

This convention was arranged for at a preliminary convention held in Fargo on March 21, and was the largest convention ever held in the Northwest. Its object was to get an expression of opinion from residents of the country tributary to the Red, Red Lake and Minnesota rivers, with reference to the proper drainage of this territory, and to bring before congress in a sufficiently impressive form the desirability of constructing a system of reservoirs which shall aid in the prevention of floods and otherwise benefit the residents of the territory affected.

The Red river flows northward for 300 miles through flat prairie country. Its source is Lake Traverse, near the southern extremity of this state, and one of its principal feeders is the Red Lake river, flowing out of Red lake, Minnesota, south of Lake Traverse, and, separated from it by only a few miles of low, flat country, is Big Stone lake, the source of the Minnesota river, and one of the principal feeders of the Mississippi. These two lakes have practically the same level, and, during periods of high water, the flat between them is frequently overflowed, and the water will flow either southward or northward, according to the direction of the wind. There is thus at times a continuous waterway between Hudson's bay and the Gulf of Mexico by means of the streams and lakes. Before steamboating began on the Red river an attempt was made to bring a steamer up from St. Paul by this route, and the boat stuck in the mud half way between the two lakes, and was left high and dry on the prairie by the receding waters. The boat was afterward broken up, and its machinery was used in a new Red river steamer.

The length of the Red river and the direction of its flow renders it peculiarly liable to overflow, by reason of the fact that the spring break-up occurs at the head of the river from two weeks to a month before the ice at the mouth begins to move, and the water from the upper country is thus held back during it entire course by a solid dam of ice. The conditions now are also much worse than they were before the country was settled. The country was formerly full of natural reservoirs. Ponds, coulies, and shallow lakes abounded, and the rank marsh grass which cover the low lands impeded the flow of the water. The water from the melting snows in spring worked its way sluggishly toward the river, and much of it did not reach its destination until fall. The stage of water in the river was, therefore, comparatively uniform. Spring floods were rare, and there was always plenty water for navigation. With the settlement of the country came the construction of elaborate drainage systems. The efforts of individuals, town and county boards and state governments were devoted to getting rid of the water as rapidly and as thoroughly as possible. Along every highway is a ditch, and, in many cases, canals of great carrying capacity were constructed that the water might be more quickly carried off. Where wild fowl spent the summer on ponds and lakes, which were full of water the year round, farm buildings now stand amid cultivated fields. Vast areas of land have thus been reclaimed, but, on the other hand, the entire valley has become liable to periodical inundations, which inflict untold damage. The artificial drains constructed precipitate into the river in a few days water which, under the former conditions, would not have reached it for months, and, the spring freshet over, and the supply of water gone, the water sinks to such a low level that navigation is greatly impeded.

The last great flood, and the worst on record, occurred in the spring of 1897. In the preceding winter the snowfall had been very heavy, and the high winds had drifted it into the river bed until, in many places, the entire space between the high banks was filled with hard packed snow. Heavy rains came with the warm spring weather, the water started on its hurried course toward the river, and the usually placid stream became a raging monster. There are places, notably in Marshall county, Minnesota, where the stream was over ten miles wide. Thousands of acres of fine farm lands were ruined for that season, buildings were floated away, stock destroyed and untold damage inflicted. At Grand Forks the water rose 48 feet. At Fargo the flood was as bad. Fargo lost eleven blocks of newly paved street and Grand Forks three or four. Every basement in either city was flooded and business was at a standstill. Railway bridges were washed out and traffic of all kinds was interrupted. The national government was called on for aid and appropriated a large sum for the relief of the destitute.

It is proposed to remedy this condition by increasing the capacity of the existing reservoirs and thereby holding back some of the water in the spring. According to the plans proposed, which have the hearty sanction of skilled government engineers, dams are to be constructed at the exit of the water from Red lake to Red Lake river, at the north end of Lake Traverse and at the south end of Big Stone lake. These lakes are also to be connected by means of a canal, and other dams are to be built at various places. The idea is to hold back these waters until the lower country shall have been drained and then to let it down gradually as it may be needed for maintaining a navigable stage of water. Locks are also to be constructed that boats may get around the dams, and the old waterway between the north and the south will again be made available for purposes of modern travel. The cost of this work, as estimated by government engineers, is $860,000. The damage done by the flood of 1897 is conservatively placed at $3,000,000.

This system has been advocated for many years, but heretofore no organized movement has been made in its favor. Early in the present year, at a meeting held in Grand Forks, and attended by representative residents of the valley, it was decided to go ahead with the work. A preliminary convention was held in Fargo on March 21, and the details of the work of preparing for the grand culminating convention in Grand Forks on May 10 were placed in the hands of a committee, of which Ledru Guthrie, of Grand Forks, is chairman.

ABBOT'S REPORT

On the Red Lake and the Red Lake River.

The following is a telegram published in the Minneapolis Journal, dated Washington, May 10:

The secretary of war yesterday sent to the house a report by Maj. Abbot on the survey of the Red lake and Red Lake river, with a view to the construction of a dam with locks at the outlet of the lake for improving the navigation of the Red River of the North and Red Lake river. He says the operations thus far have consisted of the field work of the survey party and in hydrological measurements to ascertain the volume of the annual run-off—maximum and minimum discharged—from the Red Lake river, and its maximum carrying capacity without injury to adjacent low lands. They show an abundant supply of water, but, as last season was unusually wet, the quantities obtained are too high to form reliable basis. It will be necessary to continue the measurements for a longer period.

The Prosperous Farmer.

In driving through the country, when a tidy looking farm is passed, with fences in good order, buildings looking neat and trim, trees trimmed and clean, we know the resident is a person who takes pride and interest in his farming and that it pays him to do so. It takes but a few days each year to keep the brush cut away from the fences; to nail up a board here and there that may have become loosened; to keep the fences up straight with no weak places to tempt the cattle to jump into the owner's or neighbor's grass or grain; to put the implements under shelter when not in use; to pick up boards lying around the house or barn; to trim the trees and cut out old dead and dying branches; to mow the lawn at least once a year; to arrange all gates so they will freely swing on their hinges; to have a well kept garden; a good supply of small fruit; the pump in good working order; a good supply of dry wood under shelter; to clean out all open ditches, and to look after the stock frequently and carefully. All these things take but a little time at the proper time, and they increase the cash value of the farm. If we have in the past neglected these, let us resolve to do differently. Possibly we do not have so many leisure hours, but we will be adding to the looks and worth of our earthly possessions and to our standing as men and farmers.—Ex.

For Shooters and Fishermen.

The new 1900 edition of "Shooting and Fishing Along the Line of the Great Northern Railway" is without an equal amongst books of this class. It is handsomely bound in colored covers of new and attractive design. It is printed on fine plate paper, in two colors, is beautifully illustrated with photographs reproduced in half-tone, and is in all respects a magnificent specimen of the printer's art.

Complete information is given about all sorts and conditions of sport, from lion and grizzly bear to "cotton-tails," and including every fish that swims in the many lakes and rivers of the wide Northwestern states.

All the little details of lakes, boats, bait, distances, etc., have been carefully compiled by practical sportsmen and will be found a great convenience to anyone planning a trip. A new map of Minnesota in three colors is bound into each book.

The hunter or fisherman who is the fortunate possessor of this encyclopedia of sport in the Northwest needs no further guide to tell him where to go a-fishing or shooting. By mail for two cents from F. I. Whitney, general passenger agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Palaces on Wheels.

The most costly, beautiful, luxurious cars on earth. Steam heated; electric lighted. Wide vestibuled. No extra fares.

The Fosston Thirteen Towns says it will just be fun for Eddy this fall wiping the soil with all opposition.

The fusion Populists held their national convention in Sioux Falls, S. D., last week and nominated W. J. Bryan for president and C. A. Towne for vice president.

At Coney Island last week, Professor Jeffries and Professor Corbett indulged in a spirited discussion on scientific subjects. Prof. Corbett confessed himself completely, floored by the forcible arguments of his learned colleague.

The anti-fusion Populists are the first to put a presidential ticket in the field. Last week at Cincinnati they nominated Wharton Barker for president and Ignatius Donnelly for vice president. Mr. Barker is a resident of Philadelphia, where he is well known as a financier and the founder of a number of great financial institutions representing a capital of $9,000,000. As a side issue, he issues the Philadelphia American, a weekly paper advocating the doctrines of the Populist party.

The persistent and ominous rumors which have lately disquieted the world regarding the possibility of a rupture between the empire of the czar and that of the mikado lend very special interest to the article in the May number of the North-American Review on "Japan and Russia in the Far East." Mr. James Murdoch, the author of the article, has resided for many years in Japan, was professor of history for a number of years in the University of Tokyo, and enjoyed unrivalled facilities for securing a most trustworthy information as to the actual situation of affairs in Japan and the purposes, immediate and remote, which animate the policy of her government. The reader of Mr. Murdoch's article will find that there is little left to be learned regarding the progress made by the Japanese empire in its endeavor to establish itself as a first-class power of the modern sort, and its ability to maintain its interests against the encroachments of the Muscovite colossus. A factor which makes for peace is the pacific spirit of the Mikado's ministers: "One thing is certain, and that is that the present Japanese cabinet, while by no means eager for war, will not tamely submit to any infraction of the terms of the Nissi-Rosen protocol. The document is Japan's charter for the peaceful, economic and industrial conquest of Korea, which she evidently contemplates. The energy with which she has been pushing this purpose and the development of her commercial interests in the little empire have of late been very remarkable, and stand forth in marked contrast to the apathy with which she has regarded most of the commercial advantages in China, acquired by the treaty of Shimonoseki. So long as she remains free to develop her legitimate interests in Korea, so long as the Nissi-Rosen protocol is observed, Japan will be satisfied. The average Japanese is, indeed, very prone to be swayed by emotion, even by that spurious emotion called sentimentality. But hitherto the foreign policy of the nation has been conducted by the cold clear light of reason, and the statesmen at the head of affairs will not be likely to engage in armed strife without the amplest justification for so doing."

OUR EXCHANGES.

One of the most significant developments of the primary elections held in the Seventh congressional district on last Saturday and Monday is the fact that hundreds of men who have been for the past ten years affiliated with the People's party attended the Republican caucuses and voted for Eddy delegates. In this end of Polk county men who have been known as leading Populists for years have abandoned the party which long ago abandoned its original objects to become an adjunct of the Bryan brand of Democracy. Quite a few of these men were delegates in the Republican convention at Crookston on Wednesday.—J. J. Ryder, in Valley View.

At a recent state election Louisiana went solidly Democratic, but less than 80,000 voters were allowed to take part in the decision. The state has a population of 1,250,000 or more, so about one person in fifteen is a voter. The Democrats have enacted laws that so restrict the franchise that thousands of men can have no part in the affairs of the government. "The consent of the governed" is not so dear to Democratic politicians when the rights of American citizens are involved as when the conditions of barbarians, who have no conception of self-government, is under consideration. Louisiana is a Democratic state, and, that it may remain so, the party in power has disfranchised a large percentage of the people But that is Democratic doctrine and Democratic politics.—Little Falls Transcript.

Two years ago, in St. Cloud, C. A. Towne denounced Grover Cleveland as the Benedict Arnold of his party. Unfortunately for Mr. Towne there are millions of Democrats in the United States who have a higher regard for Cleveland's Democracy than they have for that of the nominee of the Populist party. With Bryan and Towne, the Democrats could not carry a single eastern state or northern state, with the posible exception of Montana, while they will not gain a single western or southern state. With Towne discarded, they will loose South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas. It is a difficult problem that confronts the party—but the leaders have the satisfaction of knowing that they can hardly make a mistake so far as this campaign is involved. They are doomed to defeat in spite of themselves.—St. Cloud Journal-Press.

DRAINAGE

Convention to Be Held at Crookston June 19th.

During a recess of the tri-state drainage convention held at Grand Forks, N. D., on May 10th, the delegates from the state of Minnesota held a meeting at Hotel Dakotah.

The chairman stated that the object of the meeting was to secure united efforts to procure better drainage for the northwestern counties of Minnesota. To further the object of the meeting, it was decided to hold a convention at Crookston, Minnesota, on June 19th, 1900, to be composed of all delegates named by the executive committee.

HORSE FOR A WOMAN.

Man Who Knows Gives Some Advice Which Is Worthy of David Harum.

The following advice given by a horseman to a woman about to purchase a pony for her own use is worthy of David Harum, says the New York Commercial Advertiser: "Never allow a dealer to talk you into buying a horse you do not like. If you do not like him say so at once, and if you can help it do not assign any reason for saying so. Always talk as little as you can about horses when you are purchasing them. Talk of the weather—anything else you like—but if you don't know much about horses be as silent as you can. The dealer may probably imagine you know more than you really do."

The woman in question thought she would like a coal black horse, or perhaps one of "dappled gray" like the pony in the nursery song. The horseman grew eloquent: "A good horse cannot be of a bad color," he said. "And a horse of a bad color is never a good horse. A weakly, watery color indicates want of stamina. Black is about the most undesirable of coats for a horse. Black horses are nearly always soft and delicate and slow. The dancing, prancing, dashing black horse of poems and pictures is a steed of the imagination, or the great exception that proves the rule. Gray is a good color, although few gray horses have made names for themselves on the turf. Roan is good, too, in spite of the fact that thoroughbreds are seldom, if ever, of that color. For a pony, dun color, mottled with black points, is handsome and usually denotes a hardy, sound constitution. In horses of any size dun is a rare color. Chestnut horses are the most excitable and are often delicate. Sorrel—which is chestnut and brown—is good, but seldom seen nowadays. Bay is the commonest of all colors, and when combined with black points is about as good as any color. For hardiness of constitution and a combination of good qualities, a good dark brown is the best color of all; if there is a rich, tan-colored muzzle so much the better."

WHEN NO WOMAN IS LOVELY.

The Unsightly Way in Which She Grabs Her Skirt and Holds It Up.

The flattering theory that women really care how they appear to men who are looking at them sometimes gets a hard knock, says the New York Press. One of these times is when a woman who is walking along the street makes a motion with her hand which, in Kentucky or Texas, would, if made by a man, be interpreted as a reach for a revolver in the hip pocket. But as women apparently have no hip pockets the woman's motion is for the purpose of holding up her skirts so that it will not disturb the microbes that are crawling in the dirt on the sidewalk.

As she walks along with this hip pocket hand firmly gripped on her skirt she reminds the average man of embarrassing moments in the masculine past, say when a suspender button tendered its resignation and he had to hold up his trousers as he went along.

It is a constant wonder that some Worth who looks after the looks of women does not invent a skirt suspender or something by which in the hour of need the skirt might be ostentationsly hoisted above the danger level. If the woman were in the country she might wear her rainy daisy skirt when she walked in dry weather, but are vegetable things, like hayseed, any more harmful than the bacteria of the dirty pavements?

A TRADITION EXPLODED.

Here Is an Extraordinary Young Woman Who Is Actually Fond of Dissecting Mice.

The popular belief that all women are afraid of mice has been exploded, says the Philadelphia Record. There is a young woman visiting a prominent Conshohocken family who actually boasts of her fondness for not only mice, but rats. The hostess remarked the other day that her life was made miserable by the hordes of rats and mice that infested her cellar.

"Oh, let me go down and see them," exclaimed this remarkable young woman. "I'd like to catch one and dissect it, so you can see what a cute little heart it has." The hostess was horror-stricken and begged to know what her guest knew of dissection.

"I'll tell you," was the reply. "When at boarding school we had such a dear old professor. He used to give us many interesting and entertaining lessons. For instance, he would get a rat, run his sharp knife around its neck, and presto! the hide was removed, tail and all. Then he would cut up the remains and point out the various organs. With a little instruction any of us girls could perform the operation, and we soon enjoyed it. I tell you, there was such a demand for subjects that the school was soon rid of rats and mice."

Queer Chinese Belief.

Many so-called educated Chinese, says the North China Herald, firmly believe that a kingdom exists where all the inhabitants are pigmies; one where all are giants; another where all are women, and another where every person has a hole through the center of his body, so that by means of a pole thrust through this hole they may be carried from one place to another.

Effect of Lyddite Shells.

An English artilleryman says the effect of lyddite shells is greatly exaggerated. They are intended for naval use, and arranged to explode after penetrating armour. They will not explode by impact unless they strike a rock.

4 US AFTERBATH

It makes the skin white and soft, removes pimples and dandruff and all eruptions from the person.

For the Head and Hair and Body.

The body and limbs of every child should be rubbed with 4 Us after every bath. Just enough dropped in the palm of the hand to rub over every part of the surface of a child, once a day will keep the skin soft and white, the pores free from getting clogged with impurity passing out from the system. A teaspoonfull is sufficient to moisten the cuticle (skin covering) of a grown person. The effect is wonderful: pimples on the body and face are entirely removed by a few applications of the 4 Us. Druggists sell it.

A GREAT NEWSPAPER.

It has always been claimed for The Chicago Tribune that it would, in all probability, pass with the highest average in any competitive examination among the newspapers of the United States for excellence in all departments of journalism.

"Under date of May 2, 1899, the Omaha World-Herald, editorially answering a letter from 'Inquirer' asking the names of the five best newspapers in this country, points out that a newspaper may excel in one way and be inferior in another. The World-Herald gives lists under five general headings of leading American newspapers distinguished especially for excellence, mentioning in all some twenty.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE HEADINGS:
"(1) Most and best news, foreign and domestic, presented attractively.
"(2) Best possible presentation of news briefly.
"(3) Typographical appearance.
"(4) Classification of news by departments.
"(5) Editorials.
"The Chicago Tribune is the only newspaper in the United States which the World-Herald considers worthy of mention under four different heads."—From the October Plain Talk.

Practically all high-class intelligent newspaper readers, comprising the best and middle classes in Chicago and vicinity, read The Chicago Tribune. A great majority of them read no other morning newspaper.

The Chicago Tribune prints more advertising year in and year out than any newspaper in the West.

Hanson's mill during the past winter.

A quartet of young men representing some of Fargo's first families went in swimming and crossed to the Moorhead side of the Red river, where they were gathered in by Chief Fuller. The chief started to march them through the woods to the lockup, sans coats, sans trousers, sans everything, but they begged off and were allowed to go, on promise that they would not offend public decency again.

There is considerable trouble brewing for the Cass Lake authorities, now that the grand jury is in session. Claims are made that the place is suffering from excessive administration by the new officers, and that they are too liberal with themselves and their appointees in the matter of salaries. A public meeting was held to protest against their course, but this did no good, and the grand jury will pass on the conditions.

Will Lennon, of Thief River Falls, came in last night from the Red lake country, where he has been on a cruise during the past month. He confirms the report of widespread damage to the timber by the forest fires and says the prospects of moving the logs from the banks to the Red Lake and the Clearwater river are poor indeed. They will remain where they are, at least until there are copious rains.—Crookston Times. May 12.

Chas. Tedford is going to have a formal opening of his buffet, and has issued invitations, which read as follows: "The company of yourself and friends is most respectfully invited to the opening of Tedford's buffet, Cass Lake, Minn., on Thursday, May 17th, 1900. Reception for ladies, when accompanied by gentlemen, from 9 to 11 a. m." The enterprising proprietor of the buffet is certainly entitled to a rousing benefit by the citizens of Cass Lake.—Cass Lake Voice.

FREE LAND.

The Senate Passes the Free Homes Measure.

SETTLED AT LAST.

Senator Nelson Is the Champion of the Bill.

Washington, May 14.—Immediately after the disposition of the naval appropriation bill in the senate this afternoon Senator Nelson arose and asked for consideration of the free homes bill. No objection was offered, and, after being read, the bill was put on its passage. Although there was a comparatively full senate, not a word was said, and the bill passed without a word of debate. Senator Nelson was the recipient of the congratulations of many members of the house of representatives and senate after the passage of the bill. Dennis Flynn, the delegate from Oklahoma, was among those who congratulated Senator Nelson on the passage of the bill, after which the Oklahoma member was so jubilant that he ran, hat in hand, from the senate to the house side of the capitol to inform the friends of the bill of its passage. Allison, Aldrich and others of the so-called senate leaders have been violently opposed to the free homes bill, principally on account of the large expenditure involved. They estimated the cost of the measure to the government at from $25,000,000 to $35,000,000. The friends of the bill say it will only cost from fifteen to twenty million. None of the objectors were in the senate today when it came up for passage. They claim to feel that Mr. Nelson took an unfair advantage of them: Whether this is true or that they decided it to be bad politics to oppose the bill at this time may not be known.—Washington correspondence in the Minneapolis Times.

TOO DRY.

Driving Practically at a Standstill.

Numbers of woodsmen are arriving in the city and report that all driving into the Red lake is abandoned for the present and about 200 men laid off from Short's, Hearn's, Welch's and other camps. A big jam of logs is in the outlet and little water to move it. Three tows have been turned in at present, and it is said that two more will be brought over before it is attempted to drive the river. Rain is earnestly desired by all, and, until it comes, little successful driving can be done anywhere. Red Lake Falls reports the Clearwater a "dead one," so far as driving is concerned.

EDDY IS IT.

Was Re-Nominated at Moorhead Tuesday

BY ACCLAMATION.

Next Seventh District Congressman Named.

Special to the News.

Moorhead, Minn., May 15.—Congressman Frank M. Eddy was nominated to succeed himself on the second ballot this afternoon amid scenes of the greatest enthusiasm. There was practically no opposition, but on the first ballot the delegates from Big Stone and Wilkin voted for Valentine, making the vote: Eddy, 171; Valentine, 17. The Valentine men then moved to make the election of Eddy unanimous, which was done amid wild cheering. Great interest was taken in the fight for delegates to the national convention, there being four candidates in the field, Talman, of Kandiyohi; Melgaard, of Argyle; Stephens, of Crookston, and Jones, of Frazee. Roseau, Kittson, Marshall, Norman and Red Lake cut loose from Polk county and apparently have the advantage in the northern part of the district. They are for Melgaard as against Stephens. In the southern portion of the district Jones appears to be slightly in the lead.

Later—The vote on delegates to the national convention was as follows: Jones, 114; Melgaard, 109; Stephens, 47; Talman, 106.

La Bree-Cary.

Jesse W. La Bree and Miss Alice L. Cary were united in matrimony at the residence of F. L. Cary in this city, at 2 p. m. today. Rev. Myers officiated at the ceremony. The wedding was a quiet one, attended only by the relatives of the bride and groom. Mr. and Mrs. La Bree will be at home at their residence on Riverside avenue, recently purchased by the groom from John Moylan. The News offers sincere congratulations.

Webster-Polansky.

Eugene Webster and Miss Annie Polansky were united in marriage at the Red Lake hotel, in this city, Tuesday, the Rev. A. A. Myers officiating. Both the contracting parties are well and favorably known in this city.

Notice.

The road leading north over the chief section will be closed June 1st.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

Indian Killed at the Outlet of the Lake.

March-e-ga-bo, an Indian log driver, was killed at the outlet of the Red lake Monday, and several other rivermen injured by the sudden breaking of a portion of the big log jam at that point.

The report was brought down by an Indian who came to summon the relatives of the deceased to the funeral, which will take place at Oak Grove. It is impossible to learn particulars at this time other than that a portion of the jam gave way suddenly and passed over several men who were working upon it.

Reports from the agents on the different reserves have been received by the commissioner of Indian affairs at Winnipeg, and go to show that the red men are in a prosperous condition, and, like their white brethren, are busily engaged in tilling the soil. Much more land has been put under seed this year than ever before.

DOG IN THE SCHOOLROOM.

A Courageous Teacher Who Found That Her Pupils Were Better for His Presence.

Since Dr. Hale promulgated his plan about pets in the public schools, I have heard from several teachers who have made experiments of this sort with success, says the Boston Transcript. One excellent teacher had an experience with a dog which was instructive. One of her pupils, a slum boy with a bad reputation, had a very "ornery" bull terrier which was sure to go everywhere the boy did, and followed him to school one day.

The boy arrived a little late with the dog; the other children knew that the pair were coming, and they were on the alert for a scene. In came the boy with the big bull terrier at his heels. The pupils held their hands to their mouths. The teacher showed no sign of surprise, but said: "Ah, I see we have a new scholar. What's his name, Michael?" Michael said his name was Grip, or something like that—I am not quite sure what it was. "Ah, Grip, here, Grip!" said the teacher, hospitably and sympathetically, and the dog came up to her and let her pat his head. Then she told him, gently but firmly, to lie down by her desk, and he did. There he remained, sleeping peacefully or quietly watching the proceedings of the school, until the intermission.

The children were all over their snickering and wondering in a few minutes and seemed pleased and cheerful because the dog was in the room. He was adopted as a regular attendant and from that time on spent most of his time by the teacher's desk, though often he accompanied his master into the recitation-room, where his behavior was always excellent.

The teacher avers that her pupils are less disorderly and troublesome when the dog is present than when he is absent.

FATHER OF KINDERGARTEN.

Froebel Looked to Woman as His Natural Ally to Make It a Success.

After spending years wrestling with the problems of education, Friedrich Froebel, founder of the kindergarten, arrived at the conclusion that the school could never be a success until the home performed its function as an educational institution, also, writes Patterson DuBois, in the March Ladies' Home Journal. Thenceforth his dominant interest was focused on the cradle rather than on the schoolhouse. He became the great apostle of the home. He looked to woman as his natural ally, yet he was not oblivious to the father's part in homemaking. His proposition for a general educational union was addressed to fathers. He firmly believed, however, that woman was to be the world's great educational force. She was to regenerate the race. Yet he realized that this meant that she must suffer even as he suffered. "Whoever will go with me," he said, "must undertake a great deal, must suffer ridicule and blame, and let themselves be burned or torn in pieces." He wanted a mother to be something more than a "beloved mother." He says: "In order to render the command of Christ effective, education in the family must first be reformed, otherwise there will be no solid foundation for subsequent education to stand on."

SWIFT FLIRTATION BY 'PHONE

"Hello!" said a man's voice over the telephone. "Hello," answered a woman's soprano, "are you Swift?"

"Er—well, I don't know," he answered; "my aunt sometimes says I am."

"Oh, pshaw, you know what I mean. Are you Mr. Swift?"

"Honestly, I am not."

"Well, why don't you ring off, then?"

"You're the one that's dipping in, though of course I hate to insinuate it," he answered.

"Why, the idea of such a thing! I thought you wanted to speak to me."

"I do."

"Then, you must be Swift."

Chuckles at the other end of the 'phone.

"Well, all right; if you will take that view of it!"

"What are we going to do about?" rejoined a half-tearful voice. "I want to speak to Swift."

"But you said yourself that I'm swift, and as for talking—"

When the heartless girl in Central cut them both off, says the Chicago Inter Ocean, as she reflected on that peculiarity in human nature, which makes even a long-distance flirtation fascinating to so many people.

An Exhibit of Hussars.

An interesting and odd exhibit in the Paris exposition will be a hall devoted to the hussars of the world. Paintings showing the great deeds of men of this arm of the service will form a large part of the exhibit. Germany and Austria-Hungary will be represented particularly well, for the simple reason that the hussars of these two armies always have been men who did really wonderful acts of bravery and daring. Spain will have an interesting group, showing her famous Princesa hussars, and Italy will show her Neapoli bourbons.

Breaking a Record.

Dr. Conan Doyle is a very quick writer. It is recorded of him that on one occasion, when returning home with a friend in the evening after a splendid day of cricket, he remarked that a certain incident would make a good story. After dinner the friend said: "You'd better do that story." To which recommendation Dr. Doyle replied: "I've done it."

BANDAGES OF PULP.

Their Ready Application Is Only One of the Many Advantages They Possess.

A United States naval surgeon advocates the substitution of wood pulp sheets for flaxseed meal, etc., in making poultices, says the Philadelphia Record. He cuts a sheet of the pulp to a size approximate to the surface to be covered, soaks the sheet in hot water until it has become thoroughly softened, then wrings it out, very lightly, and applies. The wood pulp sheet will absorb and hold from four to five times its weight of water, and, since heat and moisture are the desiderata in poultices, this furnishes them in simple, cleanly form. No cloths are needed, no cooking, no stirring and spreading on cloth, just a soaking in hot water. And the nicest part is the total absence of the mess inevitable to making flaxseed meal poultices, although there is, too, a great economy of time and trouble. It is sometimes advisable to put a piece of oiled muslin over the sheet to help to retain the heat and moisture.

When the "poultice" begins to get cold take it off, wring out the water, and soak it again in hot water, and so on indefinitely. The surgeon has used the same sheet of pulp wood for two days' poulticing, in the hands of an ignorant man at that, his instructions to him being "to soak the plaster in hot water whenever it got cold, and put it on again."

By the way, every physician who has had the annoyance and trouble of being compelled to leave an all-important matter of poulticing to an ignorant person will appreciate a way that will allow no loophole for mistakes and failures.

MACARTHUR WASN'T "MR."

How a Handsome Young Woman Took Some Dinner Guests by Surprise.

Alexander MacArthur, author of a successful study of life in the Latin quarter of Paris, which brought to the writer both popularity and profit, is also the pupil and biographer of Rubinstein and is a close friend of Paderewski, says the Philadelphia Evening Post. The author lived for two years in St. Petersburg, corresponding for the London press and taking part in some thrilling adventures, but the most singular of the writer's experiences happened in Chicago after the novel had been brought out by a publisher of that city. The book had been so successful that the publisher decided to give the author a dinner, to which a dozen of the leading men of letters of the lake city were invited. The guests had assembled when the author was announced.

Through the blue haze of smoke there appeared a handsome young woman attired in evening dress.

"We are expecting Mr. MacArthur," said the host; "Mr. Alexander MacArthur, the novelist."

"So I understand," returned the unexpected guest. "I am Alexander MacArthur."

"You?" gasped the publisher.

"Yes. Didn't you know? I am Lillian MacArthur, at your service. I have been writing over the name of Alexander ever since I left my home in Dublin."

It was only the work of a minute to rearrange affairs and the dinner was a great success.

VIRGINIA'S BIG APPLE TREES.

Some Giants That Grow at the Foot of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

Near Stuart, Va., at the foot of a spur of the Blue Ridge mountains, there is an apple tree which measures nine feet and five inches around, says the Philadelphia Record. Five feet from the ground are four branches, the largest being six feet around, the next five feet six inches, the next five feet, the smallest four feet five inches. The tree is 52 feet high and 71 feet broad. Although it is about 70 years old it bore this year a very large crop. It has been known to produce 110 bushels in a season, and, as might be supposed, the soil in which it grows is exceedingly rich.

On a neighboring farm there is an apple tree which is eight feet five inches around. In 1860 85 bushels of nice picked apples were gathered from it and sold at the apple house for $60. The tree is 75 years old and is still bearing.

Two miles from Stuart, on the farm of J. W. Robertson, stands the famous Robertson apple tree, the parent of all the apple trees of that name in the United States. It bears a large red apple, which keeps well, and it has produced at one bearing 85 bushels. Is about 80 years old and is still in bearing.

A few years ago there was on a farm near Stuart an apple tree which produced at one bearing 130 bushels. It shaded at meridian 90 feet of ground in diameter. Apple trees grow very large in Patrick county, and the flavor of the fruit is unsurpassed.

An Important Pendulum.

Through the efforts of Prof. John Milne and Prof. George Davidson, an "earthquake pendulum," costing $250, has recently been sent to Hawaii, where it will be employed to study the tremors to which our newly-annexed island group is subject. This undertaking forms part of a great seismic survey of the world, through which it is hoped to obtain a fairly complete knowledge of the location of the earthquake centers of the globe, and of the direction and intensity of the earthquake waves which radiate from them. The station at Hawaii will be among the most important.

I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right—and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Say, John, what are you doing to look so healthy?"

WANTED.—A case of bad health that R·I·P·A·N·S will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word R·I·P·A·N·S on the package and accept no substitute. A TIE GAME.

Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls Played Ball.

WAS A HOT ONE.

The Game Ends in a Score of 6 to 6.

After nine red hot innings the base ball game between Red Lake Falls and this city Sunday at the home grounds resulted in a tie. The ball tossers from the lower Falls had expected to find something easy in the local aggregation, but were met with a bran new puzzler in the person of Browning, our recently acquired pitcher, who kept them busy locating his twisters, and held the score down to an even thing. The batting order was as follows:

R. L. F.		T. R. F.
Miller	c. f.	D. Benzie	c.
Murphy	c.	Browning	p.
Pouliot	1 b.	Fuller	2 b.
Lambert	l. f.	Crowe	r. f.
Wulff	p.	A. Benzie	1. b.
Drinkwine	3 b.	A. Paranto	3 b.
Smith	r. f.	Jurenson	l. f.
Iverson	2 b.	D. Paranto	c. f.
Conen	s. s.	J. Paranto	s. s.

The game was a warm one and, at the end of the seventh, in which inning the visitors piled up three runs, it looked gloomy for the home nine, with the score 5 to 2, but one run in the eighth and the Crowe's timely hit in the ninth, which brought in Benzie and Fuller, tied the score, the Red Lakers having added another to their credit in the ninth.

Billy Warner, of St. Hilaire, acted as umpire, and held that trying position to the satisfaction of everyone. Murphy, catcher for the lower Falls, had a finger painfully hurt in the seventh, but, with commendable pluck, stuck to his position, and won the applause of the fans. The greatest satisfaction is expressed at the playing of both nines, and the game at Red Lake Falls next week will, no doubt, be well attended. The score was as follows:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
R. L. F.	0	1	0	1	0	0	3	0	1	—6
T. R. F.	1	0	0	0	2	0	0	1	2	—6

Precaution Neccessary.

State Superintendent Lewis has been appealed to by the country school districts of the state to prevent further victimizing at the hand of representatives of school publishing houses. The appeal results from the general success of the alleged crooked workers. The plan adopted by the latter has been to visit the officers of the district and sell a chart worth $8 for $35. Of this sum the local officers, of which there are usually two, receive $10 of the money collected. Occasionally local school officials refuse to become parties to the plan to rob the district, and these have laid complaints before Mr. Lewis. The school book men visit sometimes as many as half a dozen districts in a week and successfully work their scheme, thereby realizing handsome profits. The chart is perhaps 24x38 and contains about twenty pages. On the market it can be bought for $8 and at that figure sales are very profitable, as it could be printed for $2.

WENT OUT MINING.

Twin City Party Left for Rainy Lake Last Week.

According to reports from the Rainy lake district, there is great activity there this spring, says the Crookston Tribune. Operators are confident that the greatest gold mining district of the world lies just over the American line in Canada. The deepest mine among the group of producing mines is now 455 feet deep, and is now working in a vein 72 feet wide. A few weeks ago a number of men went out to this region from Bemidji and other points around us and last week a party of 50 or 60 men from Minneapolis and St. Paul started for Winnipeg, whence they will go by the Canadian Pacific line to Rat Portage, and will then visit the gold mining district of the Rainy lake mining regions. At the same time a party of Canadian and English mining men will leave Montreal and will join the American party in the mining field.

A SAD ACCIDENT.

A Young Daughter of Geo. E. Smith Was Fatally Burned

News has just been received of the death of Myrtle, the six years old daughter of Geo. E. Smith, on the 5th inst. at her father's claim on Black Duck river from burns received one day previously. Mr. Smith and his sons were clearing the land and burning the brush, when the little girl ventured too close to one of the fires and her clothing became ignited. Fanned by the high wind which prevailed at the time, the flames got such a headway at once that, despite the utmost efforts of Mr. Smith, the child was fatally burned in a few moments. Everything possible was done to relieve the little sufferer, but, in the absence of medical assistance, all was in vain, and death resulted the next day.

LOGS ARE COMING.

Driving on the Main River Commenced Last Saturday.

The combined drive of the St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls Lumber companies left the Red lake last Saturday, and about six million feet of timber is now on its way to the mills. A slightly higher stage of water prevails, and it is expected that no serious difficulties will be met with in driving the river. Unless some unforeseen obstacle is met with, the merry song of the band saw will be heard in this city about June 1st.

St. Hilaire Notes.

From the Spectator.

W. J. Kelly now runs the "Hog" at the mill.

I. Dahleen, the carpenter, left Monday for Thief River Falls, where he has a small contract that will occupy about two weeks of his time.

A jolly party of young folks from Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls, as well as a number from here, helped Norman Hannay celebrate his 20th birthday at the home of his parents on Water street Monday evening. Games of all kinds were indulged in and a bountiful supper served.

JUNE 19TH.

The Date for the Big Drainage Convention.

BETTER DRAINAGE

For the Northwestern Counties of Minnesota.

The big drainage convention which will be held in Crookston on the 19th of June is receiving favorable consideration from the residents of all the northwestern counties of Minnesota, and the farming community generally, says the Crookston Tribune. The object of the convention is "better drainage for the northwestern counties of Minnesota," a subject that appeals strongly to all those interested in the progress of the Northwest. Delegates will be present from Red Lake Falls, Thief River Falls, Big Wood, Eckvold, Matson, Humbolt, Fisher, Ada, Moorhead, Breckenridge, Ortonville, White Rock, Tenny, Roseau, Bemidji and numerous other towns, counties and townships. The executive committee has been appointed from the above named places, whose duty it shall be to appoint delegates from their respective territories, all of whom will be present at the convention here.

The coming drainage convention is not a continuation of the "tri-state drainage and canal convention." The object is to discuss how to raise funds for, and how to construct drainage canals to carry the surplus water away from the farms in the Red River valley. The interest in drainage needs no stimulus at the present time. All are conscious of the importance and the necessity of building a wise drainage system that shall effectually drain the large areas subject to overflow. How to raise funds, and how to plan and execute the work, are subjects of prime importance now.

A drainage convention was held at Crookston several years ago. The meeting was a success and much good resulted. Since that time large sums of money have been expended in drainage and a great many canals, large and small, have been constructed. The effect of this work is well known to all. The benefits so far received doubtless amount to millions, and benefits are received every year whenever there is an excess of water on the land. With the experience of the years since the convention the time is now ripe for another one when the future plans can be discussed. More work must necessarily be prosecuted along the same lines. The best methods must be learned and a uniformity in plans and actions must be followed. Farming on poorly drained land is very uncertain in its results, and, as a business undertaking, is hazardous. The growing season in the Red River valley is short and, if it can be prolonged a few days by being drained in the spring, the benefits may become very great. The main channels must be built probably by the state. Smaller lateral ditches can be constructed by private individuals or by townships or similar organizations.

It is hoped that large numbers be present. The committee in charge will make every effort to put such material on the platform that all who attend shall be repaid for the time and money spent in attending the convention. It is hoped that tile drainage will be discussed, and an effort will be made to secure some speaker who is an authority on this subject.

A GREAT NEWSPAPER.

It has always been claimed for The Chicago Tribune that it would, in all probability, pass with the highest average in any competitive examination among the newspapers of the United States for excellence in all departments of journalism.

"Under date of May 2, 1900, the Omaha World-Herald, editorially answering a letter from 'Inquirer' asking the names of the five best newspapers in this country, points out that a newspaper may excel in one way and be inferior in another. The World-Herald gives lists under five general headings of leading American newspapers distinguished especially for excellence, mentioning in all some twenty.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE HEADINGS:

"(1) Most and best news, foreign and domestic, presented attractively.
"(2) Best possible presentation of news briefly.
"(3) Typographical appearance.
"(4) Classification of news by departments.
"(5) Editorials.

"The Chicago Tribune is the only newspaper in the United States which the World-Herald considers worthy of mention under four different heads."—From the October Plain Talk.

Practically all high-class intelligent newspaper readers, comprising the best and middle classes in Chicago and vicinity, read The Chicago Tribune. A great majority of them read no other morning newspaper.

The Chicago Tribune prints more advertising year in and year out than any newspaper in the West.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

$1.50 PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

THURSDAY, MAY 24, 1900.

The free homes bill passed the senate last week, as expected, under the management of Senator Knute Nelson.

Frank M. Eddy's influence in congress is growing greater each year, and this is the reason that his majority this fall will be greater than ever before.

The News is in receipt of the first bulletin of the census of Cuba taken under direction of the war department. It is an interesting pamphlet, and full of facts and figures of great significance with regard to the island. The total population is shown to be 1,572,797, an average of 35.7 persons per square mile, or about the same as the state of Iowa.

In County Auditor Gleason Polk county has one of the most accommodating officials in the state of Minnesota. Under the most annoying circumstances at the tax sale last week, Mr. Gleason proved himself a courteous and affable gentleman, a fact which was duly appreciated by all residents of Thief River Falls who attended the sale.

People living in this section of the country should remember that resolutions were passed at the convention which re-nominated Congressman Frank M. Eddy recommending the opening to settlement of that part of the Red Lake Indian reservation lying within the boundaries of Red Lake and Marshall counties, and favoring national aid for drainage of the Red River valley. While Thief River Falls is more or less directly interested in both of the above recommendations, the benefit to the northern section of the state will be great.

PROFIT IN A TRADE DOLLAR.

How an Indignant Michigan Man Lost His Indignation and Gained 65 Cents.

A man who came recently to Chicago from Michigan received a trade dollar in Chicago when he paid his fare to the collector of a 'bus line at the Park row station. It was dark when the transaction took place, and the Michigan man did not discover the character of the dollar till the next day, when he wanted to pay his hotel bill. He was indignant.

"That fellow thought I was a farmer," he said. "I will write to the manager of the 'bus line and tell him to send that collector back to me with an up-to-date dollar. I am no back number, and neither was the bill I gave him."

The more the Michigan man thought about the matter the more his indignation grew. He had tried to pass the dollar at a cigar stand earlier in the day for 90 cents. The clerk refused to accept it at any price. Finally the victim of the 'bus collector resolved to forego letter writing and go to the 'bus manager in person. On the way he noticed a display of gold coins in a window.

"Guess I'll go in and see what the thing is worth, anyway," the Michigander said to himself. He went into the store where the coins were displayed and threw the trade dollar onto the counter, asking: "What'll you give for it?"

The dealer examined the coin a minute and replied: "I'll give you $1.65."

"It's a bargain," said the "farmer," and with the $1.65 jingling in his hand he went out, saying: "Guess I won't go to see that manager now."

FAMOUS PACKS OF CARDS.

Jacks That Represented the Most Famous Diplomats of Europe.

A pack of cards was recently sold in a London stationer's for $600. It was one of the handsomest Italian copperplate card games called "terocchi di Montagna," engraved during the fifteenth century, says Collier's Weekly. Another pack of cards recently sold at Paris for 1,000 francs.

Each of the cards in this pack is a masterpiece of the engraver's art, and all the figures in the game were historical personages. The queen of hearts, for instance, represented Queen Anne, the king of hearts being her husband, Prince George of Denmark. The queen of diamonds was Queen Anne Sophia of Denmark, the queen of clubs the then crown princess of Prussia, the wife of Frederick William I., and the queen of spades Princess Anne of Russia, later on the czarina. The jacks in this deck of cards represent the most prominent diplomats of Europe at the same time.

Another famous set of cards is an incomplete pack of old Spanish cards found in Mexico with the supposed bones of one of the followers of Cortez.

HER THIN ARM LOOKED PLUMP

That Is Why All the Other Girls Are Going to That Photographer Now.

She was a pretty, slender young woman who was having her "picture taken," and he was a photographer of resources, says the New York Times. She was wearing a decollete gown and in the picture but just a bit of the upper part of the arm would show. It was a pretty arm, but it was just possible that in a picture where outlines would count largely in the effect it might appear too slender.

"I just know," said the girl in the voice of one who has a real grievance, "that I shall look like a rail in the picture. I am not so thin, but then, I am not very fat, of course, and my arm is sure to look like a broomstick."

"Not a bit of it," said the photographer; "just take this and see the effect."

"This" was a soft rubber ball which the young woman placed under the arm that was to be "taken" and with a wee bit of pressure it plumped out the flesh on either side beautifully, and now all the slender girls in that set are going to that photographer to be photographed.

ZANGWILL'S LITTLE JOKE.

Conversation About the Famous Writer's "Wife" That Was Overheard by Him.

"I was married in Ventnor, at least so I gather from the local newspapers, in whose visitors' lists there figured the entry, 'Mr. and Mrs. Zangwill,' says I. Zangwill in the Philadelphia Times. "I do not care to correct it, because, the lady being my mother, it is perfectly accurate and leads to charming misconceptions. 'There, that's he,' loudly whispered a young man, nudging his sweetheart, 'and there's his wife with him.' 'That! Why, she looks old enough to be his mother,' replied the young lady. 'Ah,' said her lover, with an air of conscious virtue and a better bargain, 'they're awfully mercenary, these literary chaps.' The reverse of this happened to a young friend of mine. He married an old lady who possessed a very large fortune. During the honeymoon his solicitous attentions to her excited the admiration of another old lady, who passed her life in a bath chair. 'Dear me!' she thought, 'how delightful in these degenerate days to see a young man so attentive to his mother!' and dying soon after, left him another large fortune."

An Expensive Shroud.

GEN. BULLER AND THE TUGELA

The English General Was Eating Sandwiches Where the Fire Was Hottest.

It was during the advance of the Devons and the Queens that the series of brilliant attempts to rescue the guns (at the Tugela) began, says a Colenso correspondent of the Manchester Guardian. A little earlier—about ten o'clock—Sir Redvers Buller had left the position he had appointed for himself at the naval battery—the situation on the right was too serious for a man of Buller's spirit to stay there now—and had ridden off toward the guns with all his staff and the escort of the Natal police. "Out of this, please," he said—he was down among the naval 12-pounders behind Long's guns now. The Boers had perhaps recognized the staff; the whistling in the air trebled. "You oughtn't to be here, sir," gasped Ogilvy. "I'm all right, my boy," said the general. The staff lingered about the place; Sir Redvers Buller was eating sandwiches, and from the scattered groups of men emerged one of the most gallant trios that ever tried to win the Victoria cross.

Off the three went for the guns—I saw them go—Schofield, Congreve, who had been leisurely giving me notes out of his pocketbook an hour before up near the naval battery, and young Roberts. * * * It was all no good; a general retirement was ordered, ten guns were left on the field. * * * Sir Redvers Buller and his staff came by me on their return. The general climbed down limply and wearily from his horse like an old, old man. I thought he was wounded with vexation; I did not know then that he was wounded—though slightly—with a bullet, which had been passed round his ribs. The horse of Lord Gerard, one of his aids-de-camp, had been shot in the neck; Capt. Hughes, the doctor of his staff, had been killed—half blown to pieces—by a shell; one of the Natal police (the general's escort) had had his horse grazed in the fetlock, in the belly, and in the mouth, and two bullets had passed through his holsters. That is the sort of fire the general had been under eating sandwiches.

THE OSTRICH AS FOOD.

Said to Make Splendid Steak and Soup, But the Boer Will Have None of It.

There are two dishes an ostrich farmer in South Africa will not tolerate on his table, though both are considered delicacies. One is ostrich soup, another ostrich steak, says the London Mail.

There is not much eatable meat about an ostrich, for his body is nearly all bone. His long, delicate legs are, however, supported upon remarkably massive thighs, and these provide joints which are utilized by the housewife on an ostrich farm, when an untoward accident has ended the bird's life and he is fit for nothing except the larder.

The thighs are so extraordinarily muscular that steaks cut from them are not very appetizing, but they make splendid soup, which may even be compared with the renowned turtle for richness and delicacy. Its strengthening properties are also great, and if the ostrich were cultivated for food, instead of for feathers, it would very likely prove a formidable rival in the sickroom to the most expensive turtle soup. But no farmer has the larder in view when he rears an ostrich chick, and when the birds grow up it goes seriously against the grain with him to hand a carcass over to the cook, when it alive would have brought him £15 if sold to another farmer.

Ostriches are dreadfully prone to suicide, however, and are determined fighters, and as they don't know how to conduct their battles wisely they are usually victims to broken limbs, and must be put out of their misery by their owners, who cannot operate surgically on such delicate members as an ostrich's fragile legs.

DRAWS SPARKS FROM SNOW.

Kite Shows That Blizzards Contain as Much Electricity as Do Thunderstorms.

William A. Eddy, at Bayonne, on a recent occasion made his first electric test in a blizzard, by sending aloft a six-foot single plane kite during the heavy gale and dense snowfall, sustaining in this way a steel wire at a considerable height. So severe was the gale that the kite was repeatedly borne down to within about 50 feet of the earth, but it always recovered its position aloft. The falling snow dimmed the kite, but did not overweigh it. At five p. m. the electric connection with the steel wire was severed from the grounding rod, when the hissing sound of the brush discharge could be plainly heard, followed by a one-inch spark. Mr. Eddy says that the electrical activity with the kite at so moderate an altitude was the greatest he has ever experienced. It was as powerful as if a thunderstorm were near by. At the time the steel wire was paid out it was made to run through an iron snap-hook tethered by a chain to a rod driven into the ground. This was done by Mr. Eddy to lessen the danger from severe electric shocks.

Did Not Want to Be the Emperor.

At the time when the war with Spain had been brought to a successful close a number of statesmen were discussing the future of the country over their cigars in Washington. At last one enthusiast exclaimed, addressing himself to the most prominent member of the group: "In my opinion we are drifting directly toward imperialism, and you, sir, should be the first emperor." "Not if I know it," drawled the great man; "I am not fool enough to want to be the first emperor of a nation of such good shots."

LONG-DELAYED PUBLICATION.

Gov. Bradford Devoted Twenty-Five Years to Writing His History.

Gov. Bradford's famous "History of Plymouth Plantation," sometimes erroneously styled "The Log of the Mayflower," which is now proudly sheltered by Boston's gilded dome, is, despite its age and wanderings, clear and as legible as print, and, withal, much of it is so fine that no type of ordinary size will reproduce it line for line, says Truth.

Since the days of printing, probably no author has waited longer for a publisher than did Gov. Bradford, or furnished more legible, precise and accurate copy when the allotted time came. Twenty-five years were devoted by him to writing this history, which, although well known at the time, and used and quoted from by several historians, mysteriously disappeared at the time of the American revolution, and was believed to be as irrecoverable as the lost books of Livy. In 1846, however, Bishop Wilberforce, of Oxford, made quotations from a manuscript said by him to be in the library of the lord bishop of London, at Fulham place. These were recognized some years later by an American scholar as probably of Bradford's authorship, and subsequent investigation identified the manuscript, which was for the first time printed in 1856, more than two centuries after it left the author's hands.

This immortal manuscript consists of 280 large folio pages, written on one side of the paper only, the whole strongly bound in vellum; it was recently restored to the custody of the state of Massachusetts by the bishop of London.

UTILIZING OLD JOKES.

Even Joseph H. Choate the Famous Lawyer Finds Them Handy Occasionally.

In this era of new ideas and startling inventions old jokes still retain their youthful vigor, says the Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post. Nor are they confined to minstrel performers and monologue artists on the vaudeville stage. No less a wit than Hon Joseph Hodges Choate, the law partner of William Maxwell Evarts, and the present ambassador from this country to the court of St. James, recently found a very old joke useful and appropriate.

A reporter called to see him.

"Mr. Choate is a busy man," said the clerk.

"So am I," responded the reporter.

"Let me take in your card?"

"Never mind the card. He knows me."

Without further parley he opened the door and confronted Mr. Choate, who was talking with a visitor.

"Good-morning, Mr. Choate," said the reporter, cheerily. "I am a reporter."

Mr. Choate looked at the intruder curiously. "Take a chair, sir," he said, quietly.

"I want to see you about this story," showing a clipping from the Morning ——.

"Ah!" returned the lawyer, with his peculiar, gentle chuckle, "I'm glad to see you. Please take two chairs."

It was an old, old story, but Mr. Choate did not hesitate to use i.

NAVAL DISTINCTIONS.

Difference Between Ships of War Mentioned in the Newspaper Reports.

A battleship is an armored vessel of comparatively low speed, carrying heavy guns, and intended to fight with other vessels of her class. A cruiser is a swift vessel, sometimes armored, sometimes not; carrying guns of a medium size, intended to act as a scout and to destroy and run away. It occupies to the battleship the same relation that cavalry does to artillery and infantry in an army. An armored cruiser carries armor over its vital points — machinery. A protected cruiser has a protected deck and very light armor. An unprotected warship has neither armor nor protective deck. A torpedo boat is a very swift unarmored vessel, carrying light guns, whose offensive arm is the torpedo. The torpedo boat destroyer is simply a larger and swifter torpedo boat. The largest war vessel afloat are of 14,000 tons displacement. Ships have been built that have defied any storm they have met, but it is conceivable that a storm might rage that would destroy any vessel. The best coal procurable is used on war vessels. No particular kind has the call.

No Milk or Berries.

An American woman living in Manila writes that the two greatest deprivations that she and her American friends have to undergo are fresh fruit and sweet milk. There is no berry of any sort to be had and no small fruit. There are plenty of bananas, but they have an insipid taste. Condensed milk is used exclusively by the American colony. Most of the vegetables that they use are canned.

Liberia Paying Her Debts.

Liberia having obtained an income from royalties paid by the English rubber syndicate, is now again paying interest on her debt of $500,000 on which she defaulted 25 years ago. The arrears of interest have been cleared off by an agreement of the creditors to receive $75,000 as payment in full of all back interest.

A Sly Fox.

A fox hard pressed by the hounds during a hunt on Long Island lately ran across a pond covered by a sheet of ice so thin that when the hounds came on it, it broke, precipitating them into the water and breaking up the chase.

MOMENTS OF DANGER

CRUCIAL SECONDS IN THE LIVES OF ENGINEERS.

Just What They Do, or Should Do, in Cases of Peril on the Rails—Few Have Been Found Wanting When the Emergency Came.

To the engineer belongs the most hazardous and at the same time the most responsible task of any of the men who run the train, and the passengers on one of the great fliers as they loll back in their seats reading the most recent work of fiction or gazing placidly forth at the scenery scarcely ever give a thought to the fact that ahead of them is a dust and oil begrimed man who, for the time being, literally carries their lives in the hollow of his sweaty hand. It is extraordinary how few cases there are where engineers have been found derelict in the moment of trial. There have been innumerable wrecks since railroads were first introduced into the country, but the record of the number of engineers who have failed when the crucial test came is infinitesimal.

When once danger appears in front, an engineer's duty is, first, to close the throttle; second, to apply the airbrakes; third, to reverse the engine—that is, to throw over the reversing lever, which enables the engine to run in the opposite direction from which it had been going; fourth, to reopen the throttle. To do these four acts calls for but a small fraction of time, but where wrecks result the danger is usually so imminent as frequently not to leave even sufficient interval to accomplish them, and often when the ruins have been cleared away the body of the faithful guardian has been discovered with his hand stiff in death on the throttle, reverse lever or brake, and bearing silent witness as to how far he had got toward the accomplishment of that duty which he had yielded his life to perform.

Many engineers are reckless and will take awful chances. At one time a certain driver was taking through a special train consisting of four empty freight cars and a caboose. The station master told him that the down train was a trifle late and due at the next station beyond, seven miles away, at 2:37 o'clock. Glancing at his watch, the engineer said he had nine minutes and decided to take the chance. He had to cross a bridge just beyond the town he was leaving, and mid way across he began to increase his speed. As the engine struck ground again on the other side and they headed straight up the river's valley he threw her wide open and gave his engine every ounce of steam there was in the boiler. Three miles farther on, when running to the limit of his capacity, he struck the down train head-on. Both engineers and firemen were killed outright, and the engines reduced to a condition that rendered them only fit for the scrap heaps.

Strange to say, no passengers or other members of either crew were killed outright or afterward died as the result of injuries received. Only the shoulders and head of the fireman of the special were ever found. He had been driven into the door of the fire box feet first, but had stuck at the shoulders. The white hot fire within had completely incinerated the rest of his body. To look at the door of a fire box such a casualty as that seems all but impossible, the opening looks so small. In reality, however, it is large enough, as any railroad man can tell you.

The watch of the engineer of the special when found was still running and was four minutes behind. It was to this error of his timepiece that the tragic death of himself and his three companions was due.

In daylight it is the habit of the engineer to follow with the eye the glistening track of rails over which he must travel. Should a rail be misplaced, it would break this line of light and betray itself to the watchful man in time to stop and save his train. This particular wreck, however, resulted from that curse and dread of all railroad runners—the washout. The culvert which caused it was a short one, its width being hardly greater than the combined length of engine and tender. The masonry had been carried away; but, the fishplates and spikes holding firm, the rails still crossed the gully. This held the rail line of light true and in consequence the engineer was well up to the danger before he realized it. He was able to stop the train, but to do so had to go into the ditch himself, although fortunately he did not lose his life.

He was washed out of his cab window by the flood. His jumper catching over a stone, the train newsboy fortunately found him in time to save him from death by drowning. So close a thing was it that when the train came to a full stop the front wheels of the forward truck of the baggage car were hanging over the opening made by the washout. No one was injured save the engineer, who escaped with a couple of broken ribs and a dislocated shoulder. He completely recovered, however, and is one of the most trusted engineers on that particular line to this city.

A rather amusing thing occurred in connection with this wreck. There was little coal in the tender, what was left being in the rear end, and the fireman had gone back to shovel it forward. The impetus of the engine caused it to jump clear across the gully and stick its nose in the opposite bank. The rear part, being the heavier, dropped first, carrying the forward part of the tender with it, causing tender and engine to shut up like a jackknife. The fireman was tossed clean over the engine and alighted uninjured on the track beyond the washout.

He was a lanky, six foot Irishman, with carroty hair and the brogue still strong upon him. In telling of his experience afterward he said:

"Sure, it was a quare expayrience there was. I one minit stooping wid me shovel over the coal hape and the next minit there was I and me shovel and the coal all flying troo de air, and each trying to see who would get there first. Glory be that I was not hurt at all, at all. It's a brave man is Moike (the engineer), fine, big, brave man, sor. The last thing he said was— What do you think it was, sor, and him expecting to die the next minit, at that, sor? Widout turning his head he yells out to me, 'Jump, you red-headed scoundrel!' he yells, and while I didn't have no toime to do as he tould me, I take it very koindly that he thought of me as he did." The tears stood in the honest fellow's eyes as he told the story.—New York Tribune.

THE TAX SALE

Was Held Last Week in Crookston.

The sale of forfeited land for Polk and Red Lake counties was held last week in Crookston. A large number of people were in attendance, and the bidding on all farm lands was exceedingly lively, most of them going at from $4 to $10 per acre.

A large number of city lots in Red Lake Falls were offered for sale, and block after block was bid in by the state.

Most of the property in the city of Thief River Falls was redeemed before the sale, but there were a few choice lots offered, and most of them were purchased for half of the original tax by residents of this city. Among those from this city who attended the sale, all of whom secured some property, were Dan Shaw, Phil Zeb, Lars Backe, A. Wright, Wm. Lennon, Wiley Tindolph and John W. Eastman.

Will Be a Winner.

Nat Campbell, mayor of Crookston, is a candidate for delegate to the national Democratic convention at Kansas City, and his chances of success are said to be excellent. 4 US AFTERBATH

It makes the skin white and soft, removes pimples and dandruff and all eruptions from the person.

For the Head and Hair and Body.

The body and limbs of every child should be rubbed with 4 Us after every bath. Just enough dropped in the palm of the hand to rub over every part of the surface of a child, once a day will keep the skin soft and white, the pores free from getting clogged with impurity passing out from the system. A teaspoon full is sufficient to moisten the cuticle (skin covering) of a grown person. The effect is wonderful: pimples on the body and face are entirely removed by a few applications of the 4 Us. Druggists sell it.

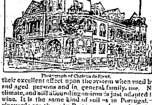
of Passaic, N. J. Vineyards.

These Wines Rival the World in Excellence.

Old, rich and mellow by age and years of care and frequent racking in fumigated cellars as is done with the Chateau Wines in France.



Photograph of Chateau de Speer.

The Chateau contains a limited supply of Private Stock Port nineteen years old, besides Burgundy and Claret of nearly the same age. The Speer Port, however, nine years old, as well as the Burgundy, Claret and Sherry, are high class wines. The ★★★ Climax Brandy is 18 years old All are preferred where known by the Medical profession as superior to any that can be had, for their excellent effect upon the system when used by invalids, the weakly and aged persons and in general family use. Northern New Jersey climate, and soil abounding in iron is just adapted for this grape for Port wine. It is the same kind of soil as in Portugal. Speer's winery and vineyards are the only Port grape vineyards in the United States; only vineyards that cultivate the real Port wine grape of Portugal; while other wines or mixtures called port are made without a single Oporto grape in them. Mr. Speer is the first and only one who imported the vines and acclimated the real Port wine grape vines of Portugal. He spent thousands of dollars as a hobby to see what he could do toward acclimating these Portugal vines here. It took eight years for them to become acclimated before Mr. Speer got a single grape; during those years all died except about eight hundred vines, when those began to grow vigorous and bear fruit; from these, layers were made for new vines. The vineyards now cover fifty six acres. It has proven a success. The grapes are allowed to hang on the vines until they begin to raisin, when they have parted with some of the water and are rich in sugar; and the wine made from Port wine grapes is the only real genuine Port wine made in America. It is by far THE wine for weakly persons, the aged and for evening entertainments.

Sold by Druggists and Grocers.

RULES FOR MARRIED MEN.

A Young Woman Wants to Know Why Doesn't Somebody Give Them a Few Hints.

I do wish some one would write a few rules for men, said a young married woman recently to the Baltimore News writer. I'm awfully tired of reading in magazines and newspapers that I must meet my husband when he comes home from his office "pleasantly and cheerfully." That the house must be like a new pin. I must be prettily gowned, the dinner must be daintily cooked and served and that he mustn't be worried with a recital of the troubles of the day, no matter if delirium supervenes for me.

These precepts are all right theoretically and under ordinary circumstances are practical. Every woman follows them instinctively who wishes to retain her husband's admiration, but why aren't there a few laws of this sort laid down for men to follow?

Why isn't there some one to tell them to look cheerful when they come in, and to forbear to grumble if dinner is a trifle late for any good reason, to be a little sympathetic and affectionate, and remember that theirs are not the only troubles in the house.

According to the ordinary writer, a woman's whole married life should be spent in practicing expedients to keep her husband's love from growing cold, while he apparently may pursue any course he pleases, civil or uncivil, tyrannical or gentlemanly, and be sure of retaining hers.

This may not be the masculine idea of the case at all; the sterner sex may not really expect to get the whole globe and give nothing in return, but it is not the writer's fault if they don't. I sedulously keep all such articles away from John, for he's a very good husband, and I'm afraid such literature would put ideas into his head and spoil him.

Now, poor, unenlightened soul, he has an idea that my side of the partnership has its own worries, and he tries to help me straighten them out, but who knows how he would change if he ever discovered that he is really made of china and has to be handled with care to keep from being broken?

FOR COLD-DAY SHOE BUYERS.

A Tip on the Effects of Zero Weather on People's Pedal Extremities.

A burly man, with a red mustache, was seated in a shoe store in the shopping district, and was having a good deal of trouble apparently in finding something in footgear that exactly suited him, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat. "This feels first rate," he said at length, "except that it pinches a trifle across the instep." "In that case I would take a wider last," suggested the clerk, "especially on such a day as this." "Why; what the dickens has the day to do with my shoes?" asked the customer in surprise. "A great deal," replied the clerk, promptly. "It is cold to-day—unusually cold for New Orleans—and in such weather anybody's feet shrink from a quarter to half a size. Consequently, they—" "Oh! come now!" interrupted the burly man, "you're having fun with me!"

"Not at all," said the clerk, earnestly. "I assure you it is exactly as I say, and for that reason we have to be very careful on days when the temperature is low or we would have a lot of purchases returned. You have been wearing a rather thin shoe and your feet are at this moment more than a quarter size below the normal. If you buy anything with a tight instep now it will be intolerable to-morrow."

The man with the red mustache looked thoughtful and took a wider last.

WHAT ONE WOMAN THINKS.

The Feminine Philosopher Makes a Few Sage and Saucy Remarks.

Nowadays a music roll is just as apt to contain a sausage as a sonata, says the Philadelphia Times.

With the rudder of truth gone and the compass of faith lost, love soon comes to shipwreck.

Some women's idea of their rights is all that they now have together with those enjoyed by men.

A man realizes the value of his wife when she goes away on a visit leaving him to mind the children.

It is a wise woman who knows her own business, and it is a wiser one who thoroughly attends to it.

To refuse a man in order to have the fun of hearing him propose again is dangerous; he may propose again to some other girl.

It is not always wise to ask a child for his opinions in public; they are generally uncompromisingly and sometimes uncomfortably frank.

The young woman who was prevented from going to a dance because she dropped a hot curling iron down her back probably at the time of the accident danced enough for one evening.

An Ocean of Liquid Air.

Sir John Murray, in a recent address, drew a vivid picture of the time, in the remote future, when temperatures as low as those which Prof. Dewar produces in his experiments at the Royal institution will prevail all over the earth. The atmosphere and the oceans will then have disappeared within the rocky crust of the globe, their elements having entered into new combinations. In other words, to use Sir John Murray's expression, "the waters of the ocean will have become solid rock." But over their surface will roll the waves of a new and most wonderful sea, "an ocean of liquid air about 40 feet in depth." At that time, of course, life as we know it will have vanished from the earth.

THE PRODIGY'S POLITENESS.

He Spelled the Word So the Preacher Wouldn't Understand What He Called Him.

A Baptist church on the East side includes among its membership a devout family consisting of father, mother and a precocious cherub of six, says the Kansas City Star. The pastor has the usual weakness for chickens, and so has the cherub. In the early part of the week the pastor was invited to dine. The pride of the family had been properly coached for the event, and more attention than usual had been paid to his spelling. He had mastered any number of words of three letters, but it it was still safe for mother and father to spell out the words of two or more syllables which they did not wish him to understand.

It was: "When you go down town purchase some c-a-n-d-y," from mother, and father was always saying: "Get some b-a-n-a-n-a-s this morning." The pride of the household had learned that whenever you want to use a word in anyone's presence that you do not wish him to understand it ought to be spelled out.

There was chicken for dinner when the pastor came to dine, and he showed his appreciation by requesting two helpings. Only one piece remained, and the cherub in the family had not been satisfied. It was the father who said:

"Mr. ——, let me give you another piece of chicken."

The pastor, with a show of reluctance, passed his plate, and the pride of the family addressed his mother: "Mamma, don't you think the preacher is a p-i-g?"

KING OF FOX HUNTERS.

One of His Greatest Rides Made When He Was Thirty-One Years of Age.

A fox hunter at 83 years of age—a fox hunter for more than three score years and ten—Brisbin Skiles has, indeed, well earned the right to the title "the king of fox hunters," says the Philadelphia Times. He loves the chase to-day as much as he did 73 years ago, when as a boy of ten he followed hounds and fox in his first hunt. He has probably participated in more fox chases than any living man in America.

"The king of fox hunters" lives at Gap, Lancaster county, not a great distance from the Berks county line. One of his most remarkable rides was made when he was 81 years of age. There were 60 hounds and 30 riders in the hunt. When liberated, the fox took a course to the northward for four miles, then doubled to southward for five miles, then westward, giving hounds, horses and riders a chase of nearly 17 miles before he was captured.

Over fence, hedge and ditch the old man, on his fine hunter, kept at the heels of the hounds, and was up with the quarry when seized by the first dog. The hunters participating were unanimous in declaring it one of the greatest rides in the history of Pennsylvania fox chasing, independent of the age of the man who was first "in at the death."

OIL FOR TROUBLED WHISKY.

A Simple Expedient by Means of Which a Hard Drinker Kept Sober.

It was after the fourth round of Scotch and soda and the little group in the cafe seemed to be feeling what they had taken all but one little man with a decided English accent. Excusing himself for a moment he walked across the room and, pulling a small vial from his waistcoat pocket, took a swallow of a yellowish fluid. But the act had been noticed by his more boisterous companions and they demanded to know what his game was, says the Philadelphia Record.

"No, it's not poison," laughingly replied the Englishman as he displayed the vial. "I'm not ready to go just yet. It is olive oil and when I get mixed up with a crowd like this I always have recourse to it. After I have had about four or five drinks coming rather rapidly on top of each other I take a swallow of oil. It seems to have a most remarkable effect upon the liquor, the same effect that oil has when poured upon troubled waters. When I adopt this treatment I am sure never to become befuddled, and I can truthfully say that I have never been drunk in my life, although I have often taken more than enough to make me so."

AN OFFICER'S BAGGAGE.

Articles That Are Allowed a Cavalry Officer on Duty at the Front.

In the war in South Africa a British mounted officer knows exactly what he may carry. In his pockets or haversack or slung on a belt he is restricted to a whistle, compass, notebook, water bottle, claspknife, besides sword, pistol and ammunition. On his horse, attached to the saddle, are a spare shoe, case with nails, nosebag, picketing ropes and pegs, cloak, mess tin, field glass and in a pair of wallets an emergency ration, tin of vaseline, under linen (not exceeding two pounds), knife, fork, spoon, comb, toothbrush, shaving brush, razor, nightcap, field cap, towel and soap, drinking cup, map of country and a box of matches. All these articles must not, with saddle and bridle, exceed 7½ pounds in weight. Carried in the regimental transport each mounted officer is restricted to 25 pounds of baggage, which must be packed in bed valise, and includes change of clothing and linen, boots and puttles, canvas shoes, bucket, lantern and writing portfolio, camp kettle, two plates and pepper and salt pots.

I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Say, John, what are you doing to look so healthy?"

NEW SETTLERS

Are Coming in at a Very Lively Rate.

The rapidity in which this section of the country is being settled is hardly appreciated unless one takes a drive through the country quite often. The acres of wild land in the country north and west of here are gradually being converted into improved farms, and the increase in the price of lands is also advancing, although this section of the state still boasts of the fact that it can furnish cheaper and better lands than can be found anywhere else.

Sunday a party of twenty-two from Iowa passed through the city and will settle on lands north of here. The same afternoon another party of fifteen from Austin, Minn., also went into the country north of here to settle upon farms.

All of the real estate dealers report a brisk demand for farm lands. C. L. Dobner sold several farms last week to Iowa parties, who will settle upon the same sometime this summer. They also have many friends who will come up later on, with a view of buying farms and settling here. F. H. Kratka, the pioneer real estate dealer, sold two farms, last week, as did also Meehan & Wall and Lars Backe. This week there is an unusual number of land seekers in the city and the prospects are that the sales will greatly exceed the number made last week.

THE SURPLUS.

It May Go to the Original Owner.

The county auditors of the state are somewhat at sea regarding the disposition of the money received in excess of the taxes and costs at the recent sales of lands. In a circular letter issued by State Auditor Dunn for the guidance of county auditors, the following paragraph appears:

"Should any tract sell for more than the original taxes with 10 per cent interest and costs of this sale, as shown by your list, the excess or surplus should be credited to the county revenue fund. In no event should the excess be paid over to the original owner of the real estate."

This was the theory under which Auditor Gleason has acted, but now comes Attorney General Douglass and gives as his opinion that all money recently held all over the state, over and above the amount of taxes, interest, costs and penalties, shall revert to the original owner of the property.

Polk county lands sold at a large advance above the taxes, and much difficulty will be experienced in ascertaining who are the proper persons to whom to turn over this excess, as in many instances the owners are unknown.

There is a possibility that there may be those who will contest in the courts the state's right to dispose of the lands as has been done, and, should the owners accept the excess under the ruling of the attorney general, it would cut them off from bringing such suits.

The bookkeeping required to straighten out the matter, if Attorney General Douglass' ruling holds, will be something enormous, and Auditor Gleason has decided to await action until he again confers with the state auditor.—Crookston Times.

ORGANIZED

A New Social and Fraternal Society.

A number of Bohemians of this city met in the hall over Blaka & Vorachek's saloon Sunday afternoon and organized a social and fraternal society to be known as the Western Bohemian Fraternal Association. The society was organized by J. J. Vorachek and the following officers were elected:

President—Frank Cernousek.
Vice-President—Mrs. Alezibeth Smidek.
Secretary—Frank Hodek.
Clerk—Joseph Liska.
Treasurer—John Zavoral.
Escort—Albert Smidek.
Watchmen—Joseph Stanek and Joseph Moravec.

Meetings will be held on the afternoon of the second Sunday of each month.

Numerally the Bohemians are becoming quite strong in this city, and there will be a large number that will remove here this summer to make this place their future home. They are industrious, hard-working and honest people, and make good citizens. The improvements they have already made here have added greatly to the city's wealth, and the NEWS sincerely hopes that their new organization will prosper.

Polygamy Among the Indians.

Senator Thurston, of Nebraska, has introduced a bill forbidding further polygamous marriages among the Indians after next January, and at the same time, recognizing polygamy as it now exists among the Indian tribes. Indian agents are authorized to perform marriages, but, in other respects, Indian marriages must conform to the same laws as those governing the marriages of other people. At the same time the bill provides for the creation of a permanent register of all married Indians now living on the reservations. "If any Indian is living with more than one woman, to whom he professes to be married, in accordance with the customs of his tribe," the bill provides not that such marriage shall be annulled, but that, "so far as practicable, the record shall state the order of time in which the said Indian professes to have been married to those several women, with the name or names of each such wife, the approximate date of said alleged marriage, and the names of his living children by each such wife."

Four Candidates.

At the request of a number of his friends, it is said that Chas. E. Boughton, of Red Lake Falls, will be a candidate for the Populist nomination for county attorney. H. W. Lee, of this city, and Van R. Brown and F. A. Grady, of Red Lake Falls, are also candidates for the Populist nomination, and a lively fight is guaranteed.

Palaces on Wheels.

The Burlington's new Minneapolis and St. Paul-Chicago and St. Louis train consists of a buffet library car, a combination sleeping car, a standard sleeping car, a compartment sleeping car, a dining car, a reclining chair car and a day coach (high back seats.)

The most costly, beautiful, luxurious cars on earth. Steam heated; electric lighted. Wide vestibuled. No extra fares.

L. G. Browning, United States commissioner for the district of Minnesota, is prepared to give attention to homestead filings and take final proof.

FINED $10

For Threatening to Poison Some Cattle.

Lars Peterson, a farmer living in the town of Numedal, was arraigned before Judge Johnson in this city Monday, on the charge of threatening to feed noxious substance to the cattle belonging to Joseph Duchamp, his neighbor. He pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and cost and placed under bonds to the amount of $300 to keep the peace. Peterson's threat was made last October, and, as one of Mr. Duchamp's steers died about two weeks ago from the effects of being poisoned, the arrest was made.

Secret of Hetty Green's Success.

Hetty Green was recently induced to talk to a writer for the June Ladies' Home Journal of her business methods that have won her sixty millions of dollars or more. The secret of her success is worth knowing: "I don't believe in speculation, as a rule," she says, "and I don't speculate as much as people think. When offered so many shares of stock at so much, I buy one share and then send out to see what it will bring. If it's a good advance I buy the rest. If not, I don't. This was my plan when I used to deal in horses. I would get a day's option on a horse and see what it would bring before buying it. I attribute my success chiefly to the rule of always buying when every one wants to sell, and selling when every one wants to buy. There's a price on everything I have. When that price is offered I sell. I never buy anything just to hold on to it. Not much! And I try to steer clear off Wall Street. Any one who hasn't a whole fortune to back his deals had better do the same. I do everything with all my mind. If there is a law suit on hand I go into every detail of it with my lawyer. It's the same with everything else."

For Shooters and Fishermen.

The new 1900 edition of "Shooting and Fishing Along the Line of the Great Northern Railway" is without an equal amongst books of this class. It is handsomely bound in colored covers of new and attractive design. It is printed on fine plate paper, in two colors, is beautifully illustrated with photographs reproduced in half-tone, and is in all respects a magnificent specimen of the printer's art.

Complete information is given about all sorts and conditions of sport, from lion and grizzly bear to "cotton-tails," and including every fish that swims in the many lakes and rivers of the wide Northwestern states.

All the little details of lakes, boats, bait, distances, etc., have been carefully compiled by practical sportsmen and will be found a great convenience to anyone planning a trip. A new map of Minnesota in three colors is bound into each book.

The hunter or fisherman who is the fortunate possessor of this encyclopedia of sport in the Northwest needs no further guide to tell him where to go a-fishing or shooting. By mail for two cents from F. I. Whitney, general passenger agent, St. Paul, Minn.

If you want to file on a piece of government land it will not be necessary to go to Crookston Make your filing in Thief River Falls before L. G. Browning, U. S. commissioner for the district of Minnesota.

TRESPASSERS

Cut Some Timber Up Near the Border.

The timber trespassers who are said to have taken timber from state lands during the past winter have, as a rule, escaped easily, but they have barked up the wrong tree when they tackled government lands. Up in Beltrami county, near the border, where they supposed, of course, they would be safe, it is said that some timber thieves got into government land and worked like beavers all winter cutting ties and shipping them over into Canada, where they were to be sold at Rat Portage. The place of their operations was so far removed from civilization that they certainly supposed that no word of their doings would get out. It did get out, however, and three deputy United States marshals left for that country last week armed with warrants for the arrest of the trespassers. If they are caught it will probably go hard with them.

The Tests of Social Progress.

How are we to know whether our civilization is advancing or receding, whether the condition of the present generation is more comfortable and refined than that of the preceding generation, whether, as a nation, we are better off than we were fifty years ago?

Statesmen and economists have suggested several standards by which to judge: The per capita wealth, the percentage of illegitimate births, the position and treatment of women, the rate of illiteracy and the ownership of property, particularly of farms and homes. Of these standards the last two seem by far the most practicable, and, accordingly, congress has directed the census office to ascertain how many months each scholar has attended school during the preceding year, what proportion of the people can read, write and speak English, how many families own their homes or farms, how many rent them, how many own them subject to mortgage or other incumbrance. In the coming census, every territorial division of the country and every separate element of the population will have a chance to show what proportion of their number own their homes and what proportion can read or write.

The practical applications of these tests or standards are found in their employment as suffrage qualifications. People differ about the relative merits, as suffrage qualifications, of the ownership of property and the ability to read and write, but there is no doubt of the immense significance and importance of the two classes of facts. In France, in 1891, there were about 4,500,000 owners of land; England, with about the same population, had only 825,000 land owners, while the United States occupied an intermediate position with a population about 70 per cent greater than that of France and a little over 5,000,000 families who owned their homes or farms. No one can doubt the significance of these figures in explaining social conditions in France and England and the United States. They represent the difference between our land system, the system of large land holding in England, and that of small proprietorship in France.

It is hard to overestimate the value of such information or the interest felt in it by statesmen and social students in general. Take the race question, for instance, as a single illustration of a large class of similar questions. In 1880, 70 per cent of the colored population was illiterate, while in 1890 this proportion was less than 57 per cent. Not only did the proportion of colored illiterates decrease between 1880 and 1890, but the absolute number of such persons diminished. Whether the colored population will make as admirable a showing in 1900 is a question of the utmost significance.

The territorial distribution of the illiterate population is another question of great interest. In 1890 the percentage of illiteracy in the North Atlantic states was 6.19, in the South Atlantic states 30.89, in the North Central group the rate was 5.70, and in the South Central group 29.78. In the last ten years the South has had a magnificent industrial development. Whether this material progress has resulted in a higher state of education; whether the benefits of progress have been shared by the masses, or have been secured mainly by the richer classes, are questions which will be partly answered by the statistics of illiteracy in the Southern states for 1900.

Another problem of great importance is the increase of tenancy, as opposed to the ownership of real property. From 1880 to 1890 the number of farm tenants in the United States increased at least 38 per cent. The increase was general, but greater in the South Atlantic and South Central divisions of the United States than in other parts of the country. In general, the thirteen original states, rich in wealth, trade and manufactures, are those in which the percentage of ownership of farms and homes is lowest, and, in keeping with this fact, statistics of valuation show almost universally that tenancy is most common where land is most valuable. With the exception of the Italians, foreign-born persons of every nationality exceed the Americans in the degree of farm ownership.

Each state, county and city, the German population, the Italian population and every other element of our people has a distinct interest in seeing that the statistics of literacy and ownership which apply to them are correctly represented in the next census. These are the standards according to which they will inevitably be judged.

THE NEWS,

By John W. Eastman.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

$1.50 PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

THURSDAY, MAY 31, 1900.

The Democratic county convention for the purpose of electing fourteen delegates to the state convention will be held at Red Lake Falls Thursday evening, June 14. Owing to the fact that a large number of the Democrats in this county have joined the Populist party, it is doubtful if fourteen delegates can be secured.

It should be the duty of every resident of Thief River Falls to assist in every way possible the census enumerator in this city—thus insuring a full count. As the census is taken but once in a decade, it is but natural that many people should be unacquainted with the duty devolving upon them under the census law. O. P. Johnson will be the enumerator for the city of Thief River Falls.

The little state of Maine has long held an influence in congress far out of proportion to its size. This has come about through its uniform policy of retaining in office able and experienced legislators, while other states, especially the western ones, have practiced "rotation in office." The Republicans of the Seventh district have seen the wisdom of the Maine policy and by the renomination—which means re-election—of Congressman Eddy, have paved the way for increased effeciency of the state delegation. This section of the state needs the services of an influential congressman, and for this reason Mr. Eddy's majority in Red Lake county will be greater than that given to any other candidate.

NO COMMUTATION.

Red Lake Settlers Not Allowed to Commute.

In the absence of specific instructions from the Interior Department, relative to the rights of settlers who made entry on lands in the ceded portion of the Red Lake Indian reservation, opened to settlement and entry under the act of July 14, 1889, and which lands were opened for entry on May 15, 1896, Attorney Nat Campbell wired the commissioner of the general land office at Washington as follows:

> Crookston, May 26, 1900—To Commissioner General Land Office, Washington, D. C.: Can homestead entryman commute on entries made for land under the act of July 14, 1889? Wire answer.
> N. Campbell.

To which he received the following reply:

> Washington, D. C., May 28, 1900—N. Campbell, Crookston, Minn.: Entries under act of July 14, 1889, cannot be commuted.
> Binger Hermann, Commissioner.

Mr. Campbell states that he hoped that the secretary of the Interior would modify this construction of the law, as so many persons on the reservation who made entry for those lands desired to pay the government the $200 rather than to live on the lands for the five years, and believed that this would soon be permitted.

L. G. Browning, United States commissioner for the district of Minnesota, is prepared to give attention to homestead filings and take final proof.

A DAM BLOWN UP.

At the Outlet of Beautiful Lake Bemidji.

The war between the Scanlon-Gibson Lumber company and the people of Bemidji resulted in the destruction of the lumber company's dam at the outlet of Lake Bemidji Sunday morning. It was blown up with dynamite and completely destroyed. The work was done by indignant citizens, headed, it is said, by the county attorney and sheriff of Beltrami county, who alleged that back-water from the dam flooded the cellars in many homes and business houses in Bemidji, that the dam was not provided with a fishway, that the village board of health had condemned the dam and ordered its removal, and that its presence had compelled the closing of the Steid saw mill and made dry the bed of the river for several miles below the outlet of the lake. The real cause, however is said to originated from the fact that the people of Bemidji wanted the lumber company to manufacture the logs into lumber at Bemidji, instead of floating them down stream to Cass Lake.

M. J. Scanlon, treasurer of the company, interviewed in Minneapolis by the Journal, said:

"There has always been a great deal of dissention in Bemidji since we built the dam. The residents wanted us to build a mill there instead of floating the logs down to our Cass Lake mill. We had considered this plan and thought favorably of it, but during the past year it was temporarily abandoned because of the scarcity and high price of labor. Desiring to be prepaired for such an emergency as the one now existing because of the low stage of the water in the rivers, we built the dam at the outlet of Lake Bemidji this spring. As soon as we commenced work on it, trouble was threatened by people at Bemidji, but at that time it was not business policy to defer the work or to consider the plan of cutting our logs there. In fact, it would have been impossible to build a mill there in time to handle our trade. The feeling there was bitter. Several times we heard that threats were being made and, in one or two instances, these came to us directly. We completed the structure, however, and utilized the water to float our logs to our Cass Lake mill.

"The original construction of the dam did not provide a fishway, but the charges made against us through the newspapers that the dam harbored hundreds of dead fish and robbed the section of the stream below the outlet, are entirely false. About three weeks ago I went to the dam with State Fish and Game Commissioner Beutner. We examined the dam, and, at his suggestion, we cut a 12 or 15-inch opening in the sluiceway, which, the commissioner said, upon later examination, was adequate to allow passage of fish. For this reason I am certain that there is no foundation for the charge made.

"I do not believe the story that great damage had been done by back-water. The fact is that the dam, as it is now constructed, could not cause any damage to people living in that vicinity. I believe, on the contrary, that it has been a material benefit to those residents. I have never heard any complaints of flooding of cellars. The dam resulted in a raise of some 15 or 16 inches in the lake, and that is a foot below the high water mark of last year. I do not believe it could do anybody harm.

"As for the statement that the village board of health condemned the dam and ordered its removal, I will say that, if such action was taken, it was never communicated to us, and one would suppose that that would be the only thing to be done if the removal was really desired and needed.

"According to the report of our agent, the structure was completely destroyed, and, in that event, it will mean a great loss to us. Not only will this be felt in the expense of re-constructing the dam, but the water let loose by its destruction means that between 25,000,000 and 30,000,000 feet of logs are strayed. We have but about 8,000,000 feet besides this bunch, and this will keep our mill at Cass Lake supplied only about three weeks. It is not probable that the logs now lodged in the upper river can be moved this year, which will mean an immense loss."

Rewarded at Last.

The time honored custom of women to look under the bed before going into it was rewarded Monday evening by a young lady finding a full grown man lying under her resting place. She at once notified the other members of the household, and the fellow was dragged out and allowed to go. A warrant may be issued for his arrest later.

IN THE

North American Review

YOU WILL ALWAYS FIND
The Right Topics,
By the Right Men,
At the Right Time.

It is essential to every American reader who wishes to keep up with the times. The New York Sun says of it: "The North American Review constantly offers to the public a programme of writers and topics that excite the reader and gratify the intellectual appetite. In this respect there is no other magazine that approaches the North American Review."

All Sides of All Questions

in which intelligent readers are interested are promptly discussed in its pages, and facts and arguments are presented with all the ability and logical force of the most eminent writers in the world.

The Chicago Tribune

is a newspaper for bright and intelligent people. It is made up to attract people who think.

Is not neutral or colorless, constantly trimming in an endeavor to please both sides, but it is independent in the best sense of the word.

It has pronounced opinions and is fearless in expressing them, but it is always fair to its opponents.

Matters of national or vital public interest get more space in THE TRIBUNE than in any other paper in the West.

For these reasons it is the newspaper you should read during the forthcoming political campaign.

THE TRIBUNE'S financial columns never mislead the public.

Its facilities for gathering news, both local and foreign, are far superior to those of any other newspaper in the West.

It presents the news in as fair a way as possible, and lets its readers form their opinions.

While it publishes the most comprehensive articles on all news features, if you are busy the "Summary of THE DAILY TRIBUNE" published daily on the first page gives you briefly all the news of the day within one column.

Its sporting news is always the best, and its Sunday Pink Sporting Section is better than any sporting paper in the country.

It is the "cleanest" daily printed in the West.

Attention is called to the advertisement of Joseph H. Werstlein in another column. Mr. Werstlein is an experienced butcher who has recently been in business at Grand Forks, and will run a first-class market. He intends to repaint and remodel the building he is located in, and solicits your patronage. Mr. Werstlein will take possession of the market Saturday, June 2.

Fishing on Lake of the Woods is at its height, and one company recently took three tons of fish at one lift of nets. The total value of the catch was about $7,000. From the sturgeon, 40 kegs of caviar were taken. Each keg holds 160 pounds of caviar, which, at the lake, is worth 80 cents a pound. The total value of the caviar was $5,120. The fish taken were mostly sturgeon, so far as weight goes. Deducting the amount of caviar would leave 5,300 pounds of fish, which is worth at the lake on the average of 3½ cents per pound.

The boys are working a josh on Col. Rasmusson today, and it all comes of a case of mistaken identity. He came up on Conductor Murray's train from Moorhead this morning, and at Halstad a lady got on who accosted the colonel pleasantly, and, when he failed to recognize her, she recalled to his mind the fact that she was living at McCleary's house when he did a job of plastering there. It took some time to convince the lady that he never mixed mortar nor any other sort of drinks, and that, with Hamm's beer on draught, nothing else in the way of business or pleasure was desired. The lady allowed she was mistaken after a while, but she informed Conductor Murray in confidence that the plasterer was one of the best looking men she had ever seen, anyhow, and was the dead image of colonel.—Crookston Times.

MEMORIAL DAY

Was Celebrated in This City Yesterday.

Decoration Day was celebrated very appropriately in this city yesterday by the old soldiers and their friends. All of the business houses were closed, and a large crowd assembled at Greenwood cemetery, where the exercises were held.

A procession, consisting of veterans of the Civil and Spanish-American wars, school children and citizens in carriages, formed at the Central school house, and marched to Greenwood cemetery. There a short prayer was recited by the Rev. A. A. Myers, and the school children sang several patriotic songs. The Rev. G. F. Liening was orator of the day. The graves of all old soldiers and others were decorated.

Fined $5.

August Yanke paid a fine of $5 and costs Monday to Justice Traverse. Yanke was arrested at the instance of Henry Lanphere, of this city, for assault.

It appears that while Mr. Yanke was driving home Saturday evening he was stopped on the road and abused by Rudolph Ristoe and Henry Lanphere. He got out of the buggy and, using a whip, gave Lanphere an unmerciful beating, cutting several deep gashes in his face. Yanke pleaded guilty to assault, believing it to be cheaper than to hire a lawyer to defend him.

Died in Crookston.

Mrs. Ole Johnson, of this city, died Tuesday morning in Crookston, where she had been to receive medical aid. The body was removed to this city yesterday, and the funeral services will be held today. The husband and children of the deceased will receive the sympathy of the entire community.

Blew off Four Fingers.

While handling a dynamite cap Monday, it accidentally exploded, blowing off parts of four fingers on the hands of Louis Olson. The wounds were dressed by Dr. Francis, and Mr. Olson is now getting along nicely.

Notice.

The herd on the chief section for the coming season will be in charge of Fred Rollette.

If anybody has a message for the people of this community, he cannot deliver it to them so effectually, so cheaply, so quickly in any other way as through the columns of this paper.

It is the business of the News to carry messages of one kind and another into homes. The message will be delivered, too, under favorable conditions, for few persons take up their local paper except in a pleasant and receptive frame of mind.

The sign upon the fence board may be good, but it can be seen only by travelers who go that particular road. The message in the local paper carries itself to thousands, no matter by which road they travel.

4 US AFTERBATH

It makes the skin white and soft. Removes pimples and dandruff and all eruptions from the person.

For the Head and Hair and Body.

The body and limbs of every child should be rubbed with 4 Us after every bath. Just enough dropped in the palm of the hand to rub over every part of the surface of a child, once a day will keep the skin soft and white, the pores free from getting clogged with impurity passing out from the system. A teaspoonful is sufficient to moisten the cuticle (skin covering) of a grown person. The effect is wonderful: pimples on the body and face are entirely removed by a few applications of the 4 Us. Druggists sell it.

TIME AND SPACE are practically annihilated by the ocean cables and land telegraph systems which now belt the circumference of Old Earth in so many different directions. "Foreign parts" are no longer foreign in the old meaning of the term. Europe, Africa, Asia, are "next door" to us. What happens there to-day we know to-morrow—if we read THE CHICAGO RECORD, whose Special Cable Correspondents are located in every important city in the world outside of the United States. No other American newspaper ever attempted so extensive a service; and it is supplemented by the regular foreign news service of The Associated Press. For accurate intelligence of the stirring events which are shaking the nations—of wars and rumors of wars—of the threatening dissolution of old governments and the establishment of new—of the onward sweep of the race in all parts of the world—the one medium of the most satisfactory information is the enterprising, "up-to-date" American newspaper, THE CHICAGO RECORD.

FREE A large map of the world on Mercator's Projection, about 23¼x18 inches in size, beautifully printed in colors, with a large-scale map of Europe on the reverse side, will be mailed to any address free of charge on receipt of request accompanied by two 2-cent stamps to cover postage and wrapping. The maps illustrate clearly how comprehensively the special cable service of THE CHICAGO RECORD covers the entire civilized world. Address THE CHICAGO RECORD, 181 Madison street, Chicago.

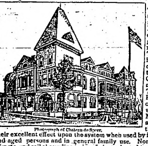
of Passaic, N. J. Vineyards.

These Wines Rival the World in Excellence.

Old, rich and mellow by age and years of care and frequent racking in fumigated cellars as is done with the Chateau Wines in France.



Photograph of Chateau de Speer.

The Chateau contains a limited supply of Private Stock Port nineteen years old, besides Burgundy and Claret of nearly the same age. The Speer Port, however, nine years old, as well as the Burgundy, Claret and Sherry, are high class wines. The ★★★ Climax Brandy is 18 years old. All are preferred where known by the Medical profession as superior to any that can be had, for their excellent effect upon the system when used by invalids, the weakly and aged persons and in general family use. Northern New Jersey climate, and soil abounding in iron is just adapted for this grape for Port wine. It is the same kind of soil as in Portugal. Speer's winery and vineyards are the only Port grape vineyards in the United States; only vineyards that cultivate the real Port wine grape of Portugal; while other wines or mixtures called port are made without a single Oporto grape in them. Mr. Speer is the first and only one who imported the vines and acclimated the real Port wine grape vines of Portugal. He spent thousands of dollars as a hobby to see what he could do toward acclimating these Portugal vines here. It took eight years for them to become acclimated before Mr. Speer got a single grape; during those years all died except about eight hundred vines, when those began to grow vigorous and bear fruit; from these, layers were made for new vines. The vineyards now cover fifty six acres. It has proven a success. The grapes are allowed to hang on the vines until they begin to raisin, when they have parted with some of the water and are rich in sugar; and the wine made from Port wine grapes is the only real genuine Port wine made in America. It is by far THE wine for weakly persons, the aged and for evening entertainments.

Sold by Druggists and Grocers.

LAMP-SIGNALING BY DAY.

Lantern Shuttered in a Barrel with Black Canvas Can Be Seen for Many Miles.

A suggestion was once made to the war office that as flag signaling often involved men's exposing themselves on the sky line, thereby risking loss of life and chancing the communication of messages to foes as well as friends, it would be well to encourage lamp-signaling in the daylight, says the London Telegraph. An ordinary signal lamp at the back of a barrel is in sufficient darkness for its flashes to be perfectly visible on an ordinary day, and they are fairly well shuttered from the enemy. An acetylene lantern shuttered-off and roofed with black canvas can be seen for miles on the brightest day, and its messages can be kept absolutely private. Maj. Ernest Rhodes, D. S. O., Royal Berkshire regiment, has a "dual alphabet" for insuring accuracy of messages. Thus instead of "A B" it should be "A K B X." A man receiving "A" followed by any other letter than "K" (its twin) would at once know something was wrong, and signal "Repeat."

An obvious improvement to our signaling system would be the more general use of code words and their substitution for numerals. A single numeral involves at least five motions of the flag or Morse key. With the combinations of four letters each there could be enough code words formed to send all possible messages, let alone such things as men's regimental numbers. If every man on enlisting was assigned a code word as well as a regimental number the saving of time and expense in telegraphing would be enormous.

TO PROTECT TERRAPIN.

Bill in Maryland Legislature Providing a Close Season Under Penalty.

To prevent the diamond-back terrapin, that delight of epicures, from becoming extinct in Maryland, which furnishes the choicest specimen of this delicacy in the world, the State Game Protective association has introduced a bill for its protection. It provides that no person shall catch, trap or take in any manner in this state any diamond-back terrapin between April 1 and November 1 in each year, or of any size less than five inches long, under a penalty of ten dollars for each terrapin. The destruction of terrapin eggs at any time is prohibited under a penalty of not less than $25 fine nor more than $100. No person shall keep any diamond-back terrapin, alive or dead, in any pond, inclosure or tank between April 1 and November 1, under a penalty of ten dollars for each terrapin so kept. The bill also prohibits the sale of terrapin or fish during the close season. The fish commissioners are exempt from this act while pursuing their duties as fish culturists. Scientists may also be exempt by permission of the state game warden. The passage of the bill is assured. It will have the effect of greatly reducing, if not entirely cutting off, the supplies of Chesapeake diamond backs out of season, as it will close up the hundreds of ponds in which terrapin are secretly kept to supply the demand at any price of the hotels in New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

FAST EXPRESS TRAINS.

Some in France Reach a Speed Greater Than Is Attained in England.

Improvements in the speed of certain trains on the Northern railway of France are attracting attention in Europe just now, says the New York Tribune. The distance between Calais pier and the Nord station in Paris is 185.5 miles. Some trains make the trip in less than four hours, or at the rate of 50 or more miles an hour. One, which runs only four days a week, the Mediterranean train de luxe, covers the distance in three hours and a quarter, which is equal to 57 miles an hour. This run is made without a stop. The fastest time made on a daily train on the Northern railway of France is three hours and a half, or 53 miles an hour. One of the London newspapers, referring to the topic, says that the nearest approach to this speed in England are these two: The trip is made from Paddington to Exeter, 194 miles, in 3 hours and 43 minutes, or at the rate of 52.2 miles an hour, and from Euston to Liverpool, 193½ miles, in three hours and three-quarters, or at the rate of 51.6 miles an hour. It is interesting to compare with these figures the running time of the Empire State express. This train covers 444 miles in eight hours and a quarter, which represents an average speed of 53.8 miles an hour.

Gardening in Alaska.

Two American women conducting a mission school on the Yukon, 1,500 miles from its mouth, tested the Alaska climate last year in kitchen gardening, beginning operations in the open ground May 15. In spite of a lack of rain for two months and cold storms in midsummer, they harvested 250 bushels of potatoes, 500 cabbages, 60 bushels of turnips and a few bushels of carrots. The strawberry bed set out grew finely, but the crop of berries was destroyed by mice.

Like Our Civil War.

One of the strangest facts regarding the present war is that English and Boer have so intermarried in South Africa that in countless instances brothers are fighting against brothers, and fathers against their own sons.

Growing Purchases Abroad.

The United States imported more merchandise last year from every quarter of the globe than it took in 1898.

THE SHORT STORY.

Some of the World's Great Novelists Have Made Themselves Masters of It.

With few exceptions, the world's great novelists have been masters of the short story, says the International Monthly. They hammered at the short story until they perfected it as a literary form as distinct and self-contained as a sonnet or a ballad.

They found that the ideal short story, like the ideal lyric, can deal with only one main emotion or experience—that the slightest irrelevancy is fatal—that every detail must be bound with living cords to the heart—that every word must bear on the creature; every man, be he but a street scavenger, is a whole bundle of men, and every one of them of varying moods. Where is the chance to paint a man in a short story? At best there can be but a glimpse of one passing experience, one isolated emotion. Imagine "Tom Jones" in a single chapter, or "Le Pere Goriot" in a conte!

There have been of late few strenuous and interesting attempts at a cross between the novel and a short story. The resulting hybrid has been sufficiently alarming to prevent, it is to be hoped, further experiments in this direction. It is worth noting, however, that the hysterical and emotional novelette is less painful to encounter than the amorphous and hydrocephalic short story. In the matter of literary forms the mixture of bloods and crossing of strains seems less successful than biologists declare them to be in the animal world.

COWBOY BLACKSMITHING.

The Holes for Bolts Were Made by Firing Bullets Through the Tires.

"Up at my camp near the Four Peaks," said Jim Bark, reports the Arizona Graphic, the well-known cattleman, "the boys are all handy with a rifle. We've a lot of guns up there. The old-fashioned black-powder Winchester has been discarded and nothing but the best goes. Most of the new guns were bought during the Spanish war, when we would experiment all day with tree trunks and rough trenches, learning the art of war at home. We found that a bullet from one of the new Winchesters, driven by smokeless powder, was good for four foot and more of pine timber and for more than an inch of iron. I thought the boys had done about everything in the shooting line that could be done long ago, but I was mistaken. I sent them up a wagon. In hauling down some firewood they broke the bolsters all to flinders. The bolsters hold up the wagon bed, you know. Well, the boys figured out all right the rebuilding of the wood parts, but came near being stumped on the iron fixings. They got some old iron wagon tires and cut them in proper lengths, but hadn't a way that they could see to punch the necessary bolt holes. Finally the question was solved. One of the boys carefully marked the places for the bolts, stood the pieces of tire against a tree and put a bullet, 30 caliber, through the tire at each place marked. It was a novel sort of blacksmithing, but it worked."

LAWTON'S LAST DAY.

The One Spent with His Wife—She Would Go Anywhere with Him.

"I called on Gen. and Mrs. Lawton," says a correspondent of Collier's Weekly, "the last afternoon they were together. She was sitting near his desk at the division headquarters, while he was looking over the typewriter's copy of his orders for the expedition, which he had written with a pencil on a pad in his full, round hand.

"I had brought him a photograph of himself which was taken last spring. Anything about the general interested Mrs. Lawton at once. She scrutinized the likeness carefully from many points of view, and concluded that it was very good. Since it was taken, however, the general had grown a full beard.

"'I shall have to make another on that account,' I suggested.

"But, as she looked first at the picture and then at the general, she seemed dubious about this.

"'I don't know as I am going to let him keep the beard,' she explained. 'It does very well for the present, for he has so little chance to shave when he is at the front.'

"'Would you go with him to a post hop in the states if he wore it?' I asked her, jokingly.

"'Oh, I would go with him anywhere!' she replied earnestly.

A "Graun' Invention."

A Scottish paper tells us an anecdote in connection with the new electric system just opened in Aberdeen. Two farm servants came to Aberdeen to spend New Year's day. Arriving by train they immediately made their way to the terminus of the electric tramway circuit, where, after looking at the new creation with much wonder they decided upon having a ride. Getting on the top of the car and after getting well along George street, "Wull," said man Jock, "this is a graun' invention. In Edinburgh I saw them drive the cars wi' an iron rape aneth street, in Dundee the pu' them wi' an engine, but, michty man, wha wud a' thoucht they could ca' them wi' a fishing rod!"

Speed of Ocean Steamers.

Since their introduction the speed of ocean steamers has increased from 8½ to 22½ knots an hour, and their passenger capacity 20 fold. The engine power is 40 times as great, while the rate of coal consumption per horse-power per hour is only one-third what it was in 1840.

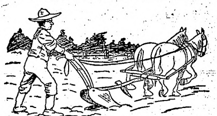
12 to 24 hours ahead of any Northwestern paper.



I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Say, John, what are you doing to look so healthy?"

10 TO 3.

The Thief River Falls Club Defeats St. Hilaire.

The second base ball game of the season was played in this city Sundy between the Thief River Falls and St. Hilaire clubs. The game was an exceedingly interesting one, and good playing was done by both sides, except in the first half of the seventh inning when the St. Hilaire boys "fell down" and the local club run in 6 scores. But seven innings were played and the game was devoid of the usual "rag chewing," the decisions of Umpire Goodwin being considered eminently fair. The following were the players:

T. R. F.	Position.	St. Hilaire
Benzie, D.	c.	Kelly
Browning	p.	Warner
Fuller	s. s.	Mousseon
Benzie, A.	1 b.	Mitchell
Dobner	2 b.	Martin
Paronto, A.	3 b.	Berg
Crowe	r. f.	Dawson
Paronto, D.	c. f.	McAndrew
Heritage	l. f.	Little

The score was as follows:

Inning—	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
Thief River F.	0	2	0	0	0	2	6	—10
St. Hilaire	0	0	0	0	2	0	1	—3

SURPLUS WATER.

Problem to be Solved at the Drainage Convention.

Just under the present drouth conditions we are apt to forget that the disposal of the surplus water which may at any time visit our Red River valley farms is a matter of such supreme importance, says the Polk County Journal, in discussing the drainage convention to be held in Crookston June 19. But, as we well know, this is an unusual year, and the spring has been an exceptionally dry one, and the possibility of a visitation of the other extreme is an ever present one. And it is a matter of great importance that a complete system of drainage be adopted, which will furnish to every farm a possible outlet for all water not immediately needed for absorption by it. But the greater need in most cases is to avert the influx of the water from other and neighboring lands. An efficient drainage system will provide for both of these needs at the same time. And how to continue the drainage work which has already been begun, and how to obtain the funds necessary for the consumation of it, are the questions which will engage the attention of the convention. Different methods of surface drainage will also be considered, and possibly some machinery will be on exhibition in connection with it. The convention is certain to be an interesting and important one, and coming as it does at a time when the farmers are not specially pressed by work it ought to be very largely attended.

Closed Down.

The saw mill at Crookston was closed down last Friday night, and will probably not be run again this season. The company has about 25,000,000 feet of logs on the Clearwater, but, unless it rains considerable during this month, no attempt will be made to drive the logs. The men who were working in the Crookston mill have been given employment by the mill at St. Hilaire, which is now running night and day.

Lost.

A roll of bills containing $60—two twenties and four fives—was lost last week, probably on the East side. Finder will be liberally rewarded.

GOOD WORK.

Farmers Digging a Ditch in Town of Norden.

Enterprising farmers living in the town of Norden have been busy during the past three weeks digging a ditch. The work will be completed this week. It runs between the first and second sand ridge in a southerly direction, connecting with the St. Hilaire-Sanders ditch. It is five miles in length, from 1½ to 5 feet deep and when completed will cost about $1000. The work has been under the supervision of Knute Setnes and the farmers contributing towards the building the ditch are Henry Gorkey, Sever Knutson, Lars and Robert Lee and August Johnson. It is a very commendable piece of work and the enterprising farmers who are doing the job are to be congratulated. While it is done without aid from the township, county or state, it will benefit a large section of country.

THE QUESTIONS

That Are Being Asked by Enumerator Johnson.

Census Enumerator O. P. Johnson commenced the first of the week to take the census of Thief River Falls. The work will be completed during the present month. The following is the list of questions which everyone will be required to answer:

Surname, christian name and initial.

Residence.

Relationship of each member to the head of family.

Color or race.

Sex.

Age at last birthday.

Day, month and year when born.

Are you single, married, widow, widower or divorced.

Number of years married.

How many childred.

Where were you born. If in the United States give state or territory. If of foreign birth give name of country only.

Where was your father born? Your mother? (Same conditions as in the foregoing.)

If of foreign birth when did you come to the United States?

How many years have you resided in the United States?

Have you been naturlized? How many years since you became a citizen?

What is your occupation, trade, or profession? (This question applies to everyone over ten years of age.)

How many months of the year are you employed?

How many months have you attended school?

Can you read?

Can you write?

Give the main facts concerning your education.

Do you own the house in which you live?

Do you rent the house in which you live?

If you own the house is it free or mortgaged? (The same questions apply to farms.)

Palaces on Wheels.

The Burlington's new Minneapolis and St. Paul-Chicago and St. Louis train consists of a buffet library car, a combination sleeping car, a standard sleeping car, a compartment sleeping car, a dining car, a reclining chair car and a day coach (high back seats.)

The most costly, beautiful, luxurious cars on earth. Steam heated; electric lighted. Wide vestibuled. No extra fares.

GIN AND CASH

Stolen From Olson & Holzknecht's Saloon.

Olson & Holzknecht's saloon was entered into sometime last Thursday night or Friday morning, and cash to the amount of $10.30 was taken from the money drawer, as was also a small barrel containing about ten gallons of gin. Entrance was forced through the rear end of the building and the locks on two doors were broken. The work was probably done by local parties.

How to Kill Cut Worms.

Many farmers and owners of gardens are complaining of the great damage done this spring by cut worms. Prof. Hoverstad, of the Crookston experimental station, thus tells how they may be gotten rid of:

The damage done by cut worms this year seems to be quite extensive. A large number of farmers have reported this trouble. Dr. Lugger suggests quite a number of remedies in his first annual report. The cut worm prefers wilted to more succulent food. To prepare food for themselves they cut the stems so the plant will wilt, giving them more suitable food. Knowing this, a remedy against them can be provided. By taking wilted foliage, or any surplus cabbage, bean or other plants and, dipping them in water containing Paris Green or London Purple and scattering them in the field where the plants are growing, a large number will be killed. Put this bait preferably on that part of the garden first attacked by them. Another remedy recommended is to mix rye flour and Paris Green or London Purple and put a small amount near each plant. Other remedies have been tried, but the above seems to be the most simple.

Just One Instance.

As an illustration of the big advance in farm values during the past few years a single instance might be cited relative to a transfer which was recorded at the register of deeds office Tuesday. In '98 E. J. Lander & Co. sold a quarter section of land in Grand Forks county for $650. The original purchaser disposed of the same piece of property Tuesday for $2,200 spot cash. The value of land in the Red River Valley is rapidly being appreciated by those who have been keeping close tab on the existing conditions and the day has passed when a good farm can be picked up for practically a song, as was once the case. Lands have not yet reached their real value, but are rapidly doing so, and there is a very pronounced disposition on the part of land owners to "hang on" like grim death to a nigger.—Grand Forks Herald.

THURSDAY, JUNE 7, 1900.

Two women have been elected delegates to the Republican national convention, one from Utah and the other from Idaho.

The indications are that Hans Aaker will be nominated by the Populists of the Seventh district for congressman. Mr. Aaker is a Prohibitionist and has already received the nomination from that party for the office he aspires to fill.

William E. Curtis, in the Chicago Record, says: "By a majority of nearly 20,000 the people of Virginia last Tuesday decided to have a revision of their constitution for the purpose of depriving the colored population of the right of suffrage so far as can be done without conflicting with the constitution of the United States; and it is a curious fact that the counties in which the colored population predominates gave the largest majorities in favor of the constitutional revision, and that the white counties gave the largest majorities against it. This is said by Virginian politicians to be due to the fact that the colored voters in the black counties, being illiterate, allowed the judges of election, who are all Democrats, to mark their ballots for them, and also because the people in the white counties fear that the elimination of the the negro from politics will cause a split in the Democratic party and result in strengthening the Republican party by recruits from the young, progressive class of citizens. However, the next legislature will be compelled to call a constitutional convention and arrange the preliminaries for it."

Flax is High.

Flax is quoted in Minneapolis at $1.76 per bushel and in Chicago at $1.80 per bushel. This is an extremely high price, and we can hardly hope that it will hold until the crop is harvested. Many farmers are contracting their flax now for fall delivery at $1.25 per bushel and it may be wise to follow that policy. There is a chance that the present high price of flax is only a move on the part of the oil mill people to induce a large acreage of flax being sown. In that case prices will go tumbling as soon as the new crop begins to come in. Flax is pretty generally bought up through the country, and, unless a large crop is raised, prices are apt to remain high. There is not much flax moving now, and manufacturers can afford to offer high prices for what they can get, especially if it is going to work toward a larger crop and lower prices next fall.—Farm Students' Review.

Five Mills.

A new coin is about to make its appearance. Simply a half cent is to be issued on request of the large department stores and others who have immediate use for the same. The housewife who then buys a dozen of eggs for twelve and a half cents will not have to pay thirteen for them.

Notice.

The road leading north over the chief section will be closed June 1st. Fred Rolette.

NEXT WEEK.

The Saw Mill Will Start Up Next Monday.

The Thief River Falls Lumber company's saw mill will start up next Monday and will run steady until it freezes up night and day. Logs arrived in the booms the first of the week, but, owing to the fact that repairs were being made upon the dam and the water in the mill pond allowed to go down, it was not thought to be advisable to start work this week. The mill is one of the finest in the northwest, and several thousand dollars will be paid out the working men each two weeks.

WILL CELEBRATE.

Firemen Decide to Celebrate the Fourth.

At a meeting of the fire department held last evening it was decided by that organization to celebrate the Fourth. The council will donate $50 to the firemen, and it is understood that other business men have decided to contribute liberally. The boys have in the past always made a success of everything they undertook, and the Fourth is sure to be celebrated in glorious style in Thief River Falls this year.

Men Selecting Presents.

"Some people, men especially, acquire reputations for excellent taste in selecting presents, when in reality they haven't the slightest idea what is being sent," said a salesman in a fashionable street jewelry store, according to the Philadelphia Record. "They just don't want to be bothered with making a selection themselves. Several regular customers who have accounts here invariably come to me when they receive wedding invitations, or have to give presents of any kind, and tell me to use my own judgment in making a selection. Of course, they tell me how much they want to spend, give me the name and address, together with a card to be inclosed, and go about their business. They haven't the slightest idea of what their gift is until they receive a note of thanks."

Beginning and Ending.

The transitoriness of human pomp and circumstance is well illustrated by the fact that on the day of the formal opening of the exposition in Paris, a contract was signed for the razing and dismantling of the buildings in which the exposition is held.

Cavalry Horses Shot by Mausers.

Among the reports from South Africa is one to the effect that Mauser bullets are ineffective in checking a charge of cavalry. Horses shot through the lungs and even through the breast were able to gallop 400 yards before they fell.

Aunt Rachel's

4 US

AFTERBATH

It makes the skin white and soft; removes pimples and dandruff and all eruptions from the person.

For the Head and Hair and Body.

The body and limbs of every child should be rubbed with 4 Us after every bath. Just enough dropped in the palm of the hand to rub over every part of the surface of a child, once a day will keep the skin soft and white, the pores free from getting clogged with impurity passing out from the system. A teaspoon full is sufficient to moisten the cuticle (skin covering) of a grown person. The effect is wonderful; pimples on the body and face are entirely removed by a few applications of the 4 Us. Druggists sell it.

ARAB HORSES.

Their Wants Are Few and They Are Hardy and Capable of Great Exertion.

So much has been written about the respect of an Arab for his horse that it is natural to think of the Arab steed as peculiarly delicate and sensitive to adverse influences. This is not the case, says Youth's Companion. The wants of an Arab horse are few, and he will maintain his health and spirits under conditions which other horses could never endure.

Indeed, not only can he put up with hardships at a pinch, but he actually deteriorates if too carefully tended. This has been proved again and again by purchasers who have refused to believe the usual three feeds of grain a day to be too much, or the morning hour of walking exercise too little.

The fact is that an Arab is naturally so high-spirited, and so difficult to tire, that even a single feed of corn is excessive unless he is being subjected to exceptionally hard work. He will answer every requirement as a hunter, if his food is restricted to hay, or even to grass. In the summer he thrives best when he has the run of a paddock, and can regulate his own food and exercise.

These remarks apply to the ordinary Arab horse in everyday life. What a picked animal can do when put upon his mettle is almost beyond belief. An officer recently returned from the Soudan says that after a ride of 900 miles his horse showed no signs of over-work, although he had cast all his shoes before a quarter of the journey was accomplished. Many of the camels had died on the way, and others had suffered severely, but the Arab horse was unhurt.

It was an Arab that, at Firozpur, carried 146 pounds and won a ten-mile race in 25 minutes, a feat of endurance rarely, if ever, equaled.

POLITE TO A CUSTOMER.

The Obliging Hibernian Clerk Gave Him Precisely What He Asked For.

Apropos of the ready comprehension and native wit attributed to the sons of Erin, Patrick's compliance with the customer's wish stands out in bold apposition, says the Chicago Post. Patrick was a clerk in a suburban grocery store. It was a busy season and the grocer was waiting upon two or three customers at the same time. He was in a hurry, and everything had to be where he could get it without much trouble or he would be delayed and probably lose money, so when he found that the pound weight was gone he was bothered.

"Patrick," he called out, "where's the pound weight?"

"The pound weight, is it?" said Patrick, complacently. "Sure, an' it's Misther Jones has the pound weight."

"Mr. Jones has it? What do you mean by saying that Mr. Jones has the pound weight? I thought the pound weight stayed in the store. How did Mr. Jones get it?"

"An' shure, didn't yez tell me to be perlite to the rigular customers?"

"Of course."

"Well, thin, Misther Jones comes into the store for a pound of tay. An', says he, whin I asked him what quality of tay he wud have: 'Whativer yez give me,' says he, 'give me the weight.' So I put the pound weight in the package with the tay, perlite like, an' it's himself that's gone with it."

TAMAHAC OR TOMAHAWK?

The War Hatchet of the Indian as It Was in Its Earlier Form.

Tamahac eventually came to designate the "war hatchet" of the Indian, supplied by the military commanders of the whole continent in equipping the warriors on the many expeditions in which French and English were constantly engaged, and was furnished the Indian allies of the English in our war of independence. This weapon, says the annual report of the Smithsonian Institution, was either in the form of a spear or hatchet blade on one side, while upon the opposite side there was a cup-like cavity with a small hole extending into the eye of the weapon, into which a tough handle of wood was fitted 18 inches or two feet in length. The handle was perforated almost its entire length, and below the hollow of the bowl it was bored at right angles to this perforation, a suitable stemhole for the passage of the tobacco smoke when the implement was in use as a pipe. The tomahawk pipe was not only attractive and popular in trade, but, like the earlier trade pipe, was given as a present at councils and ratifications of treaties; it was a pipe, a hatchet, and a mace or hammer all in one, and answered an important military requirement in lessening the weight and incumbrances of the warrior, who otherwise would have tenaciously held to the stone pipe, which, in itself, was heavier than the tomahawk.

Big Families of English Upper Ten.

Small families are hardly the rule among the English upper ten. The average is six or seven. The queen is the mother of nine and the princess of Wales of six children. Lord Abergavenny is the father of ten, the duke of Argyll of 12, the dowager countess of Dudley is the mother of seven children, the earl of Ellesmere boasts of 11, the earl of Inchiquin of 14 and the earl of Leicester of 18.

The Least of Two Evils.

Another new heiress has wedded her coachman. This, in the opinion of the Chicago Record, is quite an improvement over the other fad of marrying foreign noblemen.

LEFT HIS BOOK IN THE CAR.

It Was the Nature of the Volume, Indicated by the Title, That Made the People Smile.

He was very stout and very dignified. His glistening broadcloth frock coat, narrow white tie and high hat were all immaculate, says the Chicago Chronicle.

He boarded a Clark street cable car at the limits and sat down near the door. After adjusting a heavy pair of gold spectacles he took a paper book from his capacious pocket and quickly became absorbed in it.

Soon an almost audible smile passed across the faces of the other passengers, but the old gentleman neither saw nor heard. Never once from the car barns to Monroe street were the gold spectacles raised from the pages before them. People entered and left the car, grinning broadly, but not a smile flickered across the reader's face. Evidently the matter before him was worthy of his most serious consideration.

When the cable car jerked around the corner of Dearborn street he started up in sudden excitement.

"Stop, stop," he called to the conductor. "Where am I?"

He got his bearings in a minute and, catching sight of a clock in the drug store window, he said, half aloud:

"Tut, tut, 11 o'clock and I should have been at the conference at that hour."

He got off and started toward the Auditorium, forgetting his book, in a brilliant green and yellow cover, on which in large black letters was printed: "Black Jack Duncan; or, a Round-Up in the Rockies."

FIFTH CAVALRY'S PETS.

Young Porto Rican, a Senora, Two Children and Several Birds and Animals.

With the Fifth cavalry squadron at Jefferson barracks are four natives of Porto Rico. One is a youth with military aspirations, says the New York Journal. Another is a senora anxious to see something of America. The others are small boys.

The name of the military youth is Vicenti Correa. He comes from Arecibo, on the northern coast of the island. The senora's name is Adela Perez. The two little boys are her sons, Antonio and Gullilamo Perez.

Vicento has been with A troop about a year. He is not an enlisted trooper, as the constitution does not permit the enrollment of a native of Porto Rico in the regular army.

Senora Adela Perez came with the troops in the capacity of cook. Her home was at Adjuntas, in the mountains at the western end of the island. With her came her two small sons, aged four and five respectively. When Capt. Katt's family arrives at the barracks the senora will be installed as the family cook.

Native Porto Ricans are not the only interesting importations of the troopers. A small circus menagerie could be stocked with the birds and animals that the cavalrymen carried home. These pets include not only dogs and ponies, but parrots, game cocks and monkeys.

EXPOSURE NOT LOOKED FOR.

How Unscrupulous Magistrate Who Connived at Election Frauds Paid a Doctor.

For this story of the relation of politics and medicine the Philadelphia Medical Journal vouches. A physician was summoned in haste to attend the child of a family that lived in two rooms in the heart of a large American city not New York. The child had been seized suddenly and seriously and just at election time; the mother was in despair and when the doubtful prognosis was given she broke into wailing and violent self-condemnation for some horrible sin of the family, to which she said the child's illness was due—a direct punishment for their crime. She would go and curse the magistrate for it all, her husband should resign from "the force" and such evil ways should be renounced forever. Curious to know how the magistrate could be held responsible for the child's illness, the doctor finally secured the confession that the crime of the poor, conscience-stricken woman consisted in allowing the names of many fraudulent voters to be registered as resident in her house, in swearing to the lie, etc. The magistrate also had demanded this of all the neighbors in return for indescribable political favors. The child recovered and the magistrate paid the physician's bill.

The Gracious Lady of Spain.

Not long since a visitor to the queen regent of Spain took the liberty of asking for a rose as a memento from a vase standing near. "Certainly," replied Maria Christina, and was just about to select one herself when, glancing around the room, she saw another vase filled with flowers. Crossing over to the second vase she took some roses from it and handed them to her visitor, saying: "These flowers come from my own garden and were tended and gathered by myself."

The Pompom.

The "pompom," to which reference is frequently made in the dispatches about the South African war, is an automatic rapid-fire weapon, which is greatly in favor with the Boers. It is much lighter than the ordinary field guns, and throws one-pound shells, which burst on impact. Its rate of fire is three or four times that of the field piece, and it can be so swiftly moved, even over hilly ground, that it is particularly adapted to Boer methods of warfare.

VIOLIN MUSIC.

Its Peculiar and Varied Effects on Wild Animals of Various Varieties.

The violin was used recently with interesting results in experiments with all sorts of living creatures. First it was played before a tarantula. She paid no attention whatever to it. But a nest of scorpions became intensely excited and wiggled frantically, says the New York Press.

A cobra showed remarkable susceptibility. She was sleeping soundly when the experimenters approached her, but the first tone awakened her, and she raised her head. As the music swelled she continued to rise till she was standing straight as a pillar, supported only by her tail. Every change in tempo and pitch had effect. The pizzicato made her puff her entire body, swift waltz music caused her to erect her ugly hood to its fullest size, and a sudden dissonance made her wind and twist her body as if she were in real agony.

The polar bear tried to dance to the sounds of the instrument. At least he swayed his body rhythmically and made a rumbling sound which portrayed deep pleasure. The grizzlies and the lions moved their paws and the lions their tails also in time with the music. It happened that a string snapped, with its peculiar, sharp smack, just as the player had begun to perform before the cage of a hyena. That poor animal at once hunched its back up, drew its tail between its legs and crouched, trembling, in the farthest corner of the cage. The elephant and the ostrich were delighted by soft tones and appeared to suffer true distress from loud and sharp notes.

WOOING UNDER DIFFICULTIES.

Loving Words from a Flying Train Arouse Interest in the Observant Neighbors.

A romance of true love is working itself out between a railroad engineer and a widow of this city in full view of this lady's not uninterested neighbors, says the Philadelphia Record. She lives with her offspring in a house before whose door run the railroad tracks and several times a day the engineer sails grandly back and forth on these and hands down words of love in a loud voice from the eminence of his engine cab. Thus they woo, the widow on her doorstep, the engineer up on his iron steed, and if it be dark—whether evening or daybreak—their words are winged with passion and the neighbors get out of bed and listen from their windows. "I dreamed about you last night," the widow once said. "Tell me the dream," said the engineer. "Oh; I couldn't do that," and to the listeners the very voice of the coy widow seemed to blush. One Saturday night he made her a present. "Here y' are. Can you catch?" he cried, and tossed a bulky package. The neighbors found it was a roast of beef. She, in return, stood on tiptoe beside the locomotive and handed something up. "What? Oh, suspenders! Say, they're all right," acknowledged the engineer. For six months this wooing has been going on and the audience thinks it is pretty near time the engineer came to the scratch and, like a man, offered his heart and hand to the willing widow.

LARGE CANADIAN FAMILIES.

A Montreal Man with Twelve Children Marries a Quebec Woman with Eleven.

A newspaper of Quebec lately told of the marriage of a Montreal widower with 12 to a Quebec widow with 11 children, and this brought out from a correspondent a bigger story. It is that some years ago Louis Lemieux, of St. Henri, father of 12 children, married Mme. Letourneau, mother of 12. They were well-to-do people and united their progeny under one roof. The registrar of the district attests the truth of the statement and says that he was the notary and friend of the couple, and "at the wedding dinner I saw the 24 children seated at the bridal table and happy at being united in the family. All remained together under the parental roof for some years, and never was the peace and harmony of this patriarchal dwelling disturbed by troubles between parents or children." He tells how, one by one, the 24 children married, "to create other families," and to-day the old couple live in comfort and respect in the village of St. Henri.

Japs Turned the Joke.

The Shipping World says: "A good story apropos of the visit of the Japanese prince is being told in Paris about a former Japanese embassy which came to France to arrange about three free ports which were to be opened to trade in Japan and France, respectively. The French minister of foreign affairs chose Yokohama, Yeddo and Han-Yang. The Japanese ambassador smiled and went away. Soon afterward Japan signified that she had selected the three French ports of Havre, Marseilles and Southampton. The French foreign office went into fits of laughter at this blunder, and pointed out that Southampton was in England. 'We are perfectly aware of it,' replied the Japanese ambassador, 'and Han-Yang is in Corea.'"

Elections in Cuba.

The Cuban elections, to be held on Saturday, June 16, mark a desirable departure from an established custom. Under Spanish rule, elections were always held on Sunday. The people are now to have an opportunity to demonstrate their fitness for some degree of self-government, and one can but hope the privilege will be utilized in a way to promote general welfare.

Hunt's residence his foot became entangled in the reins, throwing him face forward upon the sidewalk, inflicting quite serious internal injuries in the region of the chest. Mr. Wyer and wife were just making ready for their departure for home at the time of the accident. A letter from Excelsior to their son, Malcolm, Monday stated that his father was doing nicely, but it would be several weeks before he would be able to attend to business.—Red Lake Falls Courier.

Market Days.

Ulen down in Clay county is trying the plan of having special market days. A committee of business men act as commissioners to conduct the sales, and anyone having property of whatever nature that they wish to sell has it listed and exposed for examination that day. Everything from a crowbar to a church pulpit is offered, and the result is that all wants can be supplied so a large attendance is secured. The band is hired for the day, and everyone is kept good natured by the music. The plan seems to work well and is worthy of imitation by larger communities.

Want More Bids.

At a meeting of the city council held the first of the week bids were opened for the placing of gravel upon La Bree avenue. Only one bid was received, it being put in by Louis Hanson, and action was deferred, as the council desired to receive more bids before letting the contract.

For Shooters and Fishermen.

The new 1900 edition of "Shooting and Fishing Along the Line of the Great Northern Railway" is without an equal amongst books of this class. It is handsomely bound in colored covers of new and attractive design. It is printed on fine plate paper, in two colors, is beautifully illustrated with photographs reproduced in half-tone, and is in all respects a magnificent specimen of the printer's art.

Complete information is given about all sorts and conditions of sport, from lion and grizzly bear to "cotton-tails," and including every fish that swims in the many lakes and rivers of the wide Northwestern states.

All the little details of lakes, boats, bait, distances, etc., have been carefully compiled by practical sportsmen and will be found a great convenience to anyone planning a trip. A new map of Minnesota in three colors is bound into each book.

The hunter or fisherman who is the fortunate possessor of this encyclopedia of sport in the Northwest needs no further guide to tell him where to go a-fishing or shooting. By mail for two cents from F. I. Whitney, general passenger agent, St. Paul, Minn.

If anybody has a message for the people of this community, he cannot deliver it to them so effectually, so cheaply, so quickly in any other way as through the columns of this paper.

It is the business of the News to carry messages of one kind and another into homes. The message will be delivered, too, under favorable conditions, for few persons take up their local paper except in a pleasant and receptive frame of mind.

The sign upon the fence board may be good, but it can be seen only by travelers who go that particular road. The message in the local paper carries itself to thousands, no matter by which road they travel.

Select your space and put your message where it will do the most good. We, perhaps, can help you, if you will but ask us.

TIME AND SPACE are practically annihilated by the ocean cables and land telegraph systems which now belt the circumference of Old Earth in so many different directions. "Foreign parts" are no longer foreign in the old meaning of the term. Europe, Africa, Asia, are "next door" to us. What happens there to-day we know to-morrow—if we read THE CHICAGO RECORD, whose Special Cable Correspondents are located in every important city in the world outside of the United States. No other American newspaper ever attempted so extensive a service; and it is supplemented by the regular foreign news service of The Associated Press. For accurate intelligence of the stirring events which are shaking the nations—of wars and rumors of wars—of the threatening dissolution of old governments and the establishment of new—of the onward sweep of the race in all parts of the world—the one medium of the most satisfactory information is the enterprising, "up-to-date" American newspaper, THE CHICAGO RECORD.

FREE A large map of the world on Mercator's Projection, about 23½x16 inches in size, beautifully printed in colors, with a large-scale map of Europe on the reverse side, will be mailed to any address free of charge on receipt of request accompanied by two 2-cent stamps to cover postage and wrapping. The maps illustrate clearly how comprehensively the special cable service of THE CHICAGO RECORD covers the entire civilized world. Address THE CHICAGO RECORD, 181 Madison street, Chicago.

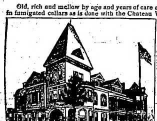
of Passaic, N. J. Vineyards.

These Wines Rival the World in Excellence.

Old, rich and mellow by age and years of care and frequent racking in fumigated cellars as is done with the Chateau Wines in France.



Photograph of Chateau de Speer.

The Chateau contains a limited supply of Private Stock Port nineteen years old, besides Burgundy and Claret of nearly the same age. The Speer Port, however, nine years old, as well as the Burgundy, Claret and Sherry, are high class wines. The ★★★ Climax Brandy is 18 years old. All are preferred where known by the Medical profession as superior to any that can be had, for their excellent effect upon the system when used by invalids, the weakly and aged persons and in general family use. Northern New Jersey climate, and soil abounding in iron is just adapted for this grape for Port wine. It is the same kind of soil as in Portugal. Speer's winery and vineyards are the only Port grape vineyards in the United States; only vineyards that cultivate the real Port wine grape of Portugal; while other wines or mixtures called port are made without a single Oporto grape in them. Mr. Speer is the first and only one who imported the vines and acclimated the real Port wine grape vines of Portugal. He spent thousands of dollars as a hobby to see what he could do toward acclimating these Portugal vines here. It took eight years for them to become acclimated before Mr. Speer got a single grape; during those years all died except about eight hundred vines, when those began to grow vigorous and bear fruit; from these, layers were made for new vines. The vineyards now cover fifty six acres. It has proven a success. The grapes are allowed to hang on the vines until they begin to raisin, when they have parted with some of the water and are rich in sugar; and the wine made from Port wine grapes is the only real genuine Port wine made in America. It is by far THE wine for weakly persons, the aged and for evening entertainments.

WILD ANIMALS HE KNOWS.

An Elderly Man Who Feeds the Squirrels and Birds in Prospect Park, N. Y.

An old man who makes a visit to Prospect park every fine morning during the summer spends an hour or two on the hill back of the common feeding birds and squirrels with bread crumbs which he brings in his pockets. He is patriarchial looking and he has managed to make a large number of friends among the birds and squirrels. A park policeman who was talking to a New York Sun reporter about the old man said:

"I first noticed him two years ago. I saw him going across the common at daybreak and, wondering what he was doing in this lonely place at such an hour in the morning, I followed him. He went up the hill south of the common and then over toward the old Indian burying ground, where he sat down on the ground and began to chirp. Pretty soon I noticed that squirrels were coming toward him, and that a lot of birds were hovering around. I saw him take a lot of crumbs out of his pocket and scatter them around, and then the birds and squirrels had a feast. This thing has been going on ever since.

"When I first saw him he had only been feeding the residents of the park for a little while and hadn't become acquainted with them. But my! he knows them all now, and they know him. Nowadays they come right up to him and take the crumbs from his hands. He's a queer old customer and he has no use for people around when he's communing with his friends. If anybody happens along when he is feeding the birds and squirrels he will quit at once and he won't resume until they go away. I've been in the park for 20 years and I don't know a bird or squirrel, but he knows them all. It certainly beats me how he ever got acquainted."

IS NAIL CUTTING SURGERY?

A Fine Technical Point to Be Decided by a German Law Court.

A short time ago a German court was called upon to decide the question whether corns on the feet were a disease. The court at Vienna, says the European edition of the New York Herald, was lately called upon to give its decision on a much more difficult question. A doctor in that city, having to perform an operation, began by cutting his nails quite close, and slightly cut his finger. He nevertheless performed several operations during the day.

The wound festered; the doctor was compelled, in his turn, to undergo an operation, and for 22 days he was unable to perform his professional duties. He therefore claimed 55 florins from a company in which he was insured against accidents. The company refused to pay, on the ground that no claim could be made in respect to an operation performed by a surgeon upon himself. The question therefore resolves itself into this: Is cutting one's nails a surgical operation? The question was so embarrassing to the court that, after having heard both sides and deliberated for a considerable time, it reserved its decision.

Without professing to be able to settle this difficult question, I would merely observe that if to cut one's nails is a surgical operation, to shave one's self is also one, a fortiori, as it was formerly a part of the professional duty of the surgeon. Indeed, during the nineteenth century several English surgeons employed in the Danish fleet were discharged for refusing to shave the crews.

SHE SAW IT FIRST.

A Philadelphia Teamster, Who Proved Himself a Chesterfield in Manners.

He was only a teamster, but his soul was filled with a chivalry which we are led to believe typified the knights of old. And in a coat of mail he might have passed muster, for he was a big, brawny chap, with no little physical beauty of the rough sort, says the Philadelphia Record. As he guided his heavy dray down Market street hill the other morning one of the horses slipped in the icy street, and in his effort to recover his equilibrium lost a shoe. Putting the brake down hard, the driver jumped from his seat to recover the shoe.

But, quick as he was another claimant was ahead of him. She was a fashionably attired young girl of about 18, with a roguish, laughing face. Just as the teamster leaned over to pick up the horseshoe a dainty gloved little hand reached in ahead of his big red one and clutched the coveted prize.

"I got it first," she cried, laughing gleefully. "Let me keep it, do, please. It's such good luck if you see it come off yourself."

The big teamster removed his fur cap and bowed with Chesterfieldian grace. "Certainly, miss," he replied, gallantly, "if I can assist you to good luck I shall be most happy."

Then, quite unabashed, he climbed up to his seat, and the girl walked up the hill with the horseshoe.

A Novel Entertainment.

In Vienna, recently, a prize was offered for the most original suggestion for a charity entertainment. The prize was won by a young countess, who suggested a "composite at home." A large hall was engaged, and the hostesses at separate booths, arranged according to individual taste, but with reference to a general color scheme. Admission was charged, and fruits, bonbons and artistic trifles were sold. The guests were all invited, and every hostess received in her own booth, afterward taking her friends to the other booths.

CHICAGOESE GOOD ENOUGH.

Residents of the Garden City Are Satisfied with Their Own Dialect.

When teachers or principals of the Chicago schools misuse the English idiom, twist up their grammatical construction and slide into bad colloquialisms, it is simply a lapse into "Chicagoese," says the Chicago Tribune. The district superintendents of schools came to this opinion a few days ago at their cabinet meeting, after they had considered the charges of school trustees that the teachers do not understand the language and cannot use or teach it correctly.

Whatever faults there might be in the school English the superintendents decided to be the result of local dialect. When a teacher says "that ain't" or "it don't," splits her infinitives, uses adjectives where adverbs should be used, ends a sentence with a preposition, asks where something "is at," places modifying clauses out of order, forgets the conjugation of her verbs, or does any of the other things of which trustees complain, it is simply a lapse into local dialect, according to the superintendents.

Such usages are permissible in "Chicagoese," and lapses into dialect do not constitute offenses which would make Lindley Murray weep, according to the superintendents. It was decided that the charges of the trustees had been overdrawn and were not based upon a sufficient investigation.

"Spelling is not taught in the primary grades from text books," said Superintendent Sabin, "but it is in the elementary grades. When the teachers use bad English they simply lapse into Chicago dialect, in which they were brought up. They are nearly all Chicago born."

SOWING WITH ARTILLERY.

How the Duke of Athol Redeemed a Barren Crag from Unsightly Sterility.

In the grounds of the duke of Athol and near Blair castle, England, stands a high, rocky crag named Craigiebarns. It looked grim and bare in the midst of beauty and its owner thought how much prettier it would look if only trees, shrubs, etc., could be planted in its nooks and crannies. It was considered impossible for anyone to scale its steep and dangerous acclivities and no other way was thought of to get seed sown. One day, says the New York Press, Alexander Nasmyth, father of the celebrated engineer, paid a visit to the duke's grounds. The crag was pointed out to him and he was told of the desire of the duke regarding it.

After some thought he conceived how it could be accomplished. In passing the castle he noticed two old cannon. He got a few small tin canisters, made to fit the bore of the cannon, and filled them with a variety of tree, shrub and grass seeds. The cannons were loaded in the usual way and fired at the rocks from all sides. The little canisters on striking the rock burst, scattering the seeds in all directions. Many seeds were lost, but many more fell into the ledges or cracks where there was a little moss or earth. These soon showed signs of life and in a few years graceful trees and pretty climbing plants, all sown by gunpowder, were growing and flourishing in nearly every recess of the formerly bare, gray crag, clothing it with verdant beauty.

THE TOUCAN AT ROOST.

Curious and Amusing Performance of the Queer Bird When Preparing for Sleep.

The toucan was an amiable, and, at first, a silent bird. He lived in a very large cage, chiefly on fruit, and tubbed constantly, says Cornhill. But the curious and amusing thing was to see him preparing to roost, and he began quite early, while other birds were still quite wide awake. The first thing was to carefully cock up—for it was a slow and cautious proceeding—his absurd little scut of a tail; which was only about three or four inches long. This must in some way have affected his balance, for he never moved on the perch after the tail had been laid carefully back. Then, later in the evening, he gently turned the huge unwieldy bill around by degrees, until it too was laid along his back and buried in feathers in the usual bird fashion. By the way, I have always wondered how and why the myth arose that birds sleep with their heads under their wings? A moment's thought or observation would show that it is quite as impossible a feat for a bird as for a human being. However, the toucan's sleeping arrangements resulted in producing an oval mass of feathers supported on one leg, looking as unlike a bird as it is possible to imagine. When he was ruthlessly awakened by a sudden poke or noise, which I grieve to state was often done—in my absence, needless to say—I heard that he invariably tumbled down in a sprawling heap, being unable to adjust the balance required by the ponderous bill all in a moment.

A Modest Constituent.

Here is a letter recently received in Washington by a western member of congress: "To the Very Honorable Mr. Blank—Kind air and esteemed friend: I have the seeds. They came this morning and suit very well, specially the cabbage seed which grows well in this soil. pleas send me 9 loads of fertiliser and a new barrer (mine is broke so it ain't no good) and if you could send me a man for a couple of days I would be obliged. With this help I know the garden stuff will turn out al rite and I will send some to yot and the president. Your grateful wel wisher and Supporter."

I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Say, John, what are you doing to look so healthy?"

FREE HOMES LAW.

Hermann's Instructions to Land Offices.

Washington, June 9.—Land Commissioner Hermann has issued instructions to local land offices to carry into effect the free homes law. They are as follows:

Only settlers under homestead laws upon agricultural public lands, which have already been opened to settlement, acquired prior to passage of this act by treaty or agreement from various Indian tribes, are affected by this act.

This act does not change existing laws, as to time of submitting final proof and making payment of final commissions where final proof has been heretofore made for lands affected by this act, and payment has not been made, such payment will not now be required by you. Where payments were authorized to be made in installments and partial payment has been made, but final proof has not been made, no other or further payment will be required when homestead settler makes his final proof, except payment of final commissions and testimony fees where right to commute homestead entries within any of reservations covered by the act has been heretofore authorized by statute.

Homestead settlers may commute their entries therein in time and at the prices now fixed by existing laws.

Entries, where settlement and residence are not requisite, do not come within the provisions of this act.

AN OLD IDEA

Again Brought to the Front by P. E. Pirath.

P. E. Pirath has a long communication in each of the Red Lake Falls papers this week. He says he has the interest of the farmers at heart, and offers a few suggestions which, if properly enforced, "would result in a boom and good times to all the western wheat producing states, which would prove to be of more importance to the people in general than 16 to 1 silver." Mr. Pirath's idea is that the farmers should band themselves together into a union and all agree not to sell their wheat at a price less than 75 cents per bushel. He will call a public meeting later and perfect an organization. It will cost the farmers about 1 cent a bushel to join the association.

A Pneumatic Horse Shoe.

A new horse shoe, which has a hollow opening on the side that strikes the ground, in which is inserted a solid piece of hard rubber about one half inch in diameter, held firmly with clamps, has been placed upon the market. The shoe is nailed on the hoof in the ordinary manner, and, when the rubber wears out, these clamps may be released and a new piece of rubber inserted. They are noiseless and, when used with the rubber tired vehicle, it may be termed the silent steed. It is claimed that the shoe is much easier on a horse. The rubber lasts for about eight weeks.

Twelve Saloons.

Joseph Juneau and O. Persons expect to open up their saloon on La Bree avenue tomorrow. This increases the total number of saloons doing business in this city to an even dozen.

A MAN DROWNED

At St. Hilaire Last Thursday Morning.

Barney Mosseau, who was employed by the St. Hilaire Lumber company, was drowned last Thursday morning at St. Hilaire, the body being recovered two and a half hours later. The accident was due to the high wind, which blew the unfortunate man off the boom into the river. He sank between the logs and never reappeared. Mosseau was well known in this city.

A Hodag.

Wellington Schroeder returned yesterday from the northern part of the county with a story that beats sea serpents all to smash. He personally met a wild beast which the settlers call a "hodag." This is an animal which is nearly extinct, and the only one of its kind known to be in captivity is at Rhinelander, Wis. The hodag is a meat eater, and subsists on moose and kindred game, which it rushes upon and rips with its horns. It has four of these, one on the snout and three upon its back. It has a tough hide covered with brownish hair. Wellington met this creature Sunday in the woods near the mouth of Black Duck river, 30 miles beyond Tenstrike. Wellington had no weapon larger than a knife, and if he had had a cannon he would not have dared to use it, he says. He made for a large tree, and found, to his satisfaction, that the hodag wore feet too large for scaling purposes. The man sat on a branch and studied natural history, and the animal sawed the tree and studied man for over half an hour, then vanished. It is said that this brute is the terror of the neighborhood, and has killed a number of cattle for the lumbermen. If any circus wants him, Mr. Schroeder will give up his claim by right of discovery.

N. B. It may be well to add that he is not a drinking man.—Bemidji Pioneer.

Bemidji Boomers.

The board of county commissioners of Beltrami county, at a meeting held last week, adopted resolutions calling for bids for a new court house for Beltrami county. Contractors and architects are called on for plans and specifications accompanying bids for a building not to exceed in cost the sum of $25,000. The commissioners do not propose to issue bonds, but will levy a tax to cover the whole cost, so that the standing pine will have paid its share of taxation before it is all cut off. The action of the commissioners was understood to be prompted by the anxiety of the settlers in the county lest the pine land owners should get all their pine cut off, leaving nothing but stumps to help pay for the future county buildings. If the Bemidji "gang" continues to run things in Beltrami county, pine land over there will not be as valuable as it has been.

DAY AND NIGHT.

The Saw Mill Is Now Running Full Blast.

The Thief River Falls Lumber company's saw mill started up last Saturday, and on Monday it commenced running night and day. The mill is giving employment to about 300 men, and will run until it freezes up.

Angora Goats.

The raising of goats in Beltrami county promises to be a leading industry, not owing to the increase of secret societies, but to the growing appreciation of the worth of these animals as underbrush destroyers. A. L. Morris, of Bagley, went to Kansas City and returned with a shipment of 100 Angora goats, which he turned out on his farm at Bagley. They are valued at from $5 to $25 per head, the lower figure being for kids. It has been demonstrated within the last few years that there is big money in raising Angoras in the United States. The industry is comparatively new here, and attention has been called to it by the agricultural department at Washington within the last year or two, with the result that the number of goats is rapidly increasing in this country. They are especially well suited to Minnesota, as they are a great aid in clearing new land. The are especially fond of the foliage of small trees and underbrush, and will destroy all the twigs and leaves within their reach.—Bemidji Pioneer.

Favors Sale of Timber.

It is stated at the interior department at Washington that Indian Agent Mercer at Leech Lake has recommended that certain timber on the Red Lake, Leech Lake and White Earth reservations be disposed of next season. The agent speaks of millions of feet of timber on the reservations as having been burned over, and says that thousands of dollars will be saved to the Chippewas if the timber is sold before it rots. The agent incidentally remarks that the Indians are opposed to the proposed park on the reservations and opposed to the disposal of the pine under the terms of the Nelson law.

A 3-cent Piece.

A new coin 3-cent piece has been authorized by congress to take the place of the old coin, which was so much like the dime that its coinage was stopped. The new 3-cent piece is ordered to be made of nickel, the size of the old bronze cent, only thicker. In the center is to be a hole one-fourth inch in diameter. This will make the coin easily distinguished by sight or touch. It will be some time, however, before the new coin will be in circulation.

Lost.

A roll of bills containing $60—two twenties and four fives—was lost last week, probably on the East side. Finder will be liberally rewarded.

Summer Trips By Land and Water.

The booklet just published by the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway tells what the summer tourist wants to know. It contains rates of fare for many trips to Eastern points, with maps showing the routes, and time schedules of trains and steamers. Also beautifully illustrated descriptive matter. A combination of utility and beauty rarely found in publications of this kind.

The Chicago Tribune

is a newspaper for bright and intelligent people. It is made up to attract people who think.

Is not neutral or colorless, constantly trimming in an endeavor to please both sides, but it is independent in the best sense of the word.

It has pronounced opinions and is fearless in expressing them, but it is always fair to its opponents.

Matters of national or vital public interest get more space in THE TRIBUNE than in any other paper in the West.

For these reasons it is the newspaper you should read during the forthcoming political campaign.

THE TRIBUNE'S financial columns never mislead the public.

Its facilities for gathering news, both local and foreign, are far superior to those of any other newspaper in the West.

It presents the news in as fair a way as possible, and lets its readers form their opinions.

While it publishes the most comprehensive articles on all news features, if you are busy the "Summary of THE DAILY TRIBUNE" published daily on the first page gives you briefly all the news of the day within one column.

Its sporting news is always the best, and its Sunday Pink Sporting Section is better than any sporting paper in the country.

It is the "cleanest" daily printed in the West.

SIGNIFICANT FIGURES.

Some figures relating to the finances of the National Cigarmakers' Union are a significant index to the conditions which existed under successive national administrations in this country.

There were paid out of the out-of-work benefits by the union the following annual sums within the last ten years:

In 1890	$22,760.50
In 1891	21,233.50
In 1892	17,460.75

That was during the Harrison administration. Then Grover Cleveland was elected, and the annual payments for the relief of cigarmakers out of work increased as follows:

In 1893	$ 89,403.75
In 1894	174,402.25
In 1895	166,377.25
In 1896	175,767.25

When President McKinley had been inducted into office, the annual payments decreased again as follows:

In 1897	$117,471.40
In 1898	70,197.70
In 1899	88,037.00

These figures are submitted for the thought of all intelligent citizens. They tell a story that could not be told as effectively in words occupying several times the space which they occupy.—Winona Republican.

FORECAST OF PLATFORM.

The Chicago Tribune, the leading Republican paper of the west, gives the following synopsis of the platform which will probably be adopted at the Republican national convention:

Philippine insurrection stamped out, only guerrilla warfare remaining; municipal government organized and commission at work extending civil government where natives are able to administer it.
